The Guardian argues that if the Brussels meeting of ministers Saturday proves anything, "it is that the Western Europe either will have to be integrated or will disintegrate."

"Either the six will move on to a closer political and economic union—enlarged to include Britain and other applicants—or the Common Market will fail."

Of concern also to London bankers and financial commentators is the impact of the European decisions on the role of the International Monetary Fund in attempting to stabilize world currencies through fixed exchange rates.

In the past the fund had strong European support against floating rates, including the Canadian float last year.

Canadian Dollar Aloof From Fuss

By BUD JORGENSEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Canadian dollar, which in theory should be wide open to international influence, seems to have remained aloof from the monetary crisis in Europe.

The closing value of the dollar Friday was about 99.32 cents U.S., up less than two-tenths of a cent from its value the previous Friday, before the situation in Europe began to get out of control.

If the values of European or Japanese currencies are forced upward, this would help Canada's trade position.

The major competitors for Canada's pulp and paper producers are the Scandinavian countries and an increase in the value of their currencies would make their products more expensive on world markets. The impact on the automobile manufacturing industry would be similar with revaluation of the West Germany mark of the Japanese yen. .

Almost 70 per cent of Canada's foreign trade is with the United States and consequently the impact on trade is greater when the value of the Canadian dollar is changed in relation to the U.S. dollar. However, revaluation of other major world currencies would help Canada's trade position. The United Kingdom is Canada's second largest trading partner; Japan is third; and West Germany fourth.

Fall From Plane Wheel-housing Nearly Fatal to Murder Suspect

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) A Colombian diplomat wanted in the shooting of a millionaire playboy was near death Sunday after falling out of the landing-gear compartment of a departing jetliner during an escape attempt.

Police said Eduardo Espinosa de Zuleta, 30, second secretary of the Colombian embassy in Washington, D.C., plunged more than 60 feet to the runway from a Braniff DC-8 jet Saturday night as it was taking off from Pudahuel International Airport for Miami.

Espinosa had been sought since the Wednesday hotel shooting of Rafael Friel Mastrodo, 44, a naturalized Colombian citizen who was born in Italy. Police said Friel refused to grant a divorce to his pretty wife so she and the young diplomat could marry.

Friel is a millionaire and president of the Jockey Club of Colombia. He was in Chile to buy 40 race horses.

Mars-bound Mariner Falters Over Atlantic

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Preparations moved ahead today to launch Mariner IX toward Mars on schedule May 18 while investigators probed the failure of Mariner VIII.

Even with a delay, Mariner IX could be launched as late as June 17. After that, Mars moves out of favorable position and won't be available as a target again until 1973.

The first half of the $153.8 million project to send two satellites in orbit around Mars failed Saturday night less than five minutes after the Atlas-Centaur rocket blasted off. The second stage tumbled out of control 32 miles high and plummeted into the Atlantic with its payload.

Initial examination of radio data traced the problem to an electronic failure in the Centaur's flight control system.

Robert Kraemer, director of planetary programs for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said: "It is our intent while doing the detailed investigation to proceed right ahead with our plans to launch the second Mariner on May 18."

Mariners VIII and IX were the first spacecraft built to orbit another planet. Mariner VIII was to have conducted a broad mapping mission of 70 per cent of the Martian surface, while Mariner IX was to have made repeated surveys of six selected areas to detect atmospheric, surface and seasonal changes.

The maps would help experts select landing sites for two Project Viking craft which are to land on the planet in 1975 to search for primitive life forms.

Aged Autos Are Sought

A parade of vintage McLaughlin cars representing each year of manufacture from 1908 through 1942 will be featured on a gala weekend in Oshawa to honor Colonel R.S. McLaughlin during his 100th birthday year.

The weekend, sponsored by the Canadian Automotive Museum, will see many activities for participants who will come to Oshawa from many parts of Canada and the U.S.A. The action starts Friday night, June 18 and runs through to noon Sunday, the 20th.

Program plans call for a welcoming cheese and wine reception for participants at Canadian Automotive Museum, and a dance at Jubilee Pavilion.

Sunday morning the Oshawa Flying Club will be hosts to participants at their annual flyin breakfast and antique cars will be on display.

The parade of more than 40 McLaughlin and McLaughlin-Buick cars has been arranged so that Colonel McLaughlin can be on hand to view the vintage cars as they pass through the grounds of Parkwood, his residence in central Oshawa.

Thirty - two cars have already been registered, but there are four years missing: 1909-1911 - 1925-1935 — and anyone knowing of owners of these cars can submit the contact the museum in Oshawa.

Persons wishing to purchase tickets for the event are asked to contact the automotive museum.

Counting the Days

The Cook family of 63 Bay Street, Trenton, is counting the days before it is forced to leave its home, overdue for demolition by the town. Gathered in the living room of their modest east-side dwelling with father, Lloyd, are David, 15, Gail, 12, Donna, 18, (rear) Margaret, 22, Philip, 23. Mrs. Peggy Cook and the couple's other two children, still at home, are not shown.

Trenton Family Faces Eviction by Council

TRENTON — Time has run out for Lloyd Cook, his wife and seven children.

The dilapidated house at 63 Bay St. in which they live is destined to be torn down by its owner, the Town of Trenton, and the Cooks were supposed to be out by the end of April.

The family is still living in the 100 - a - month duplex unit - one of four homes the town bought last year for demolition. The property on which they stand will be used to augment the size of adjacent Centennial Park.

Residents of the other units have already moved — two of the families bought houses of their own, another is renting at a higher monthly rate. However, the Cooks have stayed despite the town's confirmed intention to raze their home.

It was with some reluctance that Trenton got into the landlord business. The buildings were scheduled to come down last fall but decision was made to allow families living in them to stay over winter.

The Cooks knew they would face a "spring" deadline, that they must leave the modest dwelling where they have lived since February 1969. The family now faces eviction.

Mr. Cook, a civilian employee at CFB Trenton, says he and his family and friends have searched for another reasonably-priced rental unit since last August but the last eight months have brought nothing.

Mr. Cook began working at the base last summer, after a round of unemployment. Eldest son Phillip, 23, is now out of work but two of his sisters are employed by Bata Industries.

"We have even tried in Frankford," he said, adding that "one gentleman in Amherstburg offered me a tent."

The 45-year-old family head mentioned that he could have secured an Ontario Housing unit last December but had to pay $110 in advance and could not afford it.

"I have the money in the bank now and there are a lot of any units," he says. Mr. Cook is firm about one thing. He says he will hand his younger dependents over to the Children' Aid rather than "making them live on the road".

Cook, who is co-chairman of Trenton's 81-member United Workers and Unemployed Organization, a loose group of laborers and welfare cases, believes CFB Trenton is root cause of Trenton's housing problems.

The UWUO sent a letter to Defence Minister Donald Macdonald over the weekend explaining the situation and asking him to help.

"When Canadian Forces personnel are transferred to Trenton, there are not enough PMQs to handle them so they are forced to rent shoddy houses in the vicinity, making it harder for civilians to find homes," they say.

Mr. Cook says he has been told by councillors. If his family really wanted to find a place, it would have done so by now.

"They say there is a place for us — let them prove it . . . I have a lot of pressure on my mind. It is going to drive me off my rocker," he concludes.

Twin Otters Delayed

TRENTON (Staff) — The delivery to CFB Trenton of four DeHavilland twin Otter aircraft will be delayed about one month, spokesmen for the aircraft company report.

The planes, scheduled to be delivered within the next week, have been officially handed over to the department of national defence but their avionics packages (electronic and radio equipment) have not arrived at the De Havilland plant in Downsview from sub-contractors for installation.

Sources say the first twin Otter to go into service with the Canadian Armed Forces will now arrive here June 18. It is destined for a United Nations role in Pakistan.

Teachers' Lot Changed

Rules and regulations regarding the duties and expectations of school teachers have changed a great deal during the past 100 years.

In the "good old days" teacher protocol were few and far between and the teacher could be held strictly accountable for his or her activities following school hours.

A teachers' handbook published back in 1871 listed a number of regulations to which teachers today would throw up their hands in horror and call for an immediate protest.

One requirement was for the teachers to fill lamps each day, clean the chimneys and trim the wicks.

Another required each teacher to bring a bucket of water and a scuttle of coal for each day's session.

Men teachers were allowed to take one evening a week for courting purposes and, if they went to church, regularly, "two nights out could be doubled."

"After ten hours in school the teacher may spend the remaining time reading the Bible or other good books," the handbook said.

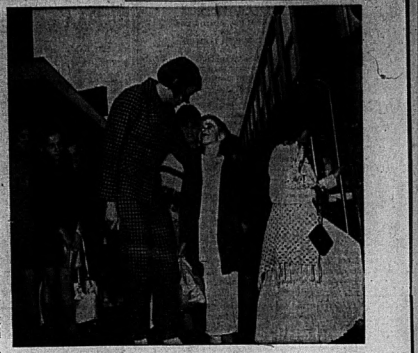
But women teachers who marry or engage in "unseemly" conduct would be dismissed.

And to encourage saving for a rainy day, teachers were advised to lay aside from each pay a goodly sum from his earnings for his benefit during his declining years so that he would not become a burden on society.

The rules and regulations for teachers of a century ago are contained in the April newsletter of the STO (Superannuated Teachers of Ontario).

The STO newsletter contains information on pension adjustments announced in January of this year, and indicates support for the groups asking the federal government to increase income tax exemptions for all persons over 70 years of age.

Talk Explains Farm Assessment



The use of the point system in assessing farm property and buildings was explained to members of the Hastings County Federation of Agriculture at their April meeting held in the council chambers at Stirling.

Guest speaker was Clarence Bird, head of the farm division at the regional assessment office in Trenton.

In addition to the point system for property and buildings, Mr. Bird explained how peat zones are used to evaluate land with corn being used as the medium. Government regulations and comparisons were given.

A discussion period followed Mr. Bird's talk on farm assessments.

Federation members will invite Les Armstrong, director of project planning for individual service members, to speak on farm "inputs" at a future meeting.

Walkathon A Success

BRIGHTON (Staff) — A walkathon here Saturday succeeded in raising more than $2,000 in aid of the Scottie Broughton Youth Centre.

Over 110 participated in the 25 - mile event that took participants over a course south through Presqu'ile Provincial Park and back to the village.

At the end of the walkathon, slightly more than half the walkers had completed the hike.

The first walkers, many from First Brighton Scout Troop, began crossing the finish line at 2.30 p.m. after a seven - hour trek.

Off to See Swan Lake

Thirty-five young ballet students from Belleville attended the National Ballet's performance of Swan Lake in Toronto Saturday to see their teacher, Brian Scott, dance. The students are enrolled in classes sponsored by the Belleville Branch of the Ballet Guild and taught here by Mr. Scott every Saturday morning. An added thrill for the youngsters was going backstage after the performance to meet the dancers in the cast.

ANAF News

The president is looking for a good number of comrades to attend the Air Cadets' annual inspection in the armories on Wednesday, May 12. This is the first year of sponsorship for the Duke of Edinburgh Unit and a magnificent trophy has been donated by the club for annual competition to be awarded to the best all round cadet.

It will be judged on cadet training, scholastic ability and behavior at all times. The winning cadet will be presented with a miniature trophy. Parents and public are invited to attend. Turn out and give the lads the support they well deserve. The unit pipe band will be on hand to support the inspection with martial music.

The pipe band and color party will go next Saturday morning May 15 to Kingston, as one of the 1971 International Goodwill Week Band and Marching Competitions. In the past the band has won a number of trophies while last year the color party won the trophy for the best one on parade. All members wish them further successes this year.

The first golf tournament of the year has been arranged for Sunday May 23. For further information contact Cde. Bob Brooks of the sports committee.

A well known member, Cde. G. Cornell, passed away last week. A hard worker, he will be sadly missed around the clubrooms. All members extend their sincere sympathies to the bereaved family.

Chairman "Kelly" reports that three comrades are in the Belleville General Hospital. They are: A. Austin, room 302, R. Reid, room 718, and L. Vance, room 308. Be kind and let the Sick Committee or stewards know of any comrade who is sick.

Now that the warm weather has arrived, the cool comfort of the gracious air conditioned Tartan Lounge will be appreciated more than ever for the Friday evening socials. With some of the finest music and entertainment in town, it is a place members are proud to invite their guests or just drop in. There will always be plenty of friends you can meet and enjoy the comradeship, dancing and singing and relax in comfort.

Hates Hitch-Hiking

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sgt. Jack Bisset of the Vancouver police force says the sight of a girl hitch-hiking on city streets makes his blood run cold. "In the two - month period from January to March of this year," he says, "there were three rapes, six other common assaults and four exposures — all as a result of girls hitch - hiking here in Vancouver."

New Lady of the Lakes

The prototype of a new class of flat-out ocean racing yacht was launched Saturday at Belleville Marine Yards — the 36R of Cuthbertson and Cassian, expected to clean up on the Great Lakes racing circuits in the future. The R stands for racing and that's where the emphasis is in the 35-foot sailboat with an 11-foot, 2-inch beam. In Belleville working on his yacht for a week before its launching was owner James Carlin of Grosse Point Farms, Michigan, who named the new racer Glory Bea III after his wife and daughter. Mr. Carlin, who bought the untested prototype because "the theories of philosophies of C and C things I believe in," saw his faith justified as the slings slackened and the first 36R settled on her lines in the bay. "She's going to be quite a gal" he called out triumphantly to C and C president Ian Morch and others from the firm who watched the launching. After tests on the Bay of Quinte, the yacht (basic price $45,000) will be trucked to Bayview Yacht Club in Detroit, where she will begin racing within a month on Lake St. Claire.

One Girl's Mother's Day Sentiments

The year is scattered with holidays and festive occasions so that special things can be remembered and not be overlooked.

Mother's Day gave 11-year-old Rhonda Lee McLeod the chance to tell her mother how she felt in a poem that is representative of the feelings that all young people have for "Mom".

L is for love which is hard to find.
O is for only there's more than one kind.
V is for very much how dear ones love you.
E is for either take one or two.
Love is one thing that can't be found easy.
It comes very often, whether cold or breezy.
If you found love on Mother's Day.
You'll find yourself writing this very same way.
To all who read this,
From a daughter who really didn't care about her mother.
It takes Mother's Day.
To tell her what I have to say:
I love you Mom.
In a very special way.

Big Entry Expected For Chess Tournament

More than 100 entrants are expected to attend the Ontario Open Chess Championship at the Bon Bleecker Auditorium, May 22, 23, and 24 when the Quinte Chess Club plays host to this annual event.

Noted chess authority Walter Dobrich will direct the tournament, which is expected to attract some of North America's best chess-players.

Together with the $350 first prize, awards will be presented to players of all strengths, from beginners to champions and prizes for the best local contenders.

The Quinte Chess Club, in co-operation with the Belleville Recreation Committee, is sponsoring the chess open . . . a first for Belleville.

Club president Stuart Parry, in making the tournament hope "to interest 50 to 60 local competitors from our own club, the Belleville school system and other interested citizens.

"This is a rare opportunity for local players to experience all the excitement and competition of one of North America's major tournaments without leaving their own city limits."

Information and entry forms for the tournament may be picked up at the Recreation Centre, Pinnacle Street or William Broderick, 19-B Pringle Drive, 962-7972.

Drug Abuse

If as is claimed drug users and non-users get the bulk of their knowledge about drugs from the media, then why has drug usage become such a problem? For we have yet to see any reference to drugs in newspapers that did not warn against the evils of illicit drug use.

Maybe the subject has been over-exposed, but if knowledge is to be a factor in demonstrating an evil then the media cannot be faulted. Rather it must be that "The Imp of the Perverse" of which Edgar Allan Poe wrote, or the strange megnetism of things which a person knows to be wrong that is at work.

The point about drug information in the media was made recently by Reginald Smart of the Ontario Addiction Research Foundation. He pointed out that extensive drug education programs in schools have had no impact on illicit drug use by students. Studies in Halifax and Montreal, said Mr. Smart, confirmed his own research in Toronto schools last year — that drug use is doubling and in some cases tripling among students.

Well, the students need not complain they have not been warned of the mental and physical deterioration that may follow from use of drugs. In the same issue of this newspaper which carried Mr. Smart's observations was a letter to Arin Landers from a volunteer worker at a drug abuse clinic. The volunteer told of a handsome 16-year-old boy who died at her feet from an overdose of heroin, and of the dozens of teenagers who show up daily "sick as dogs with hepatitis from dirty needles."

What a commentary on our era. If drug users, or anyone thinking of starting on such an insane course, do not learn their lesson from such evidence, and cease taking the stuff, they have only themselves to blame.

A recent series by Guelph Mercury writer Dorothy Fletcher was revealing. She spoke of the lack of knowledge of the potential dangers of drug usage among young people, as in the following passage: "I became convinced after extensive investigation of the situation in Guelph) that the key to prevention is the education of the youngsters regarding the physical and psychological effects of drugs. It was not just the very young children who were ignorant of these facts — even the older drug users lacked basic information."

Although she believed some programs of drug education in the schools were "too little and too late," Mrs. Fletcher stressed the importance of seeking an effective program. One such, she noted, was coming before the Wellington county board of education.

Wise After the Event

Some expert is always on hand following a disaster like the cave-in at St. Jean Vianney, to explain how it happened and how it could have been prevented. In this case it was someone from the University of Toronto.

It is not that there is anything wrong in this, but if faults in the terrain like this area in Quebec are known to experts they could residents not have been appraised of this before? Or why would builders construct homes in such a place? And if they do, why were such contingencies as the terrain not taken into account? And this because the university man advanced some theories about the nature of the terrain and the type of construction that would be necessary to prevent such a disaster.

Unhappily, though, such "Acts of God" (and apparently insurance companies have described it thus) still occur, and as sure as looters descend on the scene, as they did at St. Jean Vianney, so too learned men will describe after the event, how it could have been prevented.

Call of Adventure

The saga of the two young Chileans en route from their homeland through Canada to Alaska is a reminder of that classic tale of a journey undertaken about the same time as their 1929 Dodge was built. We refer to Tschiffely's Ride, in which Argentine teacher A. F. Tschiffely described a journey with only two horses for companions from Buenos Aires to Washington D.C. Another book by Tschiffely made approximately the same Chilean trip. It tells of a car journey he made as far south as Tierra del Fuego in the southernmost regions of South America. Its title we do not recall, but it was in the adventurous Tschiffely tradition. In another work, Bohemia Junction, an autobiography, Tschiffely mentioned that his family was of Swiss origin and claimed kinship with a former Prime Minister of Australia ,Mr. Chifley.

PM's Travelling Companion Critic of Soviet Oppression

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau seems to be providing the Russians with something to think about even before he leaves May 17 for the Soviet Union.

He is taking with him Stanley Haidasz, Liberal MP for Toronto Parkdale, who has been making speeches for years advocating the "liberation" of eastern Europe, including Ukraine, from Russian "oppression."

Mr. Haidasz, whose parents came from Poland, will get back to Ottawa just in time to leave for Russia. He now is attending a meeting of the World Health Organization in Geneva.

Mr. Trudeau will take two other Toronto Liberal MPs with him: Barnett Danson, York North, his parliamentary secretary who accompanied him on his January Asian tour, and Walter Deakon, Toronto High Park. The party returns May 27.

The government is getting tighter-lipped about salaries paid the presidents of Crown corporations.

In a Commons reply to David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) the government says the presidents of the CBC and the Cape Breton Development Corp. are each paid $50,000 a year.

But it refuses to give, as it used to do, the salaries of the bosses of Air Canada, Canadian National Railways, Polymer Corp. and Northern Transportation Co. Ltd.

Polymer's president's salary could not be given because of the "highly competitive nature of the business in which the company is engaged."

On Air Canada: "It has not been considered in the best interest of Air Canada to disclose data on employees' earnings."

Six senior civil servants are paid $42,000 a year: Gordon Robertson, clerk of the cabinet; S. S. Reisman, deputy minister of finance; D. S. Maxwell, deputy minister of justice; A. W. Johnson, secretary of treasury board; Jules Leger, undersecretary of state; and Ed Ritchie, undersecretary of state for external affairs.

The Trudeau government has made public eight white papers of which 638,000 copies have been printed at a cost of about $183,000.

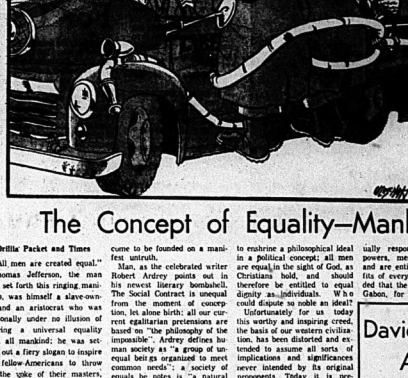
The big printings were for the white papers on tax reform, since partially scrapped, on income security and on unemployment insurance. Printing for each was 175,000 copies.

Other white papers: policies for price stability, foreign policy for Canadians, Indian policy, metric conversion and veterans pensions.

Up to Wednesday, the prime minister's office had received about 200 letters and telegrams critical of the proposed pay increase for MPs.

This is a relatively small number in any office. In a recent weeks, most of the letters received in Mr. Trudeau's office have concerned abortion, products of organized campaign by both anti- and pro-abortion factions.

One of the arguments used in favor of pay increases for MPs is that tenure of office is uncertain.



Mr. Trudeau told the Commons that in the last 12 years 282 MPs have been defeated.

And there are probably more to come, he added: There are 264 seats in the Commons.

Energy Minister J. J. Greene suggests that scientific papers on the effects on the environment of a Mackenzie Valley pipeline may never be made public.

He says no decision has been taken on whether the papers will be released, but he is not about an application for a pipeline be made.

David Anderson (Esquimalt-Saanich), who heads the Commons environment protection committee, says all such papers must be made public or Canadians will never know on what grounds the government based a decision for or against a pipeline.

The Concept of Equality—Mankind's Greatest Delusion

Orillia Packet and Times

"All men are created equal."

Thomas Jefferson, the man who set forth this ringing manifesto, was himself a slave owner and an aristocrat who was personally under no illusion of sharing a universal equality with all mankind; he was setting out a fiery slogan to inspire his fellow-Americans to throw off the yoke of their masters, nothing more. Yet the lip service paid to this palpable sophistry has grown, with the incredible development of the giant American nation, into a creed subscribed to by most of the civilized nations of the world, and believed implicitly by credulous millions. It has also led to racial tensions and mounting social frustrations which are threatening to destroy our world, because a vast and growing structure of social philosophy and political practice has come to be founded on a manifest untruth.

Man, as the celebrated writer Robert Ardrey points out in his newest literary bombshell, The Social Contract is unequal from the moment of conception, let alone birth; all our current egalitarian pretensions are based on "the philosophy of the impossible"; and they deface human society as "a group of unequal beings organized to meet common needs"; a society of equals he notes is "a natural impossibility".

Actually, of course, Jefferson's declaration was intended to enshrine a philosophical ideal in a political concept; all men are equal in the sight of God, as Christians hold, and should therefore be entitled to equal dignity as individuals. Who could dispute so noble an ideal? Unfortunately for us today this worthy and inspiring creed, the basis of our western civilization, has been distorted and extended to assume all sorts of implications and significances never intended by its original proponents. Today it is pretended, in the name of equality, that all men and all nations have equal capacities, are equally responsible, have equal powers, mental and physical, and are entitled to equal benefits of every kind. It is pretended that the nations of Togo or Gabon, for example, bear an equal responsibility with the United States for the preservation of world order, and accordingly the United Nations grants to each precisely an equal voice in the disposing of the world's business; in the U.N. General Assembly they each vote the United States between them.

In the name of equality, legislation takes from those who work to give to those who don't, discourages the thrifty to console the shiftless, penalizes enterprise to subsidize apathy, accords equal weight to the important and to the educated, an equal voice to the responsible and the irresponsible. All must be equal in everything.

So obsessed have we become with an insane equality that we refuse to countenance the obvious racial characteristics, which give black athletes advantage in running and jumping, white fellow and people an 'edge in mathematical calculation; which in the attention for trade in Semitic races and a gift for sell in the slavic; "to note differences, let alone to and explain them, is to be ing of Fascism" in a where it is pretended body is equal.

It is all nonsense, of course, and Ardrey's bombshell confirmed upon to destroy fallacy. Man, as the earthshakes, "African sia and The Territorial im- have established the world's nature, there is no equality; is delusion of mankind.

Labor Personality

The Trentonian

One notes with pleasure the rise of Ian Reilly in the ranks of Labor. Mr. Reilly is among the pleasant people in Labor ranks to deal with; this does not compromise his strong convictions about Labor matters. But it does make it possible to talk to him as a man who understands the views of others, and who can talk without ranting.

His capabilities are obvious, and step by step he moves up the ladder of leadership. He has also been, and probably will be again, a candidate for the New Democratic Party in the riding, and polled a strong vote.

He was one of the foremost Quinte Labor Council and clearly looks to strong, united efforts by Labor groups. The Quinte area is fortunate to have such a man in Labor's ranks. He does a good job.

Canada and the Monarchy

Hamilton Spectator

Rumor-mongers and attention-seekers raise their heads about our government and our people with tall tales of an impending dumping of our traditional monarchial system and the commencement of a presidential nobles operandi. That such tirsome talk is nothing but utter nonsense goes without repeating. The monarchy is something so unique, on this continent at least, that few Canadians would willingly offer it as a sacrificial goat to leather lunged radicals or menacing opportunists.

Billy Sol Estes Paroled

Watertown Times

Billy Sol Estes, who, during the late 1950s and early 1960s, made quite a fortune — on paper — through his wheelings and dealings in fertiliser, grain elevators, cotton allotments, a newspaper and a mortuary, has been granted parole from prison effective July 12. He will also have served six years of a 15-year federal sentence for mail fraud and conspiracy.

Now 48, Billie Sol will work in the farming operation of his brother, B. Abner Estes, who, under terms of his parole, can not engage in "any self-employment or promotional type activity" unless cleared in advance with the parole board.

Billie Sol was a "promoter," all right. Between 1951 and 1963 he engaged in so many elaborate schemes to swindle farmers and cheat the government that it took hundreds of federal agents months to pour through his dealings.

And along the line his rise in the business world not only prompted the U.S. Jaycees to name him one of their "10 Outstanding Young Men" in the nation in 1953, but President Lyndon B. Johnson had him appointed to a government advisory board for cotton allotments. Billie Sol had been a friend and racial contributor to the president.

At the height of his career, Billie Sol lived in a $150,000 home with an indoor waterfall, he had three tennis courts, two airplanes and a Cadillac. At the time of his downfall, and after creditors moved in, he owed more than $34,000,000.

This probably is the last we will hear of Billie Sol Estes, except when he leaves prison in mid-July to go farming.

David Lewis And The NDP

Montreal La Presse: In electing David Lewis to its leadership, the NDP opted for good sense. It chose Canadian unity. It rejected programs that attract only those factions who proposed them in the first place. In a word, it chose in keeping with an old Canadian political tradition: It opted for compromise and moderation.

Factions like the Waffle group and NPD-Quebec showed great vitality indicating that it is necessary tirelessly to refute their sophisms. They were the star of the NDP convention and showed, once again, that they know how to use the democratic machine to gain victory for their radicalism. It may be said they all have the same motto: Each for himself and Canada for nobody. . . .

Did these people retain nothing from the lesson of 1968? Canadians are for Canada; they showed it clearly and mistrust parties who show division on that. They mistrust parties who don't know where they're going.

The question is no longer if one is for or against federalism, but for or against Canada. Now, for all people north of the 49th parallel, promises of the future are not in disintegration but in the unity and strength of the Canadian federation. That seems as clear as day. The NDP chose Canada. That's the way of reason. Well done.

TODAY IN HISTORY

The defenders of Long Sault were overcome 300 years ago today—in 1660—when 17 Europeans were killed with 40 but four Indian allies. Dollard des Ormeaux, then 25, had led the French guerrilla band west from Montreal in the old Indian fort, where an Iroquois army was encountered. The whole party was massacred after a siege of several days. Documents of the time say Dollard's sacrifice saved Montreal from an attack and destruction.

1962—Nineteen sons of Freedom Doukhobors were sentenced to 18 years in prison for a March 6 bombing of the $1 million Kootenay hydro tower—which was a reprisal six weeks after 27 terrorists were jailed for terms of up to 18 years.

1968—The United States atomic-powered submarine Triton surfaced off Scotland were after an 83-day, 41,500-mile submerged circumnavigation of the globe.

1944—James Forrestal was made secretary of the United States Navy.

1941—Rudolph Hess, German deputy Fuehrer, flew to Britain where he was held as a prisoner of war.

1940—Germany in Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

1923—V. V. Vorovsky, Russian delegate to the Lausanne conference, was assinated by Maurice Conradi.

1920—It was announced that Canada's own ministry not the British ambassador would represent Canada Washington. Vincent Massey was first appointed Till the post in 1926.

1918—636 were killed when the British ship Santa Anna was torpedoed in the Mediterranean.

Old-time Cheese Factories Becoming Fewer and Fewer

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — Remember that good, rich, crumbly cheddar cheese that used to be sold in rural Ontario? You won't get any more of it in Quigley's Corners—or in a lot of other places.

The economic realities of the times mean there are fewer and fewer of the little independent cheese producers in Ontario. There is probably almost as much cheddar being produced, but it doesn't seem the same, somehow, for Ontarians who can't drive through the dairy-farming areas of the province to stop at a favorite cheese factory to buy a chunk of fine old cheese.

There were 370 cheese factories in the province in 1945. By 1969 that number had dwindled to 92. In March this year, that was down to 82. Now there are no more than 61—if that many—since the farmers' co-operative at Quigley's Corners north of Cornwall sold their quota to Kraft Foods Ltd. That happened at the end of April, and by this week more factories could be closed, their quotas sold to large companies.

It's a matter of scale. Kraft has built a large new factory in eastern Ontario, and to obtain enough milk to keep it operating it must buy quotas from existing plants. No quota, no milk; no milk, no cheese.

Quotas were awarded cheese manufacturers about two years ago, and are based on—among other things—the amount of industrial milk purchased between March, 1968, and February, 1969. But there's a catch. The province is divided into regions. Quotas are also based upon the amount of industrial milk produced in the region during the base period.

The amount of milk available each year since is expressed in a percentage of that available during the base year, and each plant may buy that percentage. Thus if a plant has a quota of one million pounds, and the amount of milk available in the region is 95 per cent of that available during the base year, the plant may buy only 800,000 pounds. That's industrial milk—for which the price is $3.99 a hundredweight.

But the plant wants more milk, it must buy it from the fluid milk pool, but the price of that milk is $6.85. And since the cheddar cheese producer can get only about 30 cents a pound for his product at the cheese exchange in Belleville, paying a higher price for milk isn't economic.

Large firms such as Kraft find it isn't economic to build small, so they build big. But to justify building big, they have to keep the plant in constant production. To do this requires milk—lots of it—which can be purchased only on the quota system. So they go out and buy quotas from small plants.

Nobody's talking too freely, but in eastern Ontario the generally accepted figure for a quota purchase is 70 cents a hundredweight of milk. The period is a matter of agreement between buyer and seller—five years, perhaps, or 10—but the figure applies to the total quota, not the available. Thus a firm may buy a quota for 70 cents a hundredweight, but if only 70 per cent of a quota is available, the effective price is more like $1.

It's hard to find a typical small cheese factory any more, so many of them have gone under. But one small plant, now owned by Schneider Ltd., of Kitchener, is the Apple Hill Dairy Ltd., located in Apple Hill, about 15 miles north of Cornwall and near Quigley's Corners.

The plant still operates pretty much as it did before the sale, although manager Jean-Marie Lefebvre says it will probably produce some specialty products as well as the cheddar for which it has long been known.

It even has a small room at the front of the building where passers-by may still buy cheese at prices that would make a city-dweller drool—85 cents a pound for two-year-old cheddar; 75 cents for medium, and 65 cents for mild.

The plant has a quota of 23,243,823 pounds of milk a year, which, at the ratio of 10 pounds of milk for one pound of cheese, means its potential production is about 2.3 million pounds a year.

But in the current milk year, Mr. Lefebvre says, Apple Hill expects to be able to buy only about 82.5 per cent of quota, and next year the forecast is for only about 70 per cent.

If Apple Hill had decided to go out of business rather than sell to Schneider's there would have been a certain inducement.

"The government offers a good way out for people who want to get out of the business," says Mr. Lefebvre.

"The good way out is a grant the provincial government will pay to anyone leaving the business. It is a payment of 10 cents a hundredweight on the first 200,000 pounds of butterfat in a plant's quota, and five cents a pound on the balance, up to a maximum payment of $100,000. If Apple Hill had chosen this route, the grant would have been about $90,000. And if the plant had sold its quota to a large producer at 70 cents a hundredweight, it would have netted a further $161,000 for a total of about $311,000.

"Cheese makers have never made that much money," says Mr. Lefebvre. "If they had a good debt picture before introduction of the quota system, they could do it all right. But if they had a little too much debt, they couldn't get out from under with the quota system.

"Taking the grant has been the only way many of them could clear their debts and end up with some money in their pockets."

A Dog Licence Could Save Pet

The Ontario Humane Society has warned dog owners to make sure their pets have dog tags. If not, they are in danger of being used for medical or scientific experiments.

This warning came as Ontario's new Animals for Research Act took effect this week.

However, the Quinte Branch of the Ontario Humane Society emphasized that animals are not arbitrarily turned over to laboratories.

"At no time, under no circumstances, do we turn animals over for research," stated superintendent Harry Brown.

"This new act does give them the power to seize animals from us that are marked as impounded dogs. It only affects animals apprehended by the animal control officers, it doesn't affect dogs brought to us."

Pounds have to keep animals five days, to give the owners a chance to claim them. After this period, "we can keep them for adoption as long as we like," he affirmed.

In some Ontario centres, the pound may surrender the dogs after a short period, but the Quinte branch will make every effort to find the animals good homes.

"People get visions of every dog being used for research . . . this isn't so," stated superintendent Harry Brown.

The society, which opposed the act, said that tagged pets were easy to identify and return to their owners. Tattoo marks are also sought for identification so that society officers can return the pets.

With laboratories able to seize animals, the act controls which research office may use the dogs. The law also prohibits pounds from destroying strays if medical or scientific labs have requested the "unadoptable" animals to be turned over to them.

But in the past, superintendent Brown has had a good record of finding homes for Quinte area pets and he has gone out of his way to keep them at the society officers on Avonlough Road. For adoption of a pet, call the Humane Society at 967-1423.

Children with Learning Problems Assisted by Special Association

TORONTO (CP) — In 1964, Joe and Doreen K'Ronick began working to organize parents and professionals to get help for a group of children for whom there had been little help.

When you go that Mrs. K'ronicks says, you must first tell people about the children, make them understand, sympathize and then help. It takes a tremendous effort.

"The association took over my life for a few years."

In the K'ronicks' case, the work began after they had looked for services for a son with a learning disability.

"We started the association after most of what I was seeking for myself was over. People who are desperate, for things for themselves are poor fighters. If you really want to bargain for something, don't take along someone who needs it."

In the early 1960s there were few services for children with learning disabilities. They were often mis-diagnosed as deaf, retarded, emotionally disturbed, or as bad kids.

Theirs is a complicated problem involving damage to the nervous system that shows in a variety of learning difficulties. The disability interferes with the victim's perception, his ability to make sense out of things.

The Canadian Association for Children with Learning Disabilities began in 1964. It now has 54 branches, with two more forming, and is in every province but Prince Edward Island.

"For several years I cooked meals with the telephone receiver dangling from my ear." Mrs. Kronick recalls. "It reached the point where there weren't enough hours in the day."

Mr. Kronick, who is a summer camp director, formed Integra Foundation to direct services to the children. Money is funded by the province. Mrs. Kronick spent one summer directing an Integra camp now run by professionals.

Then she took three years off and used the time to write two books about learning disabilities and one on interesting the handicapped into non-specialized camps.

She is president of the association now, but she was also picked up some other threads during those three years and began going to concerts and travelling again.

She says there are some tasks to winning the social and professional support necessary to make such an association work.

"It's okay to be angry parents for a while, but if you keep it up, you may turn the professionals hostile."

In Edmonton, professionals donated time to help the student teachers about the problem. Members there spoke to

New Accent

TORONTO (CP) — The Institute of Child Study, University of Toronto, will shift its emphasis from research to teacher training, effective July 1. On that day the institute's course of studies, leading to a diploma in child study, and its laboratory school will come under the jurisdiction of the College of Education, University of Toronto. Dr. Michael Grapko, the institute's director, said: "Our program here will continue to be essentially the same but the emphasis now will be on our teacher program, and slightly less priority will be given to our research activity."

medical association lunch conferences.

"You try to get five minutes in schools and try to get the staff interested, so you are invited back for a longer time.

"We tried to teach every parent to become a one-person pressure group to get services. If a child needs special classes, we tell them to call the principal and tell him you're going to call special education and ask for a class. This is an important step because you can't antagonize the principal.

"You talk to special education and talk to your elected trustee. Ask him if you can make a presentation to the school board. We have a brief ready and slides and films to show.

Mrs. Kronick says the association urges more extreme measures if they become necessary.

"People are sometimes afraid that if they do something the child will suffer, that educators will take it out on the child, but we find that never happens."

Group efforts, at all levels go on at the same time. The association now is working with the Canadian Commission on Emotional and Learning Disorders, trying to get their recommendations implemented.

Mrs. Kronick says the work is "never roses all the way."

There are still services she feels are lacking or are inadequate.

Some parents work hard for an association and get help, but not for their own child.

Why has she done it?

"Somehow injustices don't sit well with me, and it's a tradition too. I like to think it's a Jewish tradition. In our family, it's our thing. If you can help make people's lives a little more livable."

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD EARL ROSEBUSH

Rosebush Channell Nuptials

Bloomfield United Church was the setting for a wedding May 1, when Marilyn Luella Channell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Channell of Bloomfield was united in marriage to Richard Earl Rosebush, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Rosebush of Point Anne. Rev. Nathan Bowering officiated and wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Harold Cleave who also accompanied the soloist Mrs. Douglas Rosebush, aunt of the bridegroom.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a crystal crepe gown enhanced with grape cluster design of Alencon lace styled in cowl like effect with V neckline accented with a round standup collar. The full bishop sleeves were caught at the wrists with matching lace and rows of self bands. A wide band of matching lace highlighted the attached chapel train as well as the front panel and the hemline of the dress. She wore a petal head dress encrusted with pearls and drop pearl on the forehead from which extended a floor length veil of nylon illusion with appliqued lace flowers. Her bouquet consisted of roses, stephanotis and fern.

The attendants including maid of honor Nancy Channell and bridesmaids Monica Alyea, Linda Fraser, Christine Rodgers, Eleanor Carter, Linda Channell, junior bridesmaid, Jennifer Rosebush and flower girl Kim Archer were all identically attired in various shades of pink. Each carried a cluster of yellow and white daisies.

ST. CARTHAGH'S CWL TWEED

The annual meeting of St. Carthagh's Catholic Women's League, Tweed, was held recently on Sunday. This was preceded by Mass at 4 p.m. offered by Dean C. E. Baker and was followed by a potluck supper.

Musical entertainment both before and after the meal was provided by Ron LaValley and his two sisters, Karen and Louise, and Lisa Nesbitt and Sharon Monaghan. Mrs. Jean Sager acted as toastmaster. Special guest speaker for the evening, Mrs. Breen O'Conor, a resident of Marmora. Mrs. O'Connor is at this time first vice-president for the Kingston Diocesan Council of the Catholic Women's League and shared with us her thoughts on the meaning of the CWL as an organization of service.

During the meeting annual reports were read. A donation was given to Father Richard Whalen, a seminarian who has volunteered his services this summer at Jean Carier's home for mentally retarded adults in France. Also a donation was given to the organization, "Birthright" in Toronto. Mrs. Bernard Whalen, president, Mrs. Earl Griffin, secretary, Mrs. Barbara Haines was re-elected by acclamation to district secretary.

Honorary life memberships were presented to Daisy Jeffs and Annie Haley, both trustees of the Belleville Lodge. Gifts were presented to Janie Hoelke of Belleville and Dot Greville of Picton and district secretary Barbara Haines of Belleville immediate P.R.H.L. Rita Francis presented H.R.L. Hoelke with a gift and corsage on behalf of the Belleville Lodge, who in turn presented H.R.L. Greville, conductress Bernie Scott and pianist Dorothy Hanna; all of Picton, with appropriate gifts. All three doorprizes went to Picton members.

At the conclusion of the meeting all enjoyed dinner at the Sun Luck Gardens.

Belleville OORP Lodge Hosts District Meet

The Belleville Order of the Royal Purple No: 64 last weekend hosted the district meeting when members from Picton O.O.R.P. No. 147 attended.

Honored Royal Lady Janie Hoelke of Belleville opened the meeting and welcomed the visitors after which District Deputy Gertrude Young and Honored Royal Lady Dot Gravelle from Picton were presented with corsages.

The meeting was turned over to District Deputy Young when ritualistic and floor work was conducted lead by Belleville's new drill team. History book judges were the Honored Royal Lady Nina Dulmage of Belleville and Past Honored Royal Lady Hilda Heintzelman of Picton. A number of annual reports were given. Barbara Haines was re - elected by acclamation to district secretary.

CLUB ACTIVITIES

WHITE CANE CLUB

The recreation ad business of the White Cane Club for April were held at the recreation centre under the chairmanship of the president Pat Baverstock. Mrs. Maude Rollins played the piano for the opening songs.

At the recreation meeting Wilma Morse announced the names of the members who were celebrating a birthday in April. The birthday song was sung in their honor and prizes were distributed. Bingo was played and a delicious lunch was served by the women of the Kiwanis club.

For the program, Judy Le Boer an accordionist, entertained the members with a number of selections. She was thanked by the president on behalf of the club.

Mrs. Rollins read the correspondence which included a letter from the director of education of the Ontario division of the Canada Council of the Blind. It stated that anyone wishing to improve their social education up to grade 12 may do so under the new training program. It is administered by the community college and tuition fees are remitted in 16 weeks. A weekly tuition fee is charged and varies with the area.

Canada Manpower will pay an allowance during this training if provided the client can prove that it is required to obtain employment. Application may be made to at any time as courses begin each month. Considerable help is required from the local CNIB representative for the completion of this course.

It was announced that the head office of the CCB in London Ontario now has braille copies of the Family Manual free of charge for braille readers. This manual is useful as a personal reference book.

President Pat Baverstock thanked all those who had expressed their sympathy to her and her family in the recent loss of her father.

The members of the kinette club served a delicious lunch and the kinette club provided transport for the evening.

GAMMA MU

The Gamma Mu Chapter met at the home of Mrs. J. Conway. Mrs. R. Michaelis introduced Mrs. F. Clapp whose program was entitled "Travel".

Guest speaker was Miss D. Savage who showed some beautiful colored slides of her six - week European tour, followed by similar taken in Africa while Miss Savage was working on a Crossroads Intercultural Project.

Miss Savage was thanked by Mrs. Conway. During the business meeting each committee head presented a year - end report to the the chapter and outgoing president Mrs. J. Sherry read a farewell message. Silver spoons were given to Mrs. R. Vaughan and Mrs. R. Owen who are moving on to Exemplar.

Traditional officers' discs were presented to the outgoing executive. It was announced that the Girl of the Year party would be held on May 25.

The meeting ended with the installation of new officers as follows: president, Mrs. C. Rowbotham; 1st vice, Mrs. L. Smith; 2nd vice, Mrs. A. May; treasurer, Mrs. Mrs. W. Luck; corresponding sec., Mrs. D. Prodham; treasurer, Mrs. R. Hall.

Refreshments were provided for the evening by Mrs. R. Michaud and Mrs. J. Conway.

TWEED SENIOR CITIZEN'S CLUB

The regular meeting of the Tweed senior citizens' club was held recently at St. James' Anglican Church Hall. Albert McTaggart, the president, had the group in prayer.

Fifty members were in attendance, who were asked by Mrs. McTaggart to forward their questionnaires concerning the Tweed Senior Citizens' Housing Project to The Ontario Housing Corporation, Toronto, by May 15 1971.

A tentative date of Wednesday, May 26th was suggested for a proposed bus trip to Ottawa to see the tulips. Both of the above items will be discussed further at the next meeting, Wednesday, May 12.

After the business session of the meeting was concluded, games and cards were enjoyed by the members. The meeting ended with a delicious lunch served by the women of the committee.

PHOSPHATE-FREE DETERGENTS — Canadian housewifes have given up the fight against phosphate pollution and are back to using their regular detergent according to a Cross Canada Survey conducted by The Canadian Press. One reason for the change is the detergent industry's inability to develop a suitable substitute for phosphates and another is price with retailers agreeing that if a high-phosphate is on sale, many housewives will purchase it rather than spend a bit more for a phosphate-free brand. Most Canadian Housewives Now Back Using Regular Detergent

By PETER LEICHNITZ
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With only scattered exceptions, it appears that most Canadian housewives have given up the fight against phosphate pollution and are back using their regular detergent, regardless of its content.

Popular brands of detergents with phosphates, which experienced a drop in sales late in 1970, are recapturing much of the market they lost to a flood of new, phosphate-free brands.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows much the same results as a similar survey a year ago. Housewives are not changing brands.

"People would rather save a penny than save a polluted world," said one store manager in Timmins, Ont.

Phosphates are found in most heavy-duty detergents. In addition to acting as a cleaning agent, they prevent dirt from resettling in clothes during the washing cycle. phates, limited into lakes and rivers, are a primary food on which algae thrive. The algae, forming a green slime that builds up, compete with fish for oxygen, causing them to suffocate.

The federal government passed legislation last year limiting phosphate detergents to 20 per cent by volume. It proposed legislation which would completely ban them by Jan. 1, 1972, but this now has been changed to read "some time within the next three years."

One reason for the change is the detergent industry's inability to develop a suitable substitute for phosphates.

Nitrilotriacetic acid (NTA) was considered a possible substitute by many manufactures until tests in the United States showed it caused an abnormal number of birth defects in rats. With public concience in NTA shaken, manufacturers began removing it from their products.

The industry so far has no other satisfactory substitute for phosphate, and as one industry spokesman put it: "We're looking for a miracle."

Price appears to be a major consideration for most shoppers.

Most retailers agreed that if a high-phosphate detergent is on sale, many housewives will purchase it rather than spend a bit more for a phosphate-free brand.

Organized opposition dropped sharply since the federal government announced its regulations.

Bill Graham, a spokesman for Pollution Probe at the University of Manitoba, said: "Nothing publicity at all is being done.

"We are expecting the government to reduce the content to zero soon, so it would make no sense to concern ourselves about phosphate pollution."

The pollution of the industry was stated by Tom E. Lepoidevin, marketing director for Lever Brothers: "Any further reduction in phosphates will severely reduce the efficiency of laundry detergents."

A spokesman at Procter and Gamble said the company now is receiving much less consumer mail than it was six months ago.

Both Lever Brothers and Procter and Gamble said the answer to controlling phosphate pollution is in better sewage treatment.

"We need a system which will remove all the nutrients before they reach our lakes and rivers," Mr. Lepoidevin said.

In the Atlantic provinces, most retailers reported women buying their regular detergent.

A store manager in St. John's, Nfld., said he had not noticed any trend to low-phosphate detergents.

David Martin of Dominion Stores' Atlantic gorcerial division said: "Customers were concerned for a while when the first scare first surfaced but now the concern seems to have slackened off."

In New Brunswick, though, consumers appeared considerably more concerned than they were 18 months ago.

Doug Osborne, manager of a Dominion Store in Saint John, said: "There seems to be a lot of concern. People come in looking for low-phosphate brands now and that wasn't the case before."

Retailers in Quebec City said there had been a "slight" reduction of five or three per cent in sales of low-phosphate brands.

Most consumers in Ontario were not buying low-phosphate detergents.

Harry Taylor, district manager of Dominion Stores, said the whole issue is "passe now."

"Unless there is continual exposure to such things, people tend to forget in a hurry."

In Ottawa, retailers were mixed in their opinions about the amount of consumer concern.

A spokesman for Steinberg's said a sincere effort was being made by people not to use products that harm the environment.

Another retailer said detergent sales had not fallen off, but there was a considerable movement of "switching brands."

In Hamilton, a survey showed only 16 per cent of the housewives had switched to phosphate-free detergents.

In the Winnipeg area, a spokesman for Canada Safeway said: "All I can tell you is that the non-phosphate products are not taking over from the reduced-phosphate brands."

One retailer said consumers "look either for the well-known brand or low prices before concerning themselves about phosphate levels."

In Regina, a spokesman for Sherwood Co-Op Ltd. said there is a slight trend away from the high-content brands "but there has been no loss of business at all."

Retailers in the Calgary area agreed that sales of high-phosphate brands, which had dropped about a year ago, now were back to their previous level.

"When customers found it took more soap to get the same amount of cleaning they gradually switched back," said one retailer.

Concern appears to be high in the under-30 age group in the Edmonton area.

Retailers with stores near the University of Alberta said they have noticed a sharp increase in phosphate-free detergent sales.

In Vancouver, retail merchants reacted much the same as in other cities across Canada. Most agreed housewives were not switching in large numbers to low-phosphate brands.

One store owner said: "Many don't care one way or the other as long as their wash gets a whiter look."

Successful Living

One Must Be Ready for Change at Any Age

By DORIS CLARK

I watched a film about an elderly lady living in isolation in her old family home, now far too large for her. So afraid was she of being ousted that she would not answer the door to anyone.

She ate sparingly, and not nearly enough to keep her in good health. She had little strength to keep the place tidy and her needs were few at zero.

One day she fell and broke her ankle. This compelled her to crawl to her front door and yell out to a small boy to get help.

Mrs. V. was taken to hospital, the ankle repaired. The unremitting interest of the social worker eventually brought about her being moved to a comfortable nursing home.

One who watched the film pointed out, wisely, I thought, that its main message was that we must all be ready for change. Humans resist change at just about every point in their lives but in later years even more.

• • •

Dear Doris: Since I never miss your column I read Neighbor Reading to Help and I really thought it was my duty to answer back. I have been in a mental hospital myself.

Nobody knows what a person goes through in a time like that. Sometimes I think that you can get to the heart of a person who is depressed faster by being strict but I don't. What you really need at a time like that is love and affection and understanding.

Do tell that lady to please let me know how she makes out. God bless you, Doris, and I think you are one of the best neighbors that walk on two feet. — Very Interested.

Dear Very: Your letter has traveled many hundreds of miles to the Neighbor who wrote in — half way across Canada.

Love and affection are still working the miracles they did in Bible days; and with the hearty approval of the most modern of psychiatric thinking. Obviously these old-fashioned virtues did the job in your case, and I'm glad.

When Neighbor reports back, where shall we write to you? You did not give us your street address.

Dear Doris: Did boy I was going steady with told me we still can be friends, but every time he sees me he acts like he doesn't know me. In a way he ignores me.

Is this what friends are supposed to be like? — Worried

Dear Worried: Not real friends. It's his own lack of poise that is showing. Resolve never to ignore anybody you have called by the name of friend.

But don't go around with your nose out of joint. How about those other boys who are being nice to you?

• • •

Ask Doris about your difficulty. She will discuss it or send you to a source of help.

Prune Squares with Two Variations

By MARY MOORE

Your appetite for "squares" seems to be insatiable. I have given you recipes for squares until I am going around in circles. But a reader requested squares in which dried fruits, on hand could be used. That gave me the idea for today's Prune Fingers that can be varied by using dates or figs instead. They are easily beaten up. The only tedious job was stoning and chopping the stewed prunes, but if you are lazy or affluent you can buy stoned prunes, or use chopped figs or stoned dates.

PRUNE FINGERS (fit 12" pan — with 2 variations)

1 eggs
1 cup granulated sugar
¼ cup slirred but unsifted all-purpose flour
2 tsps. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
½ tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. cloves
1 tsp. vanilla
1 cup chopped nuts
1¼ cups stewed prunes, stoned and chopped (see note below and note below)

In beater bowl beat the eggs thick. (Beat about 10 min. while you are measuring all remaining ingredients.) Add all remaining ingredients except nuts and prunes and beat for 1 min., stopping beaters and scraping down sides once. Remove beaters, stir in nuts and prunes.

Have ready a 13 x 9" pan buttered and floured. Spread batter evenly in pan and bake at centre of oven at 325 deg. Fahr. for 25 min., until pale gold all over top. While warm cut into fingers or squares. When cold lift out on spatula and store in cookie tin; separating layers with wax paper or saran.

NOTE: If desired dates or figs may replace prunes but they make the squares sweeter. I like the prune fingers best and they are more unusual.

Ann Landers

Readers Say Big Feet Are No Handicap

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I say a word to the teen-ager who was so miserable because her feet were too big? Little does she know, I am a girl of medium height and I also wear a size-nine shoe. I am the luckiest one in our family. My three brothers have an orthopedic disease called Osteal Marie-Tooth Atrophy. Each has had a series of operations to correct this problem and they all have spent several summer vacations in the hospital. Your advice couldn't have been better. (You told "Size Nine" to pay a visit an orthopedic hospital or a Home for Crippled Children.)

ANN LANDERS

When I first visited my brothers in the hospital, I realized how fortunate I was. I saw children there with no feet — and no legs.

Today the styles are so chunky I have no trouble finding fashionable shoes that fit. Furthermore, my size 9 feet today because they go barefoot a lot. So, please tell your readers that big feet are the rule rather than the exception these days, and nothing to be ashamed of. Look at the model Verushka. She wears a size twelve and she's a great beauty. — SHOE ON A DIFFERENT FOOT.

• • •

DEAR SHOE: Verushka isn't the only one. Read on:

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I read the letter from the girl who wrote to bewail her size-nine feet I hurried to my bookshelf and hunted up a book about one of the most imitated women in the world. I found the picture I was looking for with the inscription on her photograph: Here is is: "Highlight of the trip for newsmen came when Jacqueline removed her shoes to enter a temple. Her shoe size, until then a mystery, was at last revealed. It was 9½."

I wouldn't say it handicapped her much. Would you? — M.S.H., Marysville, Pa.

• • •

DEAR M.S.H.: No. In fact, the purpose of feet is to get you where you want to go, and I would say Jackie's size 9½ has served her well.

• • •

Dear Ann Landers: Your suggestion that a wife be the aggressive one if her husband is not the type does not work for all men. I was married to a man who told me point-blank not to ask him — that when he wanted me, he'd let me know. After waiting one solid year for him to "let me know" I became disgusted and let his lawyer know. Today I am happily married to a man whose sex appetite matches mine and I am divinely happy. — ATLANTA.

• • •

Dear Ann Landers: You conveniently overlooked several possibilities which might explain why a man in his 20's is starving his wife sexually. I know what I'm talking about because my first husband was bisexual, my second husband was impotent and my third husband was too tired for me but had plenty of energy for every waitress in town. How can you be so dumb, Ann Landers? — OLIVIA OF BATTLE CREEK.

Too Many Schools Still in Hospitals

EDMONTON (CP) — More nursing schools should move out of hospitals and into educational institutions, says Marguerite Schumacher, president-elect of the Canadian Nurses' Association.

Miss Schumacher, director of health and social services at the community college in Red Deer, Alta., said in an interview that there is a trend toward this, but that too many schools are still in hospitals.

"Costs would be lower," she said, showing one advantage to the taxpayer of having nursing schools in the educational system.

"For example, if three hospitals in a city each have a nursing school, then each must have a library—and more than one good, big library in the post-secondary institution."

Another advantage, said Miss Schumacher, is that classroom space would be used better. It could be used for other students while nurses were away working on the wards.

"While it is possible to have a hospital without a nursing school, it is not possible to have a nursing school without having a hospital as well.

Students enrolled in a community college, for example, still take lectures in the wards—not just at one hospital, but at all the hospitals and health care facilities in the city.

It is now, the students in first year at (Red Deer) college get more clinical experience than first-year students at hospital schools," she said. The college students also get more selected experiences in their senior year than do the hospital students.

It's also an advantage to the students to be able to take courses other than nursing.

"You have a nurse with a broader background and greater understanding."

Miss Schumacher, who was elected as head of the 82,000-member organization last year, will take over the presidential duties in 1972 after two years as president-elect. She has worked at all levels of hospital nursing—at the bedside as a graduate, as head nurse, supervisor, director of nursing and clinical instructor.

She has a master's degree in nursing from Columbia University, New York. From 1958 to 1968 she was adviser to nursing schools for Alberta.

Five of the 14 schools in Alberta, exclusive of the two university programs, now offer two-year courses, all of these in conjunction with a college program. Miss Schumacher said. She believes that two years is long enough to prepare a nurse, provided the courses are educational and not just involving service.

"Many schools in hospitals still use their students as cheap labor," she said.

Saskatchewan is in the midst of changing its programs to educational institutions, and Manitoba, British Columbia and the Maritime provinces are moving toward this as well.

So far, none of the large hospital schools indicated it will close its school and let the program move into an educational institution, she said.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Nancy, come and help me with dinner. Please set the table and don't forget to fill the water glasses. Will you clean the vegetables while I make the dessert?"

Nancy: "I think cooking is boring."

Mother: "Would you like to get dinner by yourself part of the time? It's interesting to plan menus and shop for food."

Nancy: "I would like to try a few times and see. Molly had at her party. Bet Dad would like it."

Preparing a meal completely may be a creative challenge for a teen-ager. Helping Mother in the kitchen may be just a monotonous chore.

Davis Says Ontario's Strength Is Undermined

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis continued his assault on federal policies, which he claims lead to centralist authority in Ottawa, this weekend.

The premier also aimed some of his fire at the insurance industry, which he said must undergo self-examination if it wants to avoid government involvement in automobile insurance.

At a $2-a-plate luncheon here, Mr. Davis said federal fiscal policies are undermining Ontario's economic strength.

"We want to see regional disparities reduced," Mr. Davis said, alluding to federal equalization grants to have-not provinces.

But he said federal tax policies that drain Ontario of needed revenue were a "short-sighted" solution to regional inequalities.

About a third of Mr. Davis' audience of 350 were representatives of insurance firms in Waterloo, home of three of Canada's largest insurance companies. He told them that their industry is being challenged by a questioning public who are concerned about "the degree of fairness with which they are being treated by the industry." Automobile insurance claims were frequently slow in being settled, and compensation was often inadequate.

Mr. Davis said the government was not interested in moving into the automobile insurance field if private enterprise can do the job in an efficient and enlightened way.

"The challenge the insurance industry must face is to assure the public has confidence in its ability to carry out in a fair and equitable manner the respect it has now and may have in the future."

A provincial ministerial committee is studying no-fault automobile insurance with a view to reform, while a similar inquiry is being made of the whole insurance field by a joint committee of the province and the insurance industry committee. Mr. Davis said reports from both committees are expected soon.

Lewis Anticipates Election in Spring

SUDBURY (CP) — Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, predicted Sunday a provincial election next fall and said if his party takes power, he would introduce six major programs within six months.

In an interview following his address to the Northern Ontario NDP policy conference here—which was closed to the public and news media—Mr. Lewis said the next election would be a "tough race," but there was "a real possibility that we could have the single biggest party."

"I don't see any evidence that the Tories are holding on. In fact, they are declining."

Although he did not itemize the programs he would introduce as a new Ontario premier, he did say construction of more public housing, increasing the capacity of hospitals and the establishing of a prices review board empowered to examine all companies' books would be among them.

The NDP leader also said he would form a committee to study transportation costs in an effort to determine why prices are considerably higher in the northern part of the province than they are in the south.

During the opening session of the two-day policy conference Saturday, David Lewis, federal NDP leader, told about 100 delegates that the NDP could make real gains in forthcoming provincial elections—as could the federal party if it concentrated on getting its policies through to the public.

Flights Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian transport commission said Saturday it has granted licences to eight United States commercial air carriers to conduct charter flights into Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba.

However, on flights into one area of northern Ontario the license in each case is restricted to two stops—including the customs port of entry.

The area concerned is west of a line drawn due north from Blind River and extending to the Ontario-Manitoba border.

Employment News

By J. R. STAVELEY

A continuing strong construction activity and an increased labor demand from the retail trades is evident here, with the agricultural scene showing that district farms are very busy indeed in trying to make up for a very late spring planting. Many high school students have expressed their desire to work on farms.

The Belleville Canadian Manpower Centre for students has been in operation during the past week. It has been a busy time for the students staffing this student office. There are to date 297 post-secondary students registered for temporary summer work. This number represents a 10% increase over the 1970 figure of the same date, and will be higher yet, due to the fact that some university students are just writing their final spring exams.

Anyone needing casual or temporary help from such a student is invited to either visit the student centre at 276 Pinnacle Street, Belleville, or telephone 962-8681, extension 46.

It must be remembered also that there is still a considerable number of persons, other than students, seeking employment. These persons possess a wide range of occupational skills, experience and work potential. Moreover they are available immediately for work.

Among the unfilled employment positions now available at the Belleville Canada Manpower Centre are ones for manager-trainees for retail and banking organizations, insurance salesmen, an experienced fibre glass production foreman, nurses for summer camps, an experienced sawmill planer operator, a plant maintenance mechanic and an experienced plant production foreman.

Royal Visitors Enjoy Holiday Sunday

COMOX, B.C. (CP) — Sunday was a dazzling sunny day of rest and recreation for the much-travelled Royal Family.

The Queen, Prince Philip and Princess Anne, aboard the royal yacht Britannia, cruised the Strait of Georgia in warm, sunny weather and spent some time exploring Twin Island, 20 miles from coastal Powell River.

Today, they were to resume their gruelling regimen of travel by land, sea and air on the eighth day of their 10-day British Columbia centennial tour—to Prince George, Prince Rupert, Sandspit in the Queen Charlotte Islands, and back to Comox to rejoin the Britannia and sail overnight for Victoria.

The Sunday cruise followed the family's appearance at an ecumenical church service in Powell River attended by 150 persons in St. John's United Church.

Anne, sidelined for two days with stomach upset, joined her parents for the service.

A message relayed to royal tour press headquarters in Vancouver from the yacht later Sunday said the family spent most of the afternoon on Twin Island and added: "The Princess' health is much improved and the Queen is just fine."

On Saturday, before flying to Comox for the evening, the Queen and Philip covered 1,000 miles of the province's interior, taking in a rodeo and barbecue at Williams Lake and stops at Dawson Creek and Fort St. John in the Peace River country.

Referee Irks Reay In First Hawk Loss

MONTREAL (CP) — Chicago coach Billy Reay was enraged that Montreal should log more ice time than his Black Hawks after Canadiens rolled to a 4-3 win in the third game of their Stanley Cup final Sunday.

The victory was Montreal's first in the best-of-seven series after two earlier losses at Chicago. Fourth game in the National Hockey League championship round will be here Tuesday at 8 p.m. EDT and will be carried nationally on the CBC-TV network.

Reay was particularly vehement that referee John Ashley overlooked several misdemeanors on which, he claimed, Montrealers should have been called, particularly before Peter Mahovlich's goal that put the Canadiens' on the scoreboard.

"The turning point came just before Peter Mahovlich scored in the second period," said Reay, noting that his club held a 2-0 edge on first period goals by Cliff Koroll and Bobby Hull.

"He (Mahovlich) hooked Keith Magnuson. He should've been penalized. If that didn't call for a penalty, I'm a Dutchman."

Hawks' centre star Stan Mikita summed up his feelings.

"It's not what the referee called, but what he didn't call that caused all the trouble," said Mikita. "He (Ashley) should have called more against Canadiens."

Ashley assessed each of the clubs two majors among the 66 minutes in penalties.

But the Hawks took 12 of 19 minor penalties called, a roughhouse exhibition compared with the two earlier meetings at Chicago, and the two to Bobby Hull proved extremely costly.

With Hull off in the second period, Frank Mahovlich counted to tie the score at 3-3 and, following Yvan Cournoyer's game-winner in the third period, Hull took another minor penalty.

Again the Big M found the target, for the 13th time in this year's playoffs, tying a mark set last year by Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins.

But the biggest ovation from the crowd of 17,441 went to Canadiens' defenceman Terry Harper, Montreal's steadiest blueliner over his nine years with the club but a recent victim of the galleries at the Forum.

Harper, 31, turned jeers to cheers in the third period as he carried the puck from behind his own goal on a rink-long dash to the right of Chicago goalie Tony Esposito where he appeared to be tied up by Magnuson and Mikita.

But the hunky Regina native pulled clear, flipped the puck in front of the Chicago goal and Cournoyer, unmolested, picked his spot for the game winner.

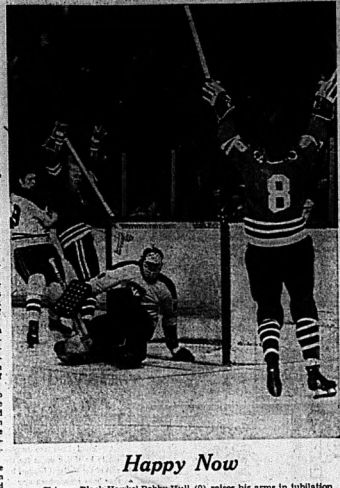
The occasion prompted an out-of-character minute-long ovation for Harper.

The hustling defenceman was a little reluctant to talk about the reception.

"I don't know, it's the first," he replied to reporters asking how he reacted to the hometown accolades. "They've booed me here for years, but I try not to let it bother me.

"That's probably why I seem to have better games on the road. . . .

"Last year they seemed to reserve their boos for J. C. Tremblay."



Frank Mahovlich's two goals put him back into top spot in the individual playoff scoring derby. His 22 points leave him one ahead of Bobby Hull who had taken a temporary lead by scoring once, his 11th in the post-season games, and assisting on Koroll's game-opener.

The Timmins, Ont., native said he wasn't aware he had tied the playoff record "but I'll be watching from here in."

"My father, he's watching here today and it's the first time he's seen young Peter and myself together with the Canadiens.

"But when he watches, he usually brings me luck."

One of the standout Hawk performers was defenceman Pat Stapleton, whose future in these playoffs was questionable after he was helped from the ice Thursday, blood streaming from a gash on his right cheek inflicted by Montrealer Rejean Houle's skate.

Junior Hawks Hit Bottom

QUEBEC (CP) — A frightened bunch of St. Catharines Black Hawks' players lay on the floor of their bus Saturday night as an angry mob of 2,000 hockey fans threw bottles through the windows and tried to force their way inside.

The fans had watched their Quebec Remparts skate to a 6-1 victory over the St. Catharines team and a 3-1 lead in games in the best-of-seven series for the Eastern Canadian junior championship and the Richardson Trophy.

But a series of brawls between the two teams and incidents between some of the St. Catharines players and fans and police angered the spectators.

Police finally cleared a way for the bus and escorted it with a five-car detail to the team's hotel on the city's outskirts. The players hurried from the bus into the hotel while the fans circled the building for a couple of hours in their cars.

Most of the fans were disgusted with the Black Hawk's performance and Quebec coach Maurice Filion said:

"They are a disgrace to hockey. It's absolutely stupid to see them act like this."

Filion was referring to the two major brawls that erupted in the last three minutes of the game and the pushing and shoving between members of both teams that took place at the end of the second period.

He said Black Hawks players had gone out of their way to try to hurt his key players, especially high-scoring forward Guy Lafleur who paced his team with three goals.

After the Remparts had built up their 6-1 lead, the Black Hawks began to lay on the muscle and kept referee Jim Bowman of Montreal busy.

Bowman handed out six game misconducts in the last five minutes as St. Catharines players left the penalty box to become involved in fights.

Then as one St. Catharines player left the ice, he swung his stick at a fan. He missed the fan and struck a policeman cutting him for three stitches above the eye.

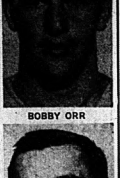
Police inspector Jean-Hamilton said the police planned to issue a summons against the player, identified as No. 18 Mike Bloom. .

Orr Takes Two

MONTREAL (CP) — Bobby Orr, John Bucyk and Gilbert Perreault were the winners of the National Hockey League individual awards announced today, with Orr walking off with two of the four trophies presented.

Orr became only the second defenceman in NHL history to win the Hart Memorial Trophy at least twice as the league's most valuable player.

In addition he tied a record as he copped the James Norris Memorial Trophy as the league's top defenceman for the fourth straight season.



Bucyk, a veteran left winger with the Bruins, was named as winner of the Lady Byng Memorial Trophy as the player "adjudged to have exhibited the best type of sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct, combined with a high standard of playing ability."

Perreault, who jumped to instant stardom with the no-short Buffalo Sabres direct from junior ranks, walked off with top honors as the league's best rookie. He won the Calder Memorial Trophy.

Thus, the Bruins, the record-wreckers of the 1970-71 NHL season, but shuttled out of the Stanley Cup playoffs in the first round by Montreal Canadiens, wound up with four of the six regular-season annual awards.

Boston's Phil Esposito won the Art Ross Memorial Trophy as the individual scoring champion over the regular 78-game schedule with a record 76 goals and 133 points.

Ed Giacomin and Gilles Villemure won the Vezina Trophy for New York Rangers earlier as the league's top goalkeeping tandem.

Frank Mahovlich scored his 12th and 13th playoff goals Sunday, equalling the mark set last year by Boston's Phil Esposito for most playoff goals in a season, as Montreal Canadiens defeated Chicago Black Hawks 4-3 in the third game of the National Hockey League finals.

Chicago leads the best-of-seven series 2-1.

Frank Mahovich leads the Stanley Cup scoring race with 22 points, followed closely by Chicago's Bobby Hull who picked up his 11th goal and 10th assist in Sunday's game.

Islanders Played Like There Was No Tomorrow

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Coach Jack Hynes said his Charlottetown Islanders were "rescheduling "like there was no tomorrow" Sunday night as they drubbed Red Deer Rustlers 7-2 in the fifth game of their best-of-seven Centennial Cup final.

Red Deer leads the series 3-2 with the sixth game here tonight.

Following the victory, Hynes said it was the first time in the series that the Islanders' forechecking paid off. The Rustlers made mistakes and "we capitalized on them."

Offside calls slowed the western team and the Islanders made good on some slick passing attacks.

Charlottetown grabbed a 2-0 first-period lead and pushed the margin to 4-2 after two periods.

D'Arcy Murphy and Don Jones scored two goals each in the victory with others coming from Angus Beck, Doug Abbass and Kevin Devine.

Nino Tosses Towel Back

MONTE CARLO (AP) — Carlos Monzon of Argentina retained his world middleweight title with a third-round technical knockout over Nino Benvenuti of Italy Saturday night in a bizarre bout that ended in total confusion when a towel was tossed into the ring from the challenger's corner.

The fight ended suddenly after Monzon sent Benvenuti to the canvas for the second time. As the former champ rose to his feet, the towel was thrown by his manager, Bruno Amadurri.

Benvenuti kicked it back into the corner and shouted that he wanted to continue. But one of his handlers restrained him while Argentine referee Victor Avendano raised Monzon's hand in triumph.

Benvenuti stood crying in the centre of the ring and his wife, Guiliana, rushed through the ropes, screaming, as the result was announced. It was ruled a TKO at one minute five seconds of the third.

Benvenuti, who lost the 160-pound crown for the second time last November when he was knocked out by Monzon in the 12th round, had taken some stiff punches in the second, and third rounds but did not appear to be badly hurt.

ROSES POTTED
WHY POTTED ROSES?

So many people have asked us why we have potted roses rather than packaged (or bare-root) stock. The answer is simply that we feel they are a far better deal for our customers.

PLANT LATER. Bare-root roses should be in the ground in April, but we have found that most of our sales were taking place in May and it was difficult to keep the packaged roses from drying out in storage. Potted roses can be planted right up until July.

COSTS VERY LITTLE MORE. For about one dollar more we can sell a rose that is really alive . . . leafed out and even in full bloom at times. This represents about 4 to 6 weeks growth advantage.

REPLACING WINTER-KILLED BUSHES. It takes half the month of May for some bushes to show new shoots in the spring, so replacement with bare-root stock represents something of a gamble.

MAY IS PLANTING TIME ANYWAY. Who wants to dig around in a rose garden in April when there's snow on the ground?

Jones Ends Drought In Big Way for Expos

MONTREAL (CP) — It had been a long time between starts for left-fielder Mack Jones in the Montreal Expos' lineup.

Jones, a 31-year-old native of Atlanta, Ga., had not appeared in the Expos starting lineup since April 11 against Philadelphia Phillies.

Going into Sunday's game against Chicago Cubs, Jones had a paltry batting average of .063 with only one hit in 16 trips to the plate.

But, the left-handed slugger drew a surprise starting assignment Sunday from manager Gene Mauch and responded with two solid home runs, driving in five runs as the Expos dumped the Cubs 7-3.

"Mack was our best hitter during spring training," said Mauch. "He's not the first guy who's had a rough start.

"When I took him out, I promised myself and him that he would get another shot."

The Cubs jumped to a 2-0 lead on Montreal starter Bill Stoneman.

They notched their first run in the top of the third inning on a triple by Glenn Beckert, who scored on Bill Williams' single to right. The hit broke an 0-for-15 slump for Williams.

In the top of the fourth, Jim Hickman's two-run homer put the Cubs ahead 3-0 and it appeared Chicago would score its second straight victory over the Montrealers.

But in the bottom of the fourth inning, the Expos teed off on Cubs' starter Milt Pappas.

Ron Fairly led off with a single and then Jones belted an outside slider just inside the foul-pole in left field for his first homer.

MACK JONES

Bob Bailey, who suffered a shoulder injury in the eighth inning trying to snare a line drive by Beckert, followed Jones' blast with one of his own to the bleachers in left centre.

"That was nice," said Bailey of his homer. "It was fun. I was really glad to see Mack get going."

Jones' fifth inning blast which won the game for the Expos and Stoneman carried into the left centre field bleachers and brought home Rusty Staub and Ron Fairly. It also finished Pappas for the afternoon.

"It's a great feeling to do it after so long," said Jones, who have always hit Pappas well."

The Expos added another run in the sixth on a run-scoring single by Boots Day.

Stoneman survived the early trouble and ended up surrendering only seven hits to the Cubs He also recorded 11 strikeouts and walked only three men.

"No, I didn't know how many strikeouts I had," said Stoneman. "It's easier to count them after game. Anyway, it doesn't matter, as long as we win.

"We are starting to rap the ball and that's fun," said the ex-Chicago pitcher. "Those close games are all right after the game is over, but it's no fun during the game."

The Expos continue their homestand tonight when they play host to St. Louis Cardinals in the opening game of a three-game set.

Montreal will pitch right-hander Steve Renko (3-1) against the Cardinals' Jerry Reuss.

The Expos also play night games against St. Louis Tuesday and Wednesday before heading to Boston and a meeting with the Red Sox in an exhibition game Thursday night.

Right-hander Jim Britton, who sat out last season recovering from surgery to remove a bone spur from his elbow will pitch for the Expos against Boston.

Do Reds Have Feet Of Clay?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cincinnati Reds are turning out to be sitting ducks for the rest of the National League, but they have always been clay pigeons for San Diego's Clay Kirby.

The Padres' right-hander, in his third major league season, has won only 18 games while losing 30. But he continued his success story against the Reds Sunday with a 7-2 victory, including a club record—tying 12 strikeouts.

That gave the 22-year-old hurler a 7-4 lifetime log against the defending National League champs, making them the only team over which he holds a career edge.

Despite their lack of success against the rest of the league, the Padres generally make things tough for the Reds. They trail the Reds by a mere 19-23, by far the best they've done against any of the established clubs.

The Padres rocked Jim McGlothlin for six runs in the first inning, featuring solo homers by Dave Campbell and Bob Barton and a three-run triple by Ed Spizio. Campbell homered again in the seventh.

It wasn't all smooth sailing for Kirby. He allowed nine hits, walked four and had to pitch out of trouble several times. But he had it when it counted.

Arsenal Top Dogs

LONDON (CP) — Arsenal became only the second team in this century to achieve the coveted double when it scored a 2-1 victory over Liverpool after extra time in the final of the English Football Association Cup soccer championship.

All three goals came during extra time.

GLASGOW (CP) — Glasgow's crosstown soccer rivals, Rangers and Celtic, battled to a 1-1 draw Saturday in their Scottish Football Association Cup final.

The two teams will meet again Wednesday in another effort to produce a cup winner.

Orioles Beaten at Own Game

It takes a mighty strong hand to beat Baltimore's aces twice at their own game, but Oakland Athletics have two of a kind in Vida Blue and Jim Hunter.

Hunter and Blue tossed four-hitters Sunday, trumping Baltimore pitching stars Mike Cuellar and Dave Palmer, as the Athletics swept a doubleheader from the world champion Orioles 6-2 and 2-1.

It was the first time the Orioles lost both ends of a twin bill since Aug. 29, 1969, when California Angels swept them by the same scores.

Blue, Oakland's sensational young southpaw, reeled off his eighth consecutive full-route victory since an opening-day loss at Washington after Hunter, beaten in his first two starts, stymied the Orioles for his fifth triumph in succession.

In his nightcap duel with Palmer, Blue struck out nine, hiking his league-leading total to 78. Palmer, who fanned 11, retired 18 Athletics in order following Bert Campaneris' game-opening single—but faltered in the seventh inning.

The Orioles led 1-0 when Joe Rudi opened the seventh with a single. Reggie Jackson also singled, sending Rudi to third, and took second on left fielder Merv Rettenmund's throwing error.

Then, with Mike Epstein at the plate, Palmer uncorked a wild pitch. Rudi raced home with the tying run and when catcher Clay Dalrymple's return throw to Palmer went astray Jackson also scored.

In the second, Hunter gave up a first-inning leadoff single by Don Buford, then held the Orioles hitless until Brooks Robinson homered in the seventh. Boog Powell singled Hunter for another homer in the eighth, but the Catfish shrugged it off as he snapped a four-game Baltimore winning streak.

Nicklaus Gives Fellow Pros Break

DALLAS (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, with his second Byron Nelson Golf Classic in his trophy case, has decided to take a little time off from golf.

JACK NICKLAUS

Nicklaus fired birdies on three of the last four holes to destroy the field Sunday with a final-round 66 on the 7,031-yard, par-70 Preston Trail golf course. The 66 gave him a six-under-par total of 274.

Nicklaus, who won the 1970 Byron Nelson in a playoff with Arnold Palmer, had consecutive birdies of 20, 12, and 20 feet on holes 15, 16 and 17. His surge destroyed Jerry Magee who shot a final-round 65 for a 276. and Frank Beard who carved out a 67, also for a 276.

Nicklaus, the only player to win all on a jo tournaments twice, said he called his wife Saturday night and told her: "I would take the luxury of three weeks off if I won.

"She said fine."

Winner of three of his last six tournaments, Nicklaus said he won't touch a club next week.

It was the 23rd tour victory in Nicklaus' professional career and $25,000 first prize pushed his leading money winnings for the season to $131,776.

Charles Coody, third-round leader Saturday, faded to a one-over par 71 to finish alone in fourth place at 278.

Lee Trevino, Bert Yancey and Bobby Nichols were grouped at 279. Trevino shot a 71, Yancey had a 67 and Nichols a 69.

Palmer, two strokes back of the leader going into final-round play, faltered and finished with a 72 for a 281 total.

George Koudson of Toronto, the only Canadian to qualify for the final round, had rounds of 73-72-77-72 for 294. He earned $160.

Steven Soubliere was one of the courageous souls who competed in the pole vaulting competition during Saturday's annual Albert College Field Day. Despite adverse weather conditions, 12 school track and field records were broken.

Dry Enough for Records

If Saturday looked like anything, it wasn't a day on which to set track and field records.

But Albert College athletes grinned and bore a steady drizzle in their annual Field Day, and when the soggy sneakers had been stored for the day, a dozen school records had been broken.

Pat Gorazdowska and Gar-akai Mutswairo, presented with Albert's top awards during Saturday night's annual athletic banquet, accounted for four new school standards during the track and field events.

Miss Gorazdowska, 14 year-old Bellevillian, set school records in the junior girls' 880-yard (2:51.4) and open mile (6:21) events. Her prowess in basketball, volleyball, and badminton also led to her selection as Albert College's girl athlete of the year.

Mutswairo, a 16 - year - old from Mooseonee, won the Junior boys' 100 - yard (10.5) and 440-yard (56.2) dashes en route to being chosen Albert's outstanding male athlete of 1970-71. He was also a member of school soccer and basketball teams.

One of the top contenders for the girl's award was senior Debbie Sallus, who Saturday established school records in the 440-yard (71 sec.) long jump (14' 9"), and 120-yard hurdles (18.5 sec.).

Slippery approaches probably did prevent the school's high jump record from going by the boards. The record, set at 5' 7" in 1941, had been bettered in practice sessions last week, but remained intact following Saturday's rain dampened meet.

At the evening banquet, awards were presented to participants in the school's diverse athletic program coordinated by Susan Crossley and Douglas Jodoin that included volleyball, basketball, soccer, football, badminton, tennis, bowling, billiards and broomball. Baker House won the annual intermural competition.

Bea's Average Better Than Most

Bea Hunt came through with another average performance in the Ladies' Open Five Pin Bowling championship Saturday — average for her that is.

The 1969-70 Ladies' Open champion came up with a 2394 pinfall for ten games to capture her third consecutive win in the event. Her 239.4 average was slightly above the 227 mark that she carries in league play, but far off her winning pace in 1970 when she compiled a 266.8 average in the Open.

A pair of Stirling entries held down the second and third spots as Lenora West averaged 224.5 to take second spot followed by Earla Cowan with a 222.0 mark.

Carolyn Cox of Belleville (211.2) held down fourth position, while Pat Deline who had the high single of 315 for the tournament was fifth with a 205.7 average.

The sixth place finisher was Jean Calnan, the 1968 champion, who rolled 2033 this year.

In other Bowl-O-Drome action on the weekend Gary Cameron won the Men's Under 215 average championship with a mark of 2027. Second place in the event went to Leonard Labrash.

City Generous To Kirk Kids

Belleville residents are on their way towards making sure that the William R. Kirk school for the mentally retarded gets a special turnout at the Special Olympics.

Almost $500 has been raised for the project of sending at least 12 Kir k competitors to the special competition in Toronto June 8-11. They will compete in various swimming and track and field competitions against other mentally retarded students from across the country.

Key donations have been forthcoming from employees of the Northern Electric Company, Ontario Hydro, Kent Public School staff, Mountgomery Lodge, Alpah Mu Society, Carr-Brainf Construction ad the Moira local 34 group.

In addition to the $500 already collected, another $300 has been pledged by local secondary schools and service clubs which leaves the school about $800 away from its final objective.

Sue Clarke, who oversees the school's phys-ed program has been assisted throughout the year by a number of grade-12 and 13 students from Moira Secondary School. "It's really great that we can get the help from the Moira students," she enthuses. "It gives us an almost one-to-one ratio and the children get a lot more out of the sessions than if there were just one or two instructors present in the pool."

Affiliation with the United Community Services prevents funds being solicited by the William R. Kirk staff, but unsolicited donations have been received by Mrs. T. H. Stovell, 12 Pine St.

William R. Kirk student Gary Schoffield gets a tow from Moira Secondary's Nancy Morin in the YMCA pool. Grade 12 and 13 students from the Belleville high school are helping with the instruction of the mentally retarded children in the two weekly sessions at the Y. Moira students also contributed in another fashion, donating some $155 to help send a contingent of Kirk students to June's special Olympics in Toronto.

Danger of Skids Still Present After Snow and Ice Melt Away

By RAY STAPLEY

The danger of skidding does not diminish with the disappearance of ice and snow from the roads and highways.

Some of the most deadly types of skids, resulting in complete loss of control, take place in the heat of late spring and summer.

Last summer, just as I was setting out on my holidays, there was a sudden downpour of rain. In the first few miles, I saw three cars that had gone out of control and crashed into the guardrails.

Although I didn't stop to check, I would wager that the drivers of all three cars were the victims of aquaplaning, a water wedge that builds up between the tread of a tire and the road when a car travels at high speeds.

Some years ago, I witnessed a most compelling demonstration of aquaplaning. I saw a bald tire being rotated on a machine at 60 mph under an 800-pound load, with a stream of water being sprayed between the tire and the revolving drum.

Despite the 800-pound load the tire had lifted off the surface of the drum. The wheel quickly slowed to the point where the operator was able to stop it with his hand. It's obvious, therefore, that a car with poor front-tire treads could be travelling at 60 mph on a wet highway with the front wheels not touching the road surface and barely turning.

The water wedge build-up lifts the tire right off the road, and under these circumstances there is no braking power in the front wheels nor can the driver steer the vehicle. Seldom is the driver aware of the danger until he attempts to steer around a curve, at which point the car "ghosts" off the highway.

A deep-treaded tire can cut this water wedge by disposing of the water through the channels between the treads, and will not aquaplane under normal wet roadway conditions. However, in exceptionally deep water even a new tire can aquaplane.

Seldom do the rear tires aquaplane, because the front tires remove sufficient water from the road's surface to allow the rear tires to retain contact.

Because of the phenomenon of aquaplaning, when rotating your tires, if some treads are thinner than others, make sure that the best treads are mounted on the front wheels. Keep in mind also that when the tire tread is less than 1/16 of an inch deep, the tire should be scrapped. Too many motorists insist on squeezing every last mile out of the treads, which can be fatal — since something like 90 per cent of tire failures happen in the last 10 per cent of the tire's life.

Apart from aquaplaning, one of the most dangerous times for skids is during the first few minutes of rain when the roads have been dry and hot for some time. The rain, along with the oil slick and droppings from tailpipes, forms a greasy coating on the pavement, making stopping or steering as difficult as they would be on ice.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"You've got to admire his spirit, but I'm afraid he's fighting a losing battle."

Civil Servants Plan Pay Freeze Protests

TORONTO (CP) — Delegates to a special emergency meeting of Civil Servants Association of Ontario voted overwhelmingly Sunday in favor of any action short of a general strike to protest a government proposal to limit pay increases.

Suggestions for possible action included protest marches, harrassment, scattered spot actions, work-to-rule, rotating strikes, intermittent strikes and repealing strikes.

The motion further said that "if, in reasonable time and on experience," the association is "reasonably convinced, that a general strike may be necessary," a strike vote should be taken and a special meeting held.

The motion was put by the associations board of executives and, in a standing vote, only five of 256 delegates on the floor opposed it.

The civil servants object to statements by Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough in his recent budget speech, calling for an average limit of five percent in wage increases to Ontario civil servants. They also object to the possibility that the government would not be bound by arbitration board awards greater than five per cent.

Home and School Outlines Policies

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations decided Sunday that only the province's public school system should receive financial aid beyond Grade 10.

The resolution, passed at the federation's annual conference, will be presented in a petition to Education Minister Robert Welch.

Mr. Welch, attending the conference, said the resolution would maintain the status quo. He refused further comment.

At present, provincial aid is given to Roman Catholic schools only up to the end of Grade 10.

Other resolutions passed include:

—The Ontario government should encourage Canadian publishers to publish Canadian textbooks, should financially assist such publishers, and should prevent the sale of Canadian publishing houses to foreign interests;

—The department of education should be petitioned to "continue to move towards the requirement of a three-year bachelor's degree in education, or an equivalent, for elementary school non-specialist teachers;

—The department and the Ontario Teachers' Federation should keep a degree of control and supervision over the degree courses offered by universities and colleges;

Sydney J. Harris Says

In U.S., Law Is Politics

It used to be a joke told in the back rooms of county courthouses: A lawyer asked a prospective juror, "Who influences you the most — the witnesses, the judge, or the lawyers?"

And the prospective juror replied: "I ain't influenced by anything said by the witnesses, judge or lawyers. I just look at the prisoner and say to myself, 'If he ain't done anything wrong, why is he here?' And I vote 'em all guilty."

It is not a joke, really. The presumption (conscious or unconscious) of the ordinary law-abiding citizen is that if a man has kept his nose clean and done no wrong, he wouldn't be standing there on trial.

This might be true in an ideal society. Or in a society where the police and prosecution are scrupulously fair in their motivations and methods. But that society is still a long way off.

In a country like England, the Director of Public Prosecutions is a servant of all the people; he is not politically elected, nor beholden to any party machinery; which means he does not have to curry support by making a "good record" — which implies a high percentage of convictions. He will not twist or withhold evidence favorable to the defendants.

In the U.S., because the judicial system is so intimately connected with the political process, every case is a "contest" between the prosecution and the defence. This is why deals are made — the defendant will cop a plea (that is, plead guilty to a lesser offence) to make the prosecution's record of convictions look good.

It is all an elaborate legal charade, a formalized game, with only the remotest relationship to justice, or even to simple truth. And the police, as well as the prosecution, are involved in it, because the police by the mayor, and the mayor also wants a "fine record" of obtaining convictions and "cutting down crime."

How crime is handled in an American community is more a matter of public relations than of jurisprudence. Public officials are concerned about their "batting average" — and it is too often true that the record look good by getting meaningless convictions against petty criminals, while the big fish continue to operate without interference.

Neither judges nor prosecutors should be elected officials obligated to the party machinery; their fitness should be evaluated and reviewed regularly by the bar, not by the voters, who have only the dimmest notion of what really goes on before that defendant stands up in court. And, eventually, that's the only way we'll get a more tractable and reformable class of prisoners.

Kierans Thinks Resignation May Spark Economic Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP) — Eric Kierans says he thinks his resignation from the Trudeau cabinet two weeks ago could result in a profound government study of present economic policy.

The former communications minister was interviewed Wednesday for the Sunday afternoon CTV program Question Period. A text of the taped interview was released by the network Saturday.

In his letter of resignation, Mr. Kierans said his intention was to challenge publicly "long-established policies and practices" of the government relating to economic growth.

Among those policies and practices, reiterated on the TV program, were tax concessions to the mining industry.

Mr. Kierans said such concessions favor the over-employment of foreign capital at the expense of labor, already in surplus.

In the interview, Mr. Kierans said pressure on the government from mining companies and from some provincial premiers—not named—was responsible for the government's position on tax concessions.

Mr. Kierans, who remains a member of Parliament for Montreal Duvernay, admitted that the Liberals might lose the next federal election if his ideas were adopted.

But he said it doesn't worry him whether a government gets elected or not as long as it does the right thing.

A minister of economic affairs perhaps was required to oversee the Canadian economy, although such a minister would be intervening in the affairs of other ministers.

Mr. Kierans agreed the existence of an economy minister would create a difficult cabinet situation, but that posed the question of whether Canada shouldn't have fewer ministers with more embracing authority.

Mr. Kierans also urged consolidation of the Canadian Transport Commission and the Canadian Radio-Television Commission into one regulatory body.

He said he was open to invitations to speak on his views.

Rattlesnakes Found in Box

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A mother-of-two found five boxes of live rattlesnakes in a dilapidated warehouse Saturday where neighborhood children played.

Mrs. Jeanne Blum and her daughter, Debbie, 16, made the discovery after going to the abandoned building to chase away children who were playing inside.

No one was bitten by the snakes, whose bite could cause death within 10 seconds, but Mrs. Blum said she "just froze" in fright when Debbie lifted the lid on one of the boxes to discover the hissing rattlers.

Police called in the Essex County Humane Society which took away the snakes. Ownership of the reptiles was traced to Gary Logan, who recently moved to Windsor a few months ago with a collection of 150 timber rattlers, western diamond-backs and copperheads up to six feet long.

It was not immediately clear how the boxes of snakes got in the warehouse.

Go Torino!

If the small ones are too small and the big ones too big, go Torino. The dimensions are slightly larger than our full-size cars in 1967 and prior. Let Stevenson's fit one into your garage today.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market was lower in mid-morning trading today with gold mining issues leading the decline.
The drop reflected a decrease in the value of the United States dollar on some European money markets.
The U.S. dollar dropped in value after the West German mark was freed to find its own level in relation to the dollar. Among gold producers, Dome Mines lost 2¼ to $65½.
Among declining issues, Steleo was down ¼ to $25¾, IAC ¾ to $17⅝ and Alcan ¼ to $33¼.

Toronto Livestock

TORONTO (CP) — Trading was active at fully steady prices for all classes and grades of slaughter cattle at the Ontario public stockyards today.
Veal calf prices were strong, hog prices were lower. There was also an early sales to sheep and lambs.
Slaughter cattle 1,856; Choice steers 1,150-34, good 32.25, medium 29-31.50, common 25-28.50; choice heifers 31-32 with sales to 32.75, good 29-30.50, medium 27-29, common 24-26.50; good cows 22-23 with sales to 24, medium 21-22, canners and cutters 17-21, good heavy bologna bulls 29-27, common and medium 28-29.50.

Non-Coms Discuss Cadet Corps

The Hasty Pres-sponsored army cadet corps was the topic of discussion at the annual meeting of the Hastings and Prince Edward Non-commissioned Officers Association.
Speaker for the meeting was Major Alec Cunningham, commanding officer of the cadet corps which was organized in 1907.
Major Cunningham said the latest objective of the corps was to purchase a small used bus for the transportation of its members for weekend activities and to summer camps.
The association voted to donate $100 to the cadet corps to use as they see fit.
Ralph Hoppins elected as new association president, succeeding R. Wigmore who retired after stepping down revised highlights of the past year's activities.
Vice presidents are Cliff Oudertirk and Perce Kelly. Howard L. Kokesh is secretary-treasurer.
The annual inspection of the Hasty Pres will be on May 23, while the trooping of the color will be in August, hopefully with the minister of national defence as inspecting officer.
The annual inspection of the cadet corps will be on May 30.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks at Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Is it true that penicillin is a "sure cure" for gonorrhea? — Mrs. K.

* * *

COMMENT: I'll go about answering your query in a roundabout way. Somehow the normal human reaction is to become less wary of a health threat whenever we hear or read about a new "wonder drug" that is supposed to annihilate the enemy. At first it may seem to do so, but after awhile microbes build their own defences against our weapons and it becomes more difficult to eradicate them completely.

One example is tuberculosis. Our new drugs control it quite well. But people have become careless. They believe there is no longer the danger of the spread of tbl sdiease. Untrue. Tuberculosis is still a threat.

* * *

Now Mrs. K., in direct answer to your question: Penicillin is not always a "sure cure" for gonorrhea. Recent studies have shown that the gonococcus still infects at least two million Americans each year.

And we know that these microbes have become resistant to the single massive dose treatments of penicillin or related antibiotics. In some reports even five-million-dose injections have failed to produce cure in anywhere from 10 per cent to over 40 per cent of patients.

In many, therefore, two courses of treatment are necessary. And it has also been found that a well-known drug used in the treatment of gout when combined in the treatment with penicillin offers a greater chance of complete cure of gonorrhea.

I am glad you brought up this question, Mrs. K., as too many have become complacent about gonorrhea. It continues to be spread because, unfortunately, often those who have it are not aware of it. If there is a moral it is this: gonorrhea and syphilis are still threats in spite of our new defensive weapons. As the referee warns the boxers when they enter the ring: "Keep your guard up and protect yourself at all times."

* * *

For Mrs. D.: Don't jump to rash conclusions about any harmful effects of taking oral diabetic agents to control your diabetes. There is still a great difference of opinion between doctors. Whether or not you should depend upon your own doctor's judgment. I am sure he is following all the controversy regarding whether or not such medicines should be used in managing diabetes.

For Mrs. H.: Yes, I agree that self-examination of a woman's breasts will reduce the incidence of unrecognized, early breast cancer. Your doctor will explain this simple method to you. Probably you have also heard of a new procedure called mammography — which is special X-ray of breasts to discover early tumor. Some surgeons advise that women should have this test made at least once a year by a competent radiologist.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Is mouth-to-mouth resuscitation any better than the old "Boy Scout" method of alternate pressure on the lower ribs and back? — Mr. J.

COMMENT: Yes. As a former Bby Scout, I say it with regret.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For May 11

Your birthday today: A year of great expectations is ahead. One is challenged to keep a sense of proportion, so that no essential phase of daily living is skimped and no single activity takes more than its reasonable share. Emotions find fluent expression, sometimes overdramatization. Today's natives are sensitive to subtle health factors and should be sure of regular preventive medical advice from licensed physicians.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Dispute, or its gentler cousin, debate, emerges as a popular sport. A sense of humor and peace contributes to your achievements.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): The first subject that comes to attention this morning hangs on as an all-day topic if you let it. If you do, accept the results of neglecting other things as being your own choice.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Where your feelings are mixed, or you haven't reached an opinion, try not to confuse others particularly children. Express care for those you love.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Draw a line on what is your job and what is somebody else's concern. Avoid getting carried away on side-issues, unrelated questions.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Others have limitations, cannot spread themselves so wide a path of light as you can. To help them past hindrances is first nature in your higher expression if you go with the stream of upward influence.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Your feelings and skills about authority, your own and what you have to cope with are your tests for today. Be both firm and reasonable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Catching and holding emotional balance is not always fluent and easy, even when expecting abrupt change or demand. Pause for intuition.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Go ahead with experiments, new projects where you have thought out the major details and got your materials together.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Bear in mind that people around you may be more sensitive than yourself, and be governed accordingly. You may have to make some last minute changes.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Whatever you defend yourself against likely will not turn up; instead it is something completely different for which you have no answer. The basic defense is not to feel defensive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Thinking and planning in optimistic terms now pays well later. Use your persuasive talents to enlist co-operation. Take care of routines as well as more adventurous projects.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Much depends on how clear and definite you are in your opinions. Have no hesitation about offering them where appropriate.

Crackdown Requested On Subversive Visitors

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Citizenship Federation passed several resolutions critical of the federal government during the weekend and asked for a crackdown on "subversive elements" who enter Canada through cultural and scientific exchanges, specifically with Communist nations.

The Federation asked that unemployment or welfare benefits be denied unless "an applicant produced proof of Canadian citizenship" or landed immigrant status.

One executive official said this was aimed at young draft dodgers and army deserters from the United States.

Another resolution, seeking tougher regulations regarding entry into Canada, said immigration officers should have the power to demand proof of support while a person is in Canada.

The federal government was criticized in a resolution which asked that "the information given to prospective immigrants abroad should reflect true economic employment possibilities in Canada."

One official said the information foreigners get now is "misleading and too optimistic." He also said immigrants are confused about political conditions in the country too.

"People coming in are not aware of changes—they don't know if they have to learn two official languages, for example," said federation president Casimir Stanczykowski of Montreal.

The federation's 70 delegates asked provincial governments to provide "in-school curricula time for teaching of languages other than French and English."

Rezoning Sought To Bar Apartments

Wellington Crescent Wants Park Kept

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

The proposed sale of Wellington Crescent playground property now owned by Albert College is again a topic of discussion for city council.

Two weeks ago a group of area residents, armed with a petition of more than 300 names, asked council to purchase at least part of the two-acre site for continued use as a playground. Albert College has allowed use of the land by the city.

Fear in the back of the minds of petitioners was that the property would be sold for high - rise apartment construction.

Then yesterday, a delegation of Wellington Crescent residents, armed with another petition carrying 137 names, was before council asking the city to rezone the area from the present "B" zoning to "A", which would rule out apartment construction.

Albert College now has an application before the Belleville committee of adjustment asking for a land split to open the way for a sale.

Delegation spokesman, Kenneth Burkett noted that under present zoning, apartments were permitted and said the immediate concern was that the land split and sale of the property would result in indiscriminate building of apartment structures which he claimed would reduce the value of single family residences in the area.

He said there should be a survey to determine the need or capacity, population density and the need for possible street widening or street extension.

Mr. Burkett asked if the developer would pay full costs for the services required or would other property owners be required to pay for something which reduces the value of their property.

The request of the delegation was that the city take immediate steps to rezone the area and for the city to purchase the Albert College property for playground and greenbelt use.

Alderman Robin Jeffrey was in full accord with the delegation request and said the area must be retained as park property.

She said the city should purchase the property — even if it meant a half mill on the tax rate — and said the planning board should take steps to change the zoning as requested.

Price Index Rises Point

OTTAWA (CP) — Higher clothing, housing and food prices led the consumer price index to a gain of nearly a full point last month.

The index, based on 1961 prices equalling 100, rose to 132.2 for April, compared with 131.3 in March and 129.7 in April last year. Announcing the new index number, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said the month's increase was about average for the last five years.

In percentage terms, the index last month was 1.9 per cent higher than a year earlier —just under the two-per cent annual rate of price increase many economists say is the borderline to inflation.

The gain for the month was seven-tenths of one per cent, compared with a March-to-April increase of six-tenths of one per cent last year.

The main increases were nine-tenths of one per cent in both the housing and clothing segments of the over-all index, which together make up more than 40 per cent of it. The food index, accounting for more than 25 per cent of the over-all index, rose seven-tenths of one per cent.

The over-all change in the price index for April, however, was insufficient to change the bureau's calculation of the current purchasing power of the 1961 consumer dollar. It remained at 76 cents, unchanged from March and down one cent from 77 cents in April, 970.

Survivors to Pick Future Locations

ST. JEAN VIANNEY, Que. (CP) — The survivors of last week's landslide here which carried off 44 homes and took 31 lives will decide for themselves where their properties and families will be located, it was announced Monday night.

Harold Simard, president of the local owners and tenants association, said in Kenogami that while his group respects the assistance offered by municipal and provincial authorities, it will support "the individual decision of each of the victims" in choosing a new home.

While he said he did not want to imply a "parallel government" was being set up, Mr. Simard said his organization would work to "catch on the rebound" the initiative for assistance offered by local, provincial and federal governments.

Civil Servants Plan Strikes

TORONTO (CP) — The 30,000-member Civil Service Association of Ontario will launch a series of rotating strikes and slowdowns next Monday unless the provincial government removes its five-per-cent ceiling on civil servants' wage increases.

Harold Bowen, general manager of the association, said Monday night in an interview that members of the 26-man board of directors have fanned out across the province to direct activities in government departmental branches, jails, psychiatric hospitals and teaching hospitals.

"Some locals will start rotating strikes, some will work to rule, others might start study sessions or slowdowns," said Mr. Bowen. "There will be no holds barred, except that we will not start a general strike."

In the meantime, Premier William Davis told the Ontario legislature Monday night that Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough will meet CSAO representatives this week or early next in an effort to iron out differences.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Much cooler weather is beginning to invade the upper Great Lakes region and will cover all of northern and central Ontario by this evening. Snow fell overnight in sections of northwestern Ontario with Armstrong recording a one inch blanket. The warm spell is expected to continue over southern sections today with temperatures again climbing into the mid 70s. Cloud will edge into southwestern Ontario this evening and spread eastward across the lower Great Lakes. Showers are likely overnight lasting through Wednesday.

French Trying to Help Britain Into Euromart

BRUSSELS (Reuter) — Britain and the six Common Market countries began today a major top-level meeting here in negotiations for British entry into the European community, amid hopes that real progress would be made.

Before calling in the British negotiators, ministers of the six held discussions among themselves this morning.

France showed some flexibility Monday in its previous tough positions on the major problems of exports of sugar from developing countries of the Commonwealth and of Britain's contributions to the community budget.

At today's meeting, the Common Market countries will put forward a joint position on the sugar issue.

British officials here said the French moves—made in a preparatory meeting of Common Market ministers here—were further evidence of the political will of France to try to be helpful.

Diplomatic observers felt that the French policy switch on sugar would give a boost to the summit talks between President Georges Pompidou and Prime Minister Edward Heath in Paris May 20-21.

France has dropped its insistence that, if Britain joins the market, it should import no more than 500,000 tons of sugar a year from the developing Commonwealth countries after the Commonwealth sugar agreement expires at the end of 1974.

The French said Monday this whole problem should be discussed after Britain joins the community.

Britain has proposed to the Common Market a continuing arrangement, subject to review, after the end of the Commonwealth sugar agreement in 1974.

Britain has proposed a five-year build-up in equal annual steps to a contribution of 13 to 15 per cent of the community budget, which might be about $4,500 billion by 1978. Under this proposal, Britain's first year contribution would be three per cent—a figure which the French have strongly criticized.

The French proposal gives no figures. It would mean Britain paying in its full budgetary contribution immediately on joining the community, receiving as an annual rebate which would be reduced over a five-year period until it disappeared completely.

Pound Hit As Dollar Demand Up

From AP-REUTER

A strong demand for the U.S. dollar built up on the London foreign exchange market today as speculators rushed to cover the dollars they sold short last week to buy West German marks. The pound sterling was under persistent selling.

There was no evidence the speculators were selling marks or Swiss francs to take their profits from the increased value of those currencies. They seemed to be holding on to them in the hope of even bigger profits.

As a result, the pound was hit by selling described as persistent but not hectic. The pound opened at $2.41745, fractionally higher than Monday's close, but soon slid off to $2.4165, its lowest point in weeks.

France Puts Pressure On Floating Currencies

By REUTER

France blocked today any immediate progress toward economic and monetary unity in the European Common Market, demonstrating its objection to the floating Dutch and West German currencies which emerged from a weekend of financial crisis.

Informed sources in Brussels said the French, opponents of monetary flexibility, had blocked the ambitious Common Market project until member states stopped floating their currencies, thus putting extreme pressure on West Germany and Holland to refix parities as soon as possible.

After days of tension, Boon Sunday night unpegged the mark to control the flow of speculative U.S. dollars pouring into West Germany and other countries that threatened to disrupt the world's monetary system.

The Dutch also unpegged their guilder and the Swiss and Austrians swiftly revalued their currencies.

Egypt Insists on Pullback Before Suez Canal Reopens

From AP-REUTER

Egypt told U.S. State Secretary William Rogers that before it will reopen the Suez canal, Israel will have to pull back 118 miles from the waterway and within six months agree to a timetable for withdrawal from all occupied Arab lands.

The Egyptians also refused to commit themselves to allowing Israeli ships to use the canal, saying only that they would study the question "within our political organizations" and take a stand later.

President Anwar Sadat Monday night gave this report of the talks last week with the American secretary of state. Sadat spoke to the 360-member parliamentary committee of the Arab Socialist Union, Egypt's only political party.

Sadat described Roger's Middle East mission as an effort to move negotiations "from a standstill to an active phase."

Reuter news agency reported a Sadat warning to the parliamentarians and cabinet ministers that Egypt would go to war if current political efforts fail in settling peacefully the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Informed sources in Tel Aviv reported Israel might permit small units of Egyptian police to move across in the Israeli-occupied east bank but would bar Egyptian troops. Israel also insists, they said, on maintaining its Bar-Lev defensive line along the canal.

Sadat said he told the American secretary Egyptian troops must cross to the eastern side "to guarantee the safety of navigation."

$.5-million Building

Education Board to Consolidate Offices

Hastings county board of education agreed last night to construct a half million dollar "educational services" (administration) building on the Bayside school site.

But before they go it alone on the financing, trustees will make a last attempt to hold the Ontario government to an old promise made at the time county boards were formed over two years ago—a promise of provincial assistance with additional expenses incurred because of formation of county boards.

"If we didn't have a county board, we wouldn't need this building," said trustee MacDonald Smith of Belleville. That the time county boards were formed, the minister of education, now Premier William Davis, said the department would assist with additional costs. This is a decision to be made on a political level and we should make representation of some sort to the minister on this."

Mr. Smith added that he was familiar with a similar case in the past, when an appeal to the minister had brought results.

Chairman Donald Williams of Stirling concurred with Mr. Smith's stand, saying that "this is part of the cost of running this board and I see no reason why the department shouldn't pay part of it."

The board approved in principle the construction of the 30,000 square foot building, with trustees Nelson McGillen and Robertson Collins opposing the motion. But discussion of the method of financing the project was deferred for two weeks, until after a delegation from the board meets with education minister Robert Welch.

Most trustees agreed with James Carke, who put the case for an administration building before them in the absence of building committee chairman Ralph Weaver of Trenton. He said a new building was needed to replace the three now in use.

"There is now a lack of personal contact between members of administration, a great deal of travel involved in getting them together, and a tremendous amount of memo writing going on," he said.

To administer county schools properly, he added, the board needs more room — for interview space, for central filing, for archives, a library, warehousing and supplies and for a board room big enough to admit more members of the staff, the public, "even kids" in summer.

The proposed method of financing would be by bank loan, repaid within five years.

The three present buildings would bring $175,000 when sold, leaving a further $325,000 to be raised by borrowing from a bank.

By financing the building with a bank loan, the board would not "impinge on the per pupil ceiling" imposed by the department of education, Mr. Clarke told trustees. The building would be considered an "extraordinary expenditure" and would not be subject to ceiling regulations. It is also the cheapest way to finance the building, trustees were told.

Mr. Weaver, who arrived after the discussion had begun, said that a "public body" like the board would not be interested in renting space in the building.

Tentative approval of the bank loan had been given by the Ontario Municipal Board and the department of education.

Some hesitation was expressed by trustee Mrs. Miriam Graham, who said "we're in no position to ask the taxpayers to pay the whole shot for this".

If the board reaches a satisfactory agreement with leasing the administration building, construction will begin before winter.

Picton OPP Detachment Shows How It's Done

PICTON (Staff) — Student groups touring the offices of the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police yesterday discovered fingerprinting can provide an entertaining substitute for finger pointing.

Approximately 300 pupils from Prince Edward county elementary schools attended open house held here in conjunction with Police Week. Constable Donald Watt supervised fingerprinting operations involving dozens of "suspects" eager to learn more about the long arm of the law.

The open house, which began at 1 p.m. yesterday featured displays to demonstrate the equipment and techniques employed by police in law enforcement. Spectators were invited to view traffic radar in operation and to examine methods used to the identification unit of the Belleville district OPP.

"Top dog" during the open house was Sabre, a two-year-old German Shepherd handled by Belleville OPP Constable E. Arthurs. This canine cadet joined the district canine team nine months ago, following a 15 - week training program at Mount Forest. Sabre stole the show with an exhibition attack on Picton OPP Constable Donald Watt who strapped his arms with padding for the demonstration. The dog also displayed his willingness to jump hurdles on command.

Constable Arthurs explained the German Shepherd is used in preference to bloodhounds for police work because the latter will not attack. Constable Sabre has been with the team only a short time, he has already assisted in recapturing an escaper from Collins Bay Penitentiary. The dog is kept at Constable Arthurs' residence and is described as "good with the family."

Snowmobiles first used by the number nine district of the OPP in January, 1971, were displayed yesterday. These machines were considered of great value last winter in checking cottages for snow damage and break-ins. It was estimated the four snowmobiles in use in this district covered about 350 miles patrolling inaccessible areas, during snowmobile complaints and inspecting cottages. Two of the machines operate from Belleville while the other two are run from Shannon Lake.

Marine and scuba equipment used by the OPP was unavailable for yesterday's open house, but the public was invited to observe the efficiency of an air patrol. An aircraft leased from the Prince Edward Flying Club is used to obtain a bird's-eye view of traffic in the areas of Belleville, Peterborough and west Perth. Illegal passing and dangerous operation of motor vehicles can be spotted and reported from the air. The aircraft is also used to locate missing persons and in water searches. Break-ins, fires, auto accidents and abandoned vehicles can be seen from the air as well.

Constable Robert Burkholder of the Belleville detachment of the OPP explained the operation of the breathalyzer machine to interested visitors. He suggested use of th breathalyzer has reduced the number of serious traffic accidents which occur annually. The machine became compulsory in 1969, although its basic principals had been designed almost ten years earlier.

The perfect crime often can be solved by use of equipment found in an identification unit, Cpl. L. Smith of the Belleville detachment of the OPP described how photographs, fingerprints, footprints and paint samples frequently are used to trace offenders.

Other displays included a demonstration of traffic radar, safety slides, motorcycle operation and safety posters painted by Prince Edward elementary students.

The Picton detachment of the OPP is staffed by commander Sgt. H. R. Robb, two corporals, 14 constables and one cadet.

Liberals Plan Election Strategy

TRENTON (Staff) — Liberals in Quinte are now delaying the selection of a candidate to lead them into the pending provincial election but the possibility of a widely known party standard bearer emerging is good.

"I have been approached by two potential candidates who have shown a definite interest. They are in public life now . . . in the public eye and getting a reasonable press coverage," Quinte Liberal Association president Joel Mazer disclosed last night at the association's annual meeting.

One leading Liberal, Bill Menzies of Trenton, a hydro employee and president of the Prince Edward - Hastings Liberal Association, has already announced that he will be in the running as a candidacy, when a Quinte nominating convention is held.

Mr. Mazer made it clear that the two "public life" figures were in addition to Mr. Menzies. Their names will remain secret, he said.

However, one source said the public life reference would include municipal councils of Belleville, Trenton, Sidney Township, as well as Quinte area representatives on Hastings County School Board and Hastings and Prince Edward Roman Catholic Separate School Board.

Taking into consideration members of these bodies already aligned with other parties, Mr. Mazer by his remarks, managed to narrow speculation as to who might be interested in the candidacy in a short list.

During last night's meeting held in the Sidney Township offices, Mr. Mazer, the owner of Belleville's Avon Jewellery, Ltd. was re-elected president. Wallbridge Rd. resident, Mrs. Doreen Reid was chosen as secretary and George Smid, a Batawa office worker, became the new treasurer.

Jack Bush, owner of Frankford-based Riverside Construction, and reeve of Sidney township was elected to the post of vice-president, Quinte Liberal Association.

Mr. Bush was at a meeting of township council upstairs in the hall while his election took place in the Sidney Township Hall below.

His name was put to the floor by Anthony Dalzar of the Prince Edward-Hastings executive who said he knew the reeve would accept the position. However, Mr. Bush, emerging from council chamber in the brief break when resolutions and bylaws are being prepared, appeared surprised by the decision.

The reeve was the only individual now in public life to make even a momentary appearance at the gathering.

Association president Mazer made it clear during the evening that to delay the holding of a nominating convention would be in the best interests of the party and the two "public life" potential candidates.

The list of Liberals already interested in contesting the seat now held by minister without portfolio, Dr. Richard Potter, may be even broader than Mr. Menzies and the two men now in elected offices.

At one point during the evening, Bill Menzies told the association he did not think he would win the nomination but knew three or four others were interested and it was his intention to make it a real contest.

Despite recommendations from Mr. Menzies and Mr. Mazer, that the date of the convention be left until a later date, Joel Mazer advised the association not to call a nominating convention until an election is formally announced.

Bids to hold a convention in the near future were rejected.

Mr. Menzies said he did not think it would hurt the public figures to participate in a convention now but conceded the delay in holding nominations is one of the reasons available.

Quinte Liberals will move before the November 30 to hold an organization local, which by their own admission they lack.

"There is no leadership now. We should have a candidate in the field . . . we have to get together and prepare an organization," said Anthony Dalzar.

All agreed an organization must be developed but Trenton resident, Charles Hilton, took exception to the remark that the Quinte Liberals had no leadership.

"That is not altogether fair, Tony. Joel does not deserve the going over he just got from you," he said, adding "we should not condemn one, we should condemn ourselves."

As an indication of the support he has received, Mr. Mazer said treasurer of the association, Tony Warren of Belleville, "has not showed up to our executive meetings and has never filed a report."

Mr. Mazer, who has held the president's post since February 1968, said in his report to the association he wished he could report an active two years but explained that he could not.

There was no arsenal meeting of the association in 1970. Five executive meetings have been held since he took over his post, each "with very poor attendance," he said.

The Quinte association president pledged to work actively in building up the party. He said it was obvious an election would be held during the convention now but concerned the party would have to work hard to get candidates from which to choose.

Shifts Settled

The type of shift system to operate at Trenton High School this fall has been decided upon and announced by the Hastings county board of education.

Saturday will not be a school day under the schedule finally adopted by the board.

Students slated to be enrolled in the new Bayside Secondary School when it opens Jan. 1, 1972, will attend Trenton High School all day on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Fridays from 1:15 p.m. to 6 p.m.

The Trenton High School student body will be divided into two groups, the school opening has been deferred until after the Christmas holidays.

Some parents objected to the originally proposed 6-day school week with classes on Saturday, on the grounds that it would ruin family weekends. The two-and-one-half school week for each set of students, those from Bayside and those from Trenton, was the compromise solution decided upon by board and administration.

Jobless Boost Welfare Costs

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Skyrocketing welfare costs and high unemployment go hand in hand.

At its April session, Hastings county council received the county social service department report which showed that this year's costs at a whopping $1,806,760 as compared with actual expenditures last year of $1,494,685. The figures take in Belleville, Trenton and the county.

The above cost figures also include special welfare, nursing homes and other items as well as administration costs.

General welfare and certain other related costs are subsidized 80 per cent by the province.

A social services department official said today that costs so far this year were following right along with the estimates, although the case load of welfare recipients was now levelling off.

At the same time, the number of unemployed in the area covered by the Belleville Manpower Centre — Belleville, Hastings, with the exception of Trenton and part of Sidney and Ameliasburg townships — at the end of April was 2,920, up from 1,783 at the same time last year.

Manpower office manager H. W. Karn noted that the high unemployment was general across Canada.

The high April unemployment was said due to some extent to the abnormally late spring, resulting in a lack of job opportunities in construction and also to the additional number of people of the labor market.

Just how high unemployment is helping to boost general welfare costs is shown by budget estimates of last year as compared to this year.

Last year's straight general welfare costs for the department were estimated at $646,000, but this amount was over-spent before the end of the year.

This year the general welfare budget for Belleville, Trenton and the county is set at $1,000,000 — a boost of more than 60 per cent over last year's figure.

The county's budget for general welfare last year was set at $250,000 and this year is boosted to $400,000. The city figure last year was set at $321,000 and this year is estimated at $450,000, while at Trenton the 1970 figure was $75,000 and this year is boosted to $180,000.

This year's welfare budgets for Belleville and Trenton have still not been approved by the respective municipal councils.

And welfare costs could go higher than the amounts estimated.

County Clerk Administrator Carl Bateman told county council at its budget meeting that there was a rumor to the effect that allowables paid to welfare recipients would be increased in May.

"If this happens, and the number of welfare cases continues at the present level, then we shall in all likelihood be underbudgeted," Mr. Bateman told council.

The provincial government's make - work program has resulted in a number of men going off the welfare rolls.

Several welfare recipients found work in the highway department's elm tree cutting program.

Also, the county has commenced a tree pruning program at its county forest at Bird's Creek, and a number of individual municipalities throughout the county have also had make - work programs approved.

In all cases, most of the labors required have been taken from among the welfare recipients.

"It all helps," commented a county official.

Home-made Hovercraft

Anyone in the market for his own personal hovercraft can put in his bid for the one Motra Secondary School grade 11 and 12 machine technology students are putting together. An adventurous way of co-ordinating their skills and theory learned from the teacher Anthony Lepore (left) holding the wooden template for the nose. The hovercraft will be sold after field trials in June to buy material for a bigger and better model next year. The one-seat vehicle will be powered by two snowmobile motors and Mr. Lepore and his students are in the market for two good used motors. Among the students working on the project are Brian Sutherland, Gordon Blake and Dennis Maracle.

Humane Society Policy Draws Alderman's Fire

The policy of the Belleville branch of the Ontario Humane Society requiring the names of complainants does not have the unanimous approval of city council.

And one of the strongest objectors to the policy is Alderman Gerald Joyce, who claims there should be no necessity of complainants giving their names before action is taken on the complaint.

The matter was before city council for the second time yesterday with the latest discussion prompted by a letter from T. I. Hughes, general manager, who outlined the society's policy.

He emphasized that the society does not permit its employees to divulge names of complainants, the reason being that such a practice would jeopardize public relations and create neighborhood problems.

However, Alderman Joyce said if names were not given there would be no danger of them being divulged.

Two council members — Aldermen Robin Jeffrey and E. A. Orr agreed with the requirement of complainants giving their names.

If names were not given it would open the door for any number of crank calls, was the claim.

Alderman Joyce said, however, that the society was not providing the service it was saying it gave.

"The city is not getting its money's worth," he said.

Bell Boulevard Cost $131,000

An example of how road construction estimates can increase between the time of proposal and the calling of tenders was made clear to city council yesterday.

The case in point is the proposed construction of just over 1,100 feet of roadway on Bell Blvd. to service the new Quinte Mall west of North Front Street.

When the roadway was first proposed a few years ago, the estimated cost of the two-lane roadway was $60,000 with the plaza owners, Cambridge Leaseholds, agreeing to pay up to $30,000.

Since then there has been a decision to make Bell Blvd. an arterial road with the width extended to four lanes and with work being done under local improvements. But the estimated cost has now reached $131,000.

A report from city engineer Wilbur Purcell breaks the estimated costs down this way: road construction $60,634; north side curb and gutters $5,906 and storm sewer $27,160 for a total of $93,880.

Added to this is an item of $14,000 for contingencies; a similar amount for engineering and supervision and $9,000 for administration, making a grand total of $131,000.

The proposal is for the work to be done under local improvements with the corporation's share estimated at $91,195 and the owners' share $39,804, of which Cambridge Leaseholds would pay approximately $34,000.

As an arterial road it is expected the city would be subsidized 50 per cent.

Alderman Robin Jeffrey questioned the cost of $24,000 to Cambridge when the firm had earlier agreed to pay up to $30,000.

She suggested it was only reasonable to expect the company to live up to its earlier agreement.

"The city's costs have risen," she pointed out.

City manager J. R. Reynolds said the lower cost to Cambridge Leaseholds was because of the breakdown of costs under the city's local improvement policy.

Council, however, directed that Cambridge Leaseholds be approached to determine if the firm would honor its previous agreement.

Jail Transportation Still Unsolved Problem

With official opening ceremonies scheduled for this weekend, the new regional jail at Napanee is set to go into operation but there is still no final decision on whether the province or the local municipalities will pay the cost of transporting prisoners.

Operational costs of the new jail will be paid by the province but, under the existing setup, transportation of prisoners would be the responsibility of the municipalities.

All the larger urban municipalities in the four-county area — Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac — have objected to this cost and are urging that the province assume the cost.

(Belleville has estimated that first year costs for transportation of prisoners will amount to more than $30,000.)

In a letter tabled yesterday at city council, Allan F. Lawrence, attorney-general said the matter was still under consideration.

"We are aware of the problems which you have drawn to our attention but, at the same time, we are not satisfied as to the best manner in which relief should be provided," wrote Mr. Lawrence.

"The lapse of time does not indicate any lack of concern, but rather a genuine concern to find the most effective way of meeting the situation . . ."

Police in Spotlight All Over Quinte

TRENTON (Staff) — Police Week in the area comes into high gear today with a special presentation ceremony by the Trenton Police Commission this evening and school tours and visiting exhibits at Brighton detachment, Ontario Provincial Police.

The Trenton police station is open to the public each evening this week from 7 to 8:30 p.m., with tours laid on for visitors.

In the town hall above the station tonight, Police Commission chairman Hubert Campbell will be presenting members of the constabulary with certificates for courses with certificates for courses taken at Toronto's Centre of Forensic Science and the Ontario Police College, Aylmer.

A special civilian citation will also be presented tonight to Richard Southwell of 21 Trenton Crescent who aided police in the Bank of Montreal robbery here February 9, 1970.

Today is also the highlight of Police Week at Brighton's OPP detachment.

Special displays of scuba equipment, identification kits and an OPP search boat will be at the local detachment through the afternoon for viewing by three school tours and from 7 to 10 p.m. tonight by the general public.

The Brighton OPP is also holding open house daily from 2 to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 10 p.m. each weekday.

Fiscal Flap

Quite apart from the technicalities of the current monetary flap involving the United States dollar and the German mark, in effect a loss of confidence in the dollar and by contrast, trust in the mark, the human aspects of such developments tend to be ignored.

Speculation in such circumstances, involving fiscal experts and get-rich-quick market manipulators, send prime rates up in capitals around the world. Yet if anyone becomes wealthy overnight, what use would such earnings be if, as a consequence, there was a crash and the U.S. dollar, say, became worthless?

Meanwhile the jargon of such times is prevalent. The German mark, like the Canadian dollar on a previous occasion, is being allowed to "float," to find its own level. What does it all mean, asks the average fellow, concerned only with the fact that governments around the world are soaking him for his own hard-won dollars, pounds, marks, yen or whatever?

It means the currency is being "unpegged."

Yes, but what does that mean? Well . . . er, why don't you just read the financial correspondent's piece. . .

Another thing, what do they do in Moscow and Peking on such occasions? When dollars, marks, etc. go on a binge in international monetary circles, what happens to the rouble for instance?

In the Money

Wow, that fellow Jack Nicklaus. He has just pocketed another $25,000, this time from the Byron Nelson golf classic in Texas — and has he not already won $100,000 a season for the past eight seasons? It seems no time at all since we were watching him as a rising young amateur playing for the United States in the Walker Cup, or was it the British amateur? Well, no matter, it was one or the other and since then Nicklaus has come to be one of the greatest names in golf.

At 31, Nicklaus is still at the peak of his career and it is more than likely that he will end up with more money from the game than any golfer in history, even more than the great Arnold Palmer, who at 46 is definitely past his best. Nicklaus may have his off days but he is so strong and so fit that he can easily bounce back.

And speaking of ready cash, show business can be an even better provider than the U.S. golf circuit. For singing stars Tom Jones and Engelbert Humperdinck, who for years limped along as an unknown crooner named Gerry Dorsey, have just signed three-year contracts in Las Vegas together worth almost $2.4 million. The contracts will involve only 12 to 16 weeks' work for the two men over the three-year period.

We doubt if we will be hiking to Vegas, as the showbiz sophisticates call the Nevada desert gambling community, just to hear Jones or E. H., but we are happy for the British who doubtless will take some of their dollar earnings in taxes. The Beatles did it before them, now these wanderers are carrying on the tradition of top dollar earners for the U.K. It is easier than having a fling on the gambling machines . . . or as Frank Sinatra, an old Las Vegas hand, said at the recent Oscar ceremonies, showbusiness 'does pay well." And this from the man who, to his great credit, has done much for friends in need and for charities, and all without fanfare.

N.Z. Fights Inflation

A wage or price freeze is something which goes against the whole concept of North American free enterprise, even in the face of the inflationary tendencies of our day.

In New Zealand, however, such a measure has been enshrined in Government legislation.

The Stabilization of Remuneration Act has become law and provides that wages will not be permitted to rise by more than seven per cent within the next 15 months.

There seems to be a loophole though, in the event of an agreement on increases of more than seven per cent being reached by both parties — but even then the prior approval of a Remuneration Authority is required to make such an agreement effective.

The Act is described as one of the government's principal measures against inflation caused by large pay increases which in turn have pushed up prices.

Federal Election Issue

Tax White Paper Still Grist for Opposition Mill

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The way the battle lines, even now, are being drawn, it appears to be Conservative Robert Stanfield's strategy to make the Government's controversial White Paper on Taxation the fighting ground for the coming federal election.

And if the fortunes of political war are with him, he could make the White Paper not only the battle, but the killing ground and march victoriously across it to power.

From this place and time it shapes up as an ideal field for the Conservatives.

For the worst they could fire in the Battle of the White Paper would be to drive the Government into retreat.

If, under heavy Opposition, taxpayer- and Parliamentary Committee pressure — and retardance even from within the Liberal Caucus — Prime Minister Trudeau and Finance Minister Edgar Benson soften the hard tax lines of the White Paper, it will be retreat.

While the pressure has been on the Government in the new move in that area, since Ben Benson publicly presented his White Paper, the Conservative Opposition has been the most unrelenting and politically damaging in the administration.

So if and when Benson and the federal moneymen present their final version of the White Paper, and it has been substantially softened in what the Finance Minister has already been, a continuing revision, the fruits of victory in forcing a retreat will be savored by the Conservatives.

And present it soon they must.

For further delay is only to further betray the Liberal position of uncertainty.

But if the final version of the White Paper comes on tough and strong, it will be a clear signal that Ben Benson has bent under the uncompromising determination of his departmental mandarins, the deputies and assorted lieutenancies of Finance, that only they, and they alone, know what is best for you and your fellow taxpayers.

And in the arrogance of their self-proclaimed prevailing wisdom, they have never backed off an inch from their hard line of conviction that the State must have more, and you less, of your earnings.

Substantially and progressively less.

Which is not at all surprising, since the upper echelons of Finance have become a refuge for the socialist mandarins who fled Saskatchewan when Liberal Ross Thatcher took over from New Democrat Woodrow Lloyd as provincial premier.

Should there be no Government retreat and the Conservatives are denied the credit of victory for softening up Ben Benson and cutting the Finance mandarinate down to size, then Robert Stanfield has made it clear the parliamentary word is war.

"We shall fight the White Paper tax legislation then," he has pledged in a recent speech, "with our every resource.

"We will fight on that line all Summer."

To beat back an attack of such determination, the Government would have to resort to the totally undemocratic gagging of the Opposition — the thoroughly discredited and demeaning process of Closure.

And that would be a retreat of a kind itself.

For the Battle of the White Paper — with perhaps the election ultimately at stake — Robert Stanfield has some new weapons and ammunition in his parliamentary armoury.

In the early skirmishing, he already has fired these guns:

1. He buys the White Paper only so far as he is for "true reform" of the tax system, and the proposed raising of the exemption levels is part of that.

2. He rejects "false reform," in his proposals to feed the bulk of the tax burden on the middle income group, cripple the small businessman, by making him taxwise with the giant corporations, and confiscate at least some of the proceeds from the sales of home and family possessions within them.

Now for the unlimbering of the guns still to be fired:

1. The frightful assumption by the federal Government that it must greedily add to its already enormous taxing and spending powers.

2. The nightmarish belief of the federal Government that the taxpayer is necessarily the milk cow of the state and can be strip-milked.

3. The alarming prospect that the federal Government is determined, come what may, to pursue a politics course with the provincial governments which will cause damage and perhaps wreck the economy.

4. The unbelievably blind refusal of the federal Government to realize that pauperizing the provincial administrations will be to invite tax anarchy.

5. The stupidity of the federal Government's proposed high-level capital gains tax not only penalizing the worth of work and the value of savings, but seriously affecting the movement of investment capital.

6. The peril of a capital tax on even unrealized gains confusing chaos in the marketplace.

These are the words Robert Stanfield is prepared to fire in the War of the White Paper.

It could be a decisive and government-changing conflict as the Battle of the Pipeline 14 years ago.

Dollars and Marks Spark World Currency Crisis

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Power of the International Monetary Fund to discipline its member countries through insistence on fixed currency exchange rates may be further eroded as a result of an international crisis that may be partly rooted in the inflexibility of the existing system.

In the past when such countries as Canada found their currencies under pressure, the national decision to "unpeg" the exchange rate and allow the currencies to float free often brought criticism from the IMF that these countries simply weren't playing the game.

Europe traditionally has shown its opposition to floating, arguing that such a move promotes exchange uncertainty and instability and often means that the country taking such a step doesn't want to come to grips with the central economic or political problems at home which brought the currency pressure in the first place.

But now West Germany, perhaps the most ardent supporter of orthodox economic housekeeping and fixed exchange rates, is reported to be toying with the idea of allowing its powerful deutschmark to float, rather than tie it to a higher exchange rate in relation to the much-battered United States dollar.

Much of the current turmoil results from speculative opinion that the deutschmark is undervalued. With the U.S. continuing to run up large payments deficits while West Germany piles up big surpluses, many investors have concluded they would rather hold deutschmarks than dollars.

Under the traditional concept of monetary fund arrangements, West Germany might have consulted with the IMF governors, proposing a higher deutschmark exchange rate which undoubtedly would have received the fund's warm approval.

It was demeaning enough to have to sign an order, as if the purchase of a bottle of wine were a shameful thing requiring a signed confession in advance. But it is far worse to know that the snoopers were waiting to take down your names and address and try to prove you a wino.

As ridicious is the argument that a customer who buys cheap, fortified wines, and thereby provide wine to meet this purpose. What is not so obvious is the charge that some Ontario wineries depend on such sales to stay in business.

And what is not obvious at all is what business the provincial authorities have to let snoopers spy the liquor store records.

But West Germany held back, worried that this move would only encourage more speculative in world markets and work in favor of its competitors, until recently when it took a revaluation move. The reaction was decidedly cool.

The result was the threat of chaos, with dollars piling up in West Germany while the evil tool-dragging in reaching a solution added to the prospect of a rising international crisis.

As reluctant as West German central bankers may be in bowing to the prospect of freeing the deutschmark, such a move may cause the less political damage to the Willy Brandt government at home than higher food exports and imports which might bring a storm from West German exporters and consumers.

After all, a floating currency can be quickly pegged. And the mark is so strong that West German central bankers may help shave the day-to-day changes by switching some of their money elsewhere after realizing small initial gains.

But such a move will raise fresh questions of whether fixed rates must be rigidly maintained as part of international stability. More and more commentators are coming round to the view that wider use of floating rates may be beneficial to realign key currencies—speculation when political leaders shy away from more dramatic changes that might upset large blocks of voters.

Liquor Slips and 'Big Brother'

Windsor Star

Few Ontario drinkers realized back in the days when it was necessary to sign and give an address when purchasing a bottle, that they were opening their lives to the snooping of an outfit on the lookout for what is called "impoverished pathological drinkers."

Yet this is what the research director of the Ontario Addiction Research Foundation, a government - supported body, admits has been going on. Researchers examined more than a quarter of a million sales slips, and frequently followed customers from the stores to spy on their drinking and living habits, according to Robert Popham, the foundation's research director.

The findings of the spying are obvious: that chronic drunks

NOTICE TO READERS

Letters to this newspaper should be as brief as possible and preferably no more than 300 words. While for publication purposes a pseudonym may be used, letters must also bear the handwritten signature and address of the sender. Letters may be subject to editing.

Mr. Popham made in favor of raising liquor prices as a means of discouraging excessive consumption. It has also been said in a paper to a conference in Toronto, "that the only effective approach to the prevention of excessive drinking is to effect a decrease in the consumption of the population as a whole."

Nonsense. Mr. Popham is not does not follow at all. The United States tried the same system by attempting a total elimination of the consumption of alcohol. The experiment was called Prohibition. It lasted from 1920 to 1933, and it was a colossal failure.

Such facts, however, probably don't bear much weight with those who besmirch the name of research by going around spying on wives.

Shaw Reveals Self in The Philanderer

From the theatre company that last year broke all records of attendance at the National Arts Centre with its performance of Candida, comes George Bernard Shaw's, The Philanderer.

The Philanderer, directed by Tony Van Bridge, will play at the Grand Theatre, Kingston starting Wednesday, May 12 and continuing until Saturday, May 15.

As last year, there will be four performances, with the curtain rising at 8.30 and, as an added feature, there will be a Saturday matinee at 2 p.m.

The Philanderer was one of Shaw's earliest works and has received perhaps the least publicity.

To date, mentioned Mr. Doherty, founder of the Niagara Co. - the Lake Shaw Festival, it is only the second time that the play has been done on a North American stage.

"We feel the play reflects the true George Bernard Shaw, but because of its factual content in relation to the life of the author, Shaw condemned the play as being full of rubbish.

"Because of the lack of recognition given to the play we felt that it would be a good one to do, aside from it being an exceptionally fine play capable of providing great entertainment.

Tony Van Bridge, well known for his acting ability in the Court House Theatre, Niagara Falls, and his portrayal of Marchbanks in Candida which appeared in Kingston last year, returns to direct the Philanderer.

"We are extremely fortunate," remarked Mr. Doherty, "to have a director with the insight of Mr. Van Bridge to bring to the stage, the farce, comedy and tragedy of the Philanderer."

Headining the cast will be Paxton Whitehead, playing the Philanderer.

Paxton Whitehead, no newcomer to the Canadian theatre, made his debut in 1965 at the Manitoba Theatre Centre. The same year he became involved with the Shaw festival and played in the productions of Misalliance and The Apple Cart.

Besides playing in the Philanderer, Mr. Whitehead will appear in the play, Tonight at 8.30 and will direct the second Shavian play, Press Cuttings.

The two women to share the affectations of the philanderer are Mrs. Grace Transfield and Julia.

Mrs. Transfield, portraying "the proper woman", will be played by Patricia Collins.

Miss Collins, recently a member of the cast of Dill Coward at the Dell Theatre in Toronto, is a performing member of the St. Lawrence Centre.

Julia, played by Louise Marleau, represents the dark, yearning and sexy ideal of George Bernard Shaw.

Shaw himself calls the character a "tempestuous petticoat."

"This character," said Mr. Doherty, "is based on Shaw's recollections of his own love."

Jessy Patterson, who was at least 15 years older than Shaw, had been taking singing lessons from Shaw's mother and at the same time had been having an affair with Shaw himself. On this, Shaw bases his play.

Because the play resembled Shaw so much, he discredited it, seemingly to pacify his wife, mentioned Mr. Doherty.

"This might explain why the play was not produced until 14 years after it was written."

Within the play, Shaw begins his lifelong attack on the medical profession, and illustrates the idea of the Ibsen club and the new woman.

The Ibsen Club, for men only, is invaded by Sylvia, the younger sister of Julia.

Clad in riding breeches, Sylvia enters the club in the young idealist, proclaiming the equality of women.

"If we take a play that is a self portrait of George Bernard Shaw and link it with the finest cast available, there can be no doubt that the performance will be splendid," said Mr. Doherty.

Litter-lift Needed Here

Litter on private property is a common problem in most municipalities and Belleville is no exception. An example is this year-old pile of debris in the rear yard of a multiple-family house on Starling Street. Health authorities cannot take action unless there is evidence of rats or garbage but under the city anti-litter bylaw city authorities can order the mess cleaned up.

ADVISER TO CABINET—Pamela McDougall, former chemist, clerk, and ambassador, is now a principal adviser to the cabinet on foreign affairs and defence policy in Ottawa. Her diplomatic career began nearly 20 years ago. Canada has had only two female ambassadors. (CP Photo)

One of Canada's Two Female Ambassadors

OTTAWA (CP) — "I never turn down a job when it's offered," says Pamela McDougall, former chemist, clerk and ambassador and now a principal adviser to the cabinet on foreign affairs and defence policy.

And once she's in a job, she never worries about the next one.

Miss McDougall, 45, exudes the spirit of confidence and competence that helped her become one of Canada's only two female ambassadors, and the only woman among eight assistant secretaries to the cabinet.

She became an assistant secretary February 1 after a three-year posting as Canada's ambassador to Poland.

Her diplomatic career began nearly 20 years ago when she left graduate studies in organic chemistry to become a clerk in the external affairs department.

After writing her foreign service exams in 1952 she rose through the department's ranks, serving in Germany, Vietnam and, between 1961 and 1963, as first secretary at the high commission in India.

She was deputy head of the department's Far East division in Ottawa between 1963 and 1968, when she went off to Warsaw.

A beautiful woman with grey hair, bright hazel eyes and a mellow voice, Miss McDougall is one of the newest arrivals in the cabinet secretariat, a group that has grown under Prime Minister Trudeau.

The secretariat, part of the Privy Council Office—PCO—has a budget proposed for 1971-72 of $2,121,000, up $629,000 from the previous fiscal year.

Even with the recent freeze in manpower allotments throughout the public service, manpower in the PCO will grow to 277 in 1971-72 from 233 in 1969.

The significance of the increase is given in one of the rare explanatory notes in the two-inch-thick estimates book published by the government:

"The increase arises from the need to provide for expansion in the Privy Council Office with a view to increased support of the central decision-making mechanism of the government."

Miss McDougall describes the PCO as a "sort of service task for the prime minister, for the whole cabinet."

It's through the Privy Council Office that you feed the documents coming from departments requiring cabinet decision."

Her own job is to provide information to the ministers forming the cabinet committee on external affairs and defence.

"One very obvious role that we can perform is to make sure that all the different and very diverse interests of the government are borne in mind when a decision comes up."

Despite this crucial co-ordinating, filtering function, she insists—as do all her colleagues—that "without doubt the major input comes from the departments, because they are the experts."

Observers such as former prime minister Lester Pearson and Prof. Peyton Lyon of Carleton University—both veterans of the external affairs department—have suggested that the Privy Council Office has dominated the departments in making foreign and defence policy under Mr. Trudeau.

Her own experience with external affairs helps her keep good relations with the department Miss McDougall says.

With ambassadorial tact, she calls reported conflicts between the PCO and the departments "differences of opinion" which she has a responsibility to make clear to the cabinet.

As for her own influence on policy decisions, she says "it stands to reason that anybody who has an interest . . . will have an input."

"How that input is achieved will vary, and be very personal and different in different circumstances.

"But he is not going to have any input, I wouldn't think, unless he has a fairly good relationship with the department involved."

For information from outside the bureaucracy, she soaks herself in material from journalists and academics.

"And luckily, Canadian academics get themselves into print quite often on quite a few subjects. And they've got very strong views.

The main problem is trying to absorb all this stuff."

Again displaying her offhanded competence, she remarks that anybody at a senior departmental level—such as ambassador—must have "already formed, or be able to form, a judgment on just about every policy issue."

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Sedore, Belleville announce the engagement of their daughter, Susan Lynn, to James Ellis Stewart, son of Mrs. Jean Stewart, Peterborough, and the late Mr. William Stewart. Marriage will take place in Peterborough on Saturday, July 3 at 3 p.m.

• • •

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

The forthcoming marriage is announced of Beverley Bacon to Steve Mahar of Belleville. The wedding will take place on Monday May 24, 1971.

• • •

Mrs. William (Margaret) Davidson, 67 Cedar Street is today celebrating her 90th birthday.

• • •

Previous to her recent marriage, Mrs. Larry Cherry (nee Eileen MacRae) was honored at a community shower given by friends and relatives at the Dunvegan Hall, and in Ottawa at a shower given by Mrs. Pamela Jamison, Bells, the bride and bridegroom were entertained at a dinner party in their honor given by the staff of the Heron Park Public School. A presentation for the bride was given by the staff at the Detentive care unit at the Ottawa Civic Hospital.

MR. AND MRS. LARRY R. CHERRY

Cherry – MacRae

Kenyon Presbyterian Church, Dunvegan, Ontario was the scene of the wedding ceremony when Eileen Ruth MacRae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald MacRae, Dunvegan was united in marriage to Larry Richard Cherry, Ottawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Cherry of Belleville. Rev. I. D. McIvor officiated and wedding music at the organ was rendered by Mrs. Allistair Campbell.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of white Grecian taffeta trimmed with Swiss cotton lace. The back of the gown was highlighted with full length train extending from the empire waistline. A crown of tulle and daisies was caught to a full length tulle net veil and she carried a bouquet of pink roses and white mums intermingled with heather.

Mrs. Pamela Jamison as matron of hoitor, wore if full length gown of deep peacock blue embossed taffeta with empire waist and long puffed sleeves, highlighted with bands of matching material lined with white peau de soie. She carried a nosegay of pink and white mums interspersed with lily - of - the - valley. Miss Marjorie MacPherson and Miss Janice Cherry as bridesmaids were dressed identically to the maid of honor.

Eric Sloan of Peterborough was groomsman, while the ushers were Kenneth MacRae of Dunvegan, brother of the bride, and Dan Campbell of Ottawa.

A reception was held at the Dunvegan Hall where the bride's mother welcomed the guests wearing a dress of aqua blue knit with matching sleeveless coat, black patent accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a dress and coat ensemble of American Beauty rose with black accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

Leaving on the wedding trip to the United States, the bride wore a yellow flowered arnel dress with white wool cape and a corsage of yellow roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Cherry will reside at 33 Rosemount Ave., Ottawa 2.

IODE Chapter Sends Donation to East Pakistan

The May meeting of the Argyll Chapter IODE was conducted by the Regent Mrs. H. Kokesh.

It was announced that the Argyll Chapter will host a reception in honor our seniors, following the Citizenship Court, June 25. A rummage sale will be held Saturday, May 15 from 10 a.m. - 2 p.m. in the Belleville Armories.

Mrs. B. Milroy gave an informative and detailed report on the annual provincial meeting which she attended in Hamilton last April. Mrs. F. Sprague is to attend the annual national meeting in St. John's, Newfoundland at the end of May.

Mrs. L. Foley was installed as a member of the Chapter and presented with a membership pin.

In the business of the meeting, it was suggested that the IODE be of assistance in providing incubators for nursing stations in the far north. The National IODE recently donated $1,000 to aid the children of East Pakistan who were orphaned by floods. In addition, a shipment of baby blankets and clothing was sent on.

The June meeting will be held at the home of the Regent Mrs. Kokesh.

Ann Landers

Pornographic Copy Annoys Typist

DEAR ANN LANDERS: "Stunned in Connecticut" would be really stunned if she knew how many community leaders, clergymen, high government officials and little old ladies in tennis shoes had pornographic collections.

I am a typist who prepares the mailing envelopes for so-called erotic literature and art. We mail material all over the world — and to some of the darkest place and most unlikely people. Naturally our mailing list is not on plain envelopes. Everything is hush-hush and bat-blind.

My friends have the notion that I must get a whale of a wallop out of being in the middle of all this naughty stuff. Frankly, I am bored sick with it.

I believe an adult should be able to see anything he wants to see and no one should have the right to tell him what he can or cannot see. But there is something out of kilter with all this free-and-easy, wide-open dissemination of garbage. The behavioral experts tell us that pornography does not incite people to commit sex crimes nor does it promote antisocial behavior. Yet I deplore the fact that, for the price of a theatre ticket, people can now see live performance of the sex act at a number of places in the larger cities — at high noon.

Will you comment, please? — CLOUDED VISION.

DEAR VISION: The best statement I have ever heard or read on this subject was made by Norman Cousins (Saturday Review). He wrote: "The danger is not that the exploitation of sex may arouse lust but that it could produce impotence. Watching sex from love and annihilating privacy, sex is robbed of its delight. What is even worse, an infallible formula has been found for making sex boring. People who insist on seeing everything run the risk of feeling nothing."

Amen, Norman. Amen.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am eleven years old and in the sixth grade. My sister is eight years old and very babyish. Almost every night she makes up some phony ailment and busts into my folks' bedroom and asks if she can sleep with them. My mother is an old dope and she always says yes.

I am afraid my little sister is ruining my parents sex life. Should I talk to her about it or should I talk to my mother? Rush your advice to the Newark News. This is a serious problem. — BERKELEY HEIGHTS.

* * *

DEAR BERK: It is considerate of you to be concerned about your parents' sex life but this is really not your department. Children should not be taken into their parents' bed at night because it sets up a pattern of dependency which is unhealthy for the child. I have said this in the column several times. I'm sorry your mother missed it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a friend who is not exactly a liar but she has a way of exaggerating that drives me up the wall. I've been with her when certain incidents have occurred and then I have listened to her recount the story. The way she magnifies everything is shocking. Why do people do this? What does it mean? — ELOISE.

* * *

DEAR ELOISE: Your friend probably exaggerates to make the story more interesting. But there's actually more to it. Small minds are like a microscope. They have the ability to magnify little things but they cannot see the big picture.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Save a life. Print this, please. With over 50 million daily readers, the percentages favor it.

Tell your faithful followers that charcoal grills are great for outdoor cooking, but for heating purposes, such as campers and tents, they are as deadly as car fumes in a closed garage. Burning charcoal is colorless and odorless and many people are not aware that it can be a killer.

The heaviest casualties due to asphyxiation occur during the cool hunting and fishing months. Two good Chicago friends of mine died last year in a cabin cruiser in Lodi, Wisconsin because they used a pan of charcoal for heat. This was a needless tragedy. A word from you could do a lot of good — C.P.M.

DEAR C.P.M.: The word came from you, and I appreciate the opportunity to pass it along. Thanks for writing.

BYLSTONE WI

Mrs. Diane Rutherford, health nurse from the Northumberland - Durham health unit in Campbellford was the guest speaker at the May meeting of the Bylstone WI held at the WI hall on Wednesday, May 7. Mrs. Rutherford gave an informal talk on the new generation from infancy to adulthood. All took part in the discussion which followed the talk. Mrs. Hector Arnold thanked Mrs. Rutherford on behalf of the WI and presented her with a gift.

Earlier, the guest speaker was introduced by Mrs. J. Watson. During the business part of the meeting, it was decided to order several Institute silver spoons with trillium and other patterns.

The June meeting will be held at the WI hall on Wednesday, June 2. Roll call for the year 1971-72 will be prepared and it was suggested that a clean-up meeting of the flower beds be planned.

There was discussion on resting a refreshment booth at Campbellford. House plant slips, perennial roots and seeds were exchanged by the women.

The meeting was attended by eight members and seven guests. Mrs. Ellis Jones presided at the piano in the absence of the regular pianist Mrs. Alice Brunton. The president Mrs. Jack Watson conducted the opening exercises.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses Mrs. Ernest Irwin and Mrs. Ellis Jones.

Ingenious Gadgets Great Help to the Blind

By DORIS CLARK

Sweden: A 34-year-old blind man won a 10-mile race in Stockholm recently. He was the only blind competitor. He was steered by his coach, holding a short ribbon.

England: How about an electronic fork for the blind which is now being studied, and which buzzes when there is food on it? And an electronic sensing device which, hung on the side of a receptacle, buzzes when liquid reaches within half an inch of the top?

These are reported in National News of the Blind (4 CNIB publication). Ingenious, thoughtful people constantly study the plight of those who cannot see, with a view to inventing helpful gadgets. And many of the gadgets become a blessing to their users.

* * *

Dear Doris: My mother died early and my father remarried. He gave me up for adoption. Since then I have lived in four homes and I know what it's like to be pushed around.

I'm 18 now. My adoptive mother who is 60, complains about everything — how I dress, the way I fix the dinner. It is my job to be home from school to fix supper and have it on the table for the four of us when she comes home. She won't get off my back.

I will have grade 13 in June, if I'm lucky. Tell me more about this school in Denmark. Maybe I could earn some money and go there next fall. I've got to get away somehow — Lonely and Depressed

Dear Depressed: Two things are wrong:

1. Your early experiences of rejection left you without any anchor to hold to.

2. The experiences following it didn't help any. And now you are with a couple who seem to you to be elderly and out of step — a true generation gap!

Your present mother has forgotten the magic that praise and love can work. She wants you to do things perfectly and all it turns out to be is fault-finding.

In spite of popular theories that teen years are carefree, growing up can be plenty painful. But you've almost made it.

Studying abroad needn't be a pipe dream. If you are willing to work for it, I'm sending you details about The International People's College.

Pumpkin Pie Said 'Pluperfect'

By MARY MOORE

The cost - of - living index has jumped again and being a self-appointed helper of budgeters I made two pumpkin pies. As you careful shoppers know pumpkin in a k e s the cheapest possible pie. The reason for the deliciousness of today's pumpkin pie is elusive. I only know for sure that every one who tasted it said it was perfect. One of my relatives even called it pluperfect. It has to be pretty special for me to make the same thing two days in succession.

PUMPKIN PIE PERFECTO

Pastry:
1 cup unsifted cake and pastry flour
1-3 cup shortening
4 tbsps. butter
½ tsp. salt
About 2 tbsps. ice cold water

Filling:
2 med. (or large) eggs
1 tsp. salt
1¼ cups Canadian canned pumpkin
1 tsp. cinnamon
½ tsp. ginger
½ cup sugar
1½ cups milk

To make pastry cut shortening and butter into flour and salt with pastry blender until of small pea. Drizzle in cold water as you toss with fork to dampen flour. Then press into ball between your floured palms. Roll out on lightly floured board to fit 9 x 1¼" pie plate. Trim and flute edge carefully.

To make filling measure all ingredients except milk into beater bowl and beat until blended. Stir in milk. Carry pastry lined pie plate to stove top and pour filling in. It fills it but not to overflowing. Carefully transfer to oven and bake at centre at 450 deg. Fahr. for 10 min. then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. and continue baking until filling is set at centre — about 45-50 min. in all. Cool at room temperature. This pie is almost as good on the next day if leftover is covered with Saran and refrigerated.

NOTE: A 36-oz. tin cost me about 25 cents. I made two pies (now it and hid a little leftover so surreptitiously added it to some mashed squash the next night and nobody knew the difference.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Bob is so exasperating. He's always asking us what we think and then arguing about our advice. Sometimes it seems as if he simply wants to find out how we feel so he can do exactly the opposite."

Father: "It's part of the generation gap, I guess."

Teen-agers often seem to take a contrary course, but it may be the discussions really help them clear the way to more thoughtful decisions.

Father: "I guess Bob just wants to discuss the pros and cons of everything, and we're good sounding boards. Let's not let the discussions degenerate into heated arguments. We can tell him our views calmly when he asks and let him make his own decisions if possible."

Bert Lawrence Determined That Denturists Won't Practise Without Licensing Controls

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario is determined denturists will not practise in the province without some form of licensing and professional code of ethics, Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence said Monday.

He told the Ontario legislature that some denturists don't even have the qualifications of a garage mechanic.

"Even a garage mechanic has some degree of training and licensing," he told New Democratic Party Leader Stephen Lewis, who asked whether recent raids on denturists' offices would continue.

Mr. Lawrence said the so-called raids were the only way the province could gather evidence.

Under current legislation, deglists are the only persons permitted to sell and install false teeth. Dental technicians are licensed to manufacture dentures but not to fit them.

The Denturist Society of Ontario, which claims a membership of about half of Ontario's 230 registered dental technicians, has been campaigning for its members to be permitted both to manufacture and to fit dentures.

Denturists are licensed to deal with the public—that is to fit false teeth themselves—in the western provinces, but so far there is no such classification in Ontario, than anyone can legally call himself a denturist.

Mr. Lawrence said Ontario denturists plan a campaign that will consist of "a system of massive breaches of our legislation by practising dentistry and hanging out their signs.

"They want to stir up prosecutions and focus public attention on their situation."

He described denturists as a club rather than a profession. The minister said it is his intention not to allow them to practise until there has been a review of the legislation. This is being made now as part of a general review of all healing arts legislation.

Mr. Lawrence said denturists should not practise in Ontario until standards and licensing procedures have been established.

Right now they "can be accredited by their own friends and their own associates," he said.

Outside the house, he said dental technicians "are highly-skilled and responsible and built into the total health-care system.

"You could be a denturist tomorrow by saying you are one."

He said denturists are "cheaper to a degree" than dentists, "but you have to weigh that against the damage a mechanic can do if he doesn't know anything about oral health or physical health."

The minister said some denturists are responsible and capable but called others "dental bootleggers."

In other legislature business Monday:

—Speakers from all three parties gave support to a resolution that would grant full pensions for teachers after 35 years' service instead of the present 40. The resolution was introduced by Alex Carruthers (PC —Durham). He said the measure would not change the basic structure of the Teachers Superannuation Act nor was it an attempt to obtain larger across-the-board pensions for teachers.

—Walter Pitman (NDP—Peterborough) told a standing committee examining the estimates of the department of energy and resources that raw sewage from septic tanks, dumped into a farmer's field last fall, had drained into Chandos Lake, about 50 miles north of Peterborough, causing concern to residents and tourist operators.

—Ian Deans (NDP—Wentworth) told the house that the provincial government would be closer to a total land-use policy if all matters pertaining to Crown lands came under the department of lands and forests.

—George Kerr, minister of energy and resources, told the committee examining his department's estimates that he wasn't sure who was responsible for cleaning up pollution when it affected international waterways.

—Attorney-General Allan Lawrence said that although he was concerned about the risks of police officers on night patrol he didn't plan regulations that would require prowl cars to have two men.

—Premier William Davis said that Ontario's interest in provincial control of communications was centred on educational television.

—Replying to a question from Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park), Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence said he has not attempted to suppress an article on Ontario's care of the retarded due to appear in the Canadian Hospital Association's May journal.

—The health minister also said that legislation may be altered to require physicians to submit to an audit of their finances and medical practices.

—Mr. Davis said that Provincial Secretary Darcy McKeough will meet civil servants on the government's five-per-cent wage guideline this week or early next week.

Arctic Vehicles Improve Terrain

KINGSTON (CP) — A father and son research team from the University of New Brunswick said Monday the damage caused to arctic terrain by heavy exploration vehicles actually results in worthwhile changes to the terrain.

Dr. N. W. Radforth and J. R. Radforth, both affiliated with the university's muskeg research institute, were among 88 specialists attending a conference sponsored by the muskeg sub-committee of the National Research Council.

Dr. Radforth said arctic areas where the terrain was disturbed 25 years ago now are showing signs of regrowth of all plants that were ripped up. Evidence showed wildlife was able to live off the regrowth.

His son said the melting of permafrost — caused when the muskeg is ripped away — has resulted in improved and more luxurious growth in some areas.

Food Industries Are Asked to Prevent People Eating Their Way Into Starvation

OTTAWA (CP) — Food industries have been asked by the federal government to help prevent the public eating or drinking itself into starvation.

The paradox arises from growing popularity of artificial and substitute foods and drinks of all kinds, such things as soya bean chops and soft drinks, imitation chicken and hamburger and substitute dairy foods.

Regulatory authorities anticipate they will become even bigger business. They say that without some control over nutritive claims people may gradually replace more and more traditional foods with new foods in the belief that they are just as nutritious.

The end result could be people eating just as much as before but starving themselves of essential nutrients.

As a result, the food and drug directorate has published a set of regulations about vitamin and mineral nutrients in foods and a number of guides for the addition of nutrients.

The first set will come into force Sept. 15 after more than three years discussion with food manufacturers. The second is just starting out on a similar round of consultations.

The chief feature of the first set is that six new minerals have been added to calcium, phosphorus, iron and iodine as mineral nutrients. They are sodium, potassium, zinc, copper, magnesium and manganese.

Rules are set out for the amounts that must be present in foods claimed as being minerally nutritious. At the same time, reasonable daily intakes of foods containing these minerals are established.

The guides for addition of nutrients are expected to be the chief protection against the development of nutritional deficiences from too many newer foods.

If a food normally is a source of 10 per cent of the daily requirement of a nutrient, the substitute food should have equal amounts of nutrients, the directorate suggests.

Hees Accuses PM of Deception

OTTAWA (CP) — George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) accused Prime Minister Trudeau in the Commons Monday of deliberately misleading the House" on foreign ownership.

The charge came after Mr. Trudeau, taunted to stand up and answer Mr. Hees's question, sprang like a jack-in-the-box out of his seat into the air, then immediately sat down.

The exchange began when Mr. Hees asked whether the government plans to publish a report on foreign ownership being prepared by Revenue Minister Herb Gray.

Mr. Trudeau told Mr. Hees to look in last week's Hansard, where he had answered the same question.

Mr. Hees thumbed through Hansard, then rose moments later to report that nowhere had Mr. Trudeau said when the government plans to publish its views on the issue.

"Come on, get up on your feet," he urged.

To hoots and cheers, the prime minister leapt up to attention and sat down.

Mr. Hees then rose himself on a question of privilege.

"He is not answering. The prime minister is deliberately misleading the House."

Last Thursday, in answer to a similar question, Mr. Trudeau said he could not give an assurance that Mr. Gray's report would be published.

The document was prepared by a working group within the department, assisted by others, which will submit recommendations to the government for study.

"What will be done then, beyond a policy announcement, will have to be known by the opposition in due course."

Crime Pays Ex-Mountie Declares

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — William Kelly, former deputy commissioner of the RCMP, said Monday "the long arm of the law isn't getting longer; it's getting shorter" with the result that "crime now really pays."

He told representatives of area police forces and community organizations that "success in enforcing the law is getting less and less as the years go by," citing a recent bail bill which allows "offenders their freedom before they've been fingerprinted."

He told the opening session of Police Week that to cope with jury tempering he favors a guilty verdict on consensus of 10 of the 12 jury member rather than a unanimous decision meaning a tamperer would have to approach at least three men to ensure success.

Special Writs Are Suggested

VANCOUVER (CP) — A system of writs of assistance giving authorities additional search powers to "deal with groups advocating violence or terrorism" was suggested Monday by Mr. Justice T. A. Dohm of the British Columbia Supreme Court.

He told the annual conference of the Canadian Society for Industrial Security that such writs could be used under judicial control, when the need outweighs the freedoms which could be suspended by the writs.

Indian's Term Cut

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal reduced Monday to two years from 10 a sentence imposed on Gabriel Fireman, 25, convicted of manslaughter in the shooting death of his cousin at a Northern Ontario Cree settlement July 30, 1969.

Fireman pleaded guilty Nov. 18, 1969, to shooting his cousin Eli, 23, during a drinking party at the settlement about 470 miles northeast of Sioux Lookout.

The 10-year sentence was imposed by Mr. Justice Peter Wright of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

In reducing it Monday, Mr. Justice John Brooke said there had been no reason for the shooting but both men had been drunk.

"He (Fireman) lived in a community where time is told only by seasons. His sentence of 10 years is something he is not likely to understand fully, for he is unfamiliar with the calendar measurement of time in terms of days, weeks, months or years."

Cards' Canuck Tangles with Expos Tonight

MONTREAL (CP) — Reggie Cleveland of St. Louis Cardinals will be motivated by a special incentive to do well when he faces Montreal Expos tonight in National League play at Jarry Park.

Cleveland wants Canadians to know him and what he represents.

The native of Swift Current, Sask., is an outstanding young pitching prospect. At 22, he has five years of professional experience behind him and is a regular in the Cardinals' starting pitching rotation.

His 2-2 record is common information. What is often forgotten is that he is a Canadian.

"You're damn right I am," said Cleveland. "Last year, The Sporting News (a U.S. sports weekly) did a feature on the Canadians in the major leagues and then didn't even mention my name. I was really mad.

"I've been lucky and I get a lot of cards and letters from fans in the states. It's a funny thing. I've never received a fan letter or anything from a Canadian. I hope I can show the people here what I can do."

Cleveland was an outstanding high school star at Beaver River High School in Cold Lake, Alta. He started playing baseball in Moose Jaw, Sask., at the age of six.

He signed with the St. Louis organization at 17 and after playing at St. Petersburg, Fla., for a couple of seasons he settled in there with his wife Kathleen, an American. They have two small children.

"Maybe that's why people forget that I'm a Canadian. I had all of my start in Canada.

"They had a real good Little League system in Moose Jaw. I started there when I was six. The kids could move up through Pony League, Babe Ruth League, Colt League and junior."

Cleveland's father, an air force officer, moved from base to base during Reggie's younger years. At Cold Lake, Reggie played all sports including basketball and hockey. He set a provincial javelin record.

The Cardinals will be after their fourth consecutive win this season tonight over the Expos.

Monday night, Joe Hague's two home runs and a five-run seventh inning carried the Cards to an 8-5 triumph over Montreal.

Jerry Reuss (4-3) got the win while Steve Renko (3-2) was charged with the loss.

Would you believe a federal grant of $9,743.34 the Canadian Cricket Association? Or how about the $8,436 the Canadian Fencing Association received in the latest shell-out of the federal health department's fitness and amateur sports program?

April's handout of some $225,000 was designed to assist 21 sports governing organizations, primarily for the staging of national championships and pre-Pan-American Games training camps.

Like so many other feeble federal attempts to compensate for the longtime governmental neglect of sport and recreation, the latest Munro doctrine comes off like a very bad joke.

But while the cricketers and fencers were helping divvy up the take, what about, say, the weightlifters.

Canada sent nine weightlifters to the British Commonwealth Games in Edinburgh last July, and four of them, including Belleville representative Price Morris, won medals. A fifth — Montreal bantamweight Chun Hon Chan — did well enough to win a medal but missed out because he weighed a couple of pounds more than a lifter with whom he tied for third.

If the remainder of Canada's 162-member contingent to Edinburgh had produced medals at the same per capita rate as the weightlifters, they would have brought home 90 instead of the 65 they did earn.

And how has the federal health department decided to appropriately reward the Canadian Weightlifting Association for its efforts? How indeed! Weightlifting was not mentioned in April's list of grants.

Even Ping-pong Pays

Even table tennis, which used to be known as ping-pong before it became a refined diplomatic art, got a $5,307 federal pat on the back. The amount, we assume, will go towards the cost of tutoring in Chinese.

The Canadian Amateur Diving Association received the lion's share of the grants, a cool $42,000. And rightly so, considering the sound development program that is turning out the likes of Beverly Boys and Nancy Robertson. Now if Ottawa would only give some thoughts to helping establish Olympic-standard towers to go along with the two there now in the entire country (Winnipeg and Montreal), we'd be getting someplace.

But $24,500 for the Canadian Yachting Association? The health department claims to be more interested in backing the mass-participation sports. That's their excuse for ignoring weightlifting, which they feel is a more individualistic endeavor. But how many Canadians can afford competitive sailing? Most have their hands full buying sheets for their beds, let alone for an International 14.

And if grass roots involvement is the department's aim, why do they set aside a paltry $1,400 for the Federation of Provincial School Athletic Associations? You couldn't have a marshmallow roast for Canada's high school athletes for that kind of money, never mind stage some kind of meaningful competitions for them.

It just costs too much for most people to want to be a Canadian sports participant. So we orient thing any of our rare gold medalists could do would be to melt down their prizes.

Argos Lead Off

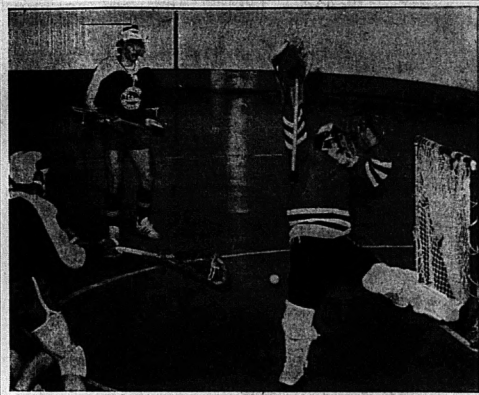
Professional athletes, naturally, always know where there next thousand is coming from. Which brings us to the Canadian Football League.

Toronto Argonauts' payroll, estimated to be $100,000 above the other CFL teams in 1970, is sure to skyrocket since the signings of quarterbacks Joe Theismann and Greg Barton, and all-American lineman Jim Stillwagon.

The Argos, who perennially win the May version of the Grey Cup, will begin their annual slump Friday, Aug. 6 when they open the CFL schedule against Saskatchewan in a CBC-televised game from CNE Stadium.

A total of 17 CFL games, including play-offs and the Nov. 28 Grey Cup game between Montreal and Calgary, will be televised on the public network this season, nine of them on the full network.

First game of the season will actually be played Tuesday, June 29 in Montreal when the Grey Cup champion Alouettes take on a CFL all-star lineup nominated by the nine league coaches.



Smallest representative in the dream team comes from the Argos, who had running back Bill Symons and defensive backfield specialist Marv Luster named.

Odds and Ends

A welcome innovation to the world of boxing was made in the recent light-heavyweight title bout between Bob Foster and Ray Anderson; television viewers were shown the scores of referee and judges immediately after each round; "Boxing is the only sport where the as-you-go score is kept secret," said Bill Schwing, president of the American Telesports Network that launched the brainchild; neither boxers nor ringside spectators knew the score, however, but Schwing said this could be the next step . . . Bobby Hull was a distant third in the NHL's Hart Trophy ballot with 28 points to Bobby Orr's 151, and Phil Esposito's 127; Jacques Plante, fifth with 16 points, probably deserved the most valuable player award as much as anybody; he recorded the best goals-against average in the league (1.58) with a team of youngsters that all the experts predicted would fail to make the play-offs, let alone give New York Rangers a run for their money . . . Most hockey helmets sold in Canada do not provide adequate protection for players, researcher Charles Patterson says; Mr. Patterson will testify at the May 17 inquest of Claudio Romando; the Toronto 15-year-old died April 12 after being struck on the head by a puck while wearing a helmet consisting of three plastic strips on top of the head and on either side; Patterson, who has designed a "suspension" type helmet capable of withstanding .38-calibre bullets, says manufacturers should pool their resources and market one safe model.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, MAY 11, 1971

Belleville goalie Paul Muldoon is outgunned by Campbellford forward Mark Burgess in a Quinte Junior Lacrosse contest last night. Despite some top goaltending by Muldoon and replacement Gary Toskey the visitors managed a 10-4 win at the Belleville Memorial Arena last night. Campbellford has won the league championship for the past three consecutive seasons.

Lacrosse Kings Still Reign

The Quinte Junior Lacrosse League "kings" are anything but dead as Campbellford proved last night. The defending league champions handed Belleville a 10-4 exhibition setback to establish themselves as the team to beat in the six-team alignment which also includes Picton, Trenton, Cobourg and Tweed.

Belleville coach Gary Curtis was philosophical about the loss, "I think that it helped us, one game is worth three practices in preparing for the season. We learned a few things about ourselves and that will help us next time we play them. I'm not that worried about the loss."

The home team got off to a respectable start and had a fast finish at the Belleville Memorial Arena last night but sagged badly in the middle period as Campbellford broke open a tight 2-1 contest with five unanswered goals.

Curtis felt that the key to his team's improvement would be "to control the game more. We let them play their own type of game too much. Also we have to stay out of the penalty box more."

The losers picked up 17 of the game's 29 penalties, including two misconducts and a game misconduct, the manpower shortage proved costly against the powerful visitors who have been league champions for the past three consecutive years.

Last year's MVP goalie Paul Muldoon worked the first half of the game for Belleville, with Middleton Park juvenile backstop Dan Toskey taking over for the final 30 minutes. Muldoon was victimized four times, while Toskey allowed the final six markers.

Campbellford's Fred Tanner was the individual standout of the game netting four of the winners' ten goals.

Scoring for Belleville were Dan Payne, Jim Lennox, defenceman John Whalen and Mike Scarlett.

Whalen and Joe Weymark were the top rearguards for the home team, while Payne and Mark Reid came up with the most consistent effort up front.

Moira Clicks On 7 Cylinders

The Moira Secondary School lacrosse machine was hitting on all cylinders Monday night as seven different players got into the scoring act in an 11-3 romp over Quinte.

The win boosted Moira into sole possession of first place in the Bay of Quinte OSSAA league with a record of two wins and a tie in three outings so far this season.

The introduction of the Ontario Minor Lacrosse Association ruling that any player participating in a fight will automatically be ejected from the game seemed to curb any excessive rough play as now of the 15 penalties served were majors.

Joe Clark was the top scorer for Moira netting two goals and two assists, while Jim Lennox and Dave Freeand had two goals and one assist each. John Loder added a pair of markers to the attack, while Joe Weymark contributed a goal and three assists.

Single goal scorers were Dan Nutial and Dan Payne, while Dan Coulson picked up three assists for the losers. Tom Helm was tops for Quinte with a pair of goals with the other Saint marker going to Kerry Reid. The losers have now managed a tie in three games so far this season.

Ruel Credited With Spotting New Hab Star

MONTREAL (CP) — The fact goaltender Ken Dryden has surmounted the pressures of National Hockey League playoffs comes as no surprise to Jean Beliveau.

The veteran Montreal Canadiens' captain said Monday credit for Dryden's arrival belongs to former coach Claude Ruel, who first noticed the 22-year-old Toronto native playing college hockey three or four years ago.

CLAUDE RUEL

"He (Ruel) told me about three, maybe four years ago that he wanted me to see this player," recalled Beliveau. "He said you're 'gonna see a good goalie.'"

History has borne out Ruel's prediction.

Dryden has taken the regular goaltending chores away from Rogatien Vachon and Phil Myre and has been instrumental in the Canadiens' Stanley Cup drive.

Although coach Al MacNeil rarely, if ever, discloses his starting goaltenders for future games, it's unlikely he'll part from the pattern that has proved so successful in the post-season play when the Canadiens meet Chicago Black Hawks here tonight in the fourth game of the best-of-seven series.

Dryden was a surprise starter against Boston Bruins in his quarter-finals bat performed heroics in Montreal's seven-game upset. He continued to rate highly in the semi-final round against Minnesota North Stars.

In the three games with Chicago, including the two opening losses in the Windy City, prior to Sunday's 4-3 win at home, the former all-American at Cornell University had been among the Habs' most consistent performers.

Ruel, at the time of Dryden's discovery, headed up Canadiens' junior development program and since ending his tenure as coach mid-way in the 1970-71 season has assumed a similar position with the club.

"You've got to give Dryden credit," said Beliveau. "It's not easy to break into the league at the end of the season."

Dryden, assigned to Montreal Voyageurs at the start of the season, restricted his play to home games for the American Hockey League club as he took post-graduate law studies at McGill University.

He played only six games with the NHL team during the season—all victories—but has played in all 16 playoff games. His law exams were postponed until the summer so he could continue playing.

"We all know the goaltender plays such a big part of these playoffs," said Beliveau. "That is why I am so pleased that Ken is playing this well."

It is the second time in three years Canadiens have gone with a rookie goaltender in the playoffs. Two years ago, it was Vachon replacing veteran Gump Worsley.

With Vachon, Beliveau added, "we have good reserve . . . and in a long series this could play an important part."

Orr Would Be Glad To Make 2-for-1 Trade

MONTREAL (CP) — None of the members of Montreal Canadiens or Chicago Black Hawks won any of the National Hockey League individual awards, but two-trophy winner Bobby Orr is a bit envious of them.

Orr, dressed in a three-piece blue suit and deeply tanned from a recent vacation in Florida told guests at the NHL awards dinner Monday he is willing to trade places with the eventual Stanley Cup finalists.

"Certainly it is a great honor, but if any member of the Black Hawks or Canadiens would like to trade me two for one right now, I'd be happy."

The Black Hawks and Canadiens are in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup final series, with Chicago leading 3-1.

Orr, a 23-year-old native of Parry Sound, Ont., accepted the James Norris Memorial Trophy for the league's outstanding defenceman for the fourth consecutive time. He returned to the podium later to accept the Hart Memorial Trophy as the league's most valuable player.

He thus became only the second defenceman in league history to win the Hart Trophy at least twice. The only other defenceman to win the Hart more than once was Eddie Shore of Boston in 1933, 1935, 1936 and 1938.

Shore held the record for all players until Gordie Howe, Detroit Red Wing's right winger, won it six times.

Centre Tony Esposito of the Bruins was on hand to accept the Art Ross Trophy as the leading scorer during the regular season. Esposito scored a record 76 goals and assisted on the same number to win the award.

John Bucyk, Boston's veteran left winger, won the Lady Byng Trophy as the player who best combined gentlemanly conduct with playing ability.

Gilbert Perreault of Buffalo Sabres was the recipient of the league's top rookie award, the Calder Memorial Trophy.

Goaltenders Ed Giacomin and Gilles Villemure of New York Rangers took the Vezina Trophy as top netminding duo during the regular season play.

After accepting the Hart Trophy, Orr said there could easily have been another choice—Esposito.

"We call him the lucky Italian," Orr said.

"Anyone who can score 76 goals in 78 games—well what was he doing in those other two games?"

Esposito said his record-scoring year was due to "a great team effort."

"Eighty per cent of the credit for the scoring must go to my linemates Wayne Cashman and Ken Hodge, and oh yes, that great power player," Esposito said.

BOBBY ORR

He said he has already started negotiations with the Bruins for a long-term contract. His three-year-pact with the club has ended and Esposito said he wants his new agreement with the club for security.

"I don't want to be playing when I'm 80," he said.

Orr gained 208 of a possible 210 in the Norris voting. Runners-up was Brad Park of New York with 97 points followed by J. C. Tremblay of Montreal with 35.

Orr edged Esposito by 24 points for his second straight Hart Trophy selection. The Boston defenceman polled 151 points compared to Esposito's 127. Bobby Hull of Chicago was third with 28.

Bucyk, who scored 51 goals this season, and finished third in the over-all scoring with a 116 points and only eight minutes in penalties won the Lady Byng with 166 points. Runner-up was two-time-winner Dave Keon of Toronto Maple Leafs with a 131 points followed by Jean Ratelle of New York with 94.

Perreault led all Buffalo scorers in his first NHL year with 38 goals and 72 points—both records for a rookie. He polled a near-unanimous 204 points in the Calder voting. Jude Drouin of Minnesota North Stars polled 68, 20 more than goalie Villemure.

Each of the winners of the four awards voted by the hockey writers received $1,000. The runners-up each received $750.

Chuvalo at Crossroads Again

TORONTO (CP) — Jimmy Ellis wants just a little time to rest up before resuming his quest for the world heavyweight boxing championship while a beaten George Chuvalo just wants some time to plan his future.

Ellis, 30, former World Boxing Association champ, moved back into contention for the title Monday when he won a decision over the Canadian champion in a 10-rounder at Maple Leaf Gardens.

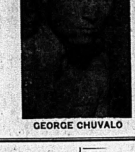
The Louisville, Ky., fighter won with his fast left jabs and right hooks which cut Chuvalo in four places around the left eye.

Ellis came out of the fight unscathed except for a swollen right hand.

"I'll need some time to rest the hand a little," Ellis said. "It's not hurt bad.

"You quite often get swollen hands. I mean, I was hitting the guy in the head and it's only natural that the hand is gonna swell up."

Ellis would like another shot at Joe Frazier of Philadelphia who beat him for the WBA title a little more than a year ago.



"This fight is gonna put me in real good shape for him," said Ellis, who may have to wait a while. Frazier has a rematch scheduled with Muhammad Ali whom he beat last March in New York.

Where does the 33-year-old Chuvalo go from here?

"I don't know," said the Toronto fighter, "I just don't know right now. I'll have to think about it."

The fight here was one of three in a closed-circuit television hookup with Chicago and Oakland.

At Chicago, Ernie Terrell decisioned Luis Pires of Brazil in 10 rounds, and, at Oakland, undefeated George Foreman of California scored a 10th-round knockout over Gregorio Peralta of Argentina.

Hawks Veto Quebec

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Fred Muller, president of St. Catharines Black Hawks, has added to doubts that the sixth game of the eastern Canadian Junior A hockey final will be played in Quebec City.

Muller said Monday night he will discuss location of the game at a meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association executive committee Wednesday. The meeting also will consider the status of St. Catharines' centre Brian McKenzie, who was handed a match penalty in Friday's third game.

St. Catharines' coach Frank Milne said Monday he won't play the sixth game in Quebec City under any conditions.

Debate over the site for the sixth game would be academic if the Hawks fail to win the fifth game Wednesday night at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens. Quebec City leads the best-of-seven series 3-1.

Cowboys Capitalize

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Red Deer Rustlers capitalized on defensive mistakes of Charlottetown Islanders Monday night, trouncing the eastern junior champions 7-4 to win the Centennial Cup for Alberta.

The Rustlers, winners of the western four two championship, won the best-of-seven final series 4-2.

It was a disappointing end to the series for the Islanders, who outplayed the Rustlers from the opening face-off and outshot them 43-25.

Argos Deal Off Jonas

TORONTO (CP) — Quarterback Don Jonas of Toronto Argonauts, who shared duties last season with Tom Wilkinson, was traded Monday to Winnipeg Blue Bombers for two Canadians.

The Argos dealt Wilkinson earlier to British Columbia Lions.

In return for Jonas and "a future consideration," Argos will get defensive end Joe Vijak and defensive halfback Ward Smith.

Vijak was traded to Winnipeg two months ago by Ottawa Rough Riders.

DON JONAS

Vijak, 25, 6-foot-3, 245 pounds, was born in Windsor, Ont., and learned his football at Hillsdale College, Mich.

Smith, 24, 5-foot-11 and 195 pounds, will play safety, replacing Ron Arends, traded by Argos to Calgary.

No-Cut Did Trick

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Quarterback Greg Barton, who was traded to Philadelphia Eagles but has signed with Toronto Argonauts, says the decisive factor in his jump from the National Football League to the Canadian Football League was the offer of a no-cut contract.

"The main thing was that I am . . . family oriented," Barton said in an interview from Toronto. "I have one child now and I'm going to have more. I felt it was only fair to my family."

Philadelphia has a policy against no-cut contracts.

Meanwhile, the NFL said it will follow up a complaint by the Eagles that Barton was offered a contract by Toronto as early as March 26. Barton did not become a free agent until May 1, signing with the Argonauts May 3.

Did you say COLD DUCK? Is this a name for a good Canadian wine? It is. It's a name for a crazy blend of red and white sparkling wines. It's very, very pink. Very, very sparkling. It comes in a very champagne bottle. Chilled then opened, it won't stay long in the bottle.

Royals Scoff at Jinx

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kansas City Royals have obviously said "scram" to the Baltimore Orioles' jinx over them while New York Mets caught up with Houston Astros' Wade Blasingame just as he was about to come 18 and out.

After losing 23 straight games to the Orioles the last two years, Kansas City made it three out of four over Baltimore this season with a 4-1 victory Monday night behind the slugging of Amos Otis and Bruce Dal Canton's five-hit pitching.

The Mets had never beaten Blasingame and were in danger of dropping their 18th in a row to the Astros' left-hander until Bud Harrelson singled home two runs in the seventh inning for a 2-1 triumph.

Elsewhere on Monday's slim major league slate, San Francisco Giants and Juan Marichal edged Cincinnati Reds 3-2, Ferguson Jenkins of Chicago Cubs struck out 13 and became the National League's first six-game winner by blanking Philadelphia Phillies 3-0, St. Louis Cardinals whipped Montreal Expos 8-5 and Detroit Tigers downed California Angels 5-2.

Dal Canton and loser Dave McNally were locked in a scoreless battle with two out in the fifth inning when the Royals took a 1-0 lead on singles by Freddie Patek, Cookie Rojas and Otis, who earlier singled and doubled. Otis then homered in the seventh following Jerry May's double and a walk.

Baltimore's only run came in the eighth and was unearned when left fielder Carl Taylor dropped a two-out fly ball with a runner on second.

Manager Dick Lemon disclosed that Otis did his heavy hitting on an upset stomach.

"I told him not to get rid of it," Lemon grinned. "Maybe he ought to pass some of it around."

Blasingame had protected a 1-0 lead on singles by Bob Watson and Denis Menke and a double-play grounder from the second inning until the seventh when Jerry Grote, who broke up a no-hit bid in the fifth, lashed a one-out double.

Don Hahn got an infield hit and took second on Tommie Agee's tap in front of the plate, with Grote holding third. Harrelson then drilled his decisive hit to centre field.

Marichal, who recorded his 2,000th career strikeout, held the Reds to one hit until the sixth when Pete Rose singled and Tony Perez homered. However, by that time, the Giants had all their runs with Willie Mays, Ken Henderson and Dick Fuentes getting the runs batted in.

The Cardinals, who filled the bases with none out in the seventh inning of a tie game, pushed across five runs after reliever Mike Marshall picked up two outs. Marshall then walked Ted Sizemore and Dick Schofield.

Pitcher Jerry Reuss belted a ground-rule double and Lou Brock singled the final run across.

Joe Hague drove in the first three St. Louis runs with a pair of homers.

Jenkins Ready to Join $100,000 Club

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Chicago Cubs ace pitcher Ferguson Jenkins threw a neat four-hitter at Philadelphia Phillies for a 3-0 victory Monday night and then delivered a little sermon on how he's going to join the $100,000-a-year club.

"The front office isn't satisfied with four 20-victory seasons," said the Chatham, Ont., native, who pushed his season record to 6-2 and became the first National League pitcher to win six games.

"But you can look up the number of one run games I've lost. I want to cut my losses in half and maybe that will make me a $100,000 pitcher.

"The front office says I don't rank up there with (Bob) Gibson and (Juan) Marichal," he said.

Jenkins, a former Phillie, struck out 12, didn't walk a man and retired 21 of the last 22 Phillie hitters to give substance to his argument for a raise from his present salary, reported at $90,000.

In mid-May last year, Fergie's record was 3-6, and he gives Cubs' hitting credit for helping him turn that figure around this year.

"The big difference this year is they're scoring runs for me," he stated.

The Cubs produced the only run Jenkins needed in the sixth when Billy Williams doubled, Jim Hickman singled and Joe Pepitone hit into a force-out. It was frosting on the cake in the eighth when Hickman clinched matters with a home run after Glen Beckert had singled.

Before the Cubs scored in the sixth, Jenkins was locked in a scoreless duel with Chris Short (3-4). The Phillies had men in scoring position in each of the first three innings but failed to score. Then Jenkins buttoned up and retired 17 straight before Larry Bowa broke the spell with an eighth-inning single.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, winner of last weekend's Byron Nelson Classic, has substantially increased his lead in earnings on the pro golf tour, the PGA Tournament Players Division said Monday. Nicklaus, pocketing $25,000 at the classic in Dallas, Tex., has now won $131,987 this year.

Arnold Palmer, who finished seven strokes back of Nicklaus to collect $2,462, raised his winnings to $100,535, the only other player above the $100,000 mark.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Kentucky Derby winner Canonero II was rated no better than fourth Monday in the probable odds for the $150,000-added Preakness as the field for Saturday's classic grew to 12 likely starters.

Earl Hart, the official forecaster of probable odds at Pimlico, rated Jim French, the Kentucky Derby runner-up, as the likely Preakness favorite at 5 to 1.

Canonero II, the surprise winner of the Derby by 3¾ lengths, was rated by Hart at 6 to 1.

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Muhammad Ali says if he's not in jail and Joe Frazier doesn't fall off his motorcycle, they'll fight again early next year.

Ali said he keeps pleading with Frazier to give up riding a powerful motorcycle.

"I see him cutting around and dragging with that machine that's got those big pipes," he said. "I told him: 'Get off that thing. You're worth $3 million to me.'"

All figures he lost $10 million in advertising, commercials and fight purses in the three years he was barred from the ring for refusing military service.

He still faces a possible five-year prison sentence for the refusal.

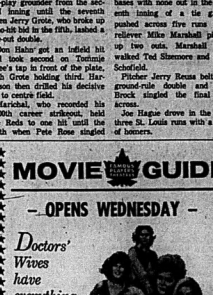
TOKYO (AP) — World heavyweight boxing champion Joe Frazier, who has a night club act, may visit Japan in September for singing performances and two exhibition fights against Japanese light heavyweights, a Japanese show business promoter said today.. Toyoo Yokiyama, president of Toyo's Universal Orient Promotions, said he issued an invitation earlier this year to Frazier and his musical group, the Knockouts, to make a two-week performance tour of Japan.

Kenji Yonekura, a boxing manager, said Japanese light heavyweights Akira Ishii and Dynamite Takigawa, both 25, would probably be selected as Frazier's opponents for the exhibition fights.



Japan has five world boxing champions, all in the lighter divisions. Japan has no professional heavyweight boxer.

DUBLIN (Reuter) — Italy, the reigning champions, struggled to a 2-1 victory over the Irish Republic in their group Six European championship qualifying soccer match here Monday night. The victory gave Italy a comfortable lead in the Group Six table with a maximum six points from three games—three points ahead of Sweden.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks at Life"

What seems so evident to the doctor is not always so clear to his patient. Every once in a while I'll write some short practical tips on health that may help prevent unnecessary grief and discomfort, as follows:

For MR. J.: Yes, your wife is right. It's possible to have beginning glaucoma (one of the most common causes of blindness) without early symptoms such as pain, inflammation or other complaints.

At age 46, it's time you had a routine eye checkup by a qualified eye specialist. Besides, glaucoma isn't the only condition that may appear after (or before) 40. Cataract, detached retina, chronic inflammation of the retina are among others. Your complaint of gradual deterioration in vision is reason enough for an examination.

After it's over, won't it feel great to know that all you need is a change in glasses?

For Mrs. M.: Many parents do not realize that it's important for a young child to have a routine eye checkup, too. Preferably before he enters school.

He may have a "lazy eye" that needs correction to prevent loss of sight in it. Or, he may be nearsighted and handicapped in school. Such children are often labeled "stupid" simply because they can't see the blackboard.

In your child's case it is especially important that he have an examination. The fact that both you and your husband are nearsighted is reason enough for your youngster to have an early checkup. Many children grow into adult life with inferiority feelings simply because they couldn't see well — and so were backward as youngsters.

* * *

For Mrs. S.: Your husband's stubbornness in treating his gout with aspirin alone will get him nothing—except more frequent and painful attacks. Assuming that gouty arthritis is the correct diagnosis, we have newer drug combinations that will likely relieve him rather quickly of his discomfort.

I call it stubbornness in refusing help. Perhaps it's masochism. Otherwise, why isn't he willing to put up with severe joint pain for which we have tried-and-true corrective measures?

* * *

For Mrs. H.: A rectal itch that lasts day after day can become as unbearable as pain. It seems self-treatment with special ointments and salves hasn't relieved you. Therefore, it's time for a medical evaluation. The trouble may be primarily local in origin: for example, hemorrhoids. But sometimes localized itching is a symptom of disease elsewhere. Diabetes, for instance. Lean on your doctor for support.

* * *

For Mr. O.: Epilepsy in your child does not mean "the end" for him. As you say, your doctor has him under full control with medicine he is taking.

In most cases epilepsy patients can work and do other things most people do. They have fewer seizures if they work and lead normal, active lives. They can go to school, engage in sports, drive a car if the doctor says it is all right, marry and have children.

Routine Eye Check Safeguards Sight

Dr. Bernard Has Completed His Sixth Heart Transplanting

CAPE TOWN (Reuter) — Dr. Christiaan Barnard completed his sixth—and the world's 15th—heart transplant operation in a South African hospital early today.

At Groote Schuur Hospital bulletin said the patient, 45-year-old explosives worker Dirk Van Zyl, who is white, is married with two sons.

No details of the donor were announced, but newspapers reported today that he was believed to have been a 20-year-old mixed-race man.

The South African surgeon performed the world's first heart transplant at Groote Schuur Hospital Dec. 2, 1967. His history-making patient, 55-year-old Louis Washkansky, died 19 days later.

Only one of Barnard's previous patients, Dorothy Fisher, 35, is still alive.

She joined Barnard at a Cape Town dinner last month to celebrate the second anniversary of her operation. The surgeon's last transplant before the Van Zyl operation.

Barnard complained at the dinner that doctors had not been referring patients to him.

"I could do a heart transplant tonight if I had a patient," he said.

"Unfortunately there are people today who say that they do not believe in heart transplantation. But I believe in it to such an extent that if I cannot continue my work in Cape Town I will move to a different country where I can continue my work."

Van Zyl suffered a heart attack eight months ago and was admitted to Groote Schuur Hospital for tests April 27.

Before Friday's operation, Barnard's greatest successes had been with 30-year-old Philip Blaiberg, who lived for 19 months with his new heart, and former policeman Ivan Vlasov, 53, who survived 20 months after a transplant.

The pioneer surgeon's other transplant was performed on 62-year-old William Kilpeg, who died 62 days after the operation.

South Africa's only other two heart transplants were performed in Durban by another cardiac team. The first Durban patient lived for six days after the operation and the other for 29 hours.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Folk Incurably Superstitious

My youngest child asked me the other day why I blessed her when she sneezed. I explained that it was an ancient custom — a superstition, really — because a sneeze was supposed to indicate that the soul had left the body temporarily and the blessing "made sure" it returned.

"Did people really believe that?" she exclaimed, and I assured her that they did, including many brilliant and learned people of their time. "I'm glad we don't live in those silly times.." she said smugly, and I held my tongue.

Actually the human race is almost incurably superstitious. The content of the superstitions may change over the centuries, but the basic attitude remains pretty much the same. And, of course, the content, often, depending upon the education and income-level of the person; our superstitions simply become more sophisticated, but not more rational.

Indeed, the leading superstition of our time may be the pervasive belief among the educated that we are more rational than our forebears. It is quite true that we no longer have forsaken the primitive superstitions associated with sneezing, ladders, black cats, the number 13 and all that nonsense; but have we not replaced them with more plausible ones?

Today's general belief in something called "progress" for the human race is certainly founded more on hope and anxiety than on reason or history. The 20th Century, despite its technological advances has seen far more people killed by war and genocide than any previous time. It may be simply a superstition born of dread to believe any real progress at all in the human condition.

Most educated people today also believe that "disease will eventually be conquered"; Nothing in reason leads to this conclusion: in fact, perfect health is an irrational and unobtainable ideal, and might mean the end of the race even if we could obtain it. Rene Dubos, the brilliant microbiologist for the Rockefeller Institue, has analyzed this modern superstition with devastating clarity.

In point of fact, the violently "anti-superstition" people of today are themselves the victims of a gigantic superstition: namely, that science and education can and will remove the irrational component from man's minds. What they have done is to remove many old ones and substituted a number of new ones, some of which are far more dangerous to the community than their ancient archetypes.

Mankind adapts by various mechanisms and dynamisms, and superstition is one way of confessing humility toward the cosmos; it is our pride of knowledge more than our humility of ignorance that may in the end undo us.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For May 12

Your birthday today: You will earn and learn broader co-operation and greater rewards as your sense of material values comes in stronger and clearer than the mark. Today's natives are of every conceivable sort; each has some personal flair, characteristic, no two alike, which eventually brings public recognition for a special deed or achievement.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Contrary behavior tempts you to quick reactions; nothing is gained by taking small things which bring added tension.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Reach out a helping hand to somebody in need of reassurance, sympathy. Don't add your hard cash to the encouragement unless you intend to be part of a permanent group committed to a definite project.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Your persuasive talents are bewitching well—be careful where and toward what you use them. Self-improvement requires attention.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Conditions shift a bit. Do what is expedient on your own, explain later only in case you have to. Review finances, budgets, and the like.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Being at or near your base of operations has a powerful advantage in today's swiftly moving history. Be prompt and co-operative.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): There is always a delicate balance between getting material things or having them possess the human owner. Today's decisions put you to the test of where you are in this balance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Courtesy and assistance is inconvenient to render, but don't ignore it — you get back what you give, often multiplied. Learn from others' difficulties.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Agreements and contracts of all kinds must be checked thoroughly. You may have to show reason for your decisions; take this in stride.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Difficulties may be owing not to your own sensitivity so much as that of people you like, although you feel your side is neglected. Tact and forbearance make for a happier tomorrow.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Apparently complex plans lay sheltered need thought and considerable more work. By evening expect to have a feeling of accomplishment in your added effort.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Ideas and technical novelties can be delightful. Pitch in to the best of your ability: co-operate in changes. There is interesting news, contrasting opinions by the end of this busy day.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Distant events, perhaps long forgotten, have a bearing on what happens. Resist making major changes or any hasty expedients. Have a good, tested reason for going in new directions.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and I am important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and relieves pain of sore tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Ointment or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Trudeau Says Inflation Would Close Down Export Industries

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — The federal government accepts the blame for high unemployment in Canada, Prime Minister Trudeau said in a radio interview broadcast here Monday.

Mr. Trudeau told interviewer Jack Webster he regretted the high unemployment but said inflation with high employment was not an acceptable alternative to no inflation with high unemployment.

"If we could live with inflation and have a booming economy and more employment, that would be great."

But 30 per cent of Canada's produce now goes into export markets and "if we let inflation get away in Canada we will lose our markets and the workers who are to produce for those markets will be out of a job."

Mr. Trudeau said many of those now on Canada's unemployment rolls were not heads of families but young people who left school early, people at retirement age who wish to continue working and an increasing number of women.

In the broadcast—excerpts of a television interview held in Ottawa last week to be broadcast on CBC television Sunday night—the prime minister also discussed pay increases for members of Parliament, the monarchy and a wide range of other topics.

Mr. Trudeau said he did not believe the monarchy was a sore point in relations between French and English Canadians although French Canadians are more "passive" in their loyalty to the Queen.

"The monarchy will last as long as this government lasts," he said, "if you abolish monarchy, what do you replace it with?"

Mr. Trudeau said if he were asked to be president in a parliamentary system the answer would be "quite clearly, 'no.' I'm not interested in symbolic jobs."

The prime minister defended the raise in salaries of members of Parliament to $18,000 a year from $12,000—including a tax free expense allowance of $3,000.

The $6 per cent increase—the first since 1963—is less than the increase in professors' and engineers' salaries in the last nine years and about equal to the increase in industrial wages, he said.

"If constituents think their particular member of Parliament really doesn't earn his salary and really doesn't spend his allowance in an honest way, they should throw him out."

If the salary scale had not been increased, "I am sure we would have lost some of our good members."

Asked if he considered the pay increases badly timed, Mr. Trudeau replied: "Would the timing have been better at the height of the inflationary period and we were telling people to cool it?"

Government Plan Is Called Road to Stabilized Poverty

OTTAWA (CP) — The government was accused in the Commons Monday of not only contributing to the poverty of the western grain farmer, but of coming up with a plan to stabilize that poverty.

Opposition members hit hard at the government's Prairie grain stabilization bill, intended to guarantee the western grain industry an annual income not less than the average of its last five years.

Clifford Downey (PC—Battle River) said the bill would stabilize farm incomes at a near bankruptcy level.

Last year, he said, the incomes of western farmers were the lowest since 1955.

"What would have happened if someone in the 1920s had had the same foresight as the minister and introduced a program of stabilized farm incomes?"

With such a program as this, there would not have been any payout for over 20 years. This illustrates what this plan is really all about."

Debate on the bill ended Monday night without it having received second reading stage.

The Commons turns today to a two-day debate on a Conservative non-confidence motion condemning the government for "its failure to promote a truly Canadian strategy for the development of the North."

Rod Thomson (NDP—Battleford-Kindersley) said the government helped put the farmers in their present situation by not setting up a two-price system in recent years when world wheat prices were so low.

Canadians, he said, are getting grain products at a bargain to the detriment of the farmers.

The government figures to save about $10 million annually with the bill, he said. He estimated that with grain sales of $900 million in a year, the government would contribute $36 million to the stabilization fund.

But by doing away with the Temporary Wheat Reserves Act it would save about $40 million a year, and by eliminating the Prairie Farm Assistance Act it would save another $6 million annually.

As for the $100 million subsidy the government was offering the grain industry this year, it was actually costing the government only about $45 million, because of the termination of the Wheat Reserves Act, and that $45 million was far less than what the government had cost the industry in recent years.

National Interests First

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada ruled in a judgment published Monday that the federal government may regulate commerce inside a province so long as the intervention is promoting a wider, national policy.

The judgment arose from an appeal last year by Caled Inc. of Montreal against new federal regulations limiting the distribution of gasoline.

Provinces Wavering on Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau admitted Monday that some provincial governments have changed their mind about the government's farm products marketing bill.

The prime minister blamed opposition "obstruction" of the bill, originally introduced in the Commons last spring and still before the House, for the provincial wavering.

An "immense majority" of provinces had supported the bill at the federal-provincial conference last September.

Since then, Mr. Trudeau said, some provinces had "wavered" in their support of the legislation, which would enable provinces to get together in national and continental marketing agencies that could distribute production quotas among them.

Senate Leader Wants Big Cut

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Congressional alarm over Europe's dollar crisis pushed President Nixon and he Senate today into a clash on legislation calling for a 50-per-cent cut in the 300,000 American troops based n Western Europe.

Prompted by the monetary crisis centring on the U.S. dollar problem, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana introduced an amendment Tuesday that would block funds for keeping more than 150,000 troops in the NATO countries.

The amendment cutting off funds at the end of this year would be binding on President Nixon if approved by Congress and clearly caught some administration supporters by surprise. It was attached to a bill that would extend the U.S. military draft for two years.

About two-thirds of U.S. forces in Europe are maintained in West Germany where the dollar is worth less since decisions were made last weekend to float the West German mark.

A vote is not expected before Thursday and might be put off until next week, a senate source said.

But neither the senators nor their aides, who normally have a close idea of the Senate's sentiment, would hazard a prediction of the result.

At least two major factors were weighing on the uncommitted Senators, observers said.

One is concern that the dollar has been weakened, at least in part, by the cost of maintaining 300,000 troops and about 250,000 dependents in Western Europe.

The other is a strong feeling in Congress that the European allies are not carrying their share of supporting the NATO alliance.

However, the White House and opponents of the Mansfield measure argue that 50-per-cent troop reduction within seven months would dangerously weaken the Atlantic alliance and perhaps cut too far into the president's constitutional powers.

Senator John Stennis (Dem. Miss.), chairman of the armed services committee, attacked the Mansfield measure, charging that it was completely erroneous to argue that huge deficits in the U.S. balance of payments were caused by American forces in Europe.

Gold Price Moves Up

LONDON (AP) — Increasing demand for gold amid general monetary uncertainty today drove the price of the metal to its highest level in 18 months in European free bullion markets.

The price jump came as the Belgian national bank announced that it cashed in 180 millions for gold from the U.S. reserves. The bank said its internal policy barred taking in more dollars to add to its already swollen reserves of American money.

The Belgian move, coming on the heels of the dollar crisis, could embarrass the U.S. government. Any concerted move by other European national banks to follow Belgium in cashing in dollars for gold could undermine the world monetary systme.

PM Is Prepared to Use War Measures If Needed

OTTAWA (CP) — A letter from Prime Minister Trudeau to Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa said that the federal government would not hesitate to use the War Measures Act again if necessary, the House of Commons was told Tuesday.

In tabling copies of the letter in the Commons, Mr. Trudeau said that if the situation called for it, the federal government would introduce without delay a new law to ensure public order and would, if necessary, call a special sitting of the Commons to pass it.

In his letter, Mr. Trudeau said the federal government has decided, for the time being, to use the provisions of the Criminal Code rather than adopting a special legislation outlawing the FLQ. The Criminal Code had adequate provisions to deal with the terrorists but he added the government was not entirely satisfied the criminal code was sufficient.

He said that while awaiting the results of the joint committee, the government would be free to act at any time.

Aussies Deny U.S. Annoyed As Machines Sold to Cuba

CANBERRA, Australia (CP) — Foreign Minister Leslie Bury denied tonight that the United States had made a formal complaint about the sale of Australian sugar cane harvesters to Cuba.

He was commenting on a report from Washington sources that the sale of 20 such canecutting machines had led to ill-feeling between the U.S. and Australia.

Bury said the U.S. had made inquiries of a purely factual kind about the sale of the machines. Australia had replied that the sale was merely a normal commercial transaction by a private firm, a subsidiary of Canadian-based Massey-Ferguson.

The government did not regard the export of sugar cane harvesting equipment as involving strategic materials, Bury explained, and Australia restricts only the export of strategic materials to Cuba.

Massey-Ferguson Australia Ltd. confirmed it had negotiated substantial export contracts for sugar cane harvesting equipment with Cuba.

Informed sources in Washington said Tuesday night that Australia had sold the harvesters to Cuba for about $4,000 each despite a formal expression of displeasure from the U.S. government.

The U.S., which still maintains a long-standing trade embargo against the Fidel Castro government, made its frosty view of the deal known in a diplomatic note when the sale was first suggested in February, the Washington source said.

They said they knew of no recent approach by the Nixon administration and indicated that the note in February was not couched in particularly strong terms.

In Canberra, an Australian trade department source confirmed that the Australian government had received an inquiry from Washington in February asking for details of the sale. He declined to elaborate.

The trade department sources confirmed the Australian government had replied to Washington that because export sales in the agricultural machinery sector had slumped late last year, Australia would go ahead with the sale.

OMA Head Hits Hard At Abuses

TORONTO (CP) — Doctors who squeeze the maximum amount of money out of medical insurance schemes must not be protected by the medical profession, retiring president of the Ontario Medical Association, Dr. Bette Stephenson, said Tuesday.

In a hard-hitting farewell speech the association's first woman president castigated politicians and civil servants for deliberately stirring up trouble between the public and doctors, and lambasted medical practitioners who put dollars before dedication.

"Deputy ministers, the mandarins, and the lackeys have never experienced the joys and sorrows . . . of day-to-day patient care, or if they did they failed to survive and went on to the safety of the bureaucracy," she said.

She accused bureaucrats who make a "political show of public concern" of irresponsibility.

"What this country needs more than a guaranteed income is active, intelligent leadership with honesty and integrity. Let us all get up off our bulging wallets and start leading."

She said the profession had been too slow in dealing with those of its members who were abusing medical fees and failing to give their patients quality care.

Seaway Workers Accept Pay Boost

OTTAWA (CP) — Early returns today in voting by 1,300 St. Lawrence Seaway workers pointed to general acceptance of a new two-year contract providing a wage increase of 14.5 per cent.

Under the old contract, the base wage rate for seaway workers was $3.70 an hour. The new contract will bring the rate to $4.24 by Jan. 1, 1972.

Earthquake In Turkey Kills 58

ANKARA (AP) — At least 58 persons were killed and hundreds injured in a powerful earthquake that struck the city of Burdur and surrounding villages in southern Turkey.

The governor of Burdur province, Ezref Ayhan, said 18 deaths had been confirmed in Burdur and 20 each in two nearby villages.

He said 70 per cent of the buildings in Burdur, a city of 30,000 people, had been destroyed. Ayhan also had reports of entire villages collapsing in outlying areas which had not been heard from yet.

Turkey has been struck by killer earthquakes each year since 1966. In March, 1970, a quake killed 1,089 persons and destroyed the town of Gediz in western Turkey.

The quakes take place along the Anatolian Fault, that arcs around Burdur, ranges north along the Aegean coast and east along the Black Sea. It plunges south again in the eastern mountains.

Doctors Oppose Payment Change

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Medical Association will ask A. B. R. Lawrence, Ontario health minister, to reconsider his decision that doctors must either send all their bills to the medical care insurance scheme or direct to their patients.

At present doctors can bill some of their patients while sending bills for others to the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan.

Mr. Lawrence said April 22 that doctors who bill OHSIP must accept the plan's payment of 90 per cent of the OMA schedule as payment in full.

The OMA council decided Tuesday its board of directors will go to the minister again, to try for a change in the all-or-none ruling.

Catholic High Schools May Be Closed - - Bishop

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — As the Roman Catholic Bishop of London was saying Tuesday in an interview that Catholic high schools might be phased out if provincial support to Grade 13 isn't provided area, Anglicans gave indirect support to such grant extensions.

Most Rev. C. Emmett Carter said the phasing out of Catholic high schools is a "very real possibility" and that lack of government support would lead to a reassessment of separate Catholic education.

The synod of the Anglican gave indirect support to the extension of grants to Catholic schools when it defeated a motion asking the province not to extend grants to secondary schools under the control of religious denominations or institutions.

Provincial support to Catholic separate schools ends at the end of Grade 10.

Tension and A Domineering Leader Drive Monkeys to Drink

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Researchers at the University of Waterloo are deliberately driving monkeys to drink and uncovering a host of similarities between human and simian swingers.

Dr. Ted Cadell, director of the primate laboratory at the university, said Tuesday that 40 rhesus monkeys have been given various types of alcohol for an experiment sponsored by the Addiction Research Foundation.

Left to themselves with a supply of liquor the monkeys establish a "cocktail hour," drinking the greatest amounts about an hour before feeding time.

Some of the monkeys have been kept on alcohol for a month. The result was a wild party atmosphere in the cage, with drunks swinging from the light standard, falling off the bars, staggering and cavorting.

Though most of the monkeys consume 40 ounces of alcohol a day—enough to keep a 170-pound man drunk—drinking habits vary as they do with human beings. Some monkeys drink heavily: Others are light drinkers and a few, after a bad bout and a hangover, "swear off" and cannot be induced to touch alcohol again.

The most interesting result so far is that tension drives monkeys to drink.

Dr. Cadell said in groups where a strong leader dominated the other members, there was a greater tendency to drink. Where there was only a loose hierarchy the monkeys consumed little alcohol.

The scientists hope to learn why people become dependent on alcohol.

So far the monkeys have done their carousing on wines, rye, scotch and vodka, supplied to them tax-free through a special government arrangement.

Staff Changes at Trenton

TRENTON (Staff) — A series of executive staff changes at CFB Trenton has been announced for July.

Col. G. W. Webb, now serving as Base Operations Officer will leave to take up duties in a staff position in the office of the Director of Movements, Canadian Forces Headquarters.

The colonel led on the spot efforts of the Canadian Armed Forces at Dacca, East Pakistan during last December's cyclone flood disaster.

Taking over from him will be Col. F. M. Murphy, a native of Great Britain, who now holds the post of Commanding Officer, 436 (Transport) Training Squadron here.

This squadron had been deactivated with phaseout of the North Stars but has now been revived through combination of Trenton's field technical training and operational training units.

Col. Murphy served in the RAF before joining the RCAF in 1947. With service in overseas air divisions and Ottawa headquarters posts, he came here in 1968 as Commanding Officer, 424 Squadron.

Col. W. I. Butchart took over from him in July 1969, after exchange duty in Alabama and many years service with Training Command.

Now Col. Butchart will leave 424 to become Senior Staff Officer, Training Standards at Air Transport Command Headquarters, a job now held by Col. D. H. Kuhn who becomes Commanding Officer, 428 Squadron.

Col. Kuhn came to Trenton in July 1969, following an exchange tour at McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey. Previously, he had been at Edmonton on Hercules aircraft. Through the years, he has participated in airlifts to Korea, Gaza and the Congo.

Coming to Trenton from Winnipeg's Training Command Headquarters will be Major A. G. Tegart who will become 424's new commanding officer. He will be promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel prior to taking command.

Trenton's 1970 Deficit A Surprise to Council

TRENTON (Staff) — Trenton town council has learned it must wrestle with a $164,000 deficit as it prepares to bring down a budget for the 1971 fiscal year.

In committee of the whole session here Monday, council was presented with the 1970 financial statement, featuring the massive debt.

The town that prides itself on pay - as - you - go policies meets the news with complete surprise — even Trenton's treasurer, Peter De Groot, indicated yesterday he would not have suspected the situation as late as February.

Mr. DeGroot had been in hospital for several weeks this spring and has since tendered his resignation for health reasons. Presenting the 1971 budget will be his last formal task.

It is not possible at this point to determine the nature of the new budget in more than gross terms. Estimates of both the public works department and parks board still have to be received by council.

Furthermore the troublesome county projections for Trenton's participation in the Hastings County Board of Education are still unknown.

Council, however, will gain insight into the price of education for the community in the next fiscal year when it meets with school board representatives Tuesday.

The $164,000 debt at the end of the 1970 fiscal year is due in large part to the $54,000 underlevy for education — provision had not been made to collect enough money through the year to finance Trenton's education costs.

Mayor Duncan McDonald credits such unexpected items as the Tweed school purchase and increased staff wages with aggravating the levy.

Putting the town further in the red for 1970 is a total of $10,000 in interest payments on debts carried by Trenton when it entered the county education system.

Trenton's Community Garden project will turn further in debt during the year to the tune of about $40,000. Of this total about half is accounted for by the purchase of new equipment, the other half by operating losses.

Sources say the bulk of the remaining portion of the deficit in the 1970 financial statement is comprised of unpaid taxes.

"We will have to sharpen our pencils," Mayor McDonald told The Intelligencer. He indicated that he personally feels the only place we can take up slack is in public works."

The mayor said it would be impossible to predict what effect the town's financial state would have on the general tax rate with the several estimates yet to be received. However, he contended the town will have to embark on an austerity program.

He mentioned two factors that will lessen the burden on taxpayers: the new equipment installed at the Community Gardens will help reduce operating costs in the long run and an estimated $80,000 more revenue is expected from properties placed on the tax rolls, by 1970.

"We hope to get the mill rate struck within the next two weeks," he said.

Few Bikes Pass Test

The Belleville Home and School Association, the city police department, the Kiwanis Club and the Belleville Collegiate Key Club are cooperating in a program to foster safe bicycles.

And from the results of one of the first bicycle safety clinics held in the city, the campaign is needed.

This was indicated Saturday when 28 bikes were examined at the Queen Alexandra school grounds with only 13 receiving safety stickers.

To help promote safe bicycles, Mrs. Elizabeth Fort, representing the home and school associations appeared before city council yesterday asking for a proclamation to declare May 9-16 safe bicycle week and suggesting a city bylaw which would make reflector tape a requirement on all bicycles sold in the city.

Although no longer licensed in the city, the operation of bicycles still comes under the Highway Traffic Act. They are required to be equipped with a bell or other warning device, to have good and safe brakes and proper lights if operated after dark.

All regulations pertaining to the operation of a motor vehicle also apply to a bicycle, such as obedience of traffic lights, stop streets, right of way, and directional signalling.

Under the act, a bike rider may be prosecuted for flouting regulations — just the same as a car driver.

Bike safety clinics are just one phase of a continuing program on the part of Belleville Kiwanis and Key club members for child safety.

For this purpose, Kiwanis for many years has set aside $1,500 annually. Enter the Safety Elephant is a Kiwanis project as is the provision of a vehicle for use by the city police department safety officer.

Retail Pioneer Closing in Trenton

TRENTON (Staff) — One of Trenton's oldest business establishments, Tripp's Cigar Store, will be going out of business this summer.

Located in the centre of town, at the King and Dundas Street corner, the store has been a hub of downtown business life here for over 40 years.

Opened by the late Mark Tripp, father of present owners John and Paul, in 1926, the retail store, with familiar barber shop at the back is only one part of Mark Tripp Ltd.

The firm's wholesale division, formed in 1936, with the purchase of Albert Hammond Wholesale in Stirling, has grown greatly and now serves an area from Cobourg, east to Napanee, and from Prince Edward County north to Maynooth.

The Tripp family has had a long history of service to the town, beginning with the opening of a Front Street barber shop in 1879.

Closeout of the retail business is prompted by expansion of the company's wholesale trade, now handled by Paul Tripp, a leading figure in municipal public life.

John Tripp, who has managed the mid-town store, will join the wholesale division on a full-time basis when the store closes, with the barber shop staying open indefinitely.

The family is now negotiating for tenants to take over the well-located premises. The shop is closed to business now but opens tomorrow morning for a large-scale closeout sale.

Final closure of the Dundas Street shop will come when merchandise is cleared.

John Tripp told The Intelligencer today he regrets the decision to close, but the wholesale division demands his full concentration. "The store has been my life," he said.

Two Calls, House Lost

TWEED (Special) — The Tweed Volunteer Fire Department responded to a call from a Bogart resident last evening, only to be called back eight hours later to witness the gutting of the home.

Martin Rivers, owner of the two-storey brick structure, had called the fire department at 5:25 Tuesday evening when he suspected fire.

After negligible damage, the fire was located in the attic area near the chimney and supposedly extinguished.

Eight hours later the bell sounded again as the two-family dwelling burst into uncontrollable flames, leaving the building completely gutted and unliveable, said one spokesman for the fire department.

Eight firemen and one pumper fought the blaze for four hours while both the Rivers family and the Boom-Lower family were sheltered by the Salvation Army in Tweed.

It is not clear yet, said a spokesman for the fire department, if the fire was a rekindling of the first fire, or if it was a separate incident.

There has been no estimate of the damage due to smoke, fire and water but it is felt that the building is lost, said another spokesman for the department.

IN MEMORIAM

EDMUNDS — In loving memory of my dear father, Elias Edmunds who passed away May 12th, 1960.
Those whom we love yet out of sight,
But never out of mind,
Are those who live forever in the hearts,
Where those have loved.
Time may take away the edge of grief
But find memory turns back every leaf
And keeps enshrined but always sweetest
Loved by sister Florence Murray, Belleville. 20-11-21

EDMUNDS — In loving memory of my dear father, Elias Edmunds who passed away May 12th, 1960.
Sleep dear father, sleep in peace,
And God's love around you glow,
You did your best and now you rest,
It broke our hearts to lose you,
But you must go alone,
For part of us went with you.
The day God called you home.
Inserted by your loving daughter, remembered by your husband John, grandchildren Ronald, Donald and Jean and great-granddaughter Carol. granddaughter Carol. 20-11-21

CHRISTOPHER — In memory of our father, Harry Christopher, who passed away May 12, 1966.
Think of him in silence,
No eyes can see us weep,
But deep within our aching hearts,
He lies enshrined.
Over remembered by Barbara and Jean. 20-11-21

WESSEL — In loving memory of my dear husband, Ed Wessel, who passed away May 12th, 1970.

OPP After You All This Week

This week the Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police are out to get you — to get you to come, of your own free will, to 400 North Front Street to take part in a "Canadian Police Week" activities.

From May 9 - 15 inclusive, the staffs of more than 190 offices throughout the province are welcoming visitors to discuss the function and role of police in society, as well as to view the services the forces are equipped to provide. Although the Belleville district detachment is open to the public anytime this week, Saturday, May 15 will highlight the week's activities.

From 1 - 8 p.m., the local provincial detachment will be out in full force to show visitors through the headquarters and through its back garage.

The garage will be the focal point of the afternoon. All equipment used by the force will be on display and members of the detachment will be present to explain exactly when and how such equipment is used.

The identification unit will be on hand to demonstrate fingerprinting and photographing techniques. Also, a full scuba equipment, used for rescue and patrol missions will be on display, as well as motorcycles and snowmobiles used by the force. A slide presentation of police activities, aircraft display and a collage of safety posters made by local children are only a few of the many things to see.

Last, but not least, the "dog-man" will be at the district Headquarters from 6 - 9 p.m. with the force's canine officer.

Three Young Anglicans On Way to West Indies

Three Belleville youths have been chosen to participate in the Canadian Overseas Work Tour, a project which will take 30 Canadian Anglican Church young people to the West Indies and points within Canada.

Members of Belleville's Christ Church Youth, Ruth Wright, of Moira St. West, will spend the summer in St. Lucia in the Caribbean, Gail Reid, 119 Lingham St., will accompany West Indies visitors to Newfoundland and Thom Wills, 83 Palmer Road, expects to travel to Monserrat, but confirmation of this has not yet been received.

"We're very excited about the opportunity for this congregation to actually be involved in missionary programs this summer," commented Rev. David Hawkins, one of the organizers of a fund - raising campaign to aid the youths towards their trips.

Rev. Hawkins said funds raised for missionary work usually go to head office, "but now it's closer to home."

For travel expenses, the parish are expected to contribute $500, a sum which will be matched, dollar - for - dollar raised, by the Diocese of Ontario.

"We hope to prompt reaction from the parish . . . we're very optimistic that the $500 will be raised, and in the next few weeks," said Rev. Hawkins.

No fewer than 18 West Indians and 30 Canadians have been invited to participate in the exchange program for these projects in Canada and the West Indies.

Dates for departure have not yet been announced but the three youths from Christ Church have received their medicals for the trip and are in the process of applying for their passports.

Special fund - raising events have been organized at the church to help raise the funds required for the trips. They include a car wash, special luncheons, a mammoth rummage sale, a coffee house and between June 4 and 5, a 24-hour dancethon.

Village Offices Move to Church

FRANKFORD (Special) — Municipal offices in Frankford, which have been housed in the Trent Street building since the 1940s are to take up roots and move to the present Emmanuel Gospel Church on North Trent Street.

Work is expected to start within the next three weeks to convert the building to accommodate a library and community hall as well as the municipal offices. Provision will be made for parking at the rear of the building.

The council expects that the cost of the new office and its alterations will be covered by the sale of the present property, along with some other property within the village.

The Ontario Housing Corporation has purchased the old site and plans to erect a senior citizens' home, with an initial 15 units, and hopes for an additional 15 units to be constructed in the future. Construction is expected to commence by the middle of the summer.

A Global Affair

These three members of Christ Church Youth have been selected to participate in the Canadian Overseas Work Tour, an exchange program which will involve 18 youths from the West Indies and 30 Canadians. Gail Reid, left, will travel to Newfoundland and Ruth Wright, right, will visit St. Lucia in the Caribbean. Thom Wills, with the world at his fingertips, has yet to receive confirmation of his trip to Monserrat, also in the Caribbean.

Labor Asks Voice On Hospital Board

TRENTON (Staff) — The Quinte District Labor Council moved last night to ask Ontario's health minister, Hon. Bert Lawrence, how it might achieve representation on Trenton Memorial Hospital's board of governors.

Trenton councillor George Greer told the QDLC meeting here Mayor Duncan McDonald is an ex officio member of the board but does not always attend its gatherings.

"If I could get on, it would be the only hope for labor to have a voice," he said.

Only members of the hospital corporation at Trenton (each pay a fee) have the privilege of electing the board.

Visitor to the meeting, Henry Welsbach of the Ontario Federation of Labor, contended the hospital is public and the general public should be allowed to vote.

The letter to the health minister will ask why one must pay to vote and inquire about the possibility of instituting publicly - elected boards of control on the hospital board.

Resolutions Debated by Council

City council this week concurred in a St. Catharines resolution asking the Ontario government to withhold implementation of regional government in other areas of the province until existing regional setups have been given a critical and detailed examination.

The resolution was considered by the city council resolutions committee and passed along to the parent body for approval.

Alderman Donald Soutter didn't go along with the St. Catharines resolution and stated that instead of trying to hold up establishment of regional governments, municipalities should take positive steps to let the province know what they want in the form regional government setups.

At the same time he said he was aware that there had been problems with the regional government setup in the Niagara area.

But Mayor J. Russell Scott said problems with regional government had also been experienced in Carleton, Thunder Bay and in the Kitchener-Waterloo area.

He suggested that if residents in these municipalities had had any say they would have turned down regional government.

In the Niagara area, Mayor Scott said, regional government had left the Niagara district provincial police with only 17 miles of roadway to look after, with the remainder of the roads now being policed by municipal forces.

City council also approved a motion from its own resolutions committee objecting to a proposed amendment to the Crown Witnesses Act which would prevent the city from recovering witness fees to counteract court attendance costs of police officers attending court during off-duty hours.

Mayor Scott said the act amendment, which now has been given second reading, could cost the city anywhere up to $900 annually.

Council also considered a Hastings county resolution asking the provincial government to refrain from implementing any proposed increases in the general welfare assistance payments for 1971.

The resolutions committee didn't go along with the exact wording of the county resolution, but suggested an amendment asking that in future years municipalities be given a minimum of six months notice of any intention on the part of the provincial government to increase welfare allowances.

The reason for asking six months notice of proposed increases would be to give local municipalities the opportunity of including them in the year's budget estimates.

Seniors' Housing Need Said Acute

Despite the amount of construction over the past several years, the need for senior citizen housing in Belleville is still acute.

At the last meeting of council, two weeks ago, a report from Ontario Housing Corporation recommended construction of another 37 senior citizen units and council members requested the units be built.

But since then, requests have shown there is a demand for 80 units instead of just 37 and council accordingly has requested OHC to undertake still another study for the need and demand for such housing in Belleville.

And at least one alderman feels that further senior citizen housing in the city should be constructed in the downtown area close to shopping, churches and drop-in centres.

Alderman Robin Jeffrey said she had received complaints from residents at the new apartment complex opposite the fairgrounds that it was difficult for tenants to go shopping or to church.

Other members, however, observed they had talked to tenants at the West Bridge Street apartment who were completely satisfied with the accommodation.

Adult Learning Seminar Saturday

Loyalist College will be the scene of a seminar this Saturday on creating a learning environment for adults.

Participants will be from the faculty of Loyalist College, night school teachers, librarians, ministers, industry trainers and community leaders.

Leaders will be Dr. Norman High, a professor of adult education at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education and Dr. Foster Vernon, chairman of the Applied Arts Division of Seneca College and president of the Ontario Association for Continuing Education.

The seminar is sponsored by the college and the Ontario Association for Continuing Education, with arrangements being made by the United Community Services of Belleville and district.

Waterfronts Quarries Environment and the Public

Brockville Recorder and Times

Perhaps there is a lesson for Brockville in the manner in which Kingston area people jealously guard calls for public access to water and to preserve their environment. They have succeeded in saving a large tract of land for waterfront park purposes, are fighting for another such section of land and are fighting against the development of a huge quarry.

After years of prodding by public bodies and public spirited citizens, Kingston township has approved the purchase of 8,300 feet of lake front for park development. The provincial government will contribute $250,000 towards the project after the land is acquired. At the same time the township council is being attacked over a zoning change that would make another 4,000 feet of water frontage available for residential development. People want it preserved for park use, and they have urged the Ontario Municipal Board to reverse the decision of the township council and planning board. To the east of Kingston residents are fighting for the production of limestone to be turned into cement.

Remarks made at the time of the planning board's decision in Kingston have a very familiar ring here. "How long does it take to get through planners' heads that waterfront property should never be closed to the public? Such access is already so scarce in the province as to constitute one of the more acrimonious public issues of the day."

In Brockville, as much of the waterfront as possible (and them some) was zoned as public open space when the official plan was last revised in 1964. Much of the land on the banks of the creeks was made greenbelt too. But opposition in Brockville was in the reverse of that in Kingston. Here the plans for open space and greenbelt were opposed by owners and their representatives who didn't want their land controlled to such a manner. And they were within their rights. The city can only rightfully freeze land if it owns it or intends to purchase it. But there wasn't any outcry when the proposed zoning had to be reversed. The city wasn't asked or urged to act in favor of more public access to the waterfront and the creeks.

We've had the closing of two or three streets that run to the river and this action hasn't brought but a ripple of opposition. In Kingston, it would have brought a storm of protest we can imagine. It should here too. There should be no more streets closing involving riverfront property and where possible those streets closed should be reopened.

As for the quarries, there still isn't any great opposition to them in this area, yet it is likely that we have some of the biggest holes in the ground in the quarry business in Ontario. We think of the quarry east of the city and the Lyn sand pits. The sand pit area we would hope, has been preserved at last for park development. Some such plan was intended as a centennial project but it didn't seem to jell. Some of the land in the area, principally the swimming hole, will be developed by the Cataraqui Region Conservation Authority. The Authority should be urged to preserve and develop the Lyn Falls area of the Lyn Creek, and the valley, as a public park.

In Kingston Professor Lower of Queen's University viewed the opposition to zoning change away from public use as a "prime example of the people fighting hard to save their rights. . . public access to water".

There is a parallel in Brockville, in that the Yacht Club has completed plans for further development in Tunnel Bay and while they do not intend to cut off public access to the Bay, the plans of the club call for a change in the location of that public access and a reduction in the size of the public access. The city had ample opportunity to acquire the rights. The city didn't do it. People had the opportunity to urge the city to act. They didn't. Now the Yacht Club plans appear an accomplished fact in so far as legal right is concerned. It remains to be seen whether the public is sufficiently interested to fight the plan on moral grounds.

Agricultural Scene

The recent "give-away" of farm produce in this area might seem an odd way of demonstrating low net farm income. If they are so badly off, people might reason, how come they can afford to throw it away. The answer likely is that they have nothing to lose. And as farm union officials pointed out, it provided an opportunity for the farmers to better acquaint urban dwellers in Belleville and Picton with their problems.

Low returns and high cost of production then were the key elements in this foray by the farm community. But it seems rather ironic that only recently, at the end of March, Ontario Agriculture and Food Minister William Stewart announced expansion of the provisions of the capital grants program for farmers. While these provisions may have little direct bearing on production returns, they do provide assistance for farmers in various ways. They are designed, for instance, to assist farmers to finance improvements necessary to lower production costs and improve their income. At least that is how Mr. Stewart put it in his statement on March 31.

Under the expansion program the maximum amount available to a farmer has been increased by $500 to $3,000. In a partnership of two or more persons this sum is doubled to $6,000. Moreover, whereas in the past capital grants have been based on varying percentages of the cost of the works provided, all grants are now based on 40 per cent of the cost. The farmer himself decides whether he will use all of his capital grant allotment for a single project, or if he wishes to spread it out over the several classes of projects. However, any individual is limited to $1,500 on the projects assisted by ARDA — for example, field enlargement, farm water supply and orchard removal.

In addition to removal of diseased and dead elm trees, a new classification eligible for a capital grant is one that is adding an interesting dimension to both farm life and vacation facilities in Ontario. That is, farm vacation hosting.

Mr. Stewart noted that many urban families are anxious to spend vacations on farms and this was seen as a potentially important source of new farm income. To encourage this grants are being made available under ARDA. For location of facilities necessary to get the farm home up to a suitable standard. These come under such headings as plumbing installations, wiring, structural renovations and the provision of fire exits.

Understandably, it must be demonstrated that such facilities are necessary and another requirement is that husband-wife teams must attend a training course, as well as making a long-term commitment to the program. And, as a special research project of ARDA, the family also must agree to maintain accurate records from the venture. Grants for this are on the basis of 40 per cent of the cost of the facilities, to a maximum of $1,500 per family.

There is merit in this and other aspects of the capital grants program to aid farmers. If there are still inadequacies, or if farmers feel they are still underprivileged members of society then we must look to other reasons. The industry is undergoing change, many have left farming and moved into the cities and into other endeavors. On the other hand, as the Agriculture Minister noted, more and more farm families are consolidating their holdings, entering into partnerships and incorporated farm businesses. As already pointed out, such partnerships may obtain a grant of 6,000.

Anything the individual farmer can do to improve the operation and the standard of living, and anything the Government (and through it the taxpaying public) can do to encourage this vital endeavor is to be welcomed. The farmers themselves are right to demonstrate any inadequacies that exist. Let us ensure that they, and the agricultural industry they represent, continue with a due measure of prosperity.

Return Flight

One of the signs of returning warmth these days are flights of Canada geese. Almost daily they may be seen, heading for their nesting grounds. One of the great sights of nature, the birds wing through the strengthening blue of the Spring sky, in familiar V formation, or as sometimes is the case, in more straggling fashion.

President Woos Conservative Voters

Nixon the Politician with an Eye to 1972 Election

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — The president is giving way to the politician more frequently these days as Richard Nixon begins the serious job of fitting together a constituency of American voters to re-elect him in 1972.

There have been quiet shuffles among the small army of White House staffers, freeing several low-ranking aides to move into private offices nearby where they can organize an election campaign.

New faces have been added to the roster of publicists, and old faces have been given new assignments—all designed to put the "real Nixon" across to voters who might have been convinced they already knew who the real Nixon was when they elected him president in 1968.

Perhaps more significantly, Nixon has begun paying more attention to stabilizing or winning back the voting strength which helped him beat the Democrats's Hubert Humphrey four years ago.

Close observers of the political scene believe some of the elements of the president's hoped for electorate—many of them past supporters, others new—include the basically conservative ranks of Middle America, the farmers, the Roman Catholics and the white ethnics.

Geographically, it appears that Nixon will concentrate on improving Republican strength in the Middle West and the West while trying once again to lure the South away from the Democrats or, if he runs, Gov. George Wallace of Alabama.

The irony of the voters fall into more than one pro-Nixon category, so much the better for the president. He presumably knows now what the political scientists have demonstrated for years—that few voters decide on the basis of a single issue, even one as potent as Vietnam or unemployment. Most are guided by tradition, tempered by their reactions to a variety of issues weighed on a personal scale of values.

Nixon opened his campaign for the farm vote by extending elaborate hospitality to a farm delegation to the White House lawn last week. And Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin has recently announced several measures designed to put more money into the pockets of farmers, who traditionally vote Republican but have lately become disenchanted.

The president's recent out-of-the-blue statement on abortion—as "unacceptable" means of population control, he called it—is regarded here as an attempt to woo some of the Roman Catholic vote away from Senator Edmund Muskie, a Catholic who is the leading Democratic presidential candidate at the moment.

The administration's unenthusiastic reaction to a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling on school desegregation appears to reflect accurately the sentiments of suburbia.

The administration has said it will uphold the court's decision, which permits buses to be used to break down state-imposed color lines in the schools, but civil-rights advocates suspect there will be little vigor in the federal government.

As for Vietnam and the ailing economy—the two themes which the Democrats have been pumping hardest—reports from the inner circles at the White House repeatedly speak of Richard Nixon's confidence that they will be solved by election time in November, 1972.

"Anyone who tries to make a political issue out of Vietnam is going to have the rug pulled from under him." Nixon has been quoted as telling his staff.

No Drugs, Attendance Limited Says Teacher-Sponsor Of Canadian Culture Camp

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Thank you for your inquiry concerning the Canadian Cultural Camp which I plan to hold in August. It is something new so I can expect a lot of misunderstanding concerning the event.

First of all, I'm an Ontario high school teacher from Port Colborne and I'm completing my Master's degree in outdoor education from Michigan State University. I have been on sabbatical leave in the United States for the last year. I can assure you that if we as Canadians are not careful, we might fall into the same mess in which the Americans find themselves.

One of the best ways of not falling into this mess is to keep open the lines of communication between young people and older people, between the police and the rest of society. In the process of keeping these lines of communication open, we have to promote Canadian culture in order to prevent absorption by the United States.

With these ideas in mind, I received permission to hold a camp for the month of August so that senior high school and university students as well as adults could meet Canadian celebrities in politics, arts and crafts, music (there is no electricity at the camp) and literature. Having met and talked with these people, the students could return to their schools and establish a "Canada Day" to which they would invite Canadian celebrities and discuss Canadian literature, arts, politics, etc.

Unfortunately, a former student of mine got so excited after I told him about the event that in a burst of youthful enthusiasm, he made up some posters and circulated them with a lot of youth-talk on them. This he did without my knowledge and the posters have led to some misunderstandings.

When interested persons apply for admission to the camp, I ask their areas of interest in addition to Canadian celebrities. Here are some additional areas of interest that we will be studying: homesteading in Canada, wilderness survival, yoga, orienteering, organic agriculture, folk singing, Canadian-American relations and pollution.

I will be happy if I break even on the camp. I have no intentions of making money from it. The price is $5 per week or $12 for the month of August. But people attending must supply their own tent and food, although food will be sold at the site.

In order to prevent an ecological disaster, attendance will be limited to 200 regular people with no more than 50 children during any one day. This means an absolute limit of one person per acre.

The Canadian Broadcasting System has shown its interest in covering the event and I am in the process of inviting them. You, too, are invited to come the camp as are any bona fide news people. But I'll have to limit the number of newspeople to approximately 20 or we will have all news people and no one else.

A number of high school teachers have volunteered their services for the month. The Ontario Provincial Police will be invited to play volleyball with people in the camp, in order to keep open the lines of communication between young people and the police. I am writing a full report on the camp with the hope that it can be repeated if it is successful. If it is successful, it should give a grassroots boost to Canadian culture and communication.

There is one rule that will be strictly enforced by me personally. Absolutely No Illegal Drugs! I am witnessing here in the United States what drugs are doing to young people and the results are worse than tragic.

I welcome ideas and suggestions from interested people concerning the camp. I especially welcome help from farmers who can tell younger people about growing crops with natural fertilizers and without chemicals.

Until June 20 my address is 1402 Spartan Village, M.S.U., E. Lansing, Michigan 48823, Telephone 355-1214.

After June 20, contact me at 147 Tennessee Ave., Port Colborne, Ontario. Telephone 835-8051.

Robert Baldwin, joint premier of United Canada with Louis Hippolyte Lafontaine, was born in York (now Toronto) 178 years ago today.

In 1804, Baldwin and Lafontaine provided a model of radical co-operation and each was once defeated for Parliament and then elected for a seat from the other's province. The second Baldwin-Lafontaine ministry, of 1848, gained the Rebellion Losses Bill and established the principle of responsible government in Canada.

1862—President Kennedy ordered federal troops into Birmingham, Ala., to keep order during a civil rights demonstration.

1960—Prince Ali Khan, son of the late Aga Khan, was killed in an auto race at Paris.

1958—Alf Hales Fairclough, former state secretary, became minister of citizenship and immigration.

1957—The wreckage of a TCA airliner missing with 62 aboard since Dec. 3, 1956, was found on a mountain near Chilliwack, B.C.

1938—Japan captured the island of Amoy from China.

1937—King George VI and Queen Elizabeth were crowned. Canadian troops participated in the coronation.

1935—Marshal Pilsudski of Poland died.

1902—The Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway began construction.

1859—France and Piedmont declared war on Austria.

Festival Health Rules Laid Down by MOH

Sanitation requirements for rock festivals in this county have been outlined by municipal officer of health Dr. C. R. Lenk in a letter to LEJJ Enterprises, promoters of the proposed festival in Madoc township, July 3, 4 and 5.

Under the festival bylaw passed by Madoc township council, the medical officer of health must give written assurance to the township clerk that his requirements have been met.

In his letter, Dr. Lenk said that his office will require, by June 1, copies of LEJJ Enterprises' contracts with the firms that will supply food and toilet facilities.

At the same time he will require an affidavit issued by a testing expert regarding the capacity of the well on the Quinlan farm where the festival is slated to take place.

By June 15, installations of washing facilities and disposal sites should be ready for inspection.

The letter from the MOH went out May 3.

The regulations prohibit preparation of food for sale on the premises. Prepared food sold on the site must be brought in by licensed caterers.

At least 400 toilets must be available on the site, with the contractor providing the pump-out facilities and a sewage disposal site.

The promoters must provide space for at least 100 people to wash at one time, and continuously running drinkable water must be supplied to the spaces. As much as three gallons a person a day may be required, says Dr. Lenk.

The area designated for emergency services must be provided with water and toilet facilities, garbage disposal containers should be supplied in adequate numbers and arrangement made for regular dumping of their contents, and provision will have to be made to truck in water in case the well supply proves inadequate.

Last week James Quinlan Sr. told The Intelligencer that toilet contractors charge $5 a day for providing and servicing each toilet.

Cost of 400 toilets for the three-day festival would be $6,000.

Madoc township council last week turned down a request by LEJJ Enterprises for extension of the time limits required for meeting bylaw provisions. The township solicitor told the Intelligencer that passing of a new bylaw would be required before an extension could be given.

Spokesman for the Quinlan family enterprises refused to indicate whether they would be required before an extension could be given.

Spokesman for the Quinlan family enterprises refused to indicate whether they would proceed with the festival.

Last year's financial losses combined with mounting municipal opposition may prevent re-creation of last year's mammoth musical events in the province.

John Brower, promoter of Strawberry Fields at Mosport, said he lost $50,000 on the festival and "won't be involved in anything of this nature in Ontario this year." He is reported to be organizing an event in Louisiana this summer.

George Eaton, one of the promoters of Festival Express, which lost about $350,000 on concerts in Toronto, Winnipeg and Calgary last year, blamed the decline of festivals on "the people who go to them who don't feel they should contribute anything else but their presence."

Only one producer of rock festivals said he plans another this year. He is 19-year-old Craig Quinn of Sarnia, who put on a quiet and financially successful festival for 3,500 people last summer. He plans a slightly larger venture in the same area for two days late in August. The township has no bylaws covering such events, and has expressed no opposition to a small - scale festival.

A. B. R. Lawrence, Ontario health minister says he has no plans to bring in regulatory legislation in the near future.

Plan Action Awaits Report

The conceptual plan for Belleville's downtown urban renewal study has been in the hands of city council for almost two months and the city fathers still haven't made an official comment.

The plan has been viewed by several community organizations with comments and suggestions invited for possible amendments and the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board has gone on record as being against the proposed widening of Church Street as a main north south artery.

The resolution was passed along to council for its approval but members took no action, merely ordering the motion to be received.

Mayor J. Russell Scott asked when council was going to get around to accepting, rejecting, or proposing amendments to the conceptual plan.

Alderman Donald Soutter noted, however, that council had directed Totten Sims and Hubicki to consider Church Street in its study of north-south arterial routes in the city.

The report of the consulting engineers is expected some time during July and the aldermen suggested the city was "hung up" on discussion of the conceptual plan until the report was received.

PUC Seeks to Act As Water Agent

The Belleville Public Utilities Commission yesterday agreed to act as agents for water distribution in Belleville, Thurlow Township and Sidney Township when the source of supply becomes Lake Ontario.

The commission agreed to notify the OWRC they are willing to take on this task and at the same time recommended acceptance of a two-reservoir plan.

At yesterday's meeting of the PUC, manager E. L. Burnham outlined two plans . . . one for a reservoir near Wallbridge, the other for two reservoirs, one in Belleville's Industrial Park, the second near Herchimer Avenue.

He said the Ontario Water Resources Commission, in proposing the two plans, was seeking reaction from area municipalities, and would probably base part of their decision on these reactions.

The proposed pipeline from Lake Ontario would cross Prince Edward County to a future reservoir near Roblin Lake and from this point would branch off into Quinte area municipalities.

Utilities commissioner Dr J. R. Scott referred to the two-reservoir plan in Belleville as the "most logical scheme . . . a big saving."

The commission will forward its recommendations, together with the proposal to act as agent to the OWRC.

"We're equipped and feel we could take on the job," as agent, said Mr. Burnham.

As agent, the PUC would handle billing, collecting, reading of meters, maintenance and extension of the service in Belleville and the two neighboring townships.

Mayor's Misinterpretation

Flood Control Dam Not Dead

A claim by Mayor J. Russell Scott that grants for an ice and flood control dam on the Moira River had been cancelled was this morning termed a misinterpretation by Norm Patrick, director of the conservation branch, Ontario department of energy and resources management.

At a public utilities meeting yesterday Mayor Scott expressed concern for loss of future employment and termed the "cancellation" a poor pre - election year move. "I don't know what they're trying to prove . . . they've cut right back on everything," he stated.

Mr. Patrick, in a telephone interview this morning, detailed the dam scheme had been slashed.

He said because of a heavy project workload of conservation authorities across the province, capital grants are allocated only to those projects which are complete on paper and ready to commence. "In connection with the proposed ice control dam, our understanding is that the engineering and preliminary studies are not complete. We are not convinced that moneys could be spent this year, so for this reason we have not allocated the money requested."

He added that once the final report is submitted on the model, further work would be required before approval is given.

"If it reaches this stage this year, it is reasonable that we would endeavour to find the cash flow," he stated.

Mr. Patrick explained that conservation authorities across Ontario have submitted plans which would call for twice the funds available in the provincial departmental capital grants budget. Because of this and to ensure adequate governmental control, the government provides funds for those projects which can be undertaken in a given year. In this way, grants aren't left unused to show up as a surplus in an authority's year-end statement.

The conservation director added that cash flow allocations are determined independently of approval of the project by the minister.

He forwarded assurances that it is "our interest to see that this type of work gets done."

Blade Roast Substitutes for Stewing Beef

The Europeans know how to eat well — nutritiously and economically too. Borrow from their thrift and skill and make main course beef and vegetable soup. Mary Moore gives each step in detail.

By MARY MOORE

My mail represents a cross section of Canadian cooks and they are in despair over the high price of beef. Of course, we can switch to pork and lamb and chicken but so many are lifelong beefeaters this is an uneasy transition.

When I asked for stewing beef to make soup the butcher himself said "Mam why don't you buy a blade roast at $1 and cut it up yourself? Our boneless stewing beef is 99 cents per pound this week." So I did.

I sliced and diced enough to fill 3 cups for the soup and cut wafer thin slices for Steak Teriyaki (see Friday). Every item in this hearty pot of soup except the rice is produced in Canada and results in a very economical meal.

MAIN COURSE BEEF AND VEGETABLE SOUP
(10 Servings)

9 cups water
3 cups (1¼ lbs.) diced stewing beef (see above)
(Soup bone if any)
1 tbsp. beef cordial
1 tbsp. salt
¼ tsp. black pepper
¼ cup rice
1 cup broken up noodles
1 cup diced (¼") carrots
1 med. onion chopped
1 med. parsnip diced (¼")
1½ cups chopped celery (about 3 outside stalks)
1 cup shredded cabbage

Into the soup pot measure the water and meat (and bone if you have one) and turn on heat and add all remaining ingredients as you get them ready. Bring to boil, reduce heat, cover and simmer 4 hrs. Remove bone if any.

This results in thick hearty soup, that is nourishing and perfectly satisfactory for a main course — as the Europeans use thick soups. We served ours with homemade bread fresh from the oven. Luverly.

Defensive Driving

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul Lebœuf, general manager of the Province of Quebec Safety League, says it is not enough for drivers to obey traffic rules. They must also practice defensive driving to situations that cause accidents — expecting and making allowances for reckless and careless actions of others.

Church Groups

ST. PAUL'S ACW, MARMORA

Mrs. Don Robertson was hostess for St. Paul's ACW meeting on May 4 with an attendance of 15 members.

The treasurer's report, given by Mrs. Roy Frost, showed a substantial profit from the weekly card parties and a wedding reception that had been catered for.

The secretary, Mrs. Ira Edwards, read a letter from the Diocesan headquarters in Kingston outlining the ACW budget for the coming year and suggesting an objective for each branch.

Mrs. Lavender announced that many useful articles had already been turned in for the deanery bale to be packed at Holy Trinity Church, Frankford on May 26 and shipped to Rev. E. W. Cole at Easterville, Manitoba.

Rev. John Lombard reported that repairs to the stained glass windows in the church will soon be undertaken.

Mrs. Lavender thanked the members who had taken part in the Cancer Fund Drive in April.

A committee meeting will be called soon to plan for the visit of Bishop Neville Clark of Moosonee to Marmora on May 25 and the Induction Service for Rev. Lombard on June 8.

Mrs. Gordon Bennett of the Marmora Chapter IODE thanked St. Paul's ACW for their donation towards the IODE project of providing underwear for the students at Davis Inlet School, Labrador and read a letter from the principal, which described some of the difficulties the teachers encounter at a residential school. Mrs. Bennett also had pictures of some of the 109 children at the school.

Mrs. Earl Leonard and Miss Shirley Lummiss assisted Mrs. Robertson with serving refreshments.

Ann Landers

Social Worker Gives Interesting Pointers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: On occasion you print letters suggesting Do's and Don'ts from people who know the score. Here is a letter which might be of help when you visit a young mother who has lost a baby at birth.

1. Don't say: "Get pregnant again as soon as you regain your strength." She might not want or be able to get pregnant right away and perhaps she should not do so for medical reasons.

2. Don't say: "Adopt a baby." I am a social worker and I know that no reputable agency will let a couple adopt a baby just to replace one that died.

3. Don't play doctor and tell a woman what went wrong or what should have been done to save the baby. You cannot possibly know any of these things.

4. Don't pass up the opportunity to do something constructive — such as bring a little gift to the other children when you go to call. Remember they are probably disappointed because the precious baby was not brought home.

5. When you visit a woman who has just lost a baby, don't ask questions. Let her lead the conversation. She might want to talk endlessly about her grief — and she might want to talk about everything else but. Real friends understand. — SALLY.

DEAR SALLY: I learn from my readers every day. Thanks for some practical pointers.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was married a couple of weeks ago in the apartment of a girl I work with. It was a very small wedding. Only 22 people present including the minister. Through some mixup my parents were not invited.

My mother always promised that when I got married she would give me my grandmother's dishes. My parents are not well-to-do but my grandparents were quite rich when they lived in Hungary. I need dishes very badly and would like it very much if my mother would keep her promise.

She is quite cute for a mother and I want to know what is the best way to remind her — BRIDE WITHOUT DISHES.

* * *

DEAR BRIDE: The casual manner in which you state that your parents were not invited to your wedding due to "some mixup" is interesting indeed. How mixed up can a girl get?

My advice is to buy dishes — whatever you can afford. Your mother will probably give you the china at a later date — after she has recovered from a devastating blow. It might take years.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read in a recent column that the last breath of fresh air in the United States disappeared three weeks ago — and it was in Flagstaff, Arizona. I have some news for you, Ann.

Maybe Flagstaff, Arizona is out of fresh air but we still have plenty of it here in Thermopolis, Wyoming. In fact, we have the cleanest, freshest air and the bluest sky in the United States. There's no pollution here. Our sunrises and sunsets are spectacular.

If you don't believe me, please come and see for yourself. It's beyond description. — A LADY WHO LIVES IN THERMOPOLIS AND LOVES IT.

* * *

DEAR LADY: I just checked the map and I see that Thermopolis is located in north central Wyoming — a two hour drive from National Yellowstone Park, via U.S. 20 and WYO 120. I'm packing.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Timmy, please be quiet. What are you fussing about? Timmy, leave that cat alone. I better call you back, Madge. Timmy always acts up when I'm on the phone."

Children seem to resent Mother's involvement with the telephone and use the occasion to get into mischief or to act in annoying ways. Plan ahead and devise ideas to keep your child content and in sight while you're talking on the phone.

Fill a small basket with special quiet playtime toys and keep it near the telephone. When the phone rings, hand Timmy the basket so he will play near you while you talk.

Successful Living

All Work Makes Jack A Dull Man

By DORIS CLARK

Because most of us hail from a stock of hard-working pioneers, it is said that "we cling to the Puritan ethic about work.

This is to the effect that to work is virtuous; to enjoy leisure, sinful. Perhaps that is why so many of us seem to drive ourselves all the time, and boast about how busy we are.

Anyway, the psychiatrists are desperately reminding us of the dangers of an all-work-and-no-play attitude. With shorter work days and work weeks the battle is going to be not to the strong, but to those who have some imaginative and useful ways to occupy a wonderful gift of free time.

To do it right, you need to learn how to play and how to explore your world long before you have grown up and old. The man who retires after a long life of long hours of work and nothing much else, finds himself with empty hands.

Dear Doris: We are planning a complete outdoor wedding on my parents' farm.

Do you have any information on garden weddings and outdoor receptions? We both want the occasion to be very informal and fun for everyone.

Any ideas for procession, arrangement of buffet-style dinner and so on, would be welcome.—Looking For Ideas

Dear Looking: How lovely to have a garden setting for a wedding!

There is no difference whatever in the ceremony.

At a given signal the minister, groom and best man emerge from the house. The bride's procession comes along a few moments later and may march down a single strip of carpet, or a path marked out with two rows of white ribbons.

The recessional returns the party to the house to sign the register, then back to the garden to form a receiving line.

Serve a buffet-style dinner, and provide small tables and chairs where guests may sit around. Have a separate table for beverages and a family friend to pour tea.

Dear Doris: I saw a request for the old song May I Sleep In Your Barn Tonight, Mister? I just ran across it and am sending along a copy.

I never miss reading your column. I'm sure you have helped a lot of people bear their crosses. It helps to tell someone about our troubles, doesn't it? — Just Laura

Dear Laura: There is sheer magic in way a load is lifted by telling it all to someone who understands. Did the listener has to know how to listen, and to really care.

Thank you, too, for sharing the lovely poems you wrote yourself.

There's always something to do about what's troubling you. A letter to Doris, a Canadian social worker, is a step in the right direction.

You're going to be a hairdresser...

Be a good one.

Take Off Fat With Home Recipe Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your druggists and ask for Naran. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonful twice a day as needed and follow the Naran Reducing Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Note this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Northern Policy: State Socialism or Do-nothing Approach?

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's policies for northern development were labelled in the Commons Tuesday as a vast experiment in state socialism and a do-nothing approach leading to the rape of resources by U.S. corporations.

Lloyd R. Crouse (PC—South Shore) said Canada and the government are prisoners of appointed bureaucrats interested only in the north to test socialist policies.

New Democrat Leader David Lewis accused the government of permitting "a greedy and reckless depletion of non-renewable resources for very little purpose other than to ship them out of this country, mainly to the United States."

They were speaking in debate on a Conservative non-confidence motion attacking the government for what the motion said is a failure to offer a plan for profitable development of human, capital and natural resources in the north.

The New Democrats added an amendment urging policies covering foreign ownership, environmental protection and native rights.

Debate on the non-confidence motion continues today.

Mr. Lewis said governments past and present had failed to plan northern development in the interests of the native peoples, the rest of Canada and the world.

"We are making it impossible for this country to meet the needs of the world as well as of Canada."

While mining and oil companies—most U.S.-owned—had been given tax concessions to pull resources out of the ground, little had been done to develop processing industries.

Only 4.5 per cent of employees in mining in the north were Indians and Eskimos.

Mr. Crouse agreed more incentives should be available to encourage processing of resources in Canada.

Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin said the Liberals had "scoffed, jeered and poured contempt" on Conservative programs to develop the north, when John Diefenbaker was prime minister.

"Defences are like trousers," Mr. Baldwin said. "They should be kept up at all times."

"Unfortunately the government's defences are down here and there has been a most improper and indecent exposure of the government's insignificant and irrelevant programs with regard to northern development."

Steve Otto (L—York East) said the opposition was making a mistake—" fallacious presumption"—assuming the government has any policies at all.

In fact it just goes from one crisis to the next. That was shown by what he called its panic reactions to the proposed sales of Denison Mines last year and Home Oil this year.

But he suggested the opposition could not do much better. "Under the parliamentary system it is about impossible to form policies for any length of time."

Royal Party Leaves Today After 10-day B.C. Centennial Tour

VANCOUVER (CP) — Queen Elizabeth, Prince Philip and Princess Anne were to leave Vancouver International Airport today to return to Britain after their 10-day centennial tour of British Columbia.

Following a state dinner at B.C. Government House in Victoria Tuesday, the Royal Family sailed for Vancouver aboard the royal yacht Britannia in the last leg of the tour.

Apart from the official airport farewell, the only remaining ceremony of the visit today was to be the unveiling of a plaque at the site of a new CBC building in downtown Vancouver.

The ceremony had been scheduled to be performed by Princess Anne Friday but was postponed when her engagements were cancelled because of a stomach upset.

She was then expected to carry out the plaque-veiling today, but a recurrence of her illness late Tuesday—which caused her to miss the glittering state dinner in Victoria—left the possibility that the Queen or Prince Philip would do the honors in her place.

Anne's ailment which also forced her to cancel program activities on Saturday, was the irony of the tour because all the concern had originally centred around her mother's health.

Before the Royal Family arrived May 3 the Queen had been fighting a persistent virus infection, but although at the start of the 3,719-mile trek she looked a little strained, she didn't miss a single engagement.

In Victoria Tuesday night, she was the epitome of regal elegance in a yellow satin gown embroidered with motifs of pearl and amber beads. On her softly curled hair she wore a diamond tiara and she was also wearing the jade and gold necklace presented to her last week by the provincial government.

Speaking under the blaze of television spotlights, she warned British Columbians that a "pleasant climate, glorious scenery and a generous allotment of resources do not by themselves guarantee a happy and satisfactory life."

"Neither," she said, "do they guarantee that the best use will be made of these assets in the future."

The creation and maintenance of a civilized community depend upon the will and determination of the people as a whole, working through a system of democratic institutions."

There were brief speeches, too, from Lt.-Gov. John Nicholson and Premier W. A. C. Bennett, and the premier presented the Queen and Prince Philip with the medal and testimonial of the Order of the Dogwood, which he said was the highest honor the province could bestow.

He also asked Queen Elizabeth to accept a similar award for Princess Anne.

On a balmy night under a full moon many Victorians turned out for their last look at the royal visitors as they drove from Government House to Britannia. Later hundreds more lined the waterfront to watch the fireworks display marking the royal yacht's departure for Vancouver.

Visiting Firemen from Chile Find Police Curious But Kind

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial police Constable Glen Bowmaster's logbook now reads like an adventure novel after he spotted a 1929 car, plastered with stickers, marked by bullet holes and topped with a red dome light, travelling just north of Toronto Tuesday.

He stopped the car for a safety check, and the two occupants said they were from Chile.

The constable asked the two to accompany him to provincial police headquarters where the car could be checked. It was there that Ariel Betancourt and Roberto Schmidlin told their story.

They and two friends had set out from Chile in October of 1967 to see North America, each with $2 in his pocket. They were all volunteer firemen who wanted to see how other fire departments around the world operated.

Tragedy struck when their car was hit in the rear while travelling through California. One of the travellers was killed and another decided at that point to return to Chile.

How have the remaining two managed to survive with so little money?

They said firemen look after their own, and they have been given food and lodging at fire stations across the United States and Canada.

They also have accompanied firemen on calls, the last time being in nearby Oshawa Monday night.

What about the bullet holes?

They resulted when their group was attacked by guerrillas in Colombia.

Both men said they were treated well at provincial police headquarters.

"And their car passed the safety check with flying colors," said Constable Bowmaster.

Cent Libel Award Costs Writer $28,500

LONDON (Reuter) — A Hungarian-born novelist faces an estimated $28,500 legal bill after being awarded damages of a half a new penny (about one cent) Monday in a libel action brought against the West German magazine Stern.

Stephen Vizinczey, 38, author of In Praise Of Older Women, sued the publisher of Stern and the magazine's English distributors.

He claimed he was libelled by a Stern article which implied he was the libertine hero of his book.

Stern's publisher denied libel and claimed that the article was based on a publicity brochure issued with Vizinczey's content.

The magazine's English distributors—Seymour Press—were cleared of libel and the High Court ruled that Vizinczey should pay their court costs and his, estimated at $28,500.

Distributing $14 Million for Youth Program Proves Strain

OTTAWA (CP) — Distributing the first $14 million was a bit of a strain, even for the unlikely bureaucrats of the government's Opportunities for Youth program.

The next $10 million, however, should go more easily.

The extra money will have to be allocated at a rate of $1 million a day and a large number of unemployed students still will have to be left out.

But at least the 34-member staff of the program have had a chance to sort through most of the 10,000 applications from students wishing to create their own summer jobs.

And the administrators will be able to dip a little more deeply into a reserve pile of proposals that didn't win approval the first time around.

The break for the program was announced in the Commons Tuesday by Secretary of State Gerard Pelletier. As he had confidently predicted, the cabinet was putting another $10 million into the program and the approval process, he said later, would be completed not later than May 22.

The original deadline was May 15 and before the minister's statement, the pressure to meet it was intense.

Students have been demanding to know what they can expect and MPs made anxious inquiries about the fate of various proposals.

Adding to the stress has been the need to get in touch with successful applicants as soon as possible at the expense of notifying others that their proposals have been rejected.

In other cases, program administrators have delayed approval while trying to find out more about a specific project. The critics have been quick to protest that the rules are changed as the program goes along.

"Because this program was introduced so late in the day, because it is so inadequately funded and because its administrative apparatus has not yet had time to properly take hold, the program is bound to be a mess," said Doug Rowland (NDP—Selkirk) in the Commons last week.

Top public servants responsible for the program have not taken kindly to such criticism.

Bernard Ostry, assistant under-secretary of state, made clear in an interview this week that the program is on its way to success, and on schedule.

"We were faced with an incredible response but nothing I can see is out of kilter."

A less formal but equally buoyant optimism is injected by Cam Mackie, 33, co-ordinator of the program and previously a community development adviser for the welfare department.

"Applications were coming in for the first two weeks after the program was announced (March 15) and that was fine for us. But then they started to build up and by the deadline on April 15 we were getting 1,000 a day."

By April 15, 8,500 applications had been received and another 2,000 arrived shortly after. By early this week, 809 had been recommended for approval, providing a total of close to 9,000 jobs.

The extra money pumped in by the government Tuesday may mean approval for 2,000 or more of the projects.

Provinces Study Pollution Controls

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The problems of enforcing pollution laws were raised in two provincial legislatures Tuesday.

In Fredericton, the New Brunswick legislature gave the government's Clean Environment Act committee-of-the-whole approval with few objections from the opposition Liberals.

The legislation gives the government power to set water, soil and air standards and sets out stiff penalties for violations.

However, Environmental Affairs Minister G. W. N. Cockburn said, when he introduced the bill, he could not predict when actual regulations would be drafted or enforced.

His admission earned him the congratulations of Norbert Theriault (L—Northumberland) who said he was pleased the minister had the frankness to admit the act is basically enabling legislation doing little more than indicating the government's intentions.

In Toronto, Patrick Lawlor (NDP—Toronto Lakeshore) told the Ontario house certain industries were thumbing their noses at anti-pollution regulations by illegally dumping their wastes into streams in the early hours of the morning.

He was not mollified by Energy and Resources Minister George Kerr's reply that officials have followed trucks loaded with industrial waste after citizen complaints but have not caught anyone.

The government, said Mr. Lawlor, places a great deal of reliance on citizen reports.

Mr. Kerr was on the spot again when he told the house the government is not going to attempt to clear up the mercury contaminating the St. Clair River because it would cost too much.

The government has launched a $25-million suit against Dow Chemical of Canada Ltd., charging that its Sarnia plant is responsible for the mercury pollution. The government is also seeking a court order requiring Dow to clean up the river.

DDT Link Seen To Infertility

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. government scientists have concluded that a suspected link between DDT and human infertility warrants attention but not an immediate ban of the pesticide.

Two Environmental Protection Agency scientists who reviewed DDT experiments with rats said the test failed to demonstrate an imminent hazard to human health.

The tests with rats were conducted by Dr. W. Leroy Heinrichs, a gynecologist, and Dr. Ronald L. Gellert, a physiologist, both of the University of Washington.

The doctors reported an experimental link between DDT and ovarian cysts in offspring of laboratory rats. They said a corresponding condition causing infertility was detected with increasing frequency in women.

As a result of Heinrichs-Gellert findings that DDT might have caused the infertility, EPA launched a study whose results were sent Tuesday to Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus.

An EPA source told The Associated Press the report suggests the findings be considered in the continuing review of Ruckelshaus's decision to seek cancellation of all uses of DDT.

Ruckelshaus began procedures last March 18 to ban all DDT uses because of suspicions it may cause cancer, mutations and birth defects, at least in experimental animals.

But he allowed DDT to remain on the market during the review, which could take a year or more, because, he said, there was no evidence of imminent hazard to human health.

Dr. O. Garth Fitzhugh, EPA's toxicology adviser, said in an interview Tuesday the experiments used a form of DDT to which humans ordinarily receive little exposure.

"I don't think from a practical standpoint it (infertility) would occur in humans," he added. "I see no imminent hazard."

"Since DDT does cross the placental barrier and has been demonstrated in human fetal tissues," Heinrichs reported, "the possibility exists that some forms of infertility or menstrual irregularity in adults are associated with the presence of this ubiquitous chemical."

THE COMPLETE CHESS COURSE by Fred Reinfeld.

This is really eight books in on. Mr. Reinfeld is a famous professional player and author of several books on chess. This book is most comprehensive, and provides the instruction that any chessplayer needs to develop a respectable degree of skill.

THE BRIGHT SIDE OF CHESS by Irving Chernev

Mr. Chernev's book makes instructive reading — mainly because his chief purpose is to entertain. He writes only about what gives him pleasure and he writes about it with the flair of the born raconteur. He knows that most people learn more rapidly from material which is seemingly artless and effortless.

THE FIRESIDE BOOK OF CHESS edited by Irving Chernev and Fred Reinfeld.

This book accents the lighter side of chess and the reader will enjoy many hours of relaxation and entertainment. The chess games in 'Fireside Book of Chess' were selected for their brevity and brilliance.

THE TREASURY OF CHESS LORE edited by Fred Reinfeld

Chess is an ancient game with an ever-growing appeal to the public all over the world, and this book, written by a professional and practiced player is ideal for those who wish to learn the rudiments of sound strategy and tactics.

CHESS THEORY AND PRACTICE by W. Ritson Morry and W. Melville Mitchell.

As a battle of wits chess satisfies the human combative instinct, and as a sharpener of wits has few equals. This book aims to introduce the reader to a game which is becoming increasingly popular, especially among the young. As a result the demand for expert instruction is very great.

CHESS IN TEN LESSONS by Larry Evans

Larry Evans is a Grandmaster, the highest title that can be awarded by the International Chess Federation. All his knowledge and experience have gone into the creation of this work which not only provides a clear exposition of basic principles but also countless tips for the novice as well as the more advanced player. The questions of what to do and what not to do, and why, are answered fully in text and diagrams.

THE ADVENTURE OF CHESS by Edward Lasker

This is an engaging account of the history of chess. The story of the invention of chess and of its migrations throughout the globe, is in itself of absorbing interest. Actually one need not know how to play chess to enjoy some of its most fascinating aspects. This book, most of which deals with topics unrelated to the mechanism of the game will reveal many intriguing connections with our more significant activities, which even chess fans do not usually identify with their hobby.

DICTIONARY IF MODERN CHESS by Byrne J. Horton

This Dictionary of Modern Chess is offered primarily to all those who are seeking information which will help them to obtain a greater enjoyment and satisfaction in understanding and appreciating the language of chess players. It has also incorporated biographical sketches of chess players whose names have become part of our chess heritage.

QUESTION: When is the Tulip Festival in Ottawa this year?

ANSWER: The Canadian Tulip Festival in Ottawa begins May 15 and runs for two weeks. Originally Queen Juliana presented 100,000 bulbs to the Government of Canada, in appreciation of her wartime say in Ottawa. Now The Netherlands Government sends 15,000 bulbs annually. Tulips are everywhere. Over three million tulips blossom along driveways, and in massed groups on the banks of the Rideau Canal, with some 50,000 on Parliament Hill alone. Parades, fire works and regattas add to the excitement.

QUESTION: Are there any trailer parks within a 25-mile radius of Toronto I would like to visit there this summer.

ANSWER: There is trailer and tent accommodation at Woodland Park, 2½ miles east of Highway 48 on Steeles Ave., at Rouge Hills, one mile east of Sheppard Avenue, off Highway 2 on Greenwood Road and at Grand Valley, two miles north of Highway 2 off Valley Farm Road.

QUESTION: We are flying to Europe this summer and want to see as many countries as possible. I heard the Eurailpass is an economical way to travel. Where do I buy these and what do they cost?

ANSWER: The Eurailpass is one of Europe's best travel bargains. It's a pocketbook-sized pass which allows almost unlimited travel on more than 100,000 miles of track in 13 countries of Western Europe. Unfortunately, it's not valid in the United Kingdom or Greece. Major capitals are linked by 29 crack trains which zip along at an average speed of 90 miles an hour. The pass, which must be purchased on this side of the Atlantic, is good for first-class travel on trains. There are several types of Eurailpasses available through travel agents. The 21 - day pass costs $112.20, the one-month pass is priced at $140 and the two-month pass $204. These are good for travellers who want to see many places. It's usually a waste of money if you want to stay in any one country. However, European trains open charge for reservations, a good idea in peak months. The Eurailpass entitles you to free reservations. Moreover, you can get off the train wherever you like, knowing that in Europe the same train will show up at about the same time next day.

Most large European cities have lodging bureaus in railway stations and airline terminals. There is generally a large selection of hotels close by so you shouldn't have trouble finding a suitable room.

QUESTION: We would like to go to England this year. When do you consider the best time? We'll be there three weeks.

ANSWER: For London and Southern England May and early June or mid-September would be the best time to visit. From mid-June through to mid-September the island is too crowded for maximum pleasure. The only compensations are longer daylight hours and warmer weather. May is usually very nice with daytime temperatures around 62 degrees. It has the most days without rain. September temperature is usually around 65 degrees. However, English weather is always unpredictable.

Two new ferries will be operated by Canadian National Railways on the Cape Tormentine, New Brunswick to Borden, Prince Edward Island, runs. The ferries are expected to go into operation in late May, well before the start of the tourist season. Costing about $5 million apiece the ferries will increase the capacity of the service by at least 20 per cent. The vessels have a capacity for 150 cars and 500 passengers and will be able to load and unload and make the nine-mile crossing of the Northumberland Strait in one hour.

The Milwaukee Clipper, a cruise ship from Muskegon, Michigan, to Milwaukee, Wisconsin will not be operating this year. They are building a new ship to take its place.

Festival Prospects Look Good

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — The Stratford Festival could be headed for a record season this year with more performances, greater variety in entertainment and prospects for the largest audience in the festival's 19-year history.

The festival, launched in 1953 with six weeks of alternating performances of two Shakespearean plays on a $150,000 budget, this year will offer seven plays, 17 paid-admission concerts ranging from classical to pop, eight free concerts, three weeks of classical music classes, presentations by the National Theatre of Puppet Arts, Montreal Marionettes and the Canadian Mime Theatre, and an international film festival.

Total budget for the 1971 season, lengthened this year to include two weeks of student matinees and a week of previews prior to the official opening June 7, is a record $3 million. When the season ends Oct. 16, a record 310 performances will have been attended by possibly more than 375,000 persons.

Record attendance during any one season was 377,000 in 1969, compared with less than 54,000 in the festival's initial year.

With ticket sales running about five per cent ahead of last year at this time—the 1970 season fell short of 1969's record—the festival already has established one audience record, the biggest single week of ticket sales in the history of the main Festival Theatre, when $10,646 was taken in the last week of April.

Parley Stresses Needs of Asians

VANCOUVER (CP) — Greater awareness of the economic problems of the developing nations of Asia and more sensitivity towards their needs emerged Tuesday as a strong theme of the industrialized nations of the Pacific in their search for a safer investment climate.

Delegates to the Pacific Basin Economic Co-operation Council's annual meeting are considering a proposal for a charter on international investment, enumerating the rights and responsibilities of governments and corporations.

"Investors should be more sensitive and responsive to the developing countries," C. W. Robinson, president of Marcona Corp. of San Francisco and leader of the 60-strong American delegation to the conference, told a news conference.

He said he felt very strongly about the need for a re-evaluation of U.S. investors' policy" towards the developing countries.

U.S. delegates to the council, an organization of Australian, New Zealand, Japanese, Canadian and American businessmen, were asked last fall during executive meetings to come up with proposals for an international investment code-of-conduct.

Principal author of the proposed charter is Dr. Weldon Gibson, executive vice-president of Stanford Research Institute at Stanford University in Palo Alto, Calif.

A rapid rise in the number of world corporations operating across national boundaries and the growing importance of regional economic groupings such as the European Economic Community have provided the impetus for the idea of an investment charter," Dr. Gibson's position paper said.

It said an accelerating flow of investments across borders is essential to progress and to peace and security; thus it was important to create an international environment conducive to the free movement of capital.

Arctic Pollution Zone Called 'Itty Bitty' in Face of Needs

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — A University of Toronto professor said Tuesday Canada's creation of an arctic pollution zone was an "itty bitty" affair in the context of the disaster the world faces from growing pollution.

Dr. Donald Chant, chairman of the university's zoology department and an expert on ecology, discussed the Canadian decision in an interview.

He said that in the absence of international agreements which would protect the marine environment, Canada had to act the way it did in creating a 100-mile arctic pollution zone.

There is no international organization that could take the responsibility for the protection that Canada requires.

Chant, a director of the anti-pollution group called Pollution Probe, was one of six scientists who presented to Secretary General U Thant a document on the need for international action to protect the environment.

The document, approved, its sponsors say, by 2,100 environmental scientists, said the quality of the human environment is "deteriorating at an unprecedented rate."

Among other things, it calls for a moratorium on nuclear power plants and intensified programs through the world to control population growth.

The document, entitled A Message to Our 3.5 Billion Neighbors on Planet Earth from 2,100 Environmental Scientists, was agreed to by a group of scientists who met at Menton, France, last spring. It has been circulated around the Western world and received many backers. It also has received some support in East Bloc countries.

"Solutions to the actual problems of pollution, hunger, overpopulation and war may be simpler to find than the formula for the common effort through which the search for solutions must occur, but we must make a beginning."

Thant, in a statement welcoming the document, said global concern over the quality of man's environment "may prove to be the effusive force which can bind man together."

Chant, who played a key role in having the pesticide DDT banned in Ontario, told a news conference that projections of the past indicate that if man continues the way he is going, he is heading for "complete and total disaster."

A self-proclaimed nationalist, he said Canada had to act in the Arctic because there was a vacuum in international law. But the result, he said, was an anger, particularly from the United States, that the world does not need.

He said he does not think Canada's action will help in the larger problem of protecting the world's oceans.

Loan to Book Firm Opposed

TORONTO (CP) — The Book Society of Canada says a proposed government loan to financially-troubled McClelland and Stewart Ltd. of Toronto would give "unfair competitive advantage" to that firm.

The society, which publishes educational material, made the assessment Tuesday in a brief to the Ontario royal commission on book publishing.

It was referring to the commission's interim report last month, which suggested the government should lend close to $1 million to McClelland and Stewart.

The society said that even if the government refrains from taking an active part in controlling the company, McClelland and Stewart inevitably would receive special treatment in selling texts to the department of education.

Doubleday Canada Ltd., a wholly-owned subsidiary of a United States firm, said in another brief that priority often is given to books that will sell in both Canada and the United States. But if the firm feels a book will sell "well enough in the Canadian market alone to make it worth publishing, then we will publish it."

The company said it hopes to bring out between 18 and 20 Canadian books next year.

In another brief Tuesday, the commission was told it should urge the government to grant further assistance to foundering publishers.

William Clarke, vice-president of Clarke, Irwin and Co. Ltd., told the commission it should not wait for its final report to recommend government assistance to publishers in need.

He rejected the idea, during questioning, that provisions laid down for a loan would create undue government influence in McClelland and Stewart.

Habs Don't Please Coach

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens won the game, 5-2, over Chicago Black Hawks to even their Stanley Cup final at two games each, but coach Al MacNeil wasn't pleased with their over-all performance.

"We skated and forechecked for the first half of the game, but I thought we played too loosely later in the game and left ourselves open," said MacNeil.

The rookie coach was assessing the play of the Canadiens in a post-game interview and a check of statistics bore out his judgment.

Montreal and Chicago did all their scoring in the first two periods with the Canadiens holding a 16-10 shooting edge after one period and 28-27 after two.

The rough and tumble third period, marred by the first serious outbreak of fighting in the series, produced only nine shots on goal—five by Chicago.

Yvan Cournoyer's two second-period goals gave the Canadiens a psychological boost to victory. His first, scored as he stepped from the penalty box, made it 4-1. His second came with Chicago's Chico Maki in the penalty box.

Peter Mahovlich, Jean Beliveau and defenceman Guy Lapointe scored for Montreal in the first period. Beliveau's goal broke a 1-1 deadlock set up by Chicago's Stan Mikita.

Dennis Hull's fifth, playoff goal was sandwiched between Cournoyer's scores.

MacNeil said only Montreal's lead "saved them" and he would expect them to play a much tighter game in Chicago.

Commenting on the third-period brawl that halted the game for almost 30 minutes before referee Bruce Hood finished dividing up the penalties, MacNeil said he thought it was a spontaneous outburst.

"I don't think the Hawks were planning any retribution. . . . It was just one of those things."

The initial outburst at 16:08 of the third period resulted in majors and misconducts to Montreal's Lapointe and Marc Tardif and to Hawks Paul Shmyr and Keith Magnuson. Canadiens's Phil Roberto and Dan O'Shea of Chicago received fighting majors.

There were few solid punches landed but the combatants prolonged the affair by refusing to go to their respective penalty boxes, necessitating the additional misconducts.

Less than a minute later, Chicago's giant defensive unit of Rick Foley and Jerry Korab roughed up Canadiens' Frank Mahovlich in front of Hawks' goaltender Tony Esposito.

Korab was assessed a double minor, including a spearing penalty that drew an additional 10-minute misconduct and a $25 fine. Mahovlich received a minor for the skirmish.

Cournoyer, who has been flying in recent games, doesn't expect the Hawks to be discouraged.

"This will be no easy series. Chicago will be hard to beat at home," said the fleet winger, noting that if the best-of-seven series goes the distance two of the last three games are scheduled for the Windy City.

Hawk coach Billy Reay, despondent after the game, refused to take anything away from the Canadiens.

"It was just the case of a good team going good," said Reay.

How much had the game taken out of the Chicago club that looked far more convincing while taking the two first games at home?

"We'll just have to see after the next game," he told reporters. "One thing, we'll have to play better."

Reay said he used winger Gerry Pinder more often in this game "because he was going well," and made frequent use of Foley late in the game because "Pat (Stapleton) was just too tired."

Reay and most of the Hawks admitted the heat of the Forum might have been instrumental in their lacklustre effort, but were unanimous in praising the Canadiens' effort.

Down, But Not Out

Dryden's Parents Used to Bar Windows

KINGSTON (CP) — Life with professional goaltender Ken Dryden as a boy meant bars on the windows of the family home, his sister recalls.

Judy Dryden, a first-year nursing student at Kingston General Hospital, said in an interview that for the early years of her life at her parents' Toronto suburban house she thought she was in prison.

"There were bars across all the windows on the ground floor of our house so the boys playing hockey wouldn't break them," she said.

Ken, who made it big in the Stanley Cup playoffs with Montreal Canadiens, was always trying to compete with his older brother, Dave, now backup goaltender for the National Hockey League Buffalo Sabres.

For Judy's mother, the puck-in-the-face fears of Ken's childhood have been replaced by the "pure agony" of watching the fastest shots in hockey drive pucks at her son on television.

"She'll go into the kitchen to cook and peek around the corner when the crowd starts yelling," Judy said. "Or else she will sit there furiously knitting or sewing. She can't sit still."

Judy spent a few days with Ken and his recent bride, Linda, in Montreal, where Ken attends McGill law school, after the Canadiens knocked Minnesota out of the playoffs.

She discovered that Ken's newly-won stardom interfered with a relaxed night out at a horse racing track. Judy said: "People kept coming up to him and asking for autographs. I guess at six feet, four inches, it's hard to be inconspicuous."

Most Hawks Concede Montreal Deserved Win

MONTREAL (CP)—With few exceptions, Chicago Black Hawks agreed the Montreal Canadiens 5-2 win Tuesday night to even their best-of-seven Stanley Cup finals at two games each was justly deserved.

"They (Montreal) deserved to win," said Hawk coach Billy Reay. "It was just the case of a good team going good."

The series returns to Chicago for the fifth game Thursday night at 83.0 p.m. EDT with a sixth game back here Sunday at 2:30 p.m. EDT.

Most of the Hawks were despondent but were prepared to assess their play through critical eyes.

One of the exceptions was winger Jim Pappin who rebuffed those around him and ignored their attempts to question him.

Centre Pit Martin, one of the Hawks' sparkplugs throughout the series despite a painful leg injury, said the team tried hard but lacked a concerted effort.

"Heat was no bother," he said of the game played before a shirt-sleeved crowd of 17,678. "They played on the same ice.

"We just played badly. We were working hard out there all night, but it just wasn't a concentrated effort. We spent a lot of energy uselessly," added the little pivot from Noranda, Que.

"They just had a little more spunk," said Rick Foley, a giant defenceman up from Portland of the Western League. "They were skating better at home . . . but they're no better a club than we played in Chicago.

"We had a lot of good chances to score in the first period and blew them," said Dennis Hull in disgust. He was the victim on several occasions as Montreal goalie Ken Dryden closed the door on him on all but one occasion.

"You kidding?" he replied when asked if he thought Montreal's two wins here were convincing enough to give them the momentum in Chicago. "It's tied 2-2 now."

Bobby Hull, Dennis' brother and the big shooter on the Chicago club, was shadowed by Montreal's Rejean Houle all night and managed only two shots on goal.

Did he lean on Houle at all?

"No, he (Houle) just grabbed me a couple of times and I fell on him," replied the Golden Jet.

Hitting Paid Off

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens brought total enjoyment to their fans but only partial enjoyment to their coach as they defeated Chicago Black Hawks 5-2 Tuesday night to even the best-of-seven-Stanley Cup final two games each.

"We skated and forechecked during the first half of the game," Montreal coach Al MacNeil said. "But I thought we played too loosely and left ourselves too open in the last half of the game."

The coach said the series of brawls that broke out in the latter part of the third period was spontaneous "and just one of those things."

Pete Mahovlich said that the Canadiens had played a hitting game and benefitted by it.

"Chicago seemed to have the idea they could intimidate us during this series," Peter said. "But they can't."

Guy Lapointe, the rookie defenceman whose first-period goal proved to be the winner, and who also drew a major and a misconduct for fighting with Chicago's Keith Magnuson in the third period, said he was sorry the fight was not allowed to continue to a conclusion.

"Even though I was very tired when that fight started because I had been on for a couple of shifts, I wanted to get at Magnuson," he said. "He's a guy that pushes everybody and shouldn't get away with it."

There was no word on the status of left winger John Ferguson other than that he had a charleyhorse and aggravated an injury to his left hip. He left the game at the 15-minute mark of the first period, but is expected to make the trip to Chicago today.

The series shifts to Chicago for a fifth game Thursday night.

Jockey Club Agrees 'Show' Must Go On

TORONTO (CP) — The horse will be unhitched from the cart in an attempt to prove that the cart didn't slow the horse down.

That is the position of The Jockey Club next week when it abandons its experimental betting system and brings back the old system of win, place and show wagering.

The experimental system, started this spring at Jockey Club tracks in Ontario, has been blamed by horsemen for declines in attendance and wagering.

But directors of The Jockey Club, announcing the return of the old system Tuesday, blamed "other critical problems" for the declines.

E. P. Taylor, Jockey Club chairman, later pinned the blame on off-track betting shops.

"Our real trouble is the betting shops," Taylor said. "They are bold and very little money is getting to the tracks.

"We did not have to change the betting system. We think a lot of people and journalists are not aware what the real problem is behind our decline in attendance and betting.

"We want to prove conclusively that the declines are not due to the betting system."

The Jockey Club announced that the old wagering system will return when harness racing moves to Garden City at St. Catharines May 18 and when the thoroughbreds open Woodbine here May 19.

The directors' statement said they were "influenced by the fact that the racing industry in Ontario is confronted with many other critical problems at this time."

Willies Start Whirlwind

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A couple of West Coast Willies are off on a whirlwind spree in National League baseball and, for a change, neither one answers to the name Mays.

Willie McCovey, coming on strong after a slow start this season, belted three hits, including his seventh home run, as San Francisco Giants widened their West Division lead to eight games with a 6-1 triumph over Cincinnati Reds Tuesday night.

Willie Davis, meanwhile, continued his torrid hitting with three singles and a triple, helping Los Angeles Dodgers whip Atlanta Braves 6-1 to snap a three-game losing string and move into second place behind the runaway Giants.

Davis has banged out 11 hits in his last 13 trips to the plate, hiking his batting average to .395. McCovey has gone 8-for-12 in his last four starts, bringing his average up to .311.

Elsewhere in the National League, New York Mets batfered Houston Astros 8-1 behind Nolan Ryan's three-hitter and Dave Marshall's grand slam homer; two homers by Joe Torre paced St. Louis Cardinals to a 10-4 romp over Montreal Expos; Pittsburgh Pirates clubbed San Diego Padres 10-4 with Manny Sanguillen stroking four hits and Chicago Cubs clobbed Philadelphia Phillies 6-2.

McCovey put the wraps on the Giants' 24th victory in 33 games with a two-run homer in the third inning after Willie Mays, a .375 hitter, drew a walk from Jim Merritt.

Bobby Bonds' eighth homer, singles by Chris Speier, McCovey and Ken Henderson and another homer by Dick Dietz had given the division leaders a 4-0 first-inning jump.

Gaylord Perry, 4-1, checked the reeling Reds on six hits. Merritt, a 20-game winner last year, absorbed his fourth setback in as many decisions.

Davis punched a two-out single in the first inning before Richie Allen walked and Wes Parker drilled a two-run double, sending the Dodgers ahead to stay at Los Angeles.

After Bill Buckner's three run homer in the fourth chased Braves' starter Jim Nash, Davis tagged reliever Pat Jarvis for a triple and scored on a single by Allen.

Southpaw Claude Osteen tamed Atlanta on six hits for a 4-3 season mark and 2,000 Dodgers moved percentage points ahead of the Braves into second place in the West.

Ryan walked seven Houston batters and hit another, but pitched his last ball until the fifth inning, struck out eight and wound up breezing to his fourth victory without a loss.

The Mets, who have won four in a row for a one game edge over second place Pittsburgh in the East, scored three runs off Larry Dierker in the third and knocked out the Houston ace in the sixth before Marshall rocked reliever George Culver for his bases-loaded homer.

Torre broke a 3-3 tie at Montreal with a two-run homer in the fifth inning and walloped his sixth homer of the year—another two run shot—in the ninth. Jose Cardenal and Dick Schofield also homered for the Cards.

Bullpen Takes Cake

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minnesota Twins brought home the bacon Tuesday night but the Boston Red Sox' bullpen took the cake and left the governor of Iowa with egg on his face.

Bill Lee provided Boston's dsilly relief-with four hitless innings to preserve one of Mary Peters' rare victories over Minnesota 5-4.

It was Iowa Night in Minnesota and Govi Robert Ray brought along a pig to present to the first Twin hitting a home run. Peters and Lee took care to see that no one did, though, and the porker went instead to Cesar Tovar, who got Minnesota's first hit.

The triumph was Boston's 16th in the last 17 games and kept the Red Sox 2½ games in front of Baltimore Orioles in the American League East. Over that stretch, the once futile Bosox have given New York Yankees at Milwaukee and Washington Senators at Chicago were rained out.

The big relief work for Boston has been done by Lee, Ken Tatum and Sparky Lyle, with assists from Ken Brett, Bob Bolin and Cal Koonce.

"We've been getting great relief the past couple of weeks," said manager Eddie Kasko.

Sports on All Fronts

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is sticking to its commitment not to subsidize Montreal's costs in putting on the 1976 Olympic Games, Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Tuesday. He said the government had made it clear it is "not prepared to assist financially."

CALGARY (CP) — Ron Arends, the defensive halfback Calgary Stampeders acquired from Toronto Argonauts in a trade for offensive back Dave Cranmer, has decided to retire from football. Rogers Lehew, Calgary general manager, said he knew Arends had a good job in Toronto and probably would not want to leave. Lehew said Arends told Stampeder coach Jim Duncan of the retirement plans.

TORONTO (CP) — Jacques Favart, president of the International Skating Union, said Tuesday that there is growing support for significant rule changes in figure skating.

The main changes are proposed in the figures which, at present, are worth as much as the free-skating portion of the skater's routine.

"Free skating should be given more consideration," said Favart. "In fact, in France and Germany, we refer to the sport more often as artistic skating rather than figure skating."

OTTAWA (CP) — The city's Canadian Football League team is a commercial operation and may not set up a training camp in Rockcliffe, the village council of the residential community ruled Monday night.

Allowing the Ottawa Rough Riders to set up a training camp on the grounds of Ashbury College, a private school in the village, would violate a 1923 village bylaw banning any commercial operations, council decided.

LONDON (AP) — Joe Bugner of Great Britain held on to his European heavyweight boxing title Tuesday night with a 15-round decision over West Germany's Jurgen Blin.

TORONTO (CP) — A joint meeting of the American College of Sports Medicine and the Canadian Association of Sports Sciences reviewed Tuesday a suggestion by some trainers that athletes carry a complete medical history with them, available at all times for information.

However, some team doctors do not approve, considering that it might be an invasion of privacy.

Jack Calnan's lucky mascot "Kelly" had something to cheer, or at least woof about last night, as the Belleville bowler won The Intelligencer Gold Cup Classic. Calnan who was runner-up in the "Mr. Bowling" tournament last week and carried the city high average this season defended his Labelle in the finals of the match play competition to win the event for the first time. A total of 24 bowlers took part in the tournament.

Calnan Rolls to Gold

When you're number two you're supposed to try harder, and Leo Labelle did. The second high average bowler in the city five-pin league made it all the way to the finals of the sixth annual Intelligencer Gold Cup Classic before losing to number one, Jack Calnan.

Calnan, whose 261 seasonal average edged Labelle for top spot rebounded from an opening loss in their best-of-three match play final to win the next two games and the Intell Gold Cup.

After splitting the first two games, both bowlers were deadlocked at 219 going into the ninth frame, where a costly split by Labelle opened the door for Calnan's win.

"The last match was the toughest," acknowledged the champion. "I didn't do anything different after the first game, except change my grip a little, but it seemed like the pins just started to fall for me."

The victory was the first by Calnan, who had been runner-up to Wally Knapp ten days ago in the "Mr. Bowling" tournament. No bowler has even won the event more than once with the previous winners including Bud Pettican, Cec Hardwick, Glenn Hamilton, Leo Labelle and Bill Bateman.

The 24 contestants entered in the tournament were split into six sections with the top two bowlers in each advancing to the quarter-finals.

Calnan, Marco Mior, Knapp and Larry Towns each recorded five wins in the opening series, while Labelle, Bob Sills, Jim Nicholls and Harry Lowe recorded marks of 4-1 in their respective groups to earn a berth in the playdown.

All four quarter-final series resulted in sweeps as Towns stopped Knapp in two straight games, Nicholls blanked Lowe, Calnan stopped Mior and Labelle eliminated Sills.

Calnan lost the first game of his semi-final series to Towns before rebounding with two consecutive wins and Labelle took the deciding game of his series after he and Nicholls had split the openers.

"I like playing the match play type of tournament. It's man against man so you really have to bear down," explained Calnan of his win.

He collected a total of $60 for his victory in the event, held at the Belleville Bowl-O-Drome, which began at 7 p.m. and wound up at midnight.

Farrell Gets Mileage

Gerard Farrell and Regina Armonas got the best mileage in the two-mile Quinte harrier course as they won the boys and girls titles in the Belleville secondary school's annual race.

Farrell, a grade 11 student who finished second in the Ken Colling Memorial race last week, paced the field of 458 boys winning over second-place Roger Ray and brother Jim Farrell who placed third.

King George Public School student John Sheppard managed a fourth-place finish in the event which saw 75 per cent of the Quinte Secondary School student body participate.

In the girl's section Regina Armonas took the honors as the grade 10 student paced a field of 403 runners. Last year's winner Claudette Rupert finished in second spot with Heather Melbourne third and Julie Strahan fourth.

Where Have Hitters Gone?

By Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

Once upon a time, baseball was a batter's game. With the exception of the occasional talented soul like Sandy Koufax, your average pitcher was regarded as little more than a delivery boy to serve home runs on a silver platter to the sultans of swat.

But my, how things change, points out Washington Senators' manager Ted Williams in an epistle entitled "The Science of Hitting."

Williams can be considered somewhat of an expert at the noble art of slugging a baseball, since he did that more often than once every third time he stepped up to the plate while wearing a Boston Red Sox uniform for two decades.

"Baseball is crying for good hitters," Williams claims. "Hitting is the most important part of the game; it is where the big money is, where much of the status is, and the fan interest.

"Yet today, there does not seem to be a player in baseball who is going to wind up a .333 lifetime hitter. Hank Aaron is down to .318, Roberto Clemente to .316 — and they're the only active players in the first seventy on the all-time list. Mays is at .306, Al Kaline .301, Frank Robinson .303, and Mickey Mantle, as good as he was, was unable to finish above .300."

In the period from 1950-68, Williams points out, the overall major league batting average dipped a phenomenal 30 points — from .266 to .236. Runs scored per game dropped from 9.73 to 6.84, lowest in 60 years. There has been a slight rebound in the past two seasons, Williams concedes, but there were four expansion teams in baseball, and a five-inch lower mound has temporarily increased the hitters' odds.

Williams offers a bevvy of reasons why the art of hitting the horsehide is all but lost: lack of qualified batting coaches, increased number of night games, the hectic travelling schedule, and colder weather at both ends of baseball's seven-month season.

In Williams' estimation, the most necessary asset to be a good hitter is keen eyesight. The Splendid Splinter, reputed to be able to read the label on a spinning 78 r.p.m. record, claims that's what made him a .316 big league hitter when he was 42 years old.

Despite the fact every batter has his own particular weakness on which shrewd pitchers can prey, Williams is a firm believer that hitting can be improved at almost any level. His tutoring in his first year at the Senators' helm would seem to bear him out. Eddie Brinkman jumped his average from .187 the previous season to a respectable .266; Ken McMullen went from .248 to .272; Frank Howard hit .296 and Mike Epstein .278, their best years in the majors.

And, Williams muses, after all is said and done, even the charmed circle of .300 hitters must stoically live with the continuing frustration that they've failed at their job seven out of ten times.

Pitching Duels Fewer

Baseball's bosses also seem aware of the importance of hitting, as much for the good of the box office as for that of the game.

With the exception of the World Series, clubs seldom feel the public wants to see the celebrated pitching duels that once packed the bleachers.

For instance a Bob Gibson-Juan Marichal hookup for the April 11 Cardinal-Giant opener in St. Louis would have been a natural crowd-pleaser. Instead the Cards threw Gibson in the first game of a double-header, which he won, and Marichal started and won for the Giants in the nightcap.

The two mound aces have faced one another only seven times in 11 seasons, with Gibson, incidentally, winning five decisions. Contrast this with the rivalries that at one time were cultivated by baseball management.

Hall of Famers Carl Hubbell and Dizzy Dean were matched ten times in only five seasons, and way back in a 1904-15 stretch, the Cubs and Giants had no trouble selling tickets for 24 duels between Mordecai "Three-Fingered" Brown and Christy Mathewson.

Today, the only explanation for a shortage of such classic confrontations would seem to be that the owners feel fans want to see lots of hits. That's what they don't want to gamble that their pitching ace will waste his turn in the starting rotation by being beaten.

Davis Asks Economics Placed on June Agenda

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis has asked Prime Minister Trudeau to include a discussion of economics and unemployment on the agenda of the federal-provincial constitutional conference in Victoria June 10-11.

Mr. Davis told Opposition Leader Robert Nixon in the legislature Tuesday a standing committee of the house will discuss the Ontario government's policy for the convention as soon as a final agenda is available.

In other legislature business Tuesday:

—A bill to amalgamate the highways and transportation departments into a department of transportation and communications received second reading, approval in principle.

—Four bills dealing with justice administration received third reading and now need only royal assent to become law. They include standardization of traffic tickets and increased exemptions from jury service.

—Gordon Innes (L—Oxford) suggested students from 18 to 21 should be employed as bar assistants for the summer. He said 6,000 students could find jobs if the regulations were relaxed.

—Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP —Toronto High Park) said the health department vetoed a speaking engagement he had at Whitby Psychiatric Hospital because he was a member of the opposition.

—Rene Brunelle, minister of lands and forests said that only two persons hired to train junior forest rangers in the Kirkland Lake area were teachers. He was replying to Patrick Lawlor (NDP—Toronto Lakeshore) who wanted to know why teachers were hired when there were unemployed, qualified persons available.

—Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence told the house he will meet Sudbury doctors and the city's labor council to discuss a shortage of hospital beds on a visit there next week.

—Bill Rathbun, the premier's executive assistant, said Mr. Davis had taken on an extra speech writer for six months.

Jury Wants Both Sides

TORONTO (CP) — Grand juries should be able to listen to evidence presented by both the Crown and defence before deciding on an indictment, Judge Walter Martin was told Tuesday by a grand jury.

At present, grand juries hear only the evidence presented by the Crown before it decides whether an indictment should be returned against an accused person.

Lewis Complains Facts Withheld

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, accused Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough Tuesday night of withholding information from Rene Brunelle, minister of lands and forests, on the government's $20 million land-acquisition program.

He made the charge during committee study of the minister's departmental estimates totalling $78.3 million.

The NDP leader asked the minister how much of the $20 million would be used for recreational-land purchases but Mr. Brunelle was unable to tell him.

The minister said he was informed of the amount involved in the program, which will also acquire land for housing and industrial purposes, when the budget was brought down April 26.

"The budget is a secret document," he said.

Mr. Lewis said the fact that the minister didn't know how much money his department would receive "makes us on this side of the house wonder whether it is (the program) is a piece of fluff and bravado."

A shouting match occurred when Mr. McKeough entered the house. The treasurer said the NDP was frustrated because of mill-rate reductions in Toronto made possible by his budget.

"You are wrong about mill rates, you are wrong about the budget. You're w r o n g—why don't you just fold up and go home."

UNUSUAL PICK

The triangular Irish harp had bass strings and was plucked with specially grown, hooked fingernails.

Teen-agers On Welfare Alarming

OTTAWA (CP) — The number of unemployed teen-agers on welfare is causing a great deal of concern, the Commons health committee learned Tuesday.

Committee chairman Steve Otto (L—York East) said in recent months he has had complaints from parents whose children aged 16 and 17 years had left home and were getting welfare. These young people had never been in the labor force and did not intend to return home or to school.

Richard B. Splane, director-general of welfare assistance and services for the federal health department, said it is up to the provinces to set criteria for such assistance.

He said the question of the right to assistance of young persons is causing concern across Canada.

Marvin Howe (PC—Wellington - Grey - Dufferin-Waterloo) said many Canadians are disturbed about the effect of a guaranteed income on incentives to work. There now were families who had lived for more than one generation on welfare.

Business Officials Ignored

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The department of education is ignoring the advice of business officials hired by school boards, R. P. Brimmell, business administrator of the Welllington county board of education said Tuesday.

Mr. Brimmell, outgoing president of the Ontario Association of School Business Officials, told the association's 28th conference that it has become impossible to get a hearing or action to resolve artificially created problems.

"Each year we, in the school business offices, await the grant regulations . . . with the same bated breath that the auto dealers await the new models, and each year we get the accounting equivalent of the Edsel," he said.

He accused the department of education of "incredibly convoluted regualtions, poorly - devised and inconclusively carried through," which involve school boards in extra expense and create problems that would not arise if the department sought opinions in advance.

The new president of the association is William Vickers, executive assistant to the director of the Ottawa board of education.

The two-day conference ended Tuesday.

Community College Teacher Layoffs Create Low Morale Says Robert Nixon

TORONTO (CP) — Teacher layoffs at community colleges have created "unreasonably large" classes and low morale, Opposition leader Robert Nixon said in the Ontario legislature Tuesday.

And when Education Minister Robert Welch explained they were a result of fluctuations in adult retraining courses, he told the minister that he was "ill-advised."

Mr. Welch said the courses are provided by Ontario but financed primarily by the federal government, as students are referred to the colleges by Canada Manpower centres.

Mr. Welch said that because of the seasonal nature of employment patterns some courses are not needed and this is one of the reasons for the layoffs.

Another was that for the 1971-72 fiscal year the federal government has determined that enrolment in the retraining courses will be only 85 per cent of the previous year.

He said enrolment in the programs have varied from 14,500 last August to 18,300 in January and this is why "a considerable portion of the teaching staff is engaged on a casual basis."

Some teachers now being laid off will be recalled if employment and education retraining patterns change, the minister said.

Mr. Nixon said students at Mohawk College feel that because of the teacher layoffs the quality of instruction has suffered. Ian Deans (NDP—Wentworth) said space at the college is not being fully utilized but students are being turned away.

Retraining Grants Cut 15 Per Cent

TORONTO (CP) — A 15-per-cent reduction in federal grants for adult retraining courses has forced some staff dismissals in Ontario community colleges, a Canadian Press survey shows.

At the same time, college officials and the provincial government report little staff dislocation from a tightening of the provincial purse strings, main source of community college financing.

Among those hit hard by the federal cut was Fanshawe College, which dismissed 23 staff members, effective for the fall term, at London and St. Thomas.

Conestoga College ordered the layoff of nine teachers and eight administrative and clerical staff at its adult education centre in Waterloo. Durham College in Oshawa let go some part-time instructing staff.

Eight teachers are out at the North Bay campus of Cambrian College, although efforts are being made to continue the retraining program.

Of less apparent concern is the new provincial grant system which restricts government money to $1,730 for each full time post-secondary student enrolled for the new school year.

Gone is the open-handed system of last year in which community colleges sought provincial grants on the basis of expected enrolment. Now they will be restricted on the basis of how many students actually show up for class in the fall.

While the tougher government line generally has caused considerable disruption at colleges such as Niagara at Welland, where 33 administrative and faculty members are out, the other side of the coin is evident at Georgian College of Applied Arts and Technology with headquarters in Barrie.

Georgian President Robert P. Crawford said that "although we have heard of curtailments at other locations, we have not had to take such drastic action."

D. A. Shields, dean of Sheridan College at Brampton, says some teachers have been laid off due to course realignments, but predicts no staff cuts due to budget restrictions arising from the provincial financing arrangement.

St. Lawrence College seems to be in a healthy position. Principal William Cruden says 20 new staff positions have been added at campuses in Brockville, Kingston and Cornwall.

Sir Sanford Fleming in Peterborough is adding 12 new staff and is keeping all personnel in the adult retraining division.

Herbert Jackson, director of the provincial government's applied arts and technology branch, doubted that staff cuts have arisen from the new provincial system.

Meeting A Princess

Champagne Poppers Fizzle As Member Demonstrates

TORONTO (CP) — Perhaps firecracker devices called "champagne party poppers" aren't as dangerous as Fred Young (NDP—Toronto Yorkview) thinks they are.

He told the Ontario legislature Tuesday that they are dangerous to children because they have to be pulled to explode rather than being lighted.

He then attempted to explode one of the devices but it fizzled.

The next two did explode, filling the legislative chamber with a loud bang and shooting paper streamers into the air.

Premier William Davis said he would discuss the crackers with Arthur Wishart, minister of financial and commercial affairs.

He suggested Mr. Young explode one in the minister's office "and I hope they would work at that time."

Chicken Permit Granted

TORONTO (CP) — A permit to import Quebec broiler chickens is on its way to Maurice Rozon, the Hawkesbury, Ont., storekeeper prohibited by the Ontario Broiler Chicken Producer's Marketing Board last Thursday from selling 140 broilers.

But the board said the permit, mailed Tuesday, will not affect the detained chickens. Nor has its issuing anything to do with last week's action.

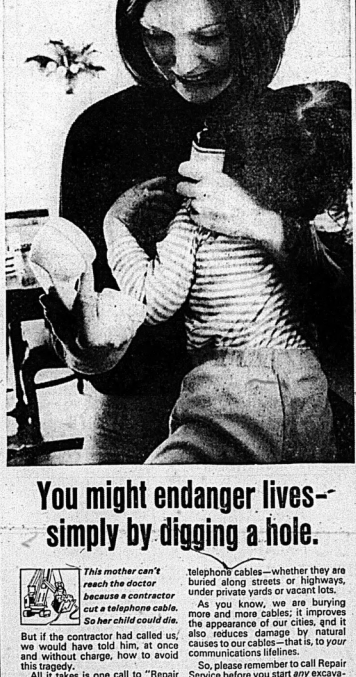
Mr. Rozon, who said he deliberately put the 140 Quebec broilers on display last week to force a test case of the legislation controlling imports, asked for a permit to import 3,000 birds. He intends to import the broilers next week.

The food-market owner said he can sell Quebec chickens at 29 cents a pound because they cost eight cents a pound less than their Ontario counterparts.

Hawkesbury is 50 miles east of Ottawa.

Formula For Wages Advanced

TORONTO (CP) — A report presented Tuesday to the Ontario labor relations board and the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario suggests a method of resolving industrial disputes without strikes, lockouts or conventional arbitration.



Presented by the Society of Ontario Hydro Professional Engineers and Associates, the report suggests a "selection officer" should have final say in a labor dispute.

That officer would decide completely in favor of one or the other from the final offers submitted by both sides in a dispute, following a period of conventional bargaining.

R. Val Scott, general manager of the society, said in the report that such a system would put considerable pressure on both sides in a labor dispute to present reasonable positions for fear of losing out completely to the other side.

NEW LIBRARY

SASKATOON (CP) — Saskatchewan doctors contributed approximately $100 toward cost of a newly-relocated medical library at the University of Saskatchewan. Containing some 20,000 volumes, the library serves all physicians in the province. Because of a shortage of capital funds, original plans had called for less than one-half of the present space in the new medical building.

You might endanger lives—simply by digging a hole.

This mother can't reach the doctor because a contractor cut a telephone cable. So her child could die.

But if the contractor had called us, we would have told him, at once and without charge, how to avoid this tragedy.

All it takes is one call to "Repair Service". Our people there know the locations of all our underground telephone cables—whether they are buried along streets or highways, under private yards or vacant lots.

As you know, we are burying more and more cables; it improves the appearance of our cities, and it also reduces damage by natural causes to our cables—that is, to your communications lifelines.

So, please remember to call Repair Service before you start any excavation at all. One phone call is no trouble—but it can avoid a lot of it.

Cottage Lot Lease Plan to be Revealed Soon

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government's new regulations on leasing cottage lots will be known before the end of the month and maybe within a week, Rene Brunelle, minister of lands and forests, said Tuesday night.

He made the comment during committee study of his department's estimates totalling $78.3 million.

The minister told Richard Smith (L—Nipissing) and Stan Farquhar (L—Algoma Manitoulin) that the terms of the leases would be "more generous" than the leases the province now holds with cottage owners.

The new lease program, announced in the throne speech, calls for leasing of Crown lands for cottages rather than purchasing them. Canadians would get preference over non-residents.

Under the current lease system, the province requires buildings valued at at least $1,800 be erected before two years. The minister said this figure would likely be raised to between $3,000 and $2,500.

Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury) said he would be surprised if the leases were longer than 20 years before they came up for renewal.

Under the new program, the leases could be continued until the land was needed for public purposes.

Toronto Plants Said Dumping Wastes at Morn

TORONTO (CP) — "Certain industries" in Toronto are thumbing their noses at anti-pollution regulations by illegally dumping their wastes into area streams during the early-morning hours, an opposition member of the Ontario legislature said Tuesday night.

Patrick Lawlor (NDP—Toronto Lakeshore) was speaking in a house committee during study of energy and resources management departmental estimates of $100 million.

"Doesn't industry just thumb its nose at us?" Mr. Lawlor asked George Kerr, energy and resources management minister.

He said some firms "pretend" to operate by the rules for 18 hours a day, then do their dumping in the early-morning hours.

D. S. Caverly, general manager of the Ontario Water Resources Commission, said robot monitors had been set up on the Ottawa, St. Clair and Grand rivers to keep a round-the-clock check on possible dumping.

Mr. Kerr said regulations would be difficult to enforce in the Metro area until a new plant for disposal of liquid industrial waste is completed in nearby Mississauga.

When the Mississauga plant is open, there will be 24-hour surveillance, he said.

Donald Deacon (L—Toronto York) suggested at the hearing that the OWRC should consider using sewage-treatment effluent to irrigate golf courses.

If the effluent was treated to remove bacteria and used to water golf courses, it would reduce local water consumption which has become a problem for farmers in some areas, he said.

Mr. Caverly said there is an experimental program using effluent to irrigate a woodlot near Dunbarton, Ont., and the golf course proposal would be worth looking into.

Policeman Not Employee of City

TORONTO (CP) — The payment of pension benefits to the widows and children of policemen has been jeopardized by an Ontario Supreme Court decision, Metropolitan Toronto auditor Gordon Cuthbertson said Tuesday.

Also in doubt were the payment of damages to police officers resulting from legal actions and payments under the Workmen's Compensation Act.

Mr. Cuthbertson said the issues have been raised by a decision made by Mr. Justice Maurice Lacourciere, who ruled in April at St. Catharines that a policeman is not an employee of the municipality that pays his salary.

Eighteen Hurt as Trains Collide

TORONTO (CP) — Eighteen persons were treated for minor injuries early today after a westbound subway train crunched into the rear of a stalled train during a power failure that darkened parts of western Toronto.

Those injured—17 passengers and a crew member—were taken to two hospitals and treated for minor cuts and bruises. All were later released.

Officials said automatic braking equipment stalled the first train just east of a station on the Bloor Street line at midnight. It was struck by the second train, travelling at about five miles an hour.

The two trains were travelling without the aid of signal lights which regulate the flow of trains. The trains themselves operate on a separate direct current system that was not affected by the blackout.

OMA Suggests Possession Of Marijuana Be No Crime

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Medical Association recommended Tuesday that possession of marijuana, other than for trafficking, should no longer be a criminal offence.

The OMA also recommended, at its annual meeting, that the legal definitions of trafficking and possession for the purpose of trafficking should be clarified.

Dr. Gordon A. Judge of Burford, chairman of the OMA's committee on the misuse of drugs, said under the present law a person who hands a marijuana cigarette to a friend at a party can be charged with trafficking.

The OMA's precise recommendations, which will be put forward to the Canadian Medical Association's annual meeting in June, are:

—Possession (not for trafficking) of psychedelic drugs (such as LSD, mescaline) should not be punishable by imprisonment;

—Possession of cannabis (marijuana) products should not be punishable by law;

—Possession of opiate narcotics (such as morphine or heroin) should "be viewed as a health concern";

—Any sentence for possession of opiate narcotics involving deprivation of liberty should be limited to that which involves adequate treatment.

Airline Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian transport commission has granted a Kingston firm permission to operate a commercial air service between Kingston and Toronto.

The commission said Tuesday it approved the application by Seaway Airlines, headed by Paul F. Little, though it was not convinced the operation would be economically viable.

Seaway Ice-breaking Opposed

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — James A. Fitzpatrick, chairman of the New York State Power Authority, threw some ice water Tuesday on proposals to extend the St. Lawrence seaway shipping season.

Speaking at a seminar called by U.S. Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe, Fitzpatrick said ice-breaking to extend the shipping season in the St. Lawrence River "would create more problems than it would solve."

He said the New York Power Authority would "vigorously oppose ice-breaking measures in Lake Erie that would affect ice control in the Niagara River."

"The removal of the Niagara ice boom to flush Lake Erie ice into the Niagara River would as history shows, seriously endanger properties and people along the upper and lower Niagara River and adversely affect power production."

Airport Site Forecast

GUELPH (CP) — Amaranth Township, 25 miles north of here, will be the site of the new Toronto-area international airport, the city's industrial commissioner Ralph Smith predicted Tuesday.

MRS. RAOUL AUNGER, 1 Russell Street East, Apt. 6, Smiths Falls, CAME MAXI DISCOUNTING AT LOBLAWS— AND SHE CAME OUT AHEAD.

Mrs. Aunger who recently came MAXI DISCOUNTING at Loblaws for the first time, says, "I used to shop Loblaws but then I switched to another store. I just came back to Loblaws because I'd heard about the new, low, prices. I wanted to see for myself if they really were lower and I find there really is quite a discount on everything. Today, for instance, I saved $3 on a $15 order—I know because when I went through the checkout my bill was $3 lower than what I'd paid for the same size order before. I saved a little bit on almost everything I bought—even the meat".

PECI Students Defend Bookstore at Meeting

PICTON (Staff) — The importance of a bookstore at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute was emphasized before school trustees Monday by two representatives of the students' council. Brenda Carson and Dennis Bond told members of the Prince Edward County board of education the bookstore, now in operation, is convenient and necessary to avoid "mass confusion."

Trustee Edward Rutter noted the bookstore is costing the taxpayer money and asked the student delegates how much they felt parents would be willing to pay for this convenience. Dennis Bond replied he considered the bookstore "the handiest thing around" and suggested its convenience is sufficient to make it worthwhile.

The student said supplies sold at the bookstore are cheaper than those bought elsewhere and are easier to obtain. He said he wanted the board members to realize students do appreciate this facility and agree its future operation is of "high concern." Supplies are sold five days a week and include gym suits, locks for school lockers and typewriter paper.

Dennis Bond told trustees students could be confronted with "mass confusion" if it becomes necessary for them to buy supplies downtown and to rely, in part, on catalogue orders. He added, when questioned, that PECI students probably would agree to staff the bookstore themselves, perhaps in connection with business and accounting courses.

Trustee Clave McFaul said this system has been implemented successfully at Grand River Collegiate in Kitchener. The student council representatives confirmed that all PECI pupils buy certain items, such as gym suits, at the bookstore.

The present deposit system used for grade 13 school textbooks also was mentioned by Brenda Carson. She said she wanted to know if next year's grade 13 students will be supplied with books and also ask if refunds will be made on texts used by this year's graduating class. Trustee Lloyd Seeley said there has been no vote by the property and supply committee concerning this question. He added that if books are purchased by the school they will be bought back at no more than 30 per cent of their original cost.

It was agreed by board members and the student representatives that there should be further discussion among PECI pupils regarding this matter. Brenda Carson remarked that the $10 deposit system now in effect is "a good idea." She said students seem to take better care of books because of the year-end refund for those in good condition.

Jane Eyre as Musical Sets O'Keefe History

TORONTO (CP) — Jane Eyre, the box-office smash of the 1970 Charlottetown Festival, opened at Toronto's O'Keefe Centre Monday night to become the first Canadian produced musical presented as part of the centre's regular subscription season.

A spokesman for the centre's publicity department said he could remember only one other Canadian-produced show presented since the O'Keefe opened a decade ago—the musical Anne of Green Gables, another Charlottetown-originated hit that played here last year but was not a subscription attraction.

Although the spokesman would not confirm if it would be the centre's policy to schedule at least one Canadian-produced work in future subscription seasons, a notice recently sent out to 1970-71 subscribers included among possible shows for next season another Charlottetown Festival musical, Mary, based on the life of Mary, Queen of Scots.

Previously, it had been announced that on the day the box office for Jane Eyre opened there was an immediate $84,000 advance, nearly a week's full business.

The 3,155-seat theatre was filled to about three-quarter capacity for Monday night's opening. The show plays through to May 22 and then will be presented for one week at Ontario's National Art Centre before returning to Charlottetown to begin its second season's run there in late June.

Directed and choreographed by Alan Lund, the festival's artistic director, Jane Eyre, an adaptation of the pre-Victorian novel by Charlotte Bronte, played to 90 per-cent paid attendance in its premiere season last summer.

The Toronto opening saw the debut of Winnipeg actress Joan Karasevich in the title role. Miss Karasevich, of Ukrainian extraction and a graduate of the University of Manitoba and the National Theatre School in Montreal, lost out to another actress in auditions last year, but was asked by Mr. Lund to re-audition this year and got the part.

The musical, largely the brainchild of British songwriter Hal Shaper, who co-authored the script and wrote the lyrics, sketchily tells the story of an English girl caught in an orphanage who becomes governess to the young ward of a severe and somewhat mysterious upper-class Englishman named Edward Rochester.

In the Charlottetown company's production, the role of Rochester is played with a Richard Burton-like determination by Bill Cole.

For the Toronto opening, additional comedy scenes were added. These, mostly involving the character of Rochester's valet and maid, played by Douglas Chamberlain and Rona Hearn, received the most applause from Monday night's audience, which in general was more polite than enthusiastic about the production as a whole.

Herbert Whittaker in The Globe and Mail said the musical "is amiable, pleasing, unsophisticated and modest. . . . There is craft and goodwill and a kind of quiet integrity here.

". . . Should Jane Eyre be a musical at all? Perhaps it would do better as a kind of opera, allowing its basic melodrama full expression. But if you decide on the format of the popular musical . . . you must expect to lose some of the Bronte scope.

"The whole thing slips down into fun and games below stairs with an occasional mood piece,"

Man May Suffer When Baby Coming

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks at Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'd be an awfully ungrateful wife to call my husband a nut, but he certainly acts peculiar every time I get pregnant. This is to be our third baby, and you'd think he was waiting for his first. Whenever he realizes that I am pregnant he begins to get "syptheems".

For example, during my first pregnancy he was more nauseous than I was. During the second he lost his appetite completely, and by the time our baby was born he was within his friends couldn't recognize him. Right after I left the hospital he developed a ravenous appetite.

Now that I'm pregnant again, he is not only intensely nauseous, but he complains of vomiting practically every morning. I know it will pass, but if there was ever a case of a man suffering more during pregnancy than his wife, my husband is it.

Have you ever heard of anything like it? All my friends husbands seem to take pregnancy in stride. — Mrs. D.

COMMENT: Let's get the definition over: It is called "couvade" and is more common than you and many others think. One estimate is that one out of every 10 expectant fathers have such "sympathetic" gastrointinal complaints during their wives' pregnancies.

We call these psychogenic symptoms. In some way they are tied in with the husband's anxiety about his wife and unborn child. Other theories emphasize such factors as ambivalence in marriage and even envy of parturition.

Whatever the reason or reasons for your husband's tendency to be "upset" during your pregnancies, try to be understanding and kind to the poor man. In some primitive societies, men get even more upset.

They go to bed for weeks and are fed goodies while their pregnant wives are out in the fields working. And after the child is born, the fathers are babied more than the baby itself. So be thankful, Mrs. D., that your husband's "peculiar" reactions to child-bearing are not more intense.

For Mrs. G.: You are right in believing that there is a distinct difference, between heat exhaustion and heat stroke. My guess is that your husband was suffering from the first. Overexertion in hot, humid weather can bring it on, with symptoms of rapid, weak pulse, pale and clammy skin, headache and weakness and cramps in his legs. Having him lie quietly in a cool place (but covered to prevent chilling) and giving him salt water (one teaspoonful to one quart of water) was good management.

However, when in doubt, it's always better to call for medical help. You see there are times when heat stroke is mistaken for heat exhaustion and the treatment is different. In heat stroke the patient's temperature is high. He needs to be sponged off with cool water, or receives cold applications in some other form. Again, salt water is helpful. His face is flushed, his skin is hot, and his pulse is strong and rapid. Medical treatment is usually indicated as well as first aid treatment.

* * *

For Mr. C.: Silicosis is a chronic fibrous lung condition for and among miners who have inhaled silicon dust over a period of years.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Temperaments Can Change

Speaking of children who are slow learners in school, and of the famous men who were considered "stupid" all during their youth (as I did in a column a few weeks ago), it is equally true that people can surprisingly change their whole temperaments as they get older.

Strange rates of personal development are not only mental, but temperamental as well. Who would believe that the dour and taciturn Calvin Coolidge was elected "class humorist" at Amherst? Or that the saintly and ascetic Mahatma was nicknamed "Ghandhi the Dandy" during his university career, when he was a person as the best-dressed man around Oxford?

For every one Capablanca, who revealed his chess genius at the age of four, there are a hundred others who take until maturity to disclose their full powers and real inclinations. St. Augustine was among the most unconcerned of men, he tells us in his "Confessions", Until the age of 30, his favorite prayer was "O Lord, give me chastity and self-restraint, but not just yet."

Winston Churchill was sent to military school at an early age because his father firmly believed he was too dumb to learn anything else. He was a fat, unhappy boy who talked with a stutter and a lisp; he entered Harrow as the lowest boy in the lowest class, and remained there. He failed the entrance exams at military college twice before passing. It might surprise you to learn that Einstein was so slow in learning to speak that his family expressed concern that he might be retarded. He left high school at the request of his teacher, and had trouble getting into a Swiss college because he was not qualified for entrance in anything but mathematics.

It is impossible to predict the rate of development of any human being, and parents might worry less if they realized this. The most intelligent woman I ever knew was actually a "retarded" child who never read a book throughout until she was 14.

Infant prodigies only too often grow up to themselves, so that by the time they reach adulthood there is nothing prodigious about their talents. And, just as often, they turn out to be emotionally immature as well — reminiscent of Harold Ickes' cutting remark about Adolph Berle, one of the brightest youngsters of the early New Deal: "Berle was an infant prodigy, but the only trouble was that he kept on being an infant long after he ceased being a prodigy."

Conversely the "learned" child may suddenly break clear of his emotional block and turn into a brilliant and productive member of society. If Gandhi's father deplored his son's foppishness, and Augustine's mother lamented her son's lust, which parent among us can be too impatient or intolerant of his child?

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For May 13

Your birthday today: An earlier pathway than you've been treading opens for you. Subtle hindrances and chronic doubts resolve themselves as deeper intuition expresses itself more directly in your daily activities. Simplify mental and physical habits by organizing your life more effectively. Today's natives are distinctly individual, one of a kind, with talent for leadership which seldom appears until a special issue calls it into action.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Skipping details is all you'll say this morning, but if you do, the gaps you leave create problems before the day is out. Try to each step in sequence for proper results.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Continued co-operation, which includes volunteering time and effort, is the present path. Several projects elsewhere depend on encouragement from you.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Check home and work areas for unwanted or outdated possessions; find new home for them. A modicum of clearance makes a great difference in near future events.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Be ready to shift your direction or the order of things to be done. Some expedient may be needed; explain later.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 21): Basic issues continue most important to you now. Stay on your own grounds and attend to them, wherever and however the principles can be made manifest.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 — Sept. 21): Valuable possessions, sentimental attachments based on past history limit your range of movement but not expression. Strive for clear perspective.

LIBRA (Sept. 22 — Oct. 22): Not all improvements show in material gains but there is distinct progress. It's like a high tide; those who sail can take advantage of it, while those who stay ashore just see it come and go.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Nothing can be rushed very successfully. Determined but tactful efforts, particularly where partnerships are involved, build up toward increased future results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): To let well enough alone continues to be elusive, yet is perhaps the most useful technique in social and partnership ventures.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your persistence and organizing talents pay well; attract co-operation and encouragement. Put in a concise day's effort.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Go full speed ahead with revisions, simplifications, forming new habits. References to the past are needed less, more attention to the future and what you can do about it is indicated.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Arrange facts and figures, settle plans for a self-improvement program. Speak up for your share of anything being distributed.

Spring Jobs Slow to Grow

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment rose to 659,000 last month, an increase of 9,000 during a time when unemployment figures usually go down, the manpower department and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

Unemployment in March was 650,000.

Unemployment in April last year totalled 544,000.

Because of slower-than-usual growth of new job opportunities, this spring, the seasonally-adjusted rate of unemployment shot up sharply to 6.7 per cent from 6.0 in March. In actual terms, the unemployment rate remained unchanged, however, at 7.8 per cent.

The actual figures show the percentage of the work force that is actually unemployed. The seasonally-adjusted figure is computed in order to take into account the factors such as winter or spring season that usually affect employment figures over a period of several months. It is regarded by economists as a better indicator of unemployment trends.

The joint report by the man power department and statistics bureau said the increase in employment between March and April "was considerably less than usual for this time of year." The number of people employed in April was an estimated 7,737,000, compared with 7,686,000 in March—an increase of only 51,000 while there were 60,000 more people in the labor force.

While there was an 11,000 reduction in the number of unemployed people aged 25 or more, there was a sharp increase of 20,000 in the number of younger workers looking for jobs. For this under-25 group, the seasonally-adjusted rate of unemployment rose shot up to 12.3 per cent last month, from 11.1 per cent in March.

While the increase in the over all unemployment figure was contrary to the trend expected, a finance department spokesman said it was not unprecedented. There have been many cases in the past in which one month's unemployment figure appeared to bounce out of line, and next month's report could show an equally dramatic shift towards lower unemployment, he said.

The April labor picture in brief, with estimates in thousands:

	April	Mar.	April
	1971	1971	1970
Labor force	8,396	8,336	8,198
Employed	7,737	7,686	7,654
Unemployed	659	650	544

British Entry Said Good Bet

BRUSSELS (AP) — Britain and the six Common Market nations made a major break-through early today in their negotiations on the British application for membership in the European Economic Community.

"If I were you I would bet on success," chief British negotiator Geoffrey Rippon, beaming, told a dawn news conference.

Agreement was reached on three important issues, including a formula to reckon Britain's payments into the joint budget in its first years of membership. The budget now amounts to about $4 billion a year, more than 90 per cent spent on supporting Western Europe's dwindling farm population.

A series of concessions by France paved the way for the breakthrough, including a new mood already exists in Paris.

Still to be resolved are the questions of New Zealand's dairy exports and the future of the pound sterling. The negotiators were optimistic that these can be resolved at the next session June 7 in Luxembourg.

French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann said the session produced a major breakthrough and negotiations could be completed by the end of June. Hans de Koster of the Dutch foreign ministry predicted that negotiations to admit Denmark and the Republic of Ireland could be completed at the same time, but he said the future of Norway's application was less certain because its proposal on fisheries is unacceptable.

Sigismund von Braun, the West German secretary of state for foreign affairs, said the time now is ripe for Britain to join the Common Market.

At the all-night meeting the negotiators also agreed on favored treatment for the big sugar producers of the Commonwealth, mainly Jamaica, Guyana and Mauritius; an elaborate calendar for the gradual increase of British farm prices to the much higher levels in the Common Market, and another calendar for reduction of British tariff protection against fruits and vegetables from the Continent.

Provinces Broke Pact --- Benson

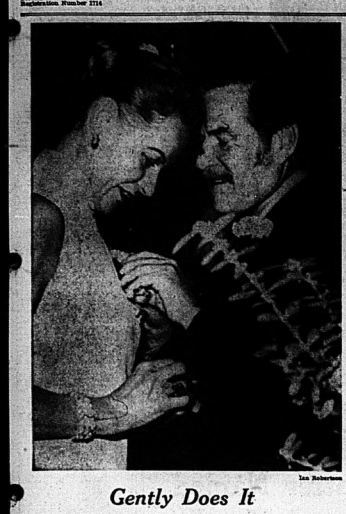
OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson said Wednesday that some provinces —which he did not name— showed they "really do not care about inflation", after agreeing last year to help fight it.

He told the Commons the problem of inflation was discussed with the provinces and they agreed that some wage guides should be followed by both the federal and provincial governments.

"I must say that beyond the meeting at which this was agreed, some of the provinces were not somebody in carrying out the voluntary guidelines with regard to wage settlements in respect of their own employees."

Five Inches of Snow Falls North of Lakes

TORONTO (CP) — Three to five inches of snow fell north of the upper Great Lakes overnight. During the early morning near-record cold air covered all the province.



Temperatures in southern Ontario were in the middle 30s and low 40s overnight. In the north they were in the 20s and 30s.

The weather bureau said temperatures would be back to about normal today with sunny skies. However, tonight they will sink back to levels of the night before.

Supersonic Airliner Gets Lease on Life

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American supersonic transport, the world's most debated aircraft, has been led through a legislative backdoor into a renewed fight for life. The stakes now may not be just two prototypes but a whole fleet of production-line SST's.

Turning a congressional death warrant inside out, backers of federal subsidies for the faster-than-sound passenger plane engineered a surprise victory in the House of Representatives Wednesday.

The House voted 201 to 197 in favor of an amendment that would provide money for continuing, rather than phasing out, the program.

Gov. Dan Evans of Washington state cautioned that the supersonic would be only for the two remaining months of fiscal 1971.

The vote would be "a cruel hoax" Evans said, unless there was "a clear indication from Congress to finish what it has already started."

Spokesmen for the SST prime contractors said any renewal of the work would be expensive, that all contracts would have to be renegotiated and that in their view the goal would have to be changed from mere prototype development to actual SST commercial production.

"Our strategy will be to try and beat it, beat it up and down," said Senator William Proxmire (Dem. Wis.) He said he will use any tactics under the Senate rules to kill the project — not ruling out talking it to death.

Economist Urges Cut In Taxes

OTTAWA (CP) — J. Douglas Gibson of Toronto, former general manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, said today the government should cut taxes and reduce its own spending to spur employment and control inflation.

"We should have tax reductions now—reductions to encourage consumer spending and reductions of corresponding tax adjustments to encourage business investment."

At the same time, he called for a "real effort on the part of the federal government to give leadership in checking the growing government encroachment on the economy, which is another way of looking at a policy of tax reduction.

"Government cannot do everything it is asked to do, or that ambitious politicians want it to do, unless we are prepared to risk ruining the private sector and bringing on even worse inflation."

Mr. Gibson, who teaches monetary theory at York University and holds directorships in seven companies, was addressing the Senate finance committee.

His remarks were released to the press before delivery.

He said policies must be developed to encourage growth and check inflation at the same time.

While the government had made expansionary moves in some areas, "the emphasis has been too much on more government spending and not enough on private spending and investment."

Gatineau Town Hit By Typhoid

BOUCHETTE, Que. (CP) — Mayor Florent Larivierre and a local doctor say a typhoid fever epidemic has struck this Gatineau River village of 300 people, most of whom drink untreated water from the river.

The mayor said in an interview he knows of 47 cases among villagers in the last month and "most of the 47 are still in hospital."

Wednesday that he and his colleague, Dr. Marcel Lavigne, have treated at least 30 cases of what they believe to be typhoid "and I know other doctors have treated more".

Dr. Houle said the Quebec government health service ran out of typhoid vaccine Monday. Only 80 people had been vaccinated, and a fresh supply of vaccine was not expected until Monday.

In Quebec City, a health department spokesman said about 20 villagers were in various hospitals with typhoid symptoms but the disease had not been diagnosed positively.

Dr. Gerard Martineau, director of the department's epidemiology branch, said the victims have typhoid symptoms— diarrhea, vomiting and high fever—"but they are not seriously ill."

Typhoid is an infectious and sometimes fatal disease that causes intestinal inflammation.

Parking Splits Madoc Town Council

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

MADOC — Two Madoc village councillors have resigned over the dismissal of the village's bylaw enforcement officer.

Bruce White and J. M. Caverly resigned when they were outvoted three to two over the firing of the officer, James Oliver.

"We could be of no service to the people of the village when we lost the confidence of the rest of council," said Mr. Caverly, speaking on behalf of both himself and Mr. White.

Other members of council are Arnold Ross and Kel Kincaid. Reeve Thomas Burnside cast the tie - breaking vote that led to the bylaw enforcement officer's dismissal.

Robert Kirkwood was sworn in as a councillor at the May 11 meeting. Arnold Ross was nominated for as a replacement, but declined the position.

The officer's dismissal was "unfair", Mr. Caverly told The Intelligencer.

"He was told to enforce the bylaws and to show no favoritism in doing it," added Mr. Caverly. "He was fired for doing what he was told to do."

The village now has no bylaw enforcement officer and "there's no sense having a bylaw and not enforcing it," said Mr. Caverly.

The officer was hired more than a year ago when the village was plagued with traffic congestion on its main street, Highway 62.

Because the Ontario Provincial Police in the village do not enforce local bylaws, council decided to hire its own officer. He was mainly concerned with traffic violations, especially double parking on the main thoroughfares.

But by this spring the Chamber of Commerce entered the picture with a letter to council that was reprinted in the local weekly newspaper.

"A large part of our economy is based on tourism," the letter reminded council, and went on to say that the forest of signs in the village would discourage tourists. The bylaw enforcement officer's "unkind, rather officious approach to our paying public lacks judgement," said the letter.

It called for council to change the parking and traffic bylaws and to "bring the officer up to date". It suggested there was value in a proposition to dismiss him, but if council did not wish to go that far, he should be censured.

The consequence of the letter was the motion to dismiss the officer, and the resignation of Mr. Caverly and Mr. White.

Thurlow Taxes To Be Increased

CANNIFTON (Staff) — Thurlow Township Council yesterday announced an overall mill rate increase for residential and farm taxpayers of 6.37 mills and an increase of 8.22 mills for commercial and industrial ratepayers.

Capital increase over last year, based on levies for township, county, separate school, elementary public and elementary secondary school taxes will amount to approximately $70,000.

Based on an average township residential and farm assessment of $2,000, a public and secondary school rate-payer will face an increase of $12.74 on his annual tax bill.

The separate school rate-payer in the township, on the same average $2,000 assessment, will face an increase of $60.46.

In 1970, the average Thurlow Township taxpayer, on the public school, was paid $200.58 in taxes. In 1971, he will pay $213.32. The 1970 average Thurlow Township tax-payer on the separate school rate rolls paid $200.96. In 1971, he will pay $261.44.

The jump from 23.89 mills to 29.10 mills for separate school ratepayers is based on taxes of over $100 while those paying less than this amount, receive a 50 per cent rebate.

Assembly Bylaw Passed in Thurlow

CANNIFTON (Staff) — Following the example set by Thurlow Township, Thurlow council Wednesday passed a bylaw to regulate and licence the holding of public entertainment, festivals and parades within the township.

With the exception of events lasting less than 24 hours, once council stipulated that a $500 fee for the licence be established and a bond or insurance policy approved by the township solicitor not exceeding $200,000 for personal liability and property damage, to be set by council.

Township clerk Clare Horton said this bylaw is similar to one which stood up in court last year in another Ontario municipality.

Parks Open Tomorrow

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward's four provincial park will open officially tomorrow for the 1971 season. A spokesman at Outlet Beach park said yesterday the cost for a season's permit will be again this year, $10, while a one-day visitors' pass will cost $1. A daily charge of $1 will be in effect for busloads of holiday-ers. Campers can rent a place in the sun for $2.50 a day. Outlet Beach has 482 developed campsites to accommodate vacationers. Although camping is prohibited on a regular basis at the Sandbanks park, this area is used periodically each season to handle any overflow from Outlet Beach campsites.

More than 17,000 trees have been planted recently at North Beach and Sandbanks parks in connection with a reforestation program. Among the tree varieties planted are Scotch pine, black locust, mountain ash, and Canpolna poplar.

A park spokesman said approximately 33 students will be employed in the county's provincial parks this summer. It is expected that from 15 to 20 of these student employees will work at Outlet Park. Approximately six will be hired at the Sandbanks while six to seven will find work at North Beach Park. The students work as beach patrolmen and gate attendants. A permanent maintenance staff of 17 men is employed in addition to summer help.

Despite the eariiness of the season, several enthusiastic campers already have spent spring weekends in the parks.

Area Jail Opens Saturday at Napanee

The Department of Correctional Services' first regional jail in Napanee will be opened on Saturday by Hon. Allan Grossman, former minister of correctional services. The new facility will replace jails in Belleville, Kingston, Napanee and Picton, built in 1838, 1855, 1865 and 1834 respectively. It was in 1964 that Mr. Grossman, then minister of reform institutions, suggested that municipalities combine resources to replace antiquated facilities. Quinte region counties were the first in Ontario to sign an agreement for construction of a new centre, with half the costs paid by the provincial government.

Plans Afoot for Picton Bay

PICTON (Staff) — The Picton Bay Motel, Ltd., owned by the Hepburn family, has been sold to a former Espanola hardware merchant, Glynn James.

Announcement of the sale was made Tuesday morning from the office of industrial commissioner William Duggan who suggested the motel's location at the head of Picton Bay allows it "to set the tone for the whole area." Mr. Duggan spoke enthusiastically about a future shoreline development plan extending for approximately 1,000 yards along both sides of the bay.

Among the municipal officials who heard Mr. and Mrs. James outline their plans yesterday in the industrial commissioner's office were county warden Allan Anderson, and town councillor and chairman of the Picton planning committee Corey Walraven. Mr. Walraven is vice-president of the Quinte Real Estate Company Ltd., which handled the sale of the 21-unit motel.

Mr. Anderson greeted the new owners of Picton Bay Motel and called their business venture "a welcome improvement." He commented, "It's something we need more of — but not too many more."

Mr. James briefly outlined his plans for operation of the motel this year and stressed its marina will remain open from 7 a.m. until 11 p.m. daily. A former government stock opposite the motel, now owned by Harvey J. McFarland, has been rented by Mr. James to provide space for boat storage in the winter months. Gas pumps at the marina will be opened by 24.

Facilities for boaters wishing to pump out holding tanks will be available near the marina.

The motel management will serve no meals with the exception of the breakfasts provided for guests. An office formerly used by Hepburn Brothers Ltd. will be converted to a guest lounge complete with billiard table.

Councillor Corey Walraven observed that the motel owner and plans for its extended services are "further proof that Picton is on the move".

He expressed confidence in the community's potential growth and confirmed that Mr. Duggan has asked the town to arrange meetings to discuss a development plan for the Picton Bay area.

New motel operators, Mr. and Mrs. James, first visited Picton last February after selling a hardware business which they had run for a number of years in Espanola. The couple has two sons, Garry, a secondary school teacher in Sault Ste. Marie and Allen, 24, a teacher in North Bay. Allen James will operate the Picton Bay Motel's marina facilities this summer.

Industrial commissioner William Duggan noted that Castle Villeneuve, facing Picton Harbor, is now under new ownership and will be operated as a tourist resort this summer. Co-owners of this historic building, once a private resident, are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ingerfield, Picton, and Mr. and Mrs. James MacDougall, Toronto. Long range plans for the castle now under renovation, include a swimming pool, dances in its picturesque ballroom and an attractively landscaped water front. The management intends to apply for liquor licences allowing them to serve drinks indoors and outdoors as well. A boutique and a snack bar possibly will be operated this summer in conjunction with the tourist resort. Special activities are being planned throughout the holiday season for the entertainment of guests and visitors at the castle. Although it will be run primarily as a tourist resort, the castle will welcome droppers-in and will cater to wedding receptions and other local social events.

Cold Delays Crops

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County agricultural representative Larry Matheson said yesterday that cool spring temperatures could delay this season's crop growth.

"Basically the ground hasn't warmed enough to germinate the crops; there have been only three or four warm days" he remarked.

Mr. Matheson observed the frequent rains in Prince Edward this spring are not, at this point, a cause for concern. "Perhaps it could become serious if the weather stays bad," he added. In several areas of the county farm land remains too wet to be worked. Spring grain crops have sprouted, however, Mr. Matheson stated there are still some spring grains to be sown and predicted that less than one-half of the corn crop has been sown this spring. Peas are still being processed by county farmers.

The agriculture representative commented that hay in Prince Edward's prime crop in relation to acreage. Figures compiled in 1969 show that 44,600 acres of hay were grown in the county. Spring grains totalled 15,000 acres, while corn was sown in 12,000 acres.

Figures released in 1970 show that Prince Edward farmers sowed 810 acres of tomatoes, 1,597 acres of green peas and 612 acres of sweet corn.

Apartment Dwellers' Co-operation Asked

Pollution is like the weather, everybody talks about it but no one does anything about it.

Except a group of BCIVS students.

The Key Club at the school has embarked on a project to recycle waste paper as its contribution to the anti - pollution campaign.

The boys are contacting apartment superintendents in the city and asking them to have their tenants leave old newspapers and magazines in a central place, such as a laundry room.

The boys collect the paper once a week and sell it at 8 a ton to a local scrap dealer. The dealer in turn sells it to the mill that wants paper in the production of paper products.

But the project has run into snags, says the Key Club's teacher-advisor on the paper recycling project, Mrs. Patricia Harris.

One is the problem of contacting all apartment superintendents in the city and asking them to have their tenants leave old newspapers and magazines in a central place, such as a laundry room.

The boys collect the paper once a week and sell it at 8 a ton to a local scrap dealer. The dealer in turn sells it to the mill that wants paper in the production of paper products.

But the project has run into snags, says the Key Club's teacher-advisor on the paper recycling project, Mrs. Patricia Harris.

One is the problem of contacting all apartment superintendents and tenants, a chore often left to overworked Key Club girl sponsor, Mrs. Harris reports that any superintendents contacted who wish to take part in the program, get in touch with her at 968-5139 after school hours. She also suggests that interested tenants discuss the recycling project with their superintendent.

Eventually the Club envisions a once-a-week waste paper collection day under municipal auspices, with householders required to separate old newspapers and magazines from their other garbage and put it out for separate collection.

But, says Mrs. Harris, a major stumbling block in the path of those using individual initiative to lessen the pollution problem is the shortage of markets for waste. Even finding a market for large quantities of waste paper is difficult and so far the key club has drawn a blank on markets for waste glass.

The Key Club is interested in expanding its recycling pickups to as many waste items as possible, but the members are forced to conclude that the public climate and private facilities are not yet ready to handle major recycling of garbage.

There is no suggestion that the paper recycling project will be a fund-raiser for the Key Club.

The boys will be lucky if they break even at $8 a ton," says Mrs. Harris.

Cab Gutted

TRENTON (Staff) — A Quebec resident had a surprise when he returned to his vehicle after a coffee stop last night at a Highway 401 service centre just west of here. It was on fire.

The cab of the truck, driven by Gaston Poirier of St. Jerome, was gutted in the 8 p.m. blaze when Brighton detachment of OPP blame on faulty ignition. The fire was extinguished by service centre staff.

County Jail Soon Empty

With the official opening of the new four county regional detention centre at Napanee scheduled for this Saturday, county jails in the Quinte area will soon be vacant. And already Hastings county is moving to arrange for the demolition of its jail, which went into operation back in October, 1890.

At the last meeting of county council, members discussed razing of the 122 - year - old structure and this week advertisements for its demolition are appearing in county newspapers.

Plans for the erection of the jail were commended in 1837 and a competition was held to select the best plans.

The first prize of 20 pounds and the contract for supervising the plans went to Thomas Rogers of Kingston. Construction of the new jail and courthouse cost $19,946 with the cornerstone being laid in May 1838.

Work proceeded until the summer of 1838 when local magistrates were able to report to the provincial government that the jail and "sufficient Gaol and Court House" had been completed.

Benjamin Dorland was the first judge to hold court at the new courthouse while Edmund Murney was clerk of the peace and county crown attorney.

History records that among the promising young lawyers to appear before the bench in the courthouse's first year was John A. Macdonald of Kingston, representing the Commercial Bank.

That "promising young lawyer" was to become Canada's first prime minister following confederation in 1867.

Potter Named Board Member

Quinte MPP Dr. Richard Potter was named to the provincial treasury board yesterday by Ontario Premier William Davis. Also joining Dr. Potter on the board will be minister of university affairs John White. Mr. White was revenue minister in the previous cabinet of John Robarts.

Dr. Potter said today the "appointment will give me that much more of an opportunity to be closely involved with the implementation of the nursing home care program announced by the government.

"The total medical care package has been of concern to the government and one of my assigned duties as minister without portfolio was how to work with the Hon. Bert Lawrence, minister of health. Now as a member of the treasury board, I will be able to put forward the merits of the health program with the board which makes the financial decisions."

Premier treasurer Charles MacNaughton, now minister of highways and transport, has relinquished his seat on the board.

IN MEMORIAM

LANGFORD — In loving memory of our dear grandfather, Arthur who passed away May 15, 1970.

Our hearts are filled with sadness And secret tears still flow,
What we loved most dear was taken,
Your memory we'll always keep.
Each time we see your picture,
You seem to speak and say,
"Don't cry, I'm only sleeping,
We will meet again some day."
Larry never said goodbye to us,
He left us with a smile,
He left behind a memory dear,
To a son he loved so well.
Sadly missed and always remembered by mother, dad and family.

LANGFORD — In loving memory of our dear grandfather, Arthur (Larry) who passed away May 15, 1970.

O lucky Larry, you're with Jesus,
Now everything's all right.
You're free from pain and sorrow,
The world can never fill.
Dear Larry, remembered by grandson and Harry, aunt and uncle and cousins.

DAY — In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Ernest Day who passed away May 13, 1970.

Our hearts cannot tell what to say,
God alone knows how we miss her,
Her memory we'll always keep.
Sadly missed and remembered by Dave, Eileen and grandchildren.

WRIGHT — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Ethel Wright who passed away May 13, 1970.

Our hearts still ache with sadness,
And tears flow from our eyes,
What it meant to lose you Mum,
No one will ever realize.
Each time we pass your picture,
Or see your favourite chair,
We will meet again some day.
But perhaps it's just as well,
That we cannot tell what to say,
God alone knows how we miss her,
She was loved so well.
Sadly missed and always remembered by mother, sister and brothers.

Quinte MPP Dr. Richard Potter was named to the provincial treasury board yesterday by Ontario Premier William Davis. Also joining Dr. Potter on the board will be minister of university affairs John White. Mr. White was revenue minister in the previous cabinet of John Robarts.

Dr. Potter said today the "appointment will give me that much more of an opportunity to be closely involved with the implementation of the nursing home care program announced by the government.

"The total medical care package has been of concern to the government and one of my assigned duties as minister without portfolio was how to work with the Hon. Bert Lawrence, minister of health. Now as a member of the treasury board, I will be able to put forward the merits of the health program with the board which makes the financial decisions."

Premier treasurer Charles MacNaughton, now minister of highways and transport, has relinquished his seat on the board.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

The Officers and Members of the Royal Canadian Legion Branch 109, Belleville, are requested to attend a Memorial Service in memory of our late Comrades, Sunday, May 16th, and Lieutenant Funeral Home, 60 Bridge St. E., Belleville, on Thursday, May 13th at 7 p.m.

Jack Ashworth, President.
Sydney Scott, Secretary.

IN MEMORIAM

LANGFORD — In loving memory of our dear grandfather, Arthur who passed away May 15, 1970.

Our hearts are filled with sadness And secret tears still flow,
What we loved most dear was taken,
Your memory we'll always keep.
Each time we see your picture,
You seem to speak and say,
"Don't cry, I'm only sleeping,
We will meet again some day."
Larry never said goodbye to us,
He left us with a smile,
He left behind a memory dear,
To a son he loved so well.
Sadly missed and always remembered by mother, dad and family.

LANGFORD — In loving memory of our dear grandfather, Arthur (Larry) who passed away May 15, 1970.

O lucky Larry, you're with Jesus,
Now everything's all right.
You're free from pain and sorrow,
The world can never fill.
Dear Larry, remembered by grandson and Harry, aunt and uncle and cousins.

DAY — In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Ernest Day who passed away May 13, 1970.

Our hearts cannot tell what to say,
God alone knows how we miss her,
Her memory we'll always keep.
Sadly missed and remembered by Dave, Eileen and grandchildren.

WRIGHT — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Ethel Wright who passed away May 13, 1970.

Our hearts still ache with sadness,
And tears flow from our eyes,
What it meant to lose you Mum,
No one will ever realize.
Each time we pass your picture,
Or see your favourite chair,
We will meet again some day.
But perhaps it's just as well,
That we cannot tell what to say,
God alone knows how we miss her,
She was loved so well.
Sadly missed and always remembered by mother, sister and brothers.

All Are Welcome At Centennial

Centennial Secondary School will be the scene of a mini arts festival this evening and everyone is invited to attend, free of charge. Guests may be serenaded by groups of strolling minstrels, enjoy band concerts, listen to folk songs or keep time to the sound of rock music.

Student actors and actresses will display their talents in plays and excerpts from plays at the auditorium and parents and friends can watch budding artists working on their own thing, whether it's painting, sculpture or craft work. All these activities will take place simultaneously at various places in the school between the hours of 7:30 and 9:30 p.m.

The school cafeteria will be transformed into an intimate coffee house with attractively appointed tables, a dance band and a floor area for dancing. This festival will replace the more conventional type of open house program this year.

Automatic Lights To Be Installed

Installation of the city's new Monotrol central control traffic system will be done on a time and material basis rather than by contract, it has been decided by city council.

The city called tenders for the installation with only one bid — from Stacey Electric Company — being received at a figure of $10,063.

However, the tender price was higher than anticipated and council accepted a staff recommendation that the installation be done on a time and material basis. It is estimated that by this method the entire installation can be done for approximately $7,500.

The central control system will be installed at the city police station with Bell lines connecting the control equipment with all traffic lights in the downtown core district.

The system has the capability of controlling up to 109 traffic light installations.

The currently planned installation will not include new traffic lights to be installed at the Bay Bridge Road — North Dundas intersection, or those planned for Dundas Street East in the hospital area.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said, however, that these two areas could be tied in with the central control system at some future time.

Overall cost of the control system and installation is expected to be in the area of $25,000 although this includes a $4,000 item for new signal equipment for the Victoria Ave. — Front Street intersection, which is in need of replacement.

The new traffic control system operates through a system of pre-programmed signals fed into the master control which will regulate the phasing of lights at each of the intersections.

Dump Donated

TRENTON (Staff)— One problem has now been solved for Trenton area organizers of Operation Cleanweep . . . they now have a place to put garbage collected in this year's shoreline cleanup.

Harold Graham, operator of Commercial Refuse Ltd's., Bayside disposal site (now used by Belleville and Sidney Township) has donated free access to his facilities for the June 12 conservation event.

With the town of Trenton facing a deadline from the department of energy and resources management to close its sanitary land fill in Centennial Park, council here decided May 3 the Lower Trent Conservation Authority would not be allowed to use the town dump, which last year had been a key to disposal of 72 tons of garbage collected from along the Trent and Bay of Quinte waterways.

Surveyors' Group To Present Brief

Certified survey technicians and technologists in Ontario are seeking to improve the training of new members of their association through recommendations to the commission on post - secondary education in Ontario.

Tomorrow, in Toronto, the commission will hear a brief prepared by S. C. Geneja, deputy registrar of deeds here, concerning the need for improving the standards of education now provided at the technical level in surveying.

Mr. Geneja, was a founder of the Association of Certified Survey Technicians and Technologists of Ontario and is now its chairman of public relations. Since 1958, ACSTTO has been involved in improving the educational facilities and standards of survey technicians and technologists. The association was responsible for the creation of correspondence and night school courses as well as the courses now available at nine of Ontario's community colleges, including Loyalist.

The brief suggests the creation of working arrangements with users of survey technicians so that trainees would spend six months at a time taking academic courses and six months working in the field. Should such a provincial governments are the chief employers of survey personnel, this would require a close relationship with both governments in the practical training of technicians and technologists.

The brief calls for a college curriculum which relates the practical studies of the technician to the theoretical studies of the professional surveyor.

It also asks for specialization within individual community colleges to allow deeper study of surveying specialties, including cartography, hydrography, photogrammetry and geodesy.

On the whole, the brief shares with many others presented to the commission, a call for increased emphasis on practical on - the - job experience for students entering technical fields after community college graduation.

Mr. Geneja, who will be one of three members of ACSTTO appearing before the commission tomorrow, has recently been appointed the only technologist on the Canadian Institute of Surveying—a group of professionals charged with the "full spectrum" of mapping of Canada, guardianship of offshore development and letting of coal and gas leases, especially above the 60th parallel.

Greenbelt Land Approval Granted

Dr. Richard T. Potter, MPP Quinte announced this morning that ministerial approval had been obtained for a grant" of $35,000 to the Moira River Conservation Authority for land acquisition as an addition to the greenbelt floodplain lands along the Moira River.

The announcement said the authority has undertaken a scheme to acquire property along the west side of the Moira River for the purpose of developing a greenbelt

CPR Opposed

CANNIFTON (Staff) — An application by Canadian Pacific Railway to close an unopened road on the boundary line between Tyendinaga and Thurlow Townships met with opposition at Wednesday's meeting of Thurlow Township Council.

Because of increased speeds in rail traffic, CPR deemed the closing of the road near Shannonville a necessity.

However, council objected and said people had access to the road and it was still being used.

along the floodplain. Two parcels of land have already been acquired.

The authority is now proposing to proceed with the purchase of a third parcel of some 18.4 acres in the City of Belleville. The property is located opposite the swimming area on the east bank of the Moira in Riverside Park. The city of Belleville, as the main benefitting community will bear the major portion of the authority's portion of the cost.

Once title to the land has been cleared the conservation authority can apply for inclusion of the provincial grant in its 1971 budget.

Fledglings on Parade

First year Air Cadets of the Belleville 808 Squadron stand proudly at attention for the inspection party headed by Col. H. F. Wenz, CFB, Trenton. Flanking the Col. are left, Lt. P. Teatro and Capt. A. L. Foley, Air Cadet Officers with Air Commodore A. D. Ross, retired, Air Cadet League representative at the 9th annual inspection held Wednesday evening at the Belleville Armories.

'Cost' of Being Air Cadet Said to Be Well Worth It

"In today's society, in almost all locales, it really isn't the in thing if your bag is air cadets," says Colonel H. F. Wenz, CD, deputy chief of staff, personnel service, CFB Trenton.

Addressing those who gathered at the armories last night to view the 9th Annual Inspection of 808 (Belleville) Squadron, Royal Canadian Air Cadets, Colonel Wenz added that it "costs" the cadets something, "among their peers, at school or at sports to have a short hair cut and to dress up in a uniform." He went on to say that the price must be right, otherwise, the boys would not exhibit the pride, confidence and self - assurance that is evident in the squadron.

The colonel's address focused on a thought for adults and youth. "Listen, understand and then communicate. It works so much better that way. If we do, each of us will find it less difficult to get along in this world."

Following the entrance march, led by the AN and AF Pipe Band, with pipe major, Douglas McCamley, the official inspection party, consisting of Lt. Peter Teatro; Lt. J. M. O'Bryan, senior staff officer and drill instructor; civilian instructors Lt. G. E. Maybee, A. Smith, B. Bardy, J. Barrett and T. Pratt. Capt. Foley conferred honorary memberships in 808 squadron on Col. H. F. Wenz and J. Lundberg, Dominion president. AN and AF. He also presented Mrs. Howard Welch with a small token of appreciation for her efforts as food convener throughout the year.

Colonel H. F. Wenz, himself, a holder of the Canadian Decoration, presented the medal to Lt. W. E. Lewis, supply officer with 808 squadron since 1962. Lt. Lewis joined the RCAF in 1940, went overseas in 1943, serving with the RAF, 61 squadron, Skelmorlie and retired in 1945, having been shot down in 1944.

Lt. Lewis also received the "best officer" award, presented to him by Allan Rasmussen, president, NCO Club. Mr. Thorton Pertt was chosen "best instructor" by the cadets.

A special presentation was made by Sgt. A. Pearce to Corp. T. Follens, CFB, Trenton, in appreciation of his help in instructing the drill squadron of 12 cadets which put on a precise and well-timed display at the inspection.

Lt. W.-E. Lewis awarded pins to those cadets who started training prior to January 31 and have a perfect attendance record; AC 1 McGreevy, AC 1 Allore, ACI Smith, ACI Calbury, AC 1 Phillips and ACI Copeland.

LAC W. R. Kirkman, LAC J. D. Harper and Cpl. W. R. Carr received first - year pins for one full year training and no absence. Presentations were made by Alderman Arthur Keegan.

Second year pins were presented by Major A. Cunningham to LAC K. Haley, LAC D.-A. Schmidt, F-Sgt. M. Twigg, Cpl. R. Gaicum, LAC D. McLeod and Cpl. W. Zoochkan.

Three-year perfect attendance awards were presented to LAC T. Weadon, Cpl. G. McCoy, LAC Turcotte, Cpl. D. Glover, Cpl. R. Hurst and Sgt. A. Pearce by Area Cadet Officer Capt. B. P. Tinsley.

Stan Melbourne presented pins and trophies to those cadets who had a four-year perfect attendance record: WOII K. Watson, Sgt. D. Irish, Cpl. W. Johnson, F/Sgt. R. Scott, WOII A Rasmussen and Cpl. K. Welch.

The program ended with the cutting of an anniversary cake to mark the 30th anniversary of the Air Cadets in Canada. The organization, which started as a supplement to the regular military prior to World War II has since sent over 150,000 air cadets on through its ranks. 5,000 young men have learned the skills of flying: 1,100 cadets have participated in overseas visits; others have taken part in summer camps and leadership programs. Three cadets from the Belleville squadron will participate in training programs this summer: WOII A. Rasmussen, flying school at Kingston Flyer Chdr; WOII K. Watson, senior leadership camp, Camp Borden, and F/Sgt. R. Scott, technical course, Camp Borden.

Pins Presented

Administrators of Belleville General Hospital last night paid tribute to long term employees at the 6th annual Long Service Dinner held in the auditorium of education hall.

"Our observance of hospital day doesn't centre around buildings," Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan, chairman of the executive committee of the board of governors, told the banquet guests.

"There was a time when things were different. People were afraid of hospitals and were invited in to see what they were like.

"Today, everybody ih the course of his life, at some time, has to come to the hospital and we have learned to satisfy their needs. When people are with you for 10 to 15 years, patients are reassured and at ease."

In recognition of long service, Rt. Rev. Sullivan and hospital administrator Philip Rickard then presented pins and certaitions to 23 staff members.

Pins for 25 years of service went to Miss Nellie Connell and Miss Queenie Cooke; a 20 - year pin was awarded to Mrs. Klaudia Gardener, and 10 year pins went to Mrs. Bridgitte Brauer, Mrs. Vera Lickfold, Mrs. Mabel Bowerman, Mrs. Ruby Vickery and 10 - year service pins were presented to Mrs. Jacqueline Bains, Mrs. Patricia Borden, Gordon Calder, Mrs. Thelma Casselman, Earl Cooney, Leo P. Fortin, Mrs. Patricia Meldrum, Bruce Noyes, Mrs. Annie O'Connor, Mrs. Helen Pascoe, Mrs. Marie Pfeiffer, Mrs. Katheryn Pointer, Mrs. Bessie Pordham, Miss Gail Robinson, Mrs. Muriel Stalker and Mrs. Helen Symons.

Following the presentations, assistant hospital administrator John Konetsky igroduced 18 retired employees of the hospital who represented a total of 235 years of service.

To top off the evening, a buffet banquet fit to please any gourmet was served consisting of roast young cornish game hens with kumquat sauce, baron of sweet beef au jus, roasted turkey toms with cranberry glace, pork loins a la bonnaced, saide of turnadeau with burgundy sauce, steamed sockeye salmon with fish sauce, sweet and sour chicken in pineapple brandy, shrimps in batter with hot sauce, fried Chinese rice, lobster tails with hotel dressing, glazed Virginia ham covered in fruit sauce, potato, tossed, combination and spring salads and a choice of fresh breads and fresh fruit completed the feast.

Ottawa's Spies

How much snooping is being perpetrated by Government on individual Canadians these days? We wonder because of that bit in The Windsor Star, republished on this page the other day, which revealed that the Ontario Addiction Research Foundation used to examine liquor purchase slips.

This foundation, a government-supported body that were able to plot the drinking habits and life-style of thousands of citizens.

Soon there is to be another census, and we understand answers will be sought to more personal questions than ever before. The dangers of such information falling into wrong hands may be appreciated from the experience in Britain. There the Government repeatedly is investigating an organization which is providing information about people, gleaned from a recent census, to anyone who wants it.

As we noted recently, some surveillance of individuals is necessary where the security of the State is concerned. But there are any number of political nuts around who are actively engaged in trying to undermine established authority in Canada. But the affairs of the vast majority of law-abiding Canadians should be of no concern to Ottawa.

Mob Mentality

The people who descend on Washington, and to a lesser extent on Ottawa and Toronto, for anti-war and other demonstrations . . . why do they do for a living? It is a good question, but we have no satisfactory answer. Maybe they are people on welfare, or they have private means, or could it be that there is some organization which is behind them and gives them pocket money?

These thoughts came to mind with the recent cartoon by Blaine, in which President Nixon, looking down from a White House balcony, says: "Spiro, there must be a non-violent way to scare off these demonstrators," and Vice-President Agnew replies: "You could threaten to find them all a full-time job!"

And there perhaps is the crux of the matter. Too many people are out of work, have nothing to do, yet they have money to fool around as members of a chanting mob. Even if they were offered a job many of these people would likely spurn it. Work is not for them, but they have the security of the mob and that, unhappily, is the root of much of our trouble today.

Russian Interlude

With Prime Minister Trudeau preparing for his trip to the Soviet Union it is interesting to learn that while Canada may not be in the forefront of the international scene in that country's eyes, some Soviet students, at least, are studying it in school.

The CBC showed film the other day of a class which was studying Canada and Moscow correspondent Ab Douglas talked with the teenage boys and girls. A handsome and attractive group they were too, and they likened Canada to the green land in terms of "woods and wide open spaces." One pretty lass who spoke good English with a hint of a North American accent knew that Mr. Trudeau had "an attractive wife."

It was a surprising encounter. We do not see much of Soviet life on film, let alone have interviews with the young people. Occasionally though the CBC comes up with something like this and we could not help but be impressed by the good look of the young Russians, their well-groomed appearance and pleasant manner, not to mention their maturity and evident high standard of education.

Too Many Cooks

Involvement, participatory democracy, call it what you will, is being taken to extraordinary lengths in our days. As in Toronto recently when delegates to the Canadian policy conference of the United Steelworkers of America called on the union's locals to insist on a say in the pollution control measures industries adopt.

True, just about everyone is having his say on pollution, but when industry is concerned it is really a matter for the professionals and inventors — whether from union or management. They are the people who should be in the forefront. When all is said and done it is a technical or engineering matter, for those who are so trained, and let the administrative and union people keep out of it, except in so far as they are needed to give their approval or otherwise.

Another Angle to That Pay Raise

MPs' Wives Who Count Cents and Wear Hand-me-Downs

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The Honorable Members of the House of Commons already are flinching before the taxpayer's lucubrations from defeating — and despite pangs of conscience, passing the legislation raising their own pay-and-tax — free — expenses from $18,000 to $26,000.

The same debate will not bother the Honorable Members of the Senate much — they do not have to be elected.

But back in the mind of every MP when he argues in support of his pay — and expense raise — or discreetly, if with some lack of courage, remains wisely mum — will be the Prime Minister's "throw-away line" when announcing the 30 percent increase that it could cost some of them their jobs in the next election.

They know this, are very sensitive to an angry taxpayer reaction, and fearful, with some convincing reasons, that it is unfair.

They need more money, they say, and while many of them concede that it is extremely bad parliamentary public relations to have almost a third of it — off-the top in the highest rate bracket — tax-free, they are willing to accept it, some reluctantly, others a little reluctantly and a few refusing. Before it is all through, they conceivably could back off.

If most of them think they need it, and urgently, you should hear their wives.

For it was the Parliamentary Wives Association, through its more vocal members, which did so much to convince first the special commission of enquiry headed by Montreal industrialist T. N. Beaupre and then the Prime Minister that the need was real and pressing.

They see the problem in the same budget perspective of all wives who have to stretch every last dollar to cover their family needs.

Oh sure, they have more dollars than most wives—but they have to stretch them over a far greater spending difference.

Listen for a moment to the argument of a West Coast Liberal MP's wife — who, because of the language, rarely backlash, prefers to remain anonymous.

The cost of a cup of tea, back home in the West Coast riding of her husband, at any social she must attend, runs some $300.

And attend she usually must. For it is just as politically important to her husband to attend, and perhaps, at a parliamentary wife, pour tea, as it is for the wife of an MP with his riding conveniently located geographically right here in the National Capital.

The difference is 2,000 miles, air fare of $280, plus the cost of getting to and from airports, taxi-fares, tips, and incidentals.

Puts the price of a cup of tea out of sight, eh?

Refuse the invitation. Do not go, you say. Try that, and you and your husband will get letters from back in the constituency saying how unfortunate it is and perhaps hinting that people are starting to talk about you not caring anymore.

And you know what that can mean, next time the folks back home go to the polls, which will not be long now.

Perhaps you will not believe it but some of the parliamentary wives have been swearing that household budgets have been so strained under the particular pressures of public life that they are forced to borrow or trade each other's dresses for the appearances they are almost compelled to make on formal occasions in the Capital.

Hard fact of the matter is that some of them have been doing their cocktail gown shopping at Ottawa's Superfluity Rag where wives of diplomats dispose — largely in the name of charity — of their little-worn dresses.

Sort of a used-gown lot, but since they wear nothing but the very best on Diplomatic Row, even their hand - me - downs are scarcely Little Orphan Annie dresses.

Okay, so it is not easy to be a parliamentary wife, at least one who "works" at it. Then why not cut out of the political action and be like most other wives, simply keeping the home fires burning? — and no easy job, no snap, that, I assure you.

Well, as the wife of an MP certain things are "expected" of you, by your husband's constituents, by the riding association, and especially by the guy himself.

He counts on you to help him get elected and re-elected.

So you should perched on-the back of windy conventilies after shooting ten bucks on a slick new hairdo.

And your pour tea — at $300 the cup — for the riding ladies' Association, for the church, the Boy Scout mothers, for all fund-raisers and community minded promoters who put on strawberry festivals, rodeos, regattas, bazaars, carnivals, fall fairs and harvest suppers.

You sit at head table and smile, and smile, smile while you are being kidded — and not always for the best — about being wife of an MP who, for Heaven's sake, is supposed by far too many people to be doing very little work and getting top pay for it.

You swill gallons of awful coffee at campaign clatches, answer thousands of unceasing phone calls, look after huge Christmas card lists — and do not dare drop off any names — you take abuse from cranks, and do the very best job you can to be a good and useful type working hard at the job of trying to keep your husband secure in his House of Commons seat.

It is not easy.

And it is doubly difficult if you have a young family in constant demanding need of your strictly limited money.

"He can't carry out the garbage but he's going to build a city in the North for Trudeau!"

Tag Day Pressure on Pocket

Brockville Recorder and Times

Never were so few called on by so many for so much money, Brockville householders have been faced with an almost constant barrage of canvassers this year all seeking money for worthy causes. Scarcely a week has gone by without a drive for funds by some organization, albeit there's a United Appeal campaign here annually. The number seems to increase from year to year, without remise. And they come at a time when the householder is faced with the greatest annual call on the pocketbook — income tax.

Most of the campaigns are for causes deserving of support but coming as frequently as they do, it must be difficult for a great many people to give as much as they would like to.

We're surprised that more campaigns don't fail and thus fade away.

There is one campaign, however, that comes annually in May and deserves some special consideration from townsfolk and others. It is Red Shield Month, the time when the Salvation Army asks for aid in its work in the city and district and around the world. For more than one hundred years it has been and is, a source of hope for millions of people in distress.

Many of the services offered by this unique institution have no counterpart in any direct counterpart-in today's society. Moving with the times, the Army is always entering new problem areas which arise from present needs. All services are performed with a dedication that springs from a faith in the dignity and value of every human being.

While it may not be evident in this area, a large part of the work of the Salvation Army involves the operation and maintenance of homes, rehabilitation centres and hospitals. These activities and many others, are expensive. That is why the Red Shield campaign is held every year.

And to get back to the rash of canvasses. City council should exercise more control over them and make sure there aren't two, three or four every month. Even the tag day season started early this year. There's already been two of them. Or is it four?

Canada's Shortage of Capital Funds

Vancouver Sun

The message carried home from Ottawa by Canadian mayors is not a pretty one; slums, pollution, traffic jams, stagnant and ever-soaring municipal taxes should be borne cheerfully in the national interest.

They return from their annual pilgrimage with little encouragement and with the sober admonition of Finance Minister Edgar Benson to stop borrowing outside the country. In the logic of the new nationalism this is bad practice because it drives upward the exchange rate on the Canadian dollar. The municipalities are expected by Mr. Benson to defend the dollar from the folks they trust at home.

Such dollars, however, are scarce. When they can be found, the interest rate is high. The competition is fierce, and the competitors include provincial governments. Ontario alone will be $415 million short of breaking even on its new budget and the money will have to be raised somewhere. The federal government itself has seen a predicted surplus slide into deficit.

The problem is, as former Manitoba premier Duff Roblin noted the other day, that there isn't enough capital in Canada. This, he said could be because Canadians didn't save enough. And they are unlikely to save more because of Ottawa's proposed tax laws.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

May 13, 1971 . . .

Lawrence of Arabia fell from his motorcycle at a high speed 36 years ago today—in 1935—and died six days later. He first went to the Middle East in 1910, aged 22, to study archeology. After Turkey joined the Central Powers in the First World War, T. E. Lawrence helped set up the Arab Bureau and, in 1916, helped organize a successful attack by a unit of Arabia and Palestine, which ended with the capture of Damascus a few hours before British troops arrived. Lawrence withdrew from public life in 1922, joining the newly-founded RAF as a mechanic.

1945—373 were killed aboard the U.S. Carrier Bunker Hill in combat.

1942—Two freighters were torpedoed in the St. Lawrence by a U-boat.

1923—Lord Milner, the statesman, died.

1831—Cyrus McCormick, inventor of the McCormick reaper, died.

1865—The last engagement of the U. S. Civil War was fought at Palo Pinto, Tex.

1830—The presidency of Quito became the Republic of Ecuador.

1788—The Tammany Society of New York held its first meeting.

1816—The General Smith, the first river steamship to ply between Saint John, N.B., and Fredericton, was built.

1808—Napoleon captured Vienna.

P.M's Soviet Trip: Will It Be Just Another Junket Or A Chance for Serious Talk?

Ottawa Journal

Most Canadians will approve of Prime Minister Trudeau's trip to Russia. It is time that a Canadian head of government made the trip. Though there have been two visits by Ministers of External Affairs since the end of the Second World War and tours by other cabinet ministers, a trip by the Prime Minister could be a significant step forward in improving relations between the two countries.

The invitation to Trudeau — and its acceptance — implies that in the normal custom of diplomatic reciprocity a Soviet premier will be coming to Canada. That too will meet widespread Canadian acceptance.

But if Trudeau's trip is to accomplish anything beyond exuding some genial goodwill, he should have clearly in mind some specific things he wants to accomplish. That means that there should be a well-developed concept of how Canada's relations with the Soviet Union should be advanced.

Yet Canadians are hard put to determine the Government's foreign policy aims towards Russia. They will find nothing helpful in the External Affairs white paper that was published last year. Mitchell Sharp's bland effusions have been singularly unrevealing.

The Prime Minister's three days in the Arctic, his dash to the magic places of the North, could be one of either. Few Baffin Islands have been excused from duty when their names have been called. Mr. Trudeau, however, proposes to allow a woman candidate to be excused from duty on request.

The reason? Women, says Mr. Choquette, are physiologically different. Their functions are different. Anyway, they might find jury duty repugnant and no penalties are provided if a woman to do anything which is repugnant to her.

Supporters of Women's Lib will be incensed. Isn't that what movement is all about? The removal of those barriers which separate the sexes? If a woman is called to serve on a jury, she should serve under the same conditions as a man. To say can, if you please, Mr. Choquette.

Chivalry Backfires

Montreal Gazette

Justice Minister Choquette's sense of chivalry risks making him more enemies than friends among the women of Quebec. And this, as so often happens on the battlefield of women's rights, comes about through imposing one form of discrimination against women in the quite laudable effort to remove another.

Mr. Choquette is amending the Jury Act so that women will be called to serve in what, hitherto, has been an all-male preserve. The all-male jury has been a particularly outstanding-ished form of discrimination against women and it's long past the time when it should be ended.

Jury duty is a responsibility of citizenship. Few Bible jurors have been excused from duty when their names have been called. Mr. Choquette, however, proposes to allow a woman candidate to be excused from duty on request.

The reason? Women, says Mr. Choquette, are physiologically different. Their functions are different. Anyway, they might find jury duty repugnant and no penalties are provided if a woman to do anything which is repugnant to her.

Supporters of Women's Lib will be incensed. Isn't that what movement is all about? The removal of those barriers which separate the sexes? If a woman is called to serve on a jury, she should serve under the same conditions as a man. To say can, if you please, Mr. Choquette.

Richard John Lewis, of 6 Victoria St., Tweed, died in the Belleville General Hospital Sunday, May 9.

Mr. Lewis was born in Wales and lived in the Tweed area for the past three years. Before moving to Tweed he had lived with his family in Hampton, Ontario.

He was the son of the late Mr. Isaac Lewis and Mrs. Lewis.

Surviving are his wife, the former Eileen Clark and his sons Richard of Belleville and Thomas at home.

Also surviving him are his sisters Miss Mary Lewis of Oshawa, Mrs. Thomas (Violet) Quinlan of Weston, Ontario, and his brother Roy of Windsor.

He was an active member of St. John's United Church, Tweed and Royal Canadian Legion, No. 420, Odd Fellows Lodge, No. 290.

A memorial service was held for him in the funeral home Tuesday, May 11 at 8 p.m. by the Royal Canadian Legion which was followed by a service conducted by the Odd Fellows Lodge.

Funeral service was held in the chapel of the Bush Funeral Home, Tweed, Wednesday, May 12 at 2 p.m.

Rev. I. E. Munro conducted the service and interment was in the Victoria cemetery, Tweed.

Bearers were Arthur Robinson, Robert Ogden, Ralph Short, Henry Alsten, Mert. Oates and Cardus Cassidy.

MRS. WILLIAM HINZE
(Oshawa)

Mrs. William Hinze, of Oshawa and previously of Belleville, died in the Oshawa General Hospital, Monday, May 10.

She was born in Hunstsville and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Kelly.

She is survived by her husband, William Hinze, and her children Thomas of Oshawa, Mrs. Erston (Vivian) Coulter, Oshawa, Mrs. Albert (Viola) Burwash, Bancroft, Mrs. Henry (Mary) Dupuis, Maynooth, Mrs. Albert (Annie) Zammit, Ketilsby, Mrs. Raymond (Joyce) Bowers, Bancroft, Albert Hinze, Belleville and Wilbert of Maynooth. Also surviving her is her sister Mrs. Candace MacRae of Toronto.

The funeral service was in the chapel of the Armstrong Funeral Home, Thursday, May 13 and was conducted by Rev. William Piercy.

Interment was in the Oshawa Union cemetery.

DONALD BERKELEY RIDLEY

Funeral service for Donald Berkeley Ridley was held in the chapel of the John R. Bush Funeral Home, Wednesday, May 12 at 2 p.m.

The service was conducted by Dr. H. M. Davis and interment was in the Belleville cemetery.

The previous evening, memorial services were held by the Royal Canadian Legion and the Belleville Lodge, AF and AM, No. 356.

Bearers were Frank Douglas, James Brown, Harold Vaughan, Tom Pratt, Harold Linton Dolck and Wilf Coleman.

Recruits Drilled at Belleville 55 Years Ago Today

Departure of the 80th Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force from Belleville took place 55 years ago today and this picture, taken before the Belleville Armories that day, shows the troops during one of their last drills. T. J. A. "Perge" Ferguson, a former Bellevillian, presently retired in Hamilton, forwarded this photograph in recognition of the anniversary. From Belleville, where the troops spent 189 days, the 80th Battalion travelled to Halifax where they boarded the RMS Baltic, eventually departing for Bordon Camp in Hants, Ingland on May 30. Personnel of the 80th were distributed among battalions of the Fourth Divisions, 72nd, 73rd, 75th, and 78 before proceeding to France. Included in the 80th Battalion CEF were a 46-man brass band under Lt. H. A. Starrs, a 20-man bugle band and 16 drummers. Recruits were attracted from such towns and cities as Belleville, Hamilton, Kingston, Toronto, Ottawa, Picton, Trenton, Gananoque, Napanee, Campbellford, Almonte, Madoc, Sarnia, Perth, Beamsville, Dundas, Haileybury, Shelburne, Smiths Falls, Frankford, Prescott, Bowmanville, Montreal and several cities in the U.S.

City Now Permanent Host for Horse Show

"Community Involvement" is the theme of this year's Eastern Ontario Half Arabian Horse Show, being presented May 24. The annual Who's Who in Ontario's horse show circuit drew over 100 horses making 250 entries to the Quinte Exhibition Grounds last year.

Last year Belleville played host to the largest Half-Arabian Show in Canadian history, and judging from the comments of spectators and exhibitors, it was also the most exciting show of its kind.

Realizing the full potential that Belleville has in being host for such a large and important horse show, the Show Committee (made up of top horsemen from Cobourg Belleville, Picton, Kingston, and Tweed) decided to make Belleville the permanent headquarters for the Eastern Ontario Show.

In striving for total community involvement, the organizers are increasing the prize monies offer to $1,500, as well as including several open $100 Stake Classes. It is felt that these open stake classes will include more Belleville-area horse breeders in the show, as well as heighten the spectator interest in the horse show action.

An additon to this year's show will be an exhibition of Olympic level riding, on a purebred Arabian horse to be performed by Cindy Neale, who is now in training for the Pan - American Games under the top Olympic trainer and rider, Christilot Hansen.

One of America's top horsemen, L. Thornhill, of Ramsey, New Jersey, has been hired to judge the May 24 spectacular. Mr. Thornhill has judged most of the top shows all over the United States and Canada.

Mrs. Ron Jorgenson, secretary of the Eastern Ontario Half - Arabian Horse Show Committee reports that a large number of entries for the show have been received already, and that the show is shaping up to be bigger and better than ever.

Labor Lottery Is Proposed

TRENTON (Staff) — A provincial lottery for all working men in the province run by the Ontario Federation of Labor is a possibility Quinte District Labor Council want the OF of L to investigate.

The suggestion was made from the floor by Bill Menzies, who feels the lottery could be used to finance public service projects for both labor and the needy, with labor councils being responsible for ticket sales.

The shows all over the United States and Canada.

INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT INSURANCE
HOW'S YOUR I.Q.?

Q Does specified perils coverage on my automobile cover me against loss due to explosion?

A Yes, along with 11 other mishaps that might damage your vehicle.

Q Is it true that insurance companies pay only 80 per cent of the damage in a fire?

A No. Insurance companies pay 100 per cent of the actual cash value of your loss, at the time of the fire.

Q Does a homeowner's policy cover theft of personal effects from a vehicle?

A Yes—if the vehicle was locked at the time and there are signs of forcible entry.

Q Drivers under the age of 25 comprise approximately 15 per cent of all drivers in Canada. What percentage of accidents are they involved in?

A Over 30 per cent. That's why their rates are the highest of any insured group.

Q Are you covered under the "medical payments" section of your automobile policy while riding in someone else's car?

A Yes. Both you and your spouse are covered.

Q Are special nursing fees covered under the "medical payments" section of your automobile policy?

A Yes, and so are medical, surgical, hospital (other than that covered by government plans), dental, ambulance and funeral expenses.

Q Does collision insurance pay for the damage you may cause to another vehicle in an accident?

A No. Collision Insurance covers the damage to your vehicle. Damage to another vehicle is covered by third party liability insurance.

Q Is government insurance cheaper to operate than private insurance?

A Doubtful. The expense factor of the Saskatchewan Government Insurance Office was higher by .99 per cent in 1965 and by 4.6 per cent in 1966 than the average of all companies doing business in Canada.

Q Are independent insurance agents and brokers company employees?

A No. They're independent businessmen who place insurance with a number of insurance companies. They can select the company that best serves your needs.

Economist Optimistic

'Substantial Business Upturn' Is Predicted

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada faces a "substantial business upturn" this year with a rate of real economic growth between five and six per cent and a Gross National Product probably passing the $100 billion mark by 1972, a business conference was told Wednesday.

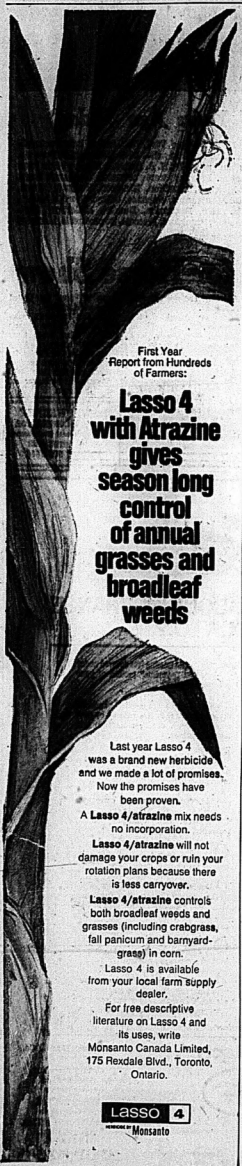
Douglas Peters, chief economist of the Toronto Dominion Bank, told the Pacific Basin Economic Co-operation Council that:

"In the coming months the good terms will outweigh the bad for we are beginning to see the effects, admittedly with some lag, of the government policies pursued in 1970."

He said in a position paper to the conference's economic development committee that the years 1969 and 1970 will probably be termed a period of "mild recession."

"Most of the usual business recession symptoms were present, but they did not all occur at one time and hence a more serious downturn was averted.

"More and more businessmen are recognizing the promise of strong market growth during the decade of the 1970s and the need to expand productive capacity."



Dr. Peters said the economy now is enjoying the culmination of a favorable trend in exports that begin in the early 1960s, mainly due to the pegging of the Canadian dollar at 92.5 cents U.S.

Price inflation "recently has been virtually eliminated" while in 1970 "we had almost zero economic growth outside of an astonishing export performance."

The outlook for the coming months is a possible repegging of the dollar at a value lower than that currently being traded, and "much anti-inflation talk, although improved productivity."

Prices will increase some three per cent during 1971, lower than 1970 and well below the 1969 rate of increase, and there will be "a strong outlook for housing expenditures, continuing large increases in government spending and a rebound in productivity and business profits."

"This gathering strength we see in most sectors of the Canadian economy this year applies, happily, to agriculture as well. A turnabout is taking place in our farm sector after several years of disappointments."

Welfare of Natives First Development Aim

"The girls at the office voted me the man they would most prefer to protect them if they saw a mouse!".

Overstaffing Seen

TORONTO (CP) — Betty Graham, Ontario's director of child welfare, said Wednesday children's aid societies in the province may be overstaffed. At the Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies, Miss Graham said people employed by the societies had increased by 67 per cent during the last five years, while at the same time the number of cases handled had significantly decreased.

OTTAWA (CP) — Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien says the road to resource development in the north lies between what he describes as the utopian direction of socialism and the impractical route of pure capitalism.

Mr. told the Commons Wednesday it would be absolute folly to leave the vast resources of the north in an undeveloped state.

But the government's prime concern in all development efforts would continue to be protection of the welfare of northern natives. "This is a prerequisite of development."

Mr. Chretien's comments came near the close of a two-day debate on a Conservative non-confidence motion criticizing what the motion said is the government's failure to develop the human and economic potential of the north. A New Democrat amendment called for clear government policies on such issues as foreign ownership, native rights and environmental protection.

The motion and amendment were defeated by identical 118-to-87 votes. Voting against the Liberals were 98 Conservatives, 20 New Democrats, 10 Social Credit MPs, and Independent Roch LaSalle (Joliette).

The Commons today was to debate a government motion to set up a committee to consider replacement legislation for the expired Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, 1970.

The motion would create a joint Senate-Commons committee to "report upon the nature and kind of legislation required to deal with emergencies that may arise from time to time in the future."

During debate Wednesday, Mr. Chretien and his department came under sharp criticism from Erik Nielsen, (PC—Yukon), backed by Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield.

Mr. Nielsen called for the government to resign because of what he said is an obvious failure to develop clear policies for northern development or for development in other parts of the country.

Mr. Stanfield called for a farsighted and effective northern transportation policy.

He reiterated a frequent opposition criticism that only 4.5 per cent of those employed by mining firms in the north are natives. Mr. Chretien argued that the federal government has intensified its educational and training programs for natives which would improve this situation.

Ran Harding (NDP—Kootenay West) also attacked government tax policies, which he said subsidize foreign corporations to extract resources then send the most of Canada for processing.

The New Democrats took the position early in the debate that the government should control all resource development by owning such operations through Crown companies or similar devices.

The Conservatives have argued that the government should be encouraging private industry to search for resources in the north through the use of attractive tax concessions and perhaps subsidies in other forms.

Len Marchand (L—Kamloops-Cariboo), the only Indian MP, said treaty rights for Northwest Territories Indians is the most urgent matter requiring settlement.

He said it might be better to wait 10 or 15 years to deal with the treaties when more northern Indians would be prepared to make the best deal for themselves.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

1ST BAYSIDE BROWNIES

WHITE'S DISTRICT — The 1st Bayside Brownies marked the end of the Brownie year by going with their leaders to the Pine Ridge girl Guide camp for a closing party.

The day started with a ball game with the Golden Hand Brownies beating the Golden Ladder Brownies by a score of 9-7. The Brownies working for their Gold Bars were passed on their skipping and ball games.

After the nature hike, everyone enjoyed barbecued hot dogs, chocolate milk and dessert. The Brownies mounted a bird house as a gift to the Pine Ridge camp.

Rain in the afternoon put an end to outdoor activities.

The Brownies also enjoyed a peanut scramble and ice cream before the closing ceremonies.

Legion News

COL. PHAY WILLS BRANCH

The presentation of ten - year pins highlighted the May meeting of the Col. Phay Wills Branch, Canadian Legion, ex - servicewomen.

Although nine members qualified for the honor only six were present to receive their pins, included were Lois Clarke, Doreen Burney, Dorothy Barriage, Clara Jamieson, "Billie" Kirby, and "Kenny" Chambers. Those unable to attend the meeting were Betty Hay, Ethel Cumbley and Janet McArthur.

The ceremony was conducted by Mrs. Ina Rollins, president and Jim Colton, deputy zone commander, who also completed the 1971 election of officers from the nominations to the official installation.

The new executive elected to take office in September are N/S Dorothy Howes, president; Mrs. Ina Rollins, past president; Mrs. Betty Dunphey, vice - president; Mrs. Doreen Burney, secretary; Mrs. Terry Curnock, treasurer; Mrs. Clara Jamieson, Sgt.-at-Arms; and an executive body consisting of Kenny Chambers, Lois Clarke and Dorothy Barriage.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mrs. Rollins announced that Col. Phay Wills Branch would participate in the veterans of Belleville service to mark VE Day, on Sunday, May 16. The parade will fall in at 1.30 for a service at 2 on the Armories lawn.

MARMORA COUNCIL CWL

A delicious potluck dinner was enjoyed by the members of the Marmora Council Catholic Women's League who attended the May membership meeting.

The President, Mrs. W. Meehan, Jr., emphasized the need for participation in parish organizations such as the CWL, in order to further the growth of faith. She noted that through active participation in the new standing committees of the League, members will grow in knowledge and understanding of their mission in the Church. The League is no longer just a fund - raising organization; it is rather, an instrument for promoting social justice.

The convenors of the Standing Committees are: organization, Mrs. W. Monk; Church Life, Mrs. T. Hanley; Christian Family Life, Mrs. Paul Brady; Missionary Activities, Mrs. C. Lajoie; Communications and Public Relations, Mrs. Lawrence Bedore; Social Economic and Civic Action, Mrs. Breen O'Connor; Social Welfare, Miss Gertrude Mooney, Mrs. R. J. Masterson and Mrs. Dermont Bedore; Social Action, Mrs. Joe Maloney; Cultural Life, Mrs. J. O'Neill.

Mrs. C. Lajoie will be packing boxes of used clothing for shipment to Cheboygenore on Wednesday, May 19 at 1.30 p.m. at the Church hall.

The annual convention of the Kingston Archdiocese, with Mrs. Mary Sue McCarthy as guest speaker, will be held at the Sun Valley Motor Inn in Belleville on May 29 and 30. Delegate from this parish council will be Mrs. W. Meehan Jr.

The card parties, which have been held every second Monday, will continue. The next one will be on May 10 at 8.00 p.m. in the parish hall with group 3 in charge.

The meeting concluded with three short entertaining and informative films from the cathechetical office in Belleville. They dealt with the conferation gap, the sacrament of penance, and the anti - war and poverty marches.

Stanley O'Connor, a grade 7 student in Sacred Heart School, operated the projector and was highly praised by the members.

CLUB 4-H NOTES

TWEED MULTI-PROJECT 4-H CLUB

The first meeting of the Tweed Multi-Project 4-H Club was held recently at the Tweed Senior Public School.

The meeting commenced with a basketball game in the gym, with all 17 members participating, followed by the business, conducted by Allan Thompson, club leader.

During the first part of the business meeting members were asked for any ideas by which they thought they could promote 4-H. Numerous ideas were thought of, including ways to raise money for 4-H jackets.

After ordering any information booklets, members wished to obtain, the elections were held. The president is Peter Tummon; vice - president, Barry Ray; secretary, Nell Rearie; press reporter, Lorna Gunning.

After deciding that the next meeting would be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Ray, May 17 at 7.00 p.m. the meeting was adjourned with the senior members and executive remaining for a social meeting. Ray Pender, extension assistant for Hastings County then joined the meeting.

The agenda for the next meeting will be as follows: first a baseball game before the business meeting dealing with the care and feeding of the calf, and constructing a rope halter. Before adjourning, Ray Pender helped work out some problems pertaining to the Multi-Project 4-H Club.

Overloaded plates don't belong on a dinner table. Two small helpings and, if you'd like more, ask for seconds.

Ann Landers

Children May Attend Grandpa's Funeral

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Grandpa is 82 years old and very ill. He will probably not live more than a month. Our children love Grandpa and they keep asking if they can go to the nursing home to see him. We have told the children that Grandpa sleeps most of the time and he should not be disturbed. The truth is that he has lost so much weight we are afraid the children would be frightened if they saw him. Also, Grandpa is sedated most of the time and has not recognized any of us for several days.

The question has now arisen as to whether the children should be permitted to go to the funeral. (It will be a closed casket.) They are 9, 6, 4 and 3. Please advise us. — HEAVY HEARTED MOTHER.

* * *

DEAR MOTHER: If the children express the wish to go to Grandpa's funeral, allow them to do so. If they don't want to go, don't try to persuade them. The decision should be theirs.

A funeral can help children accept the finality of death. It affords them an opportunity to share a family experience and to see that adults, too, express honest emotions without shame. It can also serve to reduce anxiety and fear which children often associate with the unknown.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am seriously considering a man who tells me, "When we marry, I will not go out of my way to form any personal relationships with other women, but if I should run into the opportunity, I would not pass it up."

What kind of a man is this? ? ? He says he would not blame me if I did the same. I need your opinion in a hurry. — WASHINGTON, D.C.

* * *

DEAR WASH: I admire the guy's honesty. He is telling you in advance he doesn't give a damn about faithfulness — his or yours.

This would be no marriage, dearie. It would be a legal merger with pre-sanctioned, two-way cheating privileges. His statement proves something I've been saying for a long time. Every woman can get married — if she sets her standards low enough.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been married for 21 years, we have no children, and I've worked as a secretary for an executive of one of the Big Three auto manufacturers in Detroit.

I am entitled to four weeks vacation this summer but my husband feels that he can take only one full week because of the nature of his work. I am toying with the idea that perhaps I ought to go to Europe with the Girl's Club. (It's for employees only.) The trip would be three weeks. I have never been to Europe and I'd love to go. But I keep wondering if it would be right to leave my husband. I am best friends. How will he manage? I do everything for him — clothes, cooking, etc. What would you do? — D. TROIT. .

* * *

DEAR D: I'd go. But then I'm not you — and your husband isn't Jules. In a decision such as this, one must consider personalities, temperaments, degree of dependency — as well as what arrangements could be made in your absence. Does he have a mother in town for a sister? Could he batch with another husband whose wife is on the trip? Noodle it out, honey — and send me a postcard.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been married to a military man for 14 years. Two years ago Jack was in Vietnam for an 11-month tour of duty. During that period I was both father and mother to our three children, and pregnant with the fourth. I worried myself sick the whole time Jack was gone.

Three months ago I learned from a friend whose husband served with mine that both men were involved with a couple of Army nurses the entire time they were overseas.

When I first asked Jack about it he denied everything. Later he admitted it was true. The more we talked the more he defended himself. Now, he insists he did nothing wrong, that I was 10,000 miles away and he was lonesome. I reminded him that the distance was the same for me as it was for him but I had managed to behave myself, I am so upset I won't let him near me. I need a woman who will take my side and make him see how wrong it was. We fight constantly about the low-down, rotten way he carried on when he was out of my sight. Please help. — INFANTRYMAN'S WIFE.

* * *

DEAR WIFE: War is hell, and a husband doesn't need any more hell when he gets home. Forget about what happened over there and thank God he came home. I'm not recommending the guy for a good conduct medal, but I can understand how and why he got off the track. My advice is to stop haranguing your husband and start acting like a wife or he might start looking for another nurse.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Aunt Mary: "I'm so happy you finally had a little boy. I know how much Harry wants a son. I couldn't wait to come and see him and bring a gift."

Mother: "He's such a good baby. Looks just like his daddy."

Aunt Mary: "Hello, Jan. Hi, girls. How are you today?"

Susie: "Did you come to see the baby?"

Aunt Mary: "I came to see all of you and brought gifts for everybody."

Pre-school youngsters may feel displaced by a new baby. Use tact and be especially kind so you will not add to this feeling.

Mature Students Find College Exciting

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: From time to time, letters appear in your column from people who want to get out and meet others. I would like to suggest that such people should consider taking courses in one of the community colleges.

In our day programs we have many older people taking two years of training toward starting a second career. They find the contact with young people exciting and the opportunities for work numerous. We find that their maturity adds something vital to the classroom situation.

Sometimes young mothers and others just want something outside the home for an evening a week. Taking an English course or psychology or sociology or one of the special interest courses has proved to be quite popular and a lot of fun. In my night school course we have teachers, housewives, business men, police officers, union leaders and full-time students.

The cross currents of interest and interchange of ideas make for an exciting two hours College Teacher

Dear Teacher: I agree. When I lecture to such a class I find that the mature students provide ideas, from their experience, which help the younger students to think through some of the people-problems.

The challenge of new learning is wonderfully stimulating. And these courses are not expensive.

* * *

Dear Doris: The letter from Good and Mad in almost word for word what a friend of mine wrote to me about her two grandsons a month ago. They turned out to be almost stone deaf because of tonsils and adenoids, when referred to medical help by the school. One also had a minor cerebral defect remedied. — Mad Now Too

Dear Mad Too; The girl was free; seemed to ignore her mother until she yelled. Good and Mad — do you get the message? Might be worth exploring.

* * *

Dear Doris: You know the kind of mushrooms that grow around trees and fences in the fall? What I would like to know is, are they poison to eat and what effect would they have if they are not poison?

Would they be poison, even to pick with your hands? — Mushrooms in my Yard

Dear Mushrooms: There are handy pamphlets showing how to distinguish an edible mushroom from a deadened and other unlikely fungi. My agricultural consultant considers yours are probably not poisonous — but suggests you ask your provincial department of agriculture to tell you for sure.

* * *

When they are good, they are very, very good!

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Italian Version of English Trifle

By MARY MOORE

You will wonder if Mary has gone dessert wild and you will be right. Over one week end I made two rich party desserts and passed them out to relatives and neighbors after we had had hearty servings at home.

The present beauty is called Zuppa Inglese which interpreted means English Soup but it is not soup at all. It is a rich Italian version of English Trifle.

ZUPPA INGLESE

(Italian method for English Trifle — serves 10)

Sponge Cake:
3 eggs
1 cup sugar
2 tbsps. lemon juice
1 cup sifted cake and pastry flour
2 tsps. baking powder
6 tbsps. hot milk

Custard:
1½ cups hot milk
2 large egg yolks (or 3 med.)
3 tbsps. sugar
Shake of salt
1 tbsp. gelatine
2 tbsps. cold milk
2 tsps. rum extract
½ cup mixed peel
1-3 cup quartered maraschino cherries
½ cup chopped blanched almonds

Finishing Ingredients:
2 large egg whites (or 3 med.)
¼ cup sugar
¼ tsp. cream of tartar
½ cup dry sherry (see below)

To make Cake beat eggs with sugar until thick. Add lemon juice. Sift flour with baking powder and fold in flour mixture and hot milk in two separate additions. Pour batter into two 8" layer cake pans lined on bottom with wax paper and buttered. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 15-18 min. until cakes shrink from sides. Cool on cake racks.

To make Custard measure yolks, sugar and salt into double boiler and quickly stir in hot milk over boiling water until thick enough to coat silver spoon. Remove from heat. Stir in gelatine which has soaked in cold milk 5 min. separate additions. Pour batter into two 8" layer cake pans lined on bottom with wax paper and buttered. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 15-18 min. until cakes shrink from sides. Cool on cake racks.

To make Custard measure yolks, sugar and salt into double boiler and quickly stir in hot milk over boiling water until thick enough to coat silver spoon. Remove from heat. Stir in gelatine which has soaked in cold milk 5 min. Remove top of double boiler from bottom and fill bottom with ice water and return top to it. Add all remaining ingredients to custard and cool until beginning to set — stirring often.

Put one cake on upturned bottom of layer cake pan and sop with half of the sherry. Spread half of partially set custard over. Repeat both of these steps. Make Meringue by beating whites with sugar and cream of tartar until very stiff. Cover top and halfway down sides of cakes with meringue. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. barely long enough to tinge meringue gold. Cool in refrigerator. Carefully transfer to large fancy cake plate. This dessert is durable enough to be made one day in advance.

Shulman's Figures on Incomes Of Doctors Said Erroneous

TORONTO (CP) — The outgoing president of the Ontario Medical Association says no doctor in Ontario has earned much more than $200,000 a year from the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan.

Dr. Bette Stephenson said Tuesday the $250,000-a-year figure quoted by Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—member for Toronto High Park) to the Ontario legislature recently was based "mostly on his own cerebral machinations."

Speaking at a news conference on the second day of the OMA's annual meeting, Dr. Stephenson also said the association agrees with Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence that audits be done on the medical practice earnings of the province's doctors—as long as the audits are carried out by the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

The college is the physicians' governing and licensing body.

Dr. Stephenson said the profession has wanted the college to have audit power for about 10 years but the government had refused. Revisions in the Medical Act would be needed.

PCs Want Unemployment on Agenda

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservatives pressed in the Commons Wednesday for inclusion of unemployment on the agenda of next month's federal-provincial conference in Victoria.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp replied that the agenda will have to be agreed upon by all participants and he emphasized the federal view that as much progress as possible should be made on the constitution—the subject matter of the conference.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield had asked whether unemployment would be placed on the agenda, as suggested by Ontario Premier William Davis.

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette followed up, asking whether Ottawa would suggest discussion of the topic.

Mr. Sharp, filling in for Prime Minister Trudeau, who was attending a luncheon engagement, said he is confident economic conditions will be discussed but the constitution should remain foremost.

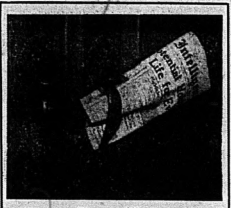
Mr. Stanfield asked whether Ottawa had consulted the provinces before initiating policies that Prime Minister Trudeau now admitted had caused unemployment.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson replied that the sequence of anti-inflation movements, as he recalled them, included consultation with the provinces.

Mr. Benson said they agreed inflation was the major problem and agreed to wage guides for government, although some provinces hadn't adhered to them.

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) asked whether Manitoba hadn't expressed reservations, saying that if wages were subject to guides, profits, rents and other forms of income should be also.

Mr. Benson replied that this was true. Some provinces were like the opposition, he said, in that they "really didn't care about inflation."



New Training Program Copies 'Outward Bound'

TORONTO (CP) — A new outdoor training program for boys in provincial government training schools was announced Wednesday by Sylvanus Apps, minister of correctional services.

The program, called Development through Adventure, Responsibility and Education, will utilize many of the methods employed in the Outward Bound school program, the minister told a local service club.

The project will be established at a forestry camp at Portage Lake, near Grundy provincial park 48 miles south of Sudbury.

It will consist of outdoor education, work projects and "vigorous outdoor adventure." Students will spend about four to five weeks on each phase of the program.

'Pen' Inquiry Will Open Monday

TORONTO (CP) — The first round in an inquiry by a three-man commission into last month's four-day rebellion at Kingston Penitentiary—which left the prison a shambles, a convict dead and 11 others injured—is scheduled for Monday afternoon.

Commission counsel Ian Scott of Toronto said in a prepared statement Wednesday that the commission, established by Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer, will hold a preliminary session at 3 p.m. Monday in Kingston's Royal Military College.

The session, to deal with written submissions and set ground rules for the main inquiry to follow, will be open to the public and is expected to last a day or two at the most.

However, it is doubtful that the full story of what happened behind the 25-foot-high penitentiary walls April 14-18 will ever be known. The main commission sessions, expected to last most of the summer, will be closed to the public and the news media.

No date has been set for these sessions, during which testimony will be taken from penitentiary administrators, guards and the prisoners themselves.

Information officer Syd Robertson of the Solicitor-General's department said Mr. Goyer may decide later to issue a summary of the commission's findings—the only possible public accounting of one of Canada's worst prison riots from the government.

Closed-circuit Bankrollers Expect Profit from 'Experiment'

NEW YORK (AP) — The man who bankrolled the novel heavyweight triple-header fight card for closed-circuit television viewing says he expects at least to break even and probably make a profit.

"It was an experiment," said Loren Cassina, of London, Ont., president of K.O. Inc.

"Early reports from the various theatres are favorable. We didn't expect to make a financial killing. We hoped to keep our heads above water."

Fights involving unpaired heavyweights were presented Monday in Chicago, Toronto and Oakland and staggered so they could be viewed by fight fans in $5 locations.

Full TV returns will not be available for a couple of days but indications are that the boxing public is not ready for studio-boxing programs.

The three fights were little more than studio events, with the live turnout and live gate disappointing at all three sites.

Only 800 turned out at the International Amphitheatre in Chicago where Ernie Terrell, former World Boxing Association champion, won a 10-round decision over Luis Pires of Brazil. Promoters had hoped to place the gate receipts at around $7,000—not enough to meet the guarantees of $11,000 for Terrell and $2,500 for Pires.

A crowd of 3,313 paid $21,502 at Oakland to see George Foreman, undefeated No. 1 heavyweight contender, score a 10th-round knockout over Gregorio Peralta of Argentina.

Foreman was guaranteed $20,000 and Peralta $10,000.

The largest crowd—some 6,000—turned up at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens where Jimmy Ellis, former WBA titleholder, outpointed Canadian champion George Chuvalo. Each was guaranteed $15,000.

First reports on success of the closed TV outlets were varied.

"We did well in Washington, D.C., and about as we expected in the New York area," a spokesman said.

"Our returns from the West Coast are still sparse. There were 15 outlets in the Los Angeles area alone."

Meanwhile, in Los Angeles, Jack Kent Cooke isn't saying how much he made as chief financial backer of the March 8 Joe Frazier-Muhammad Ali heavyweight title fight. But the multimillionaire sportsman says his original projection of $20 million gross receipts was "not far off."

Cooke, owner of pro basketball's Lakers and hockey's Kings, underwrote $4.5 million of the fighters' $5 million purse, and was entitled to 60 per cent of the profits. His closed-circuit television partner, Jerry Perenchio, was to receive the other 40 per cent.

He indicated he would not quarrel with an estimate of $750,000 profits after taxes—$450,000 to him and $300,000 to Perenchio.

Celtics Win Scottish Rivalry

By Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

The Belleville Golf and Country Club was christened Wednesday, by scattered showers and four scatterbrains.

Being in the first foursome ever to play a golf course is a novel experience, something like reining a pacing filly to her maiden win, or dropping the first puck in a new arena.

What made Wednesday's venture so fascinating was the fact that only twelve months ago, what is now a budding 18 holes of diverse golfing challenges was so many acres of furrows known as "the McCambridge place."

There were more than a few scoffers when Earl "Kitch" Johnson said he was going to polish that rough acreage into a championship golf layout, in a year, yet!

The Burlington landscape architect had the last laugh Wednesday when he sent the first official tee shot sailing three-quarters of the way down the fairway of his 215-yard opening hole.

"We don't want people to come out here and expect lush fairways and carpet greens," cautioned the new Marysville resident. "But in another month, we'll have a course everyone in the area will want to play."

No Need to Apologize

In fact those who turn out Saturday, the first day the course is open to the golfing public, will find special printed apologies stapled to their scorecards: "Due to a very wet fall last year and the cold weather this spring, we have not been able to get our greens in good condition and there may be a few wet areas on the fairways. However by June 15th, we expect to have everything in tip-top condition. Thank-you for your indulgence."

Bruce Bishop, who sells lawns when he isn't hitting golf balls off them, doesn't feel the new course's owner needs to make any apologies.

"It's fantastic when you think about it," Bishop gargled through a mouthful of rain during Wednesday's damp inaugural round. "This course was only seeded in September. I know a fellow that's been working on a new golf course in Amherst View for the past year and a half and he's still not ready to open it."

For the time being, the best way to play the fledgling greens is to try and sink your first putt. Failing that, mark an automatic two. It does wonders for your approach shot accuracy, to0, and your score.

Those who show up for Saturday's opening will not be disappointed by the layout, consisting of two parallel nines which avoids the commonplace golfing hazard of facing shots from adjacent fairways. The yardage — 6,200 for men from back of tee to back of green — will not play overwhelmingly long, but accuracy isn't a bad idea.

Water hazards come into play on six of the first nine holes. Your correspondent made the first donation Wednesday, drowning two of Mr. Spalding's finest into a pond yawning in front of the 200-yard ninth green. Said pond is only slightly smaller than Lake Simcoe but on this hole, like all others booby-trapped by water, the golfer is given the alternative of playing intentionally short. Of course, if you want the rest of your foursome to call you a coward all the way to the clubhouse, that's your business.

Clubhouse Spike-proof

Longest hole of the 18 is the 590-yard eighth (630 from the championship gold tees), which is not beyond the reach of three average swings. And the most attractive award goes hands-down to preceding number seven, with an elevated tee terraced into a stand of cedars on the property's northern boundary along Highway 401.

Also ready for Saturday is the deceptively spacious 48-foot square clubhouse, which houses manager Brian Rosch's office, a pro shop, snack bar, and men's and women's locker rooms with shower facilities. The clubhouse, lying a putter's throw from the ninth and 18th greens, will be fitted with special spike-resistant carpeting imported from Europe.

In six weeks, owner Johnson hopes to have a practice green in the clubhouse vicinity. A swimming pool is a long-range concept, as are a licenced dining room and expanded locker facilities.

After wringing out his scorecard Wednesday, an enthusiastic Earl Johnson got back to the work of preparing to meet the public. First item on the agenda was postponing of plans for an official opening to Wednesday, June 4. Original plans called for a dignitary-packed party next week, but Johnson wants to give his fairways a chance to be at their showcase best.

If even half the hundred people who signed up as members without ever seeing the new course show up, in addition to the always-welcome green-fee players, the old McCambridge place will really be buzzing Saturday.

Active Winter Pays Relay Dividends for THS

A long winter of training paid big dividends for the Trenton High School track team yesterday as they dominated the 8th annual Bay of Quinte relay carnival.

Trenton, which has been participating in a number of indoor meets throughout the province this winter piled up a winning total of 166 points, 68 more than the runners up from Centennial.

The meet marked the first time that both boys and girls teams participated in the event. Trenton boys were far and away the class of their section piling up a whopping 120 point total, while BCI girls compiled 54 team points to pace their division.

In the overall point standings BCI totalled 77 points to trail Trenton and Centennial, while Moira took fourth spot with 53 points.

The next big test for high school track and field competitors will be the Bay of Quinte COSSA track and field meet to be held at Centennial, Wednesday May 19th.

Hawks Must Go!

TORONTO (CP)—President Earl Dawson of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association said today St. Catharine's Black Hawks must play the sixth game of their Eastern Canada junior hockey final series in Quebec Friday or forfeit the title to Quebec Remparts.

He added that an East-West series for the Memorial Cup will probably take place if the Remparts win the series.

The Hawks currently trail Quebec 3-2 in the best-of-seven Eastern Canada series for the Richardson Cup and have refused to return to Quebec for the sixth game because their players were attacked by fans after the fourth game Saturday.

St. Catharines prolonged the series by defeating the Remparts 8-3 in Toronto Wednesday night.

(More details on page 14.)

Pros Need 'Cool' Room

HOUSTON (AP) — A major flap about a ban on admittance to the player's locker room — a controversy that once threatened the start of the Houston Champions Invitational Golf Tournament — was resolved late Wednesday and plans for the $125,000 event went ahead on schedule.

Under the new arrangements, accredited members of the working press, along with Tournament Director Jim Division officials—both of whom had been banned earlier in the week—will be allowed in the locker room.

A small section of the room, however, will be screened off, as a "cool" room and players only will be admitted to that area, giving them a private area and a place to cool off after coming in from the course.

Key Injuries Kept Quiet?

CHICAGO (CP) — Who's kidding who in the Stanley Cup final?

Chicago goalie Tony Esposito is obviously favoring his right leg but Black Hawk coach Billy Reay emphatically denies he's limping.

Winger John Ferguson has a chronic leg injury and is a doubtful starter for Montreal Canadiens.

The two teams meet here tonight in the fifth game of the National Hockey League's championship round, all even at two games tach.

Lots or impairment of either of these players could almost ruin their respective club's chances of nailing down the cup.

Despite an injury, Esposito will have to continue playing because he has no experienced backup man after Gerry Desjardins late-season injury placed him on the sidelines.

And the Canadiens, aggrieve enough at home, don't give out with the same intimidation on the road—with the exception of tough Ferguson.

Tonight's game is set for 8:30 p.m. EDT with Sunday's sixth game back in Montreal at 2:30 p.m. EDT. Both games will be televised nationally by the CBC network as will a seventh game, if necessary, back here next Tuesday night.

Reay was angry Wednesday at Montreal reports Esposito had been handicapped by a groin injury, apparent aftermath of his collision behind the Chicago goal with Canadiens' rookie defenceman Guy Lapointe in the third game.

"There was nothing wrong with Tony," the Chicago coach replied in admonishing writers who doubted Esposito's health after Tuesday's 5-2 loss. "He never complains. He's a big hunk of man . . . he gives no quarter and asks none."

Esposito's only complaint since the collision was a leg cramp in the third game "but it's not hurting now."

Fergie missed two periods Tuesday after a first-period collision with Chicago's Stan Mikita.

The Canadiens' policeman suffered torn muscles above his left hip in the fifth of Montreal's six-game semi-final round with Minnesota North Stars.

He'll be missed if unable to dress for tonight's game. But coach Peter Mahovlich, whose own aggressiveness in recent months has been attributed to Ferguson's tutoring, says Chicago had better think about shutting the Canadiens physically.

"Boston tried those tactics against us, too."

right now, they'd be foolish to change."

Vachon said he had expected to get the call to play against the North Stars earlier this month because "Dryden was coming off a particularly tough series against Boston."

The Canadiens eliminated the Bruins in the seventh game quarter-final before tackling the North Stars.

"I figured they might give him a rest and I didn't find it too tough to get up for games against Minnesota because I expected to play," he said.

"In situations like this, all you can do is to get yourself as mentally ready as possible so that you can go in and help on a minute's notice."

Juniors at Crossroads

TORONTO (CP) — Further junior amateur hockey playoffs remained in doubt today after the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association failed Wednesday to arrange an East-West playoff and St. Catharines refused to continue their eastern series at Quebec.

St. Catharines Black Hawks were involved in a best-of-seven series with Quebec Remparts for the Memorial Cup the Eastern Canada championship.

The Hawks beat the Remparts 6-3 in the fifth game here Wednesday night and the sixth game was scheduled for Quebec City Friday.

But Hawks president Fred Muller said immediately after the game that he would not send his players back to Quebec where they were attacked Saturday by angry Quebec fans.

Earl Dawson, Canadian Amateur Hockey Association president, said later he had not received official notice of the Hawks' intention of not going back to Quebec.

"We have until Friday and then if St. Catharines does not show up in Quebec, then I would say we would have to declare Quebec the winner," Dawson said in a telephone interview.

The dispute followed meetings earlier Wednesday with representatives of the Ontario Hockey Association, the Quebec Junior Hockey League and the Western Canada Hockey League.

Bill Hunter, manager and major shareholder of Edmonton Oil Kings of the Western Canada Hockey League, and WCHL president Ron Butlin proposed an East-West playoff for the Memorial Cup, emblematic of national junior hockey supremacy.

Dawson said after the meetings that no conclusion was reached on a national playoff but that talks on the matter would continue.

He said a "matter of pride on both sides" was the stumbling block to an agreement on a national final but he would not specify what the matter of pride involved.

The OHA and the Quebec league have said they would refuse to play off against the WCHL because western teams have been allowed the use of four over-age players each and western teams received $10,000 travel expenses each compared to $5,000 for the eastern teams.

The dispute was further complicated when the possibility appeared that if Quebec won the series, they might play against Edmonton anyway.

"At the meeting today, Ontario and Quebec reaffirmed there would be no series against the West," said OHA president Clarence Schmalz.

Then they have one of these huddles in the hall and Bob Lebel (president of the Quebec league) comes back in and says for the good of Canadian hockey, the Remparts will play Edmonton a best-of-three series in Quebec."

Dawson said he felt he had made "some special concessions" in listening to the St. Catharines complaints about having to go back to Quebec for a sixth game.

St. Catharines had asked that the sixth game at Quebec be switched to Montreal but Dawson said there was no attempt being made to move the game site.

Following Wednesday's game, Muller and Hawk coach Frank Milne said they would go back to Quebec but they wouldn't ask the players to go.

"The parents of the kids refuse to send them into such a violent, a time sphere," said Milne.

Muller said he and the team's star centre, Marcel Dionne, had received threatening telephone calls from Quebec City.

The Hawks victory Wednesday cut Quebec's lead in the series 3-2. A seventh game, if necessary, would have been played back here Sunday.

A near-capacity crowd of 15,343 saw centre Brian McKenzie lead the Hawks with two goals. McKenzie received a hearing before Dawson Wednesday afternoon and was cleared to play by the CAHA president. McKenzie had taken a match penalty in the third game last Friday at Quebec after he shoved a linesman with his stick.

Mike Bloom, Bob Peppler, Pierre Guile and Bob MacMillan got the other Hawks goals while Dionne was held to two assists.

Quebec star winger Guy Lafleur got one goal and the others came from Paul Dion and Jacques Lozon.

The Hawks outskated the Remparts and outshot them 41-22.

Habs Foolish to Change: Vachon

MONTREAL (CP) — Little Rogatien Vachon remains philosophical about his role as a standby goaltender for Montreal Canadiens in this year's Stanley Cup playoffs.

Vachon, who shared goaltending duties throughout the regular season with Phil Myre, has found himself shuffled to the backup role throughout Montreal's 11 playoff games so far this spring because of the sensational work of rookie Ken Dryden.

But he's still better off than Myre who has not dresied since the end of the regular schedule.

"The important thing is to win the Stanley Cup," Vachon said. "And if a team has a goalie as hot as Ken Dryden is

Ford No. 3

SYLVANIA, Ohio (CP-AP) — Canadian lightweight champion Al Ford of Edmonton was third-ranked challenger for the world title of Ken Buchanan of Scotland in the monthly ratings issued Wednesday by the World Boxing Association.

Ford, 20, was one of only three Canadians listed in the WBA rankings.

George Chuvalo, Canadian heavyweight champion from Toronto, who lost a 10-round decision to Jimmy Ellis Monday, was listed seventh challenger for Joe Frazier's crown.

Canadian welterweight king Clyde Gray of Toronto was ranked 10th among contenders for the world title held by Billy Backus of Syracuse, N.Y.

Phillies Cry 'Foul' Against Cubs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The burning question in Philadelphia is whether the Phillies were done in Wednesday night by three pitches that hit Chicago Cub bats or one pitch that didn't.

There may be different opinions on the matter. As far as the Cubs are concerned, home runs by Ron Santo, Johnny Callison and Billy Williams that accounted for six runs in a 9-4 triumph were the keys to victory.

However, the Phillies contend that a ruling by umpire Tom Gorman that Jim Hickman checked his swing and did not foul-tip a 3-2 pitch was as crucial as any of the homers.

Elsewhere in the National League, Houston Astros edged New York Mets 5-4, San Diego Padres nipped Pittsburgh Pirates 3-1, San Francisco Giants trounced Cincinnati Reds 7-3 and Los Angeles Dodgers blanked Atlanta Braves 5-0. St. Louis Cardinals and Montreal Expos were rained out.

The Cubs and Phillies were scoreless in the fourth inning when the fireworks—physical and verbal—started. Williams singled with one out and then came the disputed fourth ball to Hickman. Joe Pepitone popped up for what the Phils thought should have been the third out, but Santo belted a three-run homer and Callison followed with a solo shot.

When Gorman called ball four on Hickman, with Williams running, catcher Mike Ryan exploded and he, pitcher Jim Bunning, and manager Frank Lucchesi all screamed at the umpire.

"He foul-ticked it," roared Ryan.

"I didn't hear anything," said Gorman as he waved Hickman to first base.

Houston unloaded on Mets' ace Tom Seaver for four runs in the sixth and the Astros hung on. Singles by Roger Metzger, Joe Morgan and Denis Menke snapped a scoreless duel between Seaver and Don Wilson.

Doug Rader, with only one hit in his previous 32 trips, then lashed a three-run homer, his first of the year.

A two-base error by Cleon Jones and Morgan's single accounted for the decisive run in the seventh.

Cuellar Avenges Loss with One-hitter

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mike Cuellar, shelled by Oakland Athletics in his previous start, came back with two days rest Wednesday night and fired a one-hitter as Baltimore Orioles blanked Kansas City Royals 6-0.

But at Cleveland, Oakland battered Sam McDowell for six runs and 12 hits in the 5 2-3 innings he lasted on the way to an 8-1 romp over the Indians.

Elsewhere, Bert Blyleven out-pitched Ray Culp as Minnesota Twins nipped Boston Red Sox 1-0; New York Yankees trimmed Milwaukee Brewers 7-0 on Mel Stottlemyre's three-hitter; Detroit Tigers spanked California Angels 8-1 behind Joe Coleman and Chicago White Sox swept a doubleheader from Washington Senators 5-0 and 9-5.

Cuellar limited Kansas City to a third-inning single by Jerry May and one walk in bringing his season record to 3-1. He was backed by a 12-hit Baltimore attack that included a single, a double and a triple by Merv Rettenmund.

Bert Campaneris led the Oakland assault against McDowell with two home runs and a single, then poked another single off reliever Vince Colbert to deliver the Athletics' final run.

Campaneris opened the game with his first homer of the season and socked a two-run homer in the sixth, helping right-hander Chuck Dobson cruise to his first victory of the year.

Blyleven scattered seven hits and struck out 11 in throttling the Red Sox and reversing the outcome of a previous duel with Culp.

It was the 20-year-old right-hander's first victory—all via the shutout route—in seven decisions and his first since April 12.

Rod Carew tripled in the fourth inning and scored the game's lone run on Jim Holt's single off Culp, who had beaten Blyleven 1-0 with a two-hitter 10 days earlier in Boston.

Stottlemyre fired his third three-hitter of the season and drove in the only run he needed with a second-inning single off Skip Lockwood as the Yankees stretched their win string to four games.

Celtic Completes Third Soccer Double

GLASGOW (CP) — Celtic completed the Scottish League and Cup double for the third time in five years Wednesday when they beat Glasgow soccer rivals Rangers 2-1 in the Scottish Football Association Cup final replay.

Celtic was determined to allow no repetition of Saturday's first meeting when a late equalizer gave Rangers their second chance.

Lou Macari put Celtic into the lead after 24 minutes and Harry Hood added the second from a penalty three minutes later.

Rangers, desperately hoping to dent their rivals' dominance of Scottish soccer, came pounding back into the battle with an inspired spell early in the second half but only Callaghan could find the net with a goal in the 57th minute.

Their first goal by Macari was sidefooted into the net from a Lennox corner. Only a minute later Hood booted the second goal after McKinnon brought Johnstone down with a rugby tackle in the penalty area.

Rangers brought on Derek Johnstone to replace Andy Penman at the start of the second half. The Rangers score came when Johnstone headed the ball goalwards and Callaghan helped it on its way.

Chileans Riot After Player Scores in Own Goal

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — A policeman and a student were killed Wednesday night in rioting after a heated South American Cup semi-final soccer game and more than a dozen spectators and police were injured.

It was the worst soccer riot in Chilean memory. The melee lasted for 2½ hours after Estudiantes de la Plata of Argentina beat Union Espanola de Chile 1-0 in a rough game before 50,000 fans in National Stadium.

The single goal was made by a Chilean player, who scored against his own goal during the first half.

BALTIMORE, (AP) — Back from a tumultuous welcome in Venezuela where he received a congressional medal and met with the president, jockey Gustavo Avila is seeking new racing honors in the United States. Looming directly ahead, of course, is Saturday's $150,000-added Preakness, and Avila is confident Canonero II can win the second of the Triple Crown races as he did the Kentucky Derby. Then, after some riding in New York, including the Belmont Stakes, Avila likely will return to Venezuela. But he'd prefer pursuing his career in the U.S. "I would like to," the 21-year-old jockey said through an interpreter, "but no one has asked me. I guess I should learn English."

NEW YORK (CP) — Herve Filion, the Angers, Que., native who won a record 195 harness races last year, is the leading driver in the United States so far this year, the United Trotting Association announced Wednesday. Statistics released by the association show Filion with 115 victories so far this year, 10 more than Buddy Gilmour.

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — A tentative agreement between racetrack management and horsemen regarding a new purse contract was reached Wednesday after a six-hour session involving the Jockey Club, the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association, and the Ontario Harness Horsemen's Association. Horsemen will receive 46% per cent of the portion permitted to be retained by the tracks from the parimutuels pools. The track is permitted to take 9½ per cent.

Family-assistance Plan Gets New Life

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's family-assistance plan for reforming the welfare system, which fell by the congressional wayside last year, has been given a new, running start.

The House of Representatives ways and means committee has included essentials of the plan—substantial federal takeover of welfare and a $1,400 income assurance for a family of four—in a social security-welfare reform measure.

Approved Wednesday except for a final review of language and formal vote, the measure is expected to go to the House for consideration early next month.

When fully effective in 1973 the bill would pump an additional $4 billion to social security pensioners and welfare recipients.

The social security portion would require a sizable increase in payroll tax collected from employees and employers.

Through increases both in the wage base and the tax rate, the bill would raise the maximum payment by an employee and his employer from this year's $405.60 each to $550.80 in 1972.

The maximum increase would apply only to those earning $10,200 or more.

Committee spokesmen said the states could expect to save $1.5 billion to $2 billion of the money now expended on welfare.

New Area Of Village Is Closed

ST. JEAN VIANNEY, Que. (CP) — Civil protection officials announced late Wednesday they were closing another section of this nearly-deserted community following a forecast of rain today.

Officials of the Quebec civil protection organization said another 40 homes would be cordoned off at least temporarily in this village where some 1,300 persons lived until a giant earth slide claimed 31 lives and swept 36 homes down a gorge into the Riviere aux Vases last May 4.

Government geologist Jean-Yves Chagnon called on provincial police to close part of the village for an indefinite period because the soft earth was in danger of crumbling. "rain or no rain."

However, he denied earlier published reports which claimed new fissures had appeared in the earth near the disaster site. He said none had appeared since the day following the slide.

In a St. Jean Vianney story Wednesday, The Canadian Press erroneously reported that Mr. Chagnon had ordered the evacuation of 48 homes following discovery of an imposing fissure some 2,000 feet from the disaster site.

Meantime, frogmen probing the mouth of the river, seven miles downstream from St. Jean Vianney, discovered the body of Donald Soucy, 12. His was the fifth body discovered.

The youth's parents are listed among the remaining 26 persons missing and presumed dead, buried beneath the 15-million tons of rubble that thundered into the gorge late Tuesday night, May 4.

The future of St. Jean Vianney, 115 miles north of Quebec City, remains in doubt. Most residents are living with friends and relatives in such nearby communities as Joniquiere and Chicoutimi. Some are quartered in mobile homes provided by the provincial government.

During the day, geologists continued taking soil samples and officials reported no underground water was found.

In Quebec City Tuesday, Municipal Affairs Minister Maurice Tessier said he intends to force municipalities to ensure the solidity of the ground before undertaking any new housing developments.

Aid Rushed To Turkey Quake Area

ISTANBUL (Reuter) — Relief supplies were rushed today to survivors of a devastating earthquake which killed more than 100 persons in southwest Turkey Wednesday.

The final casualty figures could be much higher because several mountain villages in the Burdur region hit by the earthquake were cut off and there was no way of assessing damage there.

Reports from the scene, about 270 miles southeast of Istanbul, said army units were using helicopters to aid in relief work and ground rescue teams were threading their way through the mountainous region with medical supplies and tents and food.

Officials struggling to feed, clothe and shelter the homeless also were worried that new tremors might strike and magnify the disaster.

Communications with the stricken area were still cut. The post office at Burdur, the provincial capital, was wrecked in the shock waves which followed the original earthquake, registered at eight on the open-ended Richter scale and felt along the entire Aegean Sea area.

Th semi-official Anatolian news agency late Wednesday night reported that at least 100 bodies had been recovered—almost all in or around Burdur. More than 100 persons were injured.

At least 20 persons died in Burdur alone. About 50 buildings, including the provincial governor's office,were flattened. Up to 70 per cent of the dwellings, many made of wooden frames and clay, were reported damaged in th city of 20,000.

Royal Tour Ends with Wave and Smile

VANCOUVER (CP) — A smile, a wave, a few official handshakes and it was over—the Queen, Prince Philip and Princess Anne were on their way home, a triumphant 10-day centennial tour of British Columbia behind them.

It ended Wednesday as informally as it began.

There was no guard of honor, no flashing sabres or brass band, just hundreds of well-wishers lining the tarmac and concourse of Vancouver International Airport to wave and cheer goodbye.

Before boarding the specially-refitted DC-8 jetliner for the direct-flight to London, the Royal Family exchanged farewells with federal, provincial and civic dignitaries, headed by Gov.-Gen. and Mrs. Roland Michener. And the Queen gave Premier W. A. C. Bennett a personal letter to the people of B.C.

"As we leave Vancouver airport, my husband and I and our daughter send our warm thanks to you and the members of your government and to all the people of British Columbia for the welcome you have given us during the last week.

"We have greatly enjoyed our time with you and are delighted to have been able to take part in centennial celebrations. You have my heartfelt good wishes for the prosperity of British Columbia and its people during the next hundred years."

Less than an hour before their departure, Princess Anne, who had missed the state dinner in Victoria Tuesday night due to a recurrence of a stomach upset, unveiled a commemorative plaque at the site of the new CBC regional headquarters.

The last official function watched by the Queen and Philip, was over in less than five minutes, culminating their meet-the-people junket which criss-crossed the province by land, sea and air.

Along the 3,770-mile route, there were thousands of men, women and children craning for a look at the Queen and hoping for a royal handshake.

Everywhere the Royal Family went, there were cheers and tears of joy, a minimum of protocol and a maximum of chatting with ordinary folks.

Queensboro

QUEENSBORO — Mrs. Roy Gordon is spending a couple of weeks with her sisters in Nova Scotia.

Mrs. R. A. Sager is spending this week with Mr. and Mrs. Don Martin and family in Fitzroy harbour.

Miss Minnie Moorcroft and Mrs. D. McCoy presented a talk on the study book "The Americas" at the general meeting of the St. Andrew's United Church Women which was held in Hazzard's church on Monday evening. Mrs. Allan Franks, president was in charge of the business period with Miss Alma Moorcroft conducting the devotional.

Luch was served at the close of the meeting by the Hazzards group.

Canada Has Inferiority Complex Because of Dependence on U.S.

KITCHENER (CP) — Canada has developed an inferiority complex because it has become dependent on the United States way of life, C. A. Pollock, president of Electrohome Ltd. said Wednesday.

Mr. Pollock told the company's annual meeting that because of dependence on U.S. business organizations, labor-force direction and finance, Canada had lost its initiative to fend for itself.

"This thinking now is almost habitual and too many of us find it difficult to believe that we can be as efficient as our neighbors at our own level of operations.

"It's about time we questioned this inept thinking and asked ourselves how much of our independence we should trade for the economic efficiency others seem to have."

He said Canadians were wrong in thinking that the U.S. was trying to take over Canada and its natural resources.

"It is we Canadians who have not got our thinking straight," he said. "We have been so interested in being like our neighbors that we have their amenities and affluence and overlooked the fact that we have unparalleled opportunities of our own."

"Excuse me, but your dog has just eaten my dog."

Tractor Is Ransom

LA PAZ (AP) — Bolivian peasants kidnapped the manager of an American-owned gold mine and traded him back for a tractor, company officials said Wednesday.

Spokesmen for South American Placers, which operates mines in the tropical Yeopone area about 120 miles north of here said Julio Jauregui, a Bolivian, was snatched last week by a group of peasants. The kidnappers demanded as ransom a tractor that could be used in road building, and the swap was made Saturday.

Peasant leaders said agricultural workers in the isolated zone have made a "pact of mutual defence".

Teachers' Claims Education Quality Will Drop Draw Denial

TORONTO (CP) — The department of education Wednesday denied claims by the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation that 40 per cent of high school students will suffer a drop in education quality because of ceilings on education spending.

The warning was issued in a federation brief to the legislature's committee on human resources three weeks ago.

The government's rebuttal was released to the committee by J. P. Kinlin, assistant deputy minister of education. Representatives of the Ontario School Trustees Council and the federation were present.

The Federation protested it had not been given advance copies of the government's rebuttal and could not prepare a defence on such short notice. This prompted the committee to accept a motion by Dr. Matthew Dymond (PC—Ontario) to invite both groups back at a later date "with our apologies."

The federation brief zeroed in on five boards of education as examples of how ceilings would hurt the students.

In Ottawa, it said, 100 teachers would be cut from elementary and secondary staffs, supplies for elementary schools would be reduced, classes would be larger, and industrial arts and home economics would no longer be available for some students.

The federation said the secondary school system in Ottawa was over-staffed because the 1970 enrolment was 300 students below what was expected.

The federation statement that a sweeping list of options would disappear was not true, the department said.

The federation had said that in Lincoln County, 52 fewer secondary and 21 fewer elementary teachers would be required for 1971-72. instructional supplies would be cut and so would special student counselling staff.

The department said Lincoln's low pupil-teacher ratio of 14.6 to 1 in 1970 compared with a provincial average of 16.4 had produced high tax rates.

The department says no pupil in Lincoln will be deprived of the opportunity to take any course he wants, students will get the necessary supplies and courses that attract low enrolments will be offered in only one of two paired schools.

The department said there would be fewer teachers in Niagara South this coming year because the school enrolment has dropped by 300.

Court Gives Dental Technician's Licence Back

TORONTO (CP) — Dental technician Ben Sweet's licence was reinstated Wednesday by the Ontario Supreme Court.

Mr. Justice Donald Morand said there was insufficient evidence to have Mr. Sweet's licence revoked by the dental technicians governing board which certifies and controls the province's registered dental technicians.

The board had suspended Mr. Sweet's licence April 28 for 12 months on the grounds that he was selling dentures directly to the public in contravention of the Dentistry Act. He is president of the Denturist Society of Ontario, which is seeking permission for technicians to sell false teeth directly.

The board's counsel, Joseph Sheard, said Mr. Sweet "had held himself out as qualified to practise a branch of dentistry."

Mr. Justice Morand answered:

"You say he is guilty of practising dentistry, just on the strength of the sign. He is entitled to make dentures. Where is your evidence he made any?"

Thanksgiving Called Good Election Day

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Thanksgiving day would be "a good time" for a provincial election in Ontario, George Kerr said Wednesday night.

The provincial minister of energy and resources said in an interview after a meeting of the Oxford County Progressive Conservative Association, he expects a provincial election sometime between June 1 and November 15.

A provincial election is mandatory before October 1972.

Mr. Kerr warned the meeting that without a Conservative representative for their riding they "could be left crying in the wilderness" or be led by a group of "wild-eyed wafflers."

His party's effort to stimulate the economy, its intention to foster foreign and Canadian investment in Ontario, and its reorganization of the educational system would be the three key issues in the next election, he said.

Theatrical-Musical Event in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — The largest theatrical-musical festival ever held in Canada starts here Monday as Theatre Canada '71 presents 24 groups from across the country.

The focal point for the non-competitive replacement for the Dominion Drama Festival will be the National Arts Centre but peripheral activities will take place throughout the city.

Events are scheduled in schools, hospitals, shopping malls, senior citizens' homes, underprivileged boys clubs and anywhere else the artists think they can get people involved.

One of the highlights of the peripheral activities will take place at Carleton University next Friday when 15 prisoners from the Collins Bay penitentiary near Kingston, Ont., will present a play written by prisoner Peter Madden.

The play, A Criminal Record, discusses effects of the Canadian judicial and penal systems on a man who has been a habitual offender since his youth.

John Hirsch, vice-president of administration for the festival, said one of its aims is to "break away from the rigid standards set by theatre, many of which are archaic."

The idea is to show people that "theatre isn't just sitting in a plush theatre and paying $5 a ticket and then getting up and leaving when it's over."

He said the festival involves a lot more work than Dominion Drama festival finals.

"We had only six plays involving about 120 people before. Now we have to deal with more than 400 people."

The 24 groups performing at the arts centre are intended to represent every type of theatre there is in Canada today. They come from as distant places as Victoria, Halifax and Labrador City, Nfld.

Already this children's performances being held in the salon have been sold out. One studio production, Oh What a Lovely War by the Sault Theatre Workshop of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., also has been sold out.

Following the plays, the audiences and actors will discuss the performances. There will be no judging and no prizes.

Marmora Personals

MARMORA — Mr. and Mrs. Doug Vilneff have purchased the business known as Lorraine's Gift Shop from Mr. and Mrs. Ron Henry who have operated it for the past three years. Mr. and Mrs. Henry are leaving Marmora to take up residence in Huntsville where they have purchased a larger business. Mr. Vilneff will continue his employment with Marmoraton Mining Co. but will be assistoing whenever possible.

Wearing a christening gown that was made by his great-great grandmother 118 years ago, Dale Kenneth Reynolds, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. David Reynolds was baptized on Sunday by Rev. John Lombard in St. Paul's Anglican Church. This lovely, long gown has been used for 45 other christenings in his mother's family. Godparents are Mrs. Richard Mitcon and William Reynolds.

Also baptized on Sunday was Laura Lynn Youmans, daughter of Mr. Alex Youmans and Jeffrey Edward Clemens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Terrence Clemens. Mr. and Mrs. Edward McFaul are godparents for Laura Lynn and Jeffrey respectively.

A Service of Baptism was held at St. Andrew's United Church on Mother's Day, May 9 at which 11 children were accepted into the church family. The children's names are Treena Lynn Cook, Tammy Arlene Falk, Joanne Carol Jenkins, Cory William Jennings, Peter John Martin, Richard Martin and Shawn, Brian Douglas Sanderson, Tammy Marie Warren, Jody Lynn Casselman, Sherrie-Lynn Matthews, and Tracy Lynn Webber.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

She Uses Bellows To Blow Candles

Some time ago I wrote a column on the technique of blowing out candles on the birthday cake. A number of readers had sworn off eating cake during such celebrations because of the danger of getting germs from the air of the occasion.

Last night I went to a birthday party. Right after "Happy Birthday to You" came the cake. I watched the guest of honor take a very deep breath and blow so hard right down on top of the cake that you could see the chocolate trimble and shake. Nevertheless, in the face of danger from millions of unseen bacteria, I sat down with the rest of the happy gathering and had my cake and ice cream.

But as I ate, I wondered whether there wasn't some truth in the assertion that blowing down on a birthday cake is, if not bad manners, at least slowing uncuncern for any sensitive guests who may be present to help celebrate. Many so believe. Here is a note to that effect:

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have an important question for you. Please do not hesitate to tell me the truth even if you think I am wrong.

I am extremely fond of the traditional birthday or anniversary party. The hostess prepared an enticing, delicious cake. On top are a number of colorful cute little candles. Everybody sings the happy birthday song. A wish is made.

Then comes the climax of the ceremony — the blowing out of the candles. A youngster often makes a half-dozen unsuccessful tries before the flames are extinguished. But the grown person most often accomplishes the job in hand by taking a deep breath and blowing right down on top of the cake.

At my own birthday parties I never blow out the candles with my own breath. I use a small bellows. I would feel terrible to breathe on my own cake and then pass out my germs to unsuspecting guests. Shall I keep on with the bellows? Will people say I am ruining a wonderful tradition? — Mrs. C.

• • •

COMMENT: A small bellows? Why not? But wouldn't flicking out the lights one by one be effective? Or simply blowing across the cake rather than directly down upon it?

I agree that a certain amount of care is welcome. But I wonder whether "antiseptic" birthday parties might not take away some of the spontaneity and fun of the occasion.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I would appreciate it if you would consider this question in your columns. Although it sounds odd it is very important to me. I have been circumcised and for purely cosmetic reasons. I don't like it.

I have been told that there is an operation which replaces the foreskin. It sounds like a minor problem, but I'm developing a real complex about that thing. What do you advise? — Mr. R.

COMMENT: This is the first time I have ever received such a request. Usually the inquiry is whether it should be done and not how to have it undone.

As this seems to be of such importance to you, I suggest you consult a urologist, and, if necessary, a plastic surgeon. I do not hold out much hope for adequate replacement, but your mind will be more at ease when you hear the verdict from doctors who examine you.

• • •

For Mrs. T.: Clubfoot is a birthday deformity in which the front portion of the foot is turned inward. It can be benefitted by surgery — therefore I suggest you follow your doctor's advice and consult with an orthopedist.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For May 14

Your birthday today: You begin a period of personal adventure, seeing yourself and life in sharper, more practical terms. You occasionally must cope with a sudden incident, just as likely fortunate as otherwise, and be ready and willing to change and move. Today's natives are usually gifted with a strong sense of humor, courage, and the knack of developing compromise solutions in public issues, where called upon.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Patience beyond that you are accustomed to is essential. Fairness demands that you realize and wait for other people's problems and limitations.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Tradition almost requires some little deviation or experiment. Diversify your activities; expand a bit. Later focus on special interest.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Conciliation is the key to success now. Explain and apologize where you need to, then go on with fresh plans, additional approaches toward the things you most want to achieve.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Stay busy on a first things first basis. Your talent for observation leaps forward if you cultivate it. Intuition rises bright and according to how well you have been treating yourself.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Strive for harmony; let others have broad shares in leadership. Some things awaited will be the better for it.

VIRGO (Aug 23 — Sept. 22): Your shopping sphere is much wider than your savings account as major purchases come to consideration. In nearly all activities a moderate course works out most effectively.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Large promises abound, but take nothing for granted. There might be truth in some of the smaller pledges. You must look carefully.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Go along with pragmatic reality for the moment, neither forcing issues nor accepting pressures too readily. Most questions can wait a while longer for complete answers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 22): Relationships warm up. It's a grand day for politicking and patching up past disagreements. Find or give a modest party this evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Begin very early and get a fast start, as today dwindles in its promises it wears on. Adjust and complete routines while you wait for more important matters.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): You must decide what to do and supply most of the energy and resources to make things happen. Under such conditions, concentrate on projects that fit your own goals and welfare.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Influence comes to bear on your behalf — take full advantage while it exists. Expect to carry heavier responsibilities along with the rewards.

Egypt's President Sadat Purges His Opponents

Baffled by Rise

Finance Minister Edgar Benson stands before reporters outside the Commons question period Thursday in Ottawa after his resignation was demanded and the government assailed over the unemployment situation. Baffled by the rise, Mr. Benson said it was a monthly variation; however, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield disagreed and said the 1929 stock market crash would have been a "monthly variation" had Mr. Benson been minister that year. (CP Wirephoto)

Stanfield Tells Benson to Quit

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson admitted Thursday he was baffled by an unusual jump in the seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate for April.

He told reporters it was very unusual that the rate had risen last month to 6.7 per cent of the labor force from six per cent in March.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the manpower department reported Thursday that 639,000 Canadians were unemployed in April, up from 650,000 in March. It is a problem of the growth of the labor force outstripping the growth in new jobs.

"I really don't know what caused this particular change," Mr. Benson said. It was an unusual occurrence in the usually-brightening April employment picture.

Opposition MPs roasted government economic management in the Commons, with Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield calling for Mr. Benson's resignation.

New Democrat Leader David Lewis and George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) asked for emergency debates on the unemployment issue.

John Lundgren (PC—Gander-Twillingate) offered a motion censuring the government for policies he said were causing stagnation, blight and unprecedented misery.

And Ed Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby) wanted to give emergency aid to the unemployed who will lose their seasonal unemployment insurance benefits at the end of the month.

All the motions were disallowed by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux on technical grounds. The opposition has five days next week when it can choose the subject for debate.

Prime Minister Trudeau told the Opposition to look at long-run trends, not just the April figures.

Those trends show the economy has been improving since last September, Mr. Trudeau said.

Opposition MPs hooted and shouted when the prime minister said the economy had been turning around for the last 14 months.

Their behavior was not a good example for the children watching from the galleries, Mr. Trudeau scolded, to Liberal cheers.

That provoked Mr. Lewis to his feet, accusing Mr. Trudeau of unbridled arrogance and calling the Liberals bureaus.

Mr. Stanfield called the rise in unemployment calamitous, and urged tax cuts to stimulate the economy.

He rejected Mr. Benson's statement that the rise was a monthly variation.

If Mr. Benson had been finance minister in 1929 he would have called the stock-market crash that year a monthly variation.

Mr. Lewis called the government's economic policies a dismal failure, leading to both unemployment and inflation.

He urged immediate tax cuts.

Mr. Trudeau said his goal was a low-inflation economy, which could only be achieved by beating inflation.

He bluntly accused Mr. Trudeau of a "phobic notion of inflation" that diverted the government from the first priority of full employment.

Labor Vote Landslide In England

LONDON (AP) — The Opposition Labor party stampeded to power in city halls throughout England and Wales today as voters delivered a resounding rebuke to Prime Minister Heath's Conservative administration.

In a landslide of proportions compared with the great swing to the left in 1945, Labor seized control of key provincial cities and, with some results still to come, looked like the most popular party in London.

Conservative control of Parliament was not at stake.

But the election campaigns for borough councils was fought on national issues such as rising prices and unemployment and was the first major voter verdict on the year-old tory government.

The Conservatives noted that after their massive wins in the last municipal elections of 1968 —when Labor lost 1,220 seats in local legislatures—they had no where to go but down.

Today's counting, however, was worse than the party's gloomiest forecasts.

Cabinet Ministers, Top Officials Resign

CAIRO (CP) — After an apparent purge of his political opponents, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat vowed today to crush "all independent power blocs and all attempts to restrict the people's liberty."

Sadat's remarks to a group of Egyptian judges, broadcast by Cairo radio, came a few hours before the expected announcement of a new government. Six of Sadat's cabinet ministers and three top party officials resigned Thursday night, touching off the most serious internal power struggle since 1954.

Before meeting the judges, Sadat conferred with leaders of his federation partners, Libya and Syria, as well as the Sudanese head of state, Gaafar Numeiry, on the change in leadership.

The authoritative newspaper Al Ahram said a new government would be formed "within a few hours." Its report was carried by Egypt's official Middle East news agency.

Israeli experts on Arab affairs viewed the resignations as "tantamount to a coup d'etat" by Sadat in an effort to break the hold of ministers who are pro-Soviet. In the process, some of Russia's staunchest supporters were out of office.

War Minister Mohamed Fawzy, Interior Minister Sharawy Gomaa, National Assembly Speaker Labib Shukair and the head of the powerful Arab Socialist Union, Abdel Mohsen Abul Nur, all quit the seven month-old Sadat administration Thursday in the biggest political upheaval since President Nasser's death last September.

The four other ministers who resigned were Abdel Hamid Sami Sharaf, (presidential affairs), Helmy Mohammed El Said (electric power), Mohammed Saaeddin Zayed (housing) and Mohamed Fayek (information). Maddin Daoud, a member of the ASU higher executive committee, was the third top party official who quit.

The mass resignations, which followed weeks of bitter political infighting, posed a stern challenge to Sadat's survival as leader.

The resignation of Fawzy, 50, could not have come at a worse time, with Egypt still facing the possibility of renewed fighting with Israel. The Middle East news agency reported that Lt.-Gen. Mohammed Ahmed Sadek, armed forces chief of staff, was chosen to replace him as war minister and commander-in-chief.

Before the latest crisis, Sadat had gained a reputation at home and abroad for his shrewd diplomacy—but his decision to seek a peace settlement with Israel also won him many enemies.

The opposition—a new factor in Egyptian politics after 18 years of virtually monolithic leadership under Nasser—found a ready spokesman in left-winger Aly Sabry, who was dismissed as second vice-president by Sadat earlier this month.

Sabry objected to the president's decision to seek a political settlement with Israel without fuller consultation. He also criticized the decision to set up a federation with Libya and Syria.

A bitter debate which followed in the central committee of the ASU forced Sadat to arrange major changes in the federation statutes. He won a vote of confidence—and then immediately fired Sabry.

Lebanese observers believe Dr. Mahmoud Fawzi will remain as prime minister in the new government.

Fawzi is reported to have sided with Sadat in the power struggle with Egypt's hardliners led by pro-Soviet Aly Sabry.

But those observers expect more Sabry men in Fawzi's cabinet to lose their posts when the new government is announced.

Hoffa May Run For Old Job

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Teamsters union President James R. Hoffa — still powerful after four years in prison — has received a go-ahead from other top leaders of the union for a last-ditch try to win his freedom and resume control of the trucker's union.

"Jimmy wants 20 days until the first week in June before he makes up his mind on whether to run for re-election," a high union source said Thursday of Hoffa's latest bid for freedom on a claim of new evidence.

"They voted to wait for him," the source said of the action taken by the Teamsters executive board meeting here.

"If he gets out of prison and is free to run he will be re-elected," said the source — one of 14 members of the board.

Belleville Family YMCA employee Joe Clark holds the brick used to smash into the south side of the pool sometime before 6 a.m. this morning. From the pool, vandals left a trail of broken glass as they broke inside windows and doors. Damage was estimated at between $500 and $1,000.

Nixon Calls Reinforcements

WASHINGTON (CP-AP) — President Nixon has recalled his military commander in Europe and the U.S. ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to fight a Senate move to halve U.S. troop strength in Europe.

The president met with a group including former state secretary Dean Acheson and three former NATO commanders to plan strategy before the Senate votes next Wednesday on a military draft bill that has become a focal point of the future of the American commitment to NATO.

Democratic Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, of Montana tacked on an amendment to a bill extending the draft for two years that would cut U.S. forces in Europe by 50 per cent.

Republican Leader Hugh Scott told reporters Thursday: "The president will not and cannot accept a forced reduction of forces."

The first vote Wednesday will come on a substitute proposed by Sen. Charles Mathias (Rep. Md.) endorsing Nixon's decision to keep U.S. troop strength in Europe at its present level of about 300,000.

If the Mathias amendment fails, and indications are that it will, at least two other Republicans have proposals urging troop withdrawals but leaving the final decision to the president.

The Mansfield amendment will come to a vote only if all the proposed substitutes are defeated.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler disclosed Nixon had asked Gen. Andrew Goodpaster, commander of NATO forces, and NATO Ambassador Robert Ellsworth to return home for consultations.

Before he left Europe, Goodpaster told a news conference in Mons, Belgium, that withdrawal of U.S. troops would lead to the destruction of NATO.

Acheson, reporting on the White House meeting, said: "We went over the situation. We looked at the votes and we were encouraged. We think we can win."

The former state secretary said Nixon "called on the people who created NATO and saw it through for 20 years."

All of us had our fighting gloves on."

Typhoid Outbreak Spurs Survey

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government Thursday ordered a province-wide survey of suspected polluted waters being used for human consumption.

The order came on the heels of a typhoid outbreak in the tiny village of Bouchette in the Gatineau valley, 60 miles north of Ottawa.

"We must act immediately to prevent similar incidents elsewhere in the province," Victor Goldbloom, minister responsible for environment told a news conference.

Mr. Goldbloom said it is possible the danger of typhoid exists in many small villages throughout Quebec which used untreated water from river sources.

He said the survey will begin immediately with results expected "as soon as possible."

The minister also said greater emphasis must be placed on preventing future outbreaks of illness caused by polluted sources of domestic water.

As far as immediate relief for residents of Bouchette is concerned, the government had no easy solution.

"All we can do is tell people to boil their water before drinking it," Mr. Goldbloom said.

He has ordered engineers to draw up plans for a low cost water supply system which will make use of underground water.

Mr. Goldbloom said such a system would cost approximately $20,000, far less than the $265,000 water and sewage treatment plant planned by the Bouchette administration in 1963.

The plant was never built because of a lack of municipal funds.

So far, 20 Bouchette residents have been stricken with positively-diagnosed cases of typhoid. Another seven are listed as "probably" typhoid.

"I don't think the people of Bouchette realize that typhoid is an epidemic," said Dr. Guy Morrissette, chief of staff at Hull's Sacred Heart hospital. The Hull hospital is treating 11 positive cases of the disease.

"Their ignorance on the subject is really something. The mayor of Bouchette said on telegraph vision that you can catch it by setting on a dirty toilet seat, but you can only contract them by taking orally something that has been contaminated."

Dr. Jean-Guy Houle, who diagnosed one of the first cases, blames the Quebec health department for not cracking down on pollution in the Gatineau River. A black rubber hose used as a water intake pipe for Bouchette is less than 50 feet from another pipe pouring raw sewage into the River.

The worst typhoid epidemic in Canada was in Montreal in 1927, when infected milk led to the deaths of 533 persons. Another 5,000 ended up in hospital.

Children Benefit

Mental Health Services Improved Under New Act

"The pessimistic picture of the current inability of the child mental health resources and agencies to keep up with the increasing problems of the youth population" in Ontario may change in the face of the new provincial legislation.

Such was the hope expressed by the Honorable Richard T. Potter, minister without portfolio, at the annual conference of the Canadian Mental Health Association in Toronto Thursday.

The new Children's Mental Health Centres Act, and the regulations under the act, which came into force on April 1 "provides for wide - ranging innovations . . . and heralds a new dawn in the provision of mental health services for children and youth," says Dr. Potter. "To my knowledge, there is no comparable legislation anywhere else in Canada".

Under the new act, the province of Ontario will assume total financial responsibility for children's services. As the Children's Aid Societies will be relieved of paying fees for their wards, municipalities will accordingly be relieved of a regressibility costing $1.4 million in this fiscal year, explained Dr. Potter. As well, no child need be denied treatment because of inability to pay.

"Th act recognizes the importance of special services for children within the total mental health program, under the general direction of the Department of Health, and provides for the co - ordination, inspection, licensing and funding of all mental health facilities to serve this age group," Potter stated.

At the present time, the mental health program offers a comprehensive range of service systems co - ordinated and directed by the Psychiatric Services Branch, the Children's Services Branch and the Mental Retardation Services Branch.

"Since the establishment of the Children's Services Branch in September of 1969, a survey of existing facilities has been carried out to determine the levels of service currently being provided, and to identify the priorities of need for children's services in each area of the province," reported Dr. Potter. Results of the survey showed the distribution of services to be inadequate.

Therefore, the Children's Services Branch set as one of its objectives the improvement of communication between individuals and agencies in the child mental health field.

"It offers a consultation service to all organizations of persons interested in promoting better quality programs for disturbed children and provides a liason function in matters relating to the communities and agencies to the department," said Dr. Potter.

"The concept of an integrated framework for delivery of services for children throughout the province emphasizes the necessity for maximum involvement of professional and volunteer agencies operating in the interest of children.

"In the provision of services for the mentally ill, increasing attention is being directed to the development of comprehensive community health programs which will be the full and effective use of all available resources in the area," Dr. Potter stated. He went on to say that under the regulations of the Mental Health Act," all psychiatric facilities are required to provide five essential services, including in-patient and out-patient services, day-care, emergency services and consultations and educational assistance to local agencies.

Except for two municipalities, all population centres of 20,000 or more in Ontario have a psychiatric department in a general hospital. In these two municipalities, a psychiatric unit has been approved and will soon be available.

Recent developments have been made in the program for retarded and for emotionally disturbed children, with educational programs within the provincial facilities for the retarded now under the supervision and direction of the Department of Education.

"In addition to the special programs which have been designed to meet the needs and stimulate the learning ability of the retarded, separate classes are provided for those with visual defects and those with hearing impairment."

Within the total sphere of mental health, however, the close working relationship is maintained with local health agencies.

"When there is a need for institutional placement, the public health nurse assesses the degree of urgency and assists the family in arranging for an admission to the appropriate residential training centre."

According to Dr. Potter, there is, in many areas, a great need to provide more accommodation of the "homeinvironment" type, that is, new centre for the mentally retarded to be opened in Picton this month.

"We are fortunate in Ontario in having many agencies and services in the community which can help the mentally ill, the retarded and their families," Dr. Potter acknowledged.

Village Mill Rate Almost Unaltered

FRANKFORD (Staff) — The 1971 budget for this village brings nothing but good news for its taxpayers.

Mill rates here remain substantially unaltered although Reeve William Rose and council project substantial capital works.

The residential rate for public school supporters will be 154.9 mills for 1971, down 1.1 from 1970. The commercial public rate is set at 171.3 for this year, up by only 2 mills.

Separate school supporters will pay at the same rate as in 1970: 135.7 mills for residential, 150 for commercial.

The village budget for 1971 is $328,000. "Of the total, $211,000 will be raised by residential and commercial taxation, the rest coming from grants, subsidies and other revenues.

Major expenditure this year will bring two new public facilities to the community, a new municipal office-library to be housed in an old church.

The present office site has been optioned by the Ontario Housing Corporation as a location for 15 senior citizens' housing units.

Surfacing and rebuilding of four streets will cost an estimated $25,000.

More money is set aside for replacing the sidewalk on King Street, from Victoria to Adelaide Streets, a section that had to be ripped up last year for sewer construction.

On the recommendation of the village's auditor the council has decided to begin a reserve account to meet unforeseen expenditures with $3,000 going into the fund this year. This will augment $16,000 already on hand.

"We have got some space to breathe now," says Reeve Rose, adding, "There is no reason the situation will not improve in the future."

Unique Homes for Aged Proposed for Picton

PICTON (Staff) — If a proposal discussed at a joint meeting May 6 of members of Prince Edward County Council, the Ontario Housing Corporation and the department of Social and Family Services becomes a reality, the county will be the site of a unique plan to accommodate the elderly three separate types of housing.

The proposal for shared facilities includes the combination of an OHC senior citizens' housing unit, a new hostel - type unit and a smaller replacement for the county's existing home for the aged

Among the provincial representatives flown to Prince Edward for the conference were the Hon. James Snow, minister without portfolio and a board member of the Ontario Housing Corporation, H. Pullen, development manager, OHC, and L. Crawford, director, Homes for the Aged Branch, Department of Social and Family Services. Norris Whitney, MPP, Prince Edward - Lennox also attended the meeting.

Councillors were told of an Ontario "first" in senior citizen's housing by the Hon. Mr. Snow who outlined a project underway in Oakville. Hostel space, provided through participation by the OHC and the department of Social a d Family Services offer accommodations for senior citizens. The proposed combination of three separate types of housing in the Prince Edward County plan makes it the only one of its kind in the province.

County Clerk Thomas Walker said today that Prince Edward County would not be required to contribute to the capital construction costs of the hostel units and the OHC senior citizens' units.

If these facilities become operational, the county would pay 7½ per cent of all debentures issued by residents unable to pay full costs. The government would be responsible for the remaining 92½ per cent maintenance charge.

The present county home for the aged houses 64 senior citizens who contribute approximately $100,000 annually. Prince Edward County now pays 30 per cent of the home's operational costs, while the provincial government pays 70 per cent of the net cost balance after revenue has been taken in.

If a new, smaller county home is built, construction costs will be shared equally between Prince Edward County and the government. Last year's net costs to the county for operation of the home for the aged was $18,000. This year, council budgeted $120,000 toward construction of a new county home.

Happening Staged At Centennial

Open house Thursday night at Centennial Secondary School devoted from the usual science project and hobby displays and took on the character of a miniature arts festival.

A wide range of activities, from concerts by the senior and junior bands to a video - taped play, took place simultaneously in various parts of the school.

Wandering "Elizabethan" entertainers carrying musical instruments and stage props strolled about the corridors stopping every now and then to entertain visitors with musical numbers or impromptu playlets. The highlight of dramatic presentation by the theatre arts students directed by Kathy Johnson of grade 11 was staged in the auditorium. The grade 9 French class put on a French play accompanied by a slide presentation. The grade 13 French students enacted a French play which ended with a number of Spanish songs. Fashion shows featured formals, sportswear and school outfits.

Paintings and other works of art were displayed in a studio-like setting with student artists sitting before easels, to show them in the process of being made.

"Commercial students were engaged in typing and other commercial activities. One room was set up as a working office. Industrial students displays. The geography department contributed illustrations of various geographical concepts such as agriculture and housing.'

The guidance department held discussions involving students, teachers and any visitors who wished to participate. The history students showed slides of their recent Mediterranean cruise. Students of mathematics also demonstrated various aspects of mathematics. Individual projects concerning housing and interior decoration.

All aspects of the Science and technical programs were demonstrated and in the gym students were participating track activities.

The cafeteria was transformed into an intimate, dimly lit coffee house with tables centred with candles in wine bottles. A floor area was provided for dancing while music was played by the music department's dance band.

Firemen Want Parity with Police

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

A salary schedule more in line with that of police officers and complete elimination of a present regulation which forbids a fireman to accept outside employment are two of the main issues of an arbitration board hearing between members of the Belleville Fire Fighters' Association Local 497 and the city of Belleville.

The hearing, which got under way this morning at the Sun Valley Motor Inn is for settlement of a work contract agreement for 1970.

Contract negotiations between the firemen and the city were commenced in November 1969 on a total of 12 amendments proposed by firemen for their 1970 contract.

Nine of the proposed amendments have either been settled or withdrawn, leaving only three to be settled by arbitrations.

These are: (1) the requested elimination of the present contract article on discipline and devotion to duty dealing with restriction on a firefighter's activity during his time off.

(2) A request for a an across the board increase in $8,355 per annum for 1970 for a fourth - year firefighter, and (3) a request for an increase in service pay from 10 cents per day for each completed five years service to $5.00 per month for each completed five years of service.

The 1969 pay for a fourth - year firemen was $6600 with probationers starting at $5,610 and a first year fireman receiving $5,875.

Included in the submission is a request for a 1970 salary of $10,780 for a captain in instructor; $10,290 for a captain; $10,290 for an inspector and mechanic and $10,100 for a lieutenant.

Also requested is a increase in the salary of radio telephone operators from the present $4,340 to $8,235.

The arbitration board hearing is before Judge H. J. Reynolds, chairman of the board, with A. J. Clark as the city's nominee, and Louis C. Assaly, for the fire fighters' association.

Presenting the Association brief was John Jessop, representative of the International Association of Fire Fighters, with Mr. Riggs of the Toronto law firm of Miller, Thomson, Hicks, Sedgwick, Lewis and Healey, presenting the city's case.

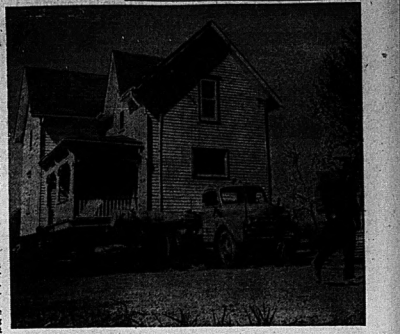
Well over 20 firemen from the Belleville force, along with observers from Trenton and Peterborough attended, prompting College Reynolds to ask if they were all off-duty.

"Who is keeping shop?" he asked, the query prompting laughter from the audience.

The firefighters brief noted that this was the first time in the history of negotiations between the firefighters and the city that the assistance of an arbitration board had been sought.

The request was made the brief said, when "it became obvious . . . that the corporation was not prepared to make the necessary salary adjustments for their firefighters so they would be in receipt of a salary commensurate with other firefighters in comparable communities."

It was noted that arbitration boards, determining what was a fair and reasonable salary for firefighters, compared salaries being paid to firefighters in other communities of a comparable size, salaries being paid police constables, and the ability of the taxpayers to pay the cost.



Mr. Jessop said the 1969 salary received by a fourth - year fireman in Belleville was $712 less than the provincial average while in 1970 the provincial average was $1,714 more than a fourth year firefighter in Belleville receives.

In some municipalities firemen receive higher pay than police constables, the brief noted. However the salary of a first class constable in Belleville for 1970 was $9,000, or $2,070 more than is now received by a fourth - year Belleville firefighter.

In addition local policemen receive better fringe benefits in many categories including 75 per cent of insurance and welfare costs as compared with 66⅔ per cent received by firemen.

The brief claimed there was no question of Belleville taxpayers being able to pay the requested salaries for firemen.

Firemen completed presentation of their brief shortly before noon, with the board reconvening at 12.45 to hear out the case of the City of Belleville.

New Access Road Proposed For Albert College Site

Staff members of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board are concerned about the suitability of the Albert College playground property on Wellington Crescent as a multiple family housing site.

This was indicated to the Belleville Committee of Adjustment yesterday at the scheduled hearing of an application for a land split to open the way for the sale of approximately two acres of Albert College property.

The area is currently zoned as a "B" district which would allow construction of apartments.

Area residents are opposing the land split application, claiming that construction of apartment could create traffic problems and lower the value of residential property. They are asking that the city purchase the property for use as a park and greenbelt. And that the area be rezoned as an "A" district.

In a letter to the committee of adjustment the planning board staff yesterday said it did not question the preservative of Albert College to dispose of its excess land to the highest bidder, but it did question the right of the purchaser to use the land for apartment purposes.

However, staff members did feel that residents in the proposed severance area are entitled to some consideration by the committee.

The letter said these residents have enoyed living on quiet residential streets relatively free of noisy traffic and suggested that should apartment development take place on the subject site it would likely generate a heavy flow of traffic into the single family residential area therefore "lowering the amenity of the residents".

Assuming, however, that apartment construction will take place, the planning staff suggests that traffic from the development area be prohibited from using Wellington Crescent, with access to the area instead being provided by a right - of - way to Highland Ave, being given by Albert College.

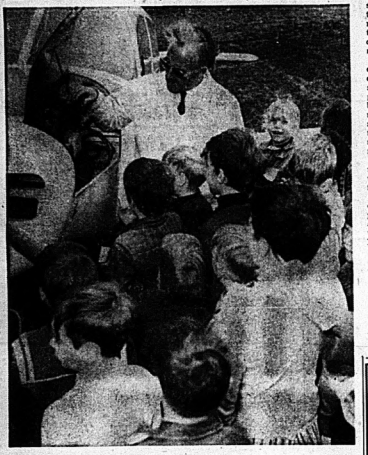
Albert College representatives as well as Wellington Crescent residents opposing the application were in attendance at yesterday's hearing but in accordance with a city council request the proceedings were deferred for two weeks to allow time for negotiations for possible purchase of the property by the city.

No Cuts

College Keeps Staff

Loyalist College will not be dismissing any of its staff this year, but instead will be hiring several more teachers.

The province's announced tightening up on financing will send most of the administration staff back to the classrooms to teach, but the faculty layoffs reported at other community colleges won't be necessary here.



The college now has a staff of about 90 teachers and seven technicians in arts and business, technology and Manpower retraining. The number will be roughly the same next September, and day school enrolment is expected to rise from 1,000 to 1,300 next year. The student-teacher ratio will be about 14 to 1.

About half the students enrolled in the college this year training courses paid by the federal government.

"Enrolment in retraining courses fluctuates wildly, depending on the economic situation in the area," said director of public relations Ernst Kneisel. "If the general economic activity around here reaches a higher level significant numbers of the retraining people might leave," he added.

Enrolment in retraining programs recently went up by 30 to 50 students.

"We're going through a bit of belt tightening and almost all administrators will have to teach next year," he said.

Airport Classroom

Prince Edward Flying Club pilot Murray Clapp Thursday showed grade 2 and 3 students from H. H. Langford Public School in Napanee, the components of this Piper aircraft. The youngsters said they had been preparing for their trip to the Belleville Flying Club for several weeks and some said they wanted to become pilots.

Moving House Today

Today was moving day for this house at Bayside and workmen from the Cornwall-based firm of Sullivan Brothers' spent hours balancing the two-storey frame dwelling on the back of a specially-built trailer. As Graham Sullivan, right, directed operations, the truck slowly eased the building ahead, inch by inch across the road, under wire raised by Ontario Hydro crews to its new resting place, about 100 yards from former foundations. The move was necessitated by widening of Highway 2.

Davis To Speak

PICTON (Staff) — Ontario Premier William Davis will be guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Prince Edward - Lennox Conservative Association in Picton on Monday, May 17. Scheduled to open at 8 p.m. the meeting will be held in Prince Edward Collegiate Institute auditorium.

Norris Whitney, MPP Prince Edward - Lennox has stated he will announce his intentions concerning the Conservative candidacy nomination during Monday's meeting. Riding association officers will be elected in the business portion of this gathering.

Home Again

The Queen, Prince Philip and Princess Anne are home again after a successful visit to British Columbia.

Home in London from that other Commonwealth home, Canada, and it does seem incredible that from Vancouver to London by jet is only nine hours, perhaps 10 to Buckingham Palace if you count the trip in from the airport.

Just nine hours away from such informal greetings as Hi Queen and Hi Duke and chats with everyone from first citizen Indians to new Canadians with origins around the world, and some of our more eccentric brethern with beards, headbands and strange clothing.

It was typical of Prince Philip, soberly clad as usual in a dark suit, that he was less scandalized by members of the hippie fraternity than are the rest of us bourgeois souls. Where many of us look askance, he was found in lively conversation with one such young couple, earning from them later the accolade of "a far out Duke."

Speaking of clothes it is safe to say that the Royal ladies were "way out" only to the extent that their habits were . . . well, let's say different. The Royal designers have never been distinguished for chic and the headgear in particular has always seemed to us somewhat less than flattering. Still, the Queen and Princess Anne, in their different ways, usually manage to overcome the shortcomings of the Royal wardrobe by their warmth of personality and attractive appearance. Like when Princess Anne appeared at a park ceremony wearing no hat and with her blonde hair framing her pretty face and resting on her shoulders. In this charming fashion she posed for youngsters and adults alike, for pictures which will surely be cherished for a lifetime.

It was a happy visit, one which meant much to Canada and to British Columbia in particular, and which confounded once again those who say the Monarchy has no place in our society.

TV Fun

For a man who is shortly to suffer the same fate as many on television these days — that is, the network axe — Ed Sullivan remains a showbusiness legend. What the comedians will do when his show goes off the air we cannot imagine, but meantime the comics are still in full cry.

It was a very funny 60 minutes Wednesday night when Ottawa's Rich Little among others did a spoof on Sullivan which ended with the great man himself making a guest appearance with his "poopsies".

Rich Little, incidentally, was on the Carol Burnett show some weeks ago and looks as if he may be heading for the same kind of success on U.S. television as performers like Wayne and Schuster, and singer Ann Murray.

David Fry was there too, doing his classic take-offs on President Nixon and Senator Buckley. Another regular of late on this Kraft music hall has been Frank Gorshin. His is a familiar and multi-talented face, lean and craggy and all-American as that dressed as a cowpoke he looks like Richard Widmark, and with a voice which he can transform instantly so that you could be listening to Rex Harrison in My Fair Lady or Richard Burton in Camelot.

For some reason Gorshin is not a big name in showbusiness, in terms of publicity anyway, but nevertheless he must be one of the most versatile and brilliant performers anywhere. The Wednesday night program is where you get to see many of the less well-known but talented members of the entertainment world.

Those Rumors

So members of the legislature are throwing out more hints of an election in Ontario. The latest forecast is for a vote between June and Thanksgiving weekend and it comes from Energy Minister George Kerr. Such predictions are part and parcel of the political firmament, but we can be sure of nothing until we get the official word from Premier Davis. Certainly an election cannot be too far away.

Letters

Readers are reminded once again that pseudonyms, or pen names, on letters in themselves do not constitute sufficient identification. While pseudonyms may be used for publication purposes, letters must also bear the handwritten signature and address of the sender.

Despite Continued Unrest

Northern Ireland's Expo Will Open May 14

By HAROLD MORRISON

BELFAST (CP) — British Army regiments have tightened their control over Belfast and other trouble spots with intensified armed patrols and dozens of sandbagged lookouts and pillboxes concentrated in the heart of the Roman Catholic and Protestant slums.

Total numbers of troops have been increased to about 10,000 with about 4,000 Ulster militia and about 3,000 Ulster police. But though army commander Maj.-Gen. Tony Farrar-Hockley maintains that he finally is "on top" of the crisis, outbreaks of violence continue and army officers conclude that it may take years to end the turmoil in the six counties.

Armed patrols, in covered jeeps and trucks, work the streets round the clock. Troops are ordered to shoot at the first sign of an armed attack by individuals or groups.

They are reported to have rounded up hundreds of troublemakers, including the apprehension and jailing of top Irish Republican Army leaders.

But while this increased military pressure appears to have forced extremists to change tactics, the army is still unable to prevent the midnight explosions, the blasting of police inspectors' homes, destruction of "enemy" bars and the tar-and-feathering of kidnap victims.

Among Ulstermen the anxiety and fear caused by the turbulence still continues, though to a lesser extent than earlier this year. There appears to be greater confidence in military protection. The army maintains this has increased the flow of tip-offs on secret arms caches and on the plots and plans of the extremists.

It also has strengthened the determination of the Ulster government to proceed with the celebration of Ulster's 50th anniversary with an Expo-type exhibition in Belfast opening May 14 and a state opening of Parliament June 22.

Hundreds of workers are rushing to complete the Belfast display centre, which will include a hall of Ulster heroes and a gallery spread of Irish history. The emphasis will be on unity and peace, with a hint of the impending return to an age of tranquility.

But even "Ulster 71"—costing some $2 million—brings controversy. Some Protestants figure it will be a waste of time and effort. One said it is being staged at the wrong time and that, "only the Orangemen will come." The money might better be spent, he said, on reducing unemployment and providing more homes.

In contrast, a government official argues that since Ulster spends about $100 million trying to attract more industry through the provision of ready-built, tax-free factories, the additional $2 million "isn't much." It might just convince more foreigners to invest in Ulster where sites are plentiful and labor costs are low.

The big question is whether many foreign industrialists will take the chance. Ulster officials maintain in their festival publications that visitors will see a friendly, hospitable and hard-working people.

But the IRA, in its underground publications charge that the Irish people have been betrayed by politicians on both sides of the border. It maintains that the Belfast Parliament is commemorating a robbery, a bequest and murder. Reforms had been promised but not implemented.

"Dam your concessions," says the IRA's Republic News in its latest edition. "We want our country."

Troops break up these editions and burn them. But many copies of the monthly papers get into the hands of Ulstermen. Repeatedly the articles revert to history, dwelling heavily on the past.

Army officials say they have little respect for either branch of the IRA—the "Officials" on the left who concentrate more on politics than the guns and the "Provisionals" on the right who appear to take to the streets on the least provocation, flinging stones, gasoline bombs and nail-imbedded gelignite grenades.

Lately the outbreaks have been in the form of furtive explosions rather than outright gunfire exchanges on the streets. There also have been greater use of women and children in demonstrations with men standing well back on sidewalks. Normally the army might be less inclined to deal roughly with these marchers, one observer suggested.

Farrar-Hockley, a veteran combat officer with skill in guerrilla warfare, became a favorite of his men in Aden. Watching a parachute regiment in its fast-paced patrols is likely to impress any visitor. But some officers say privately they would be glad to rid themselves of Ulster. When off-duty, they have to be careful where they go—careful that there should be no repetition of the assassination of three young soldiers earlier this year.

Farrar-Hockley is reported to feel that the IRA's organization and the quality of its military training is relatively poor. But he also is reported to feel that it may take another five or six years to eliminate the terrorism.

That means tying down a big slice of the British Army for a long time. And there still are no final answers on pacification.

Regional Spending In Ottawa

Hamilton Spectator

Municipal Affairs Minister Bales has pledged a review of regional government in Ontario. An examination of the province's regional works wouldn't be premature. In the case of Niagara, from which St. Catharines wants to secede, an impartial study offers the only route out of the present dissatisfaction.

Queen's Park owes all Ontario communities — those in regions and those on the some what blurred waiting list — the best form of local government the province can develop. It implies in one region or some parts of a region find inequities in taxes, services or representation in regional government, their complaints deserve full examination. And adults in the system should be corrected, with provincial help, if it's needed.

Mr. Bales' promise to review regional governments, through a special study committee, should not be regarded as an exercise in political public relations or as an evasive action. Regions are established in serious business. For day - to - day purposes, the local levy is, by far, the most important layer of government.

Moreover, the structure of local government, possibly for the next century or longer, is at issue. The growing, high-pressure complexity of urban life, intensifying annually, demands the most effective, responsive kind of local administration.

Regional government promises to be a practical means of rationalizing local governments and, at the same time, the local tax system.

It's vital, therefore, that Queen's Park must do its utmost to make regional government work. The alternative is to continue the costly, chaotic, ineffective nineteenth century municipal system that will rule Ontarians who live outside present regional governments boundaries.

As long as large components of existing regions — like St. Catharines is the biggest in Niagara — strongly object to the system, it can't be considered successful. Not in regard to form, at least. Democracy demands that government must be accepted by the majority of the governed.

A conscientious, practical review by a provincial committee probably will show what, if anything, is wrong in Niagara, and how improvements may be resolved. The results should prove useful in regions where people are sore for improvement and in areas still waiting for regional government.

Keeping Up With the Times In Canada

Ottawa Journal

There is more than the usual irrelevance in the present half-hearted revival of the monarchy issue in Canada. The whole discussion arose out, of nothing more substantial than some personal views of three or four members of the 30 - member Joint Committee of the Commons and Senate on the Constitution.

The committee is travelling across the country hearing views of anyone who wants to give them on a proposed Canadian constitution. The committee won't end its travels until June; it has not even begun to think about writing its recommendations. What a few members now think about the monarchy has no official standing with the committee.

Should the committee ever recommend the abolition of the monarchy — which is to be profoundly doubted — then there might be some relevance in a national discussion of the issue. But even then, a committee's recommendation would be a long way from being the policy of any government — as the whole history of committee recommendation shows.

The real work of constitutional making is going on in the federal - provincial constitutional conferences. There has been no inclination at all in these conferences even to discuss the possibility of some kind of republican system for Canada. Nor should there be at this time.

The country will have all it can do in the foreseeable future in agreeing upon an amending formula, on the division of powers, and on fiscal arrangements. It does not want an unnecessary and divisive debate on anything so close to the collective emotions of Canada as the role of its Queen.

Not all Canadians share the same views towards the monarchy. Nothing new there; that has been true since the country began. But the welcome which the Queen will receive in the course of her visit to British Columbia will demonstrate how deeply and how widely the monarchy is cherished in this land.

Conflicting Opinions On Effects of Marijuana

Ottawa Journal

What is a layman to believe about the effects of using marijuana? Recently two psychiatrists reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association that studies show young people who smoke "pot" in moderate to heavy amounts may develop serious psychological problems. Then comes in the mail at almost the same time a study by an associate professor of psychiatry at Harvard Medical school. It argues that reasons for psychological problems among drug users . . .

". . . are more likely to be found in pre-disposing personality problems and in disaffection with the social system than in the moderate social use of the drug marijuana."

The ever-widening field of drug studies is full of such documented contradicting evidence from equally well-qualified experts. It boils down to the simple fact that society just doesn't know for sure what harm can be caused by marijuana use.

The American Medical Association Journal recently reported these cases:

"A 16-year old girl who smoked marijuana three or four times a week for two years lost interest in her academic work, became hostile and impulsive and dropped out of school. She developed paranoid ideas bout her brother-in-law's sexual interest in her, became severely depressed and tried to hang herself. After she stopped smoking marijuana her depression and paranoia gradually disappeared."

"Thirteen unmarried girls, aged 13 to 22, became sexually promiscuous after using marijuana. Seven became pregnant and four developed venereal disease. All showed symptoms of confusion, apathy, depression, feelings of isolation, listlessness and suicidal ideas."

Since the RCMP reports that drug arrests in 1970 averaged 1,000 a month compared with only 250 a month in 1968, we would seem to have a good deal of work to keep us busy while the argue — and the Le Dain report is delayed another three months or more.

Public Order Act Committee Opposed

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government wants a special parliamentary committee to consider a replacement for the harsh laws used to deal with trouble in Quebec last fall, but the opposition parties don't like the idea.

The Liberal government has a motion before the Commons providing for a Commons-Senate committee to consider replacement legislation for the Public Order (Temporary Measures) 1970 Act, which expired April 30.

The public order act, not quite as tough as the War Measures Act invoked at the height of Quebec's troubles, was passed last December to provide emergency powers for dealing with the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec.

In the first round of debate Thursday, Eldon Woolliams (PC-Calgary North) succeeded in introducing an amendment that would ensure, if passed, committee investigation of the government's behavior during last fall's Quebec crisis.

The committee would not have to restrict itself to considering future legislative needs.

NDP Leader David Lewis committed himself to total opposition of the motion on the grounds that special legislation is not necessary and that the motion assumes that it is.

Justice Minister John Turner asserted that the government feels special legislation is necessary and showed a distinct distaste for Mr. Woolliams's interest in the government's past performance.

Round two is not scheduled until next Wednesday. The Commons was to return today to consideration of a government bill designed to stabilize the annual income of the western grains industry.

The government motion says the committee would "examine, inquire into and report upon the nature and kind of legislation required to deal with emergencies that may arise from time to time in the future by reason of lawlessness or violence. . . ."

Mr. Woolliams said there are still many questions unanswered on why the government invoked first the War Measures Act and then the Public Order Act to deal with the Quebec situation.

Included, he said, are several contradictory statements from government ministers, including Mr. Turner and Prime Minister Trudeau.

The futuristic terms of the motion suggested to Mr. Woolliams that the government might be trying to avoid analysis of its actions, but that analysis was necessary for any committee trying to determine what should be done in the future.

His amendment, which would have the committee report on factual incidents before considering replacement legislation, was deemed procedurally correct by Deputy Speaker Russell Honey.

Mr. Honey said the committee could not be asked to consider the main motion in the abstract without reference to historical events.

Mr. Turner did not comment in the Commons on the proposed amendment, but later said it was "not the purpose of the committee to set up an inquiry on what went on in the past, but to examine how Canadians ought to protect themselves and govern themselves in the future."

Parliament, he said, already has had the opportunity to study both the War Measures Act and the Public Order Act.

Although some aspects of the past might be relevant to the committee, he didn't want to see what was supposed to be a study towards creating new legislation turn into a political inquiry.

Mr. Lewis said the government was taking subterfuge in the committee instead of having the courage and honesty to come out with a bill of its own.

He said he suspected that the government already has drafted parts of a bill, and that they will find their way to the committee through Liberal members, who will be in majority there.

Then the government would tell people the resultant bill is not theirs, but the product of the committee.

Town to Be Declared Disaster Area Soon

ST. JEAN VIANNEY, Que. (CP) — Investigation of the soil underlying this village continued Thursday and the Quebec government promised that all or part of the community will be declared a disaster area once a geologist's report is completed.

Thirty-one persons were killed in a landslide May 4 that forced evacuation of 178 homes.

In Quebec City, Revenue Minister Gerald Harvey told the national assembly the government is awaiting a report from geologist Jean-Yves Chagnon on the extent of the danger area before defining the disaster zone.

The report was expected within a few days, he said.

Meanwhile, the government was receiving requests for geological surveys in neighboring communities in the wake of the cave-in in this community 115 miles north of Quebec City.

Homes of only about 100 persons are not considered endangered by further cave-ins.

Mr. Chagnon said the Quebec resources department had received nearly 200 requests for studies of earth conditions "but priority has been given to St. Jean Vianney."

Geologists are searching for a safe area in which to relocate the 100 families who lost their homes in the slide of 15 million tons of mud.

Many of the 1,300 persons who lived in the village before the landslide have left, vowing never to return. About 25 families are living in mobile homes provided by the provincial government.

In addition to the geological surveys here, Raymond Arès, a geotechnical engineer, has been sent to Desbiens to investigate reports of slides and cave-ins.

Paul-Emile Jean, mayor of the village on Lake St. John 30 miles west of here, said however there is no danger in Desbiens "since the nearest homes are at least 600 feet from the shoreline."

"Geologists have estimated that 30 feet of shoreline has tumbled into the lake in the last 40 years," Mayor Jean said, and many of the 2,000 people in Desbiens have been "on nerve's end" since the St. Jean Vianney disaster.

"My job presently is to instill confidence in the townspeople. They are still shaken over the St. Jean Vianney incident."

Geological tests in the St. Jean Vianney area had not discovered any underground water, thought to have been a factor in last week's slide.

But Mr. Chagnon said the earth was in danger of crumbling "rain or no rain."

As the geologists continued their tests, fragmen were searching the mouth of Riviere aux Vases, seven miles downstream from St. Jean Vianney, for the 26 bodies still missing from last week's slide.

The last body to be recovered was that of 13-year-old Donald Soucy, found Wednesday in the Saguenay River near the mouth of Riviere aux Vases.

Pope Urges Christians To Greater Involvement

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul insisted today that all Christians plunge into political action. He said they should use the Gospel's ideals "to conquer problems "that put the very future of man in jeopardy."

The pontiff warned Christians against embracing Marxism and urged caution toward socialism and Western liberalism —or capitalism. He said Christians should go "beyond every system" to assert "the specific character» of the Christian contribution for a positive transformation of society."

The 73-year-old pontiff sounded the call in a 10,000-word document that summed up and built upon the public social and political pronouncements of his nearly eight-year reign. The document was "an apostolic letter," similar to an encyclical addressed to Maurice Cardinal Roy of Canada, the president of the Vatican Commission of Justice and Peace.

Pope Paul chose the form of a letter addressed to Cardinal Roy, the Vatican said, to indicate he wanted the commission to develop his directions further.

The Vatican said the commission would spur national conferences of bishops into making a more detailed analysis of local situations and suggest more specific solutions for each country.

In the letter, Pope Paul also "deplored the ruthless pursuit of progress and profit" and suggested a switch from economics to politics as the basis for human activity, to achieve not national goals but the well-being of all men.

He urged that nations adopt a charter to free women from sexual discrimination, but he also upheld women's role at "the heart of the family."

The Pope also:

—Lashed racial discrimination, wherever it is practised.

—Called for a charter to give emigrants from one country to another a right to "professional advancement" and "access to decent housing."

—Charged that big cities foster "discrimination and also indifference" and suggested a need for small, congenial units on the streets or neighborhood level.

The Pope's letter marked the 80th anniversary of the Roman Catholic church's first great social encyclical, Rerum Novarum (of new things) issued by Pope Leo XIII in 1891 to defend the working man against the evils of the Industrial Revolution. The letter today was entitled Octogesima Adveniens (of the 80th anniversary).

Pope Paul led off his message with a pessimistic appraisal of the gaps between rich and poor nations, the continuance of totalitarian systems, the violence of revolutionaries, and confusion of many over rapid change.

Questions that spring from these sources, he said, must "take first place among the pre-occupations of Christians, so that with other men the latter may dedicate themselves to solving the new difficulties which put the very future of man in jeopardy."

He said he meant his apostolic letter to be "a fresh and insistent call to action" for all Christians.

"It is not enough to recall principles, state intentions, point to crying injustices and utter prophetic denunciations. . . . will lack real weight unless they are accompanied for each individual by a livelier awareness of personal responsibility and by effective action."

The Pope had these comments on current problems in the world:

Urbanization: "Instead of favoring fraternal encounter and mutual aid, the city fosters discrimination and also indifference. . . . Behind the facades, such misery is hidden, unsuspected even by the closest neighbors; other forms of misery spread where human dignity founder: delinquency, criminality, abuse of drugs and eroticism. . . .

"There is an urgent need to remake at the level of the street, of the neighborhood or of the great agglomerative dwellings the social fabric whereby man may be able to develop the needs of his personality."

Youth: "Everywhere dialogue is proving to be difficult between youth, with its aspirations, renewal and also insecurity for the future, and the adult generation."

Women: "In many countries a charter for women which would put an end to actual discrimination and would establish relationships of equality in rights and of respect for the dignity is the object of study and at times of lively demands.

"We do not have in mind that false equality which would deny the distinctions laid down by the Creator himself and which would be in contradiction with women's proper role . . . at the heart of the family as well as within society."

Racial discrimination: "The members of mankind share the same basic rights and duties, as well as the same supernatural destiny.

"Within a country, which belongs to each one, all should be equal before the law. There is no admittance to economic, cultural, civic and social life and benefit from a fair sharing of the nation's riches."

Communications media: "By the very action the media of social communication are reaching the point of representing as it were a new power. One cannot but ask about these who really hold this power, the aims that they pursue and the means they use, and finally, about the effect of their activity on the exercise of individual liberty, both in the political and ideological spheres and in social, economic and cultural life. . . .

Ecology: "Man is suddenly becoming aware that by an ill-considered exploitation of nature he risks destroying it and becoming in his turn the victim of this degradation."

U.S. Immigrants Said Smuggled from Here

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette says that organized criminals are smuggling people to the United States from Canada on a large scale.

The newspaper quotes a high-ranking Canadian immigration officer as saying the people "are really getting a raw deal."

"Not only do they have to pay the smugglers, but in addition the mob holds their illegal status over their heads."

Immigration and police officials on both sides of the border have been attempting to curb the illegal flow, the newspaper quotes the official as saying.

"We've made some progress, but the responsible government officials are not taking it seriously and it's getting out of hand."

Those smuggled include Italians, Greeks, Haitians and Chinese, he said.

"The majority are Italians. We located about 200 last year and most were from Italy."

The bodies of a Canadian and a Chinese he was allegedly smuggling into the United States were found Wednesday in rugged woodland south of here.

New York State Pork State Police found the bodies of Donald Levac, 38, of Ville LaSalle, Que., and Chan Sung Tung, 37, on the U.S. side of the border. Police said they died of exposure.

The pair had been missing since Dec. 7 when the U.S. border patrol arrested two other Chinese on charges of illegal entry into the U.S.

Authorities said the four men had set out on foot and that Levac was attempting to smuggle the Chinese into the U.S.

LAWN AND PLANT CARE

Vegetable Garden Tips

One of the most important things about feeding your vegetables is to use a balanced fertiliser. One with a high nitrogen for steady growth and quality is the 12-5-8 Vegetable Garden Cross Lightweight Flower, Shrub & Tree Food. But for quick results you may prefer to use a "feed formula" 30-20-20 Water-Soluble Plant Food.

A few other tips:

For Insects and Diseases — Dust regularly with Multi-Purpose Flower and Vegetable Dust. Ideal for most vegetables.

For Insects Only — Garden Guard containing rotenone is an effective treatment which can be used right up to harvest time for many beetles, caterpillars and aphids.

For Tomatoes — Use Tomato & Potato Dust. Controls blights and contains carbaryl too.

Roses

The amount of fertilizer you give your roses will have a big bearing on how long and how well the bushes flower. So keep the blooms coming, feed your roses generously with Lightweight Flower, Shrub & Tree Food plus plenty of water.

And for your vegetables and other insects, pests . . . apply Garden Dust and Ornamental Spray. Or if you prefer solids, use Green Cross Rose Dust. Regular use of these insecticide/fungicides will also protect your roses and other ornamentals from diseases such as Black Spot and Mildew. And take note: Cardinal leaves no visible deposit to mar the beauty of the leaves.

Canadian Table Tennis Team Favored by Chinese

TORONTO (CP) — It was the American table tennis team that got all the attention from reporters during its recent tour of Red China, but it was the Canadian team that got all the attention from the Chinese, says Helen Simeri, 23, a member of the Canadian group.

In an interview after her return from the seven-day tour of China, Mrs. Simeri, a psychology major at the University of Toronto, said members of the Canadian team were "a bit jealous" because their arrival in China was "hardly noticed" by reporters who mobbed the team from the United States.

"You should have seen the crowd of reporters. They really mobbed the Americans. We were a bit jealous because we were the first invited to China and because we (Canada) recognize Red China."

But the Canadians' jealousy was quickly obliterated by the "colorful impact" of the country and by the realization that they were getting preferential treatment from the Chinese — from Premier Chou En-lai right down to ordinary citizens.

"It was subtle but it was there," said Mrs. Simeri.

"We got the best seats at the opera and ballet and everywhere else. At the tea party (with Chou En-lai) the premier sat with the Canadian team first. It was like this all the time we were there.

"They gave us fantastic treatment. If we were twice as important I don't see how they could have improved it."

Mrs. Simeri said she has no illusions about the political nature of the invitation to China and the favoritism shown toward Canadians. But she hastened to add that the Chinese were "really sincere."

She thought the "little bit extra" in the Canadians' treatment was likely intended as an object lesson to the U.S. in the rewards China offers those who politically recognize it, although as an object lesson it was so subtle it was open to "more than one interpretation."

The Americans, she added, did not seem to notice any difference.

The petite table tennis veteran said she hopes in return to China with her husband after they graduate.

Although she has not yet sorted out the impressions she picked up from a country where she "didn't even know where Peking was" until she arrived, she thought the most memorable event was her meeting with Premier Chou.

"I think he is a perfect politician. He's got a great style and he's witty and intelligent."

His only peculiarity, however, was the fact that he with the apparent lack of in any of the teams.

"It's common knowledge that he speaks perfect English but he used an interpreter all the time. Maybe he didn't want to associate himself closely with all the foreigners.

"He acted as though he didn't understand us at all, except whenever the interpreter would say something wrong and he (Chou En-lai) would tell him the right word."

And her previous opinions of the Chinese people were shattered.

"They're not as serious and sombre as I'd thought, but happy and just like everybody else.

"We didn't see masses of people trudging to work every day and nobody was cracking a whip behind them. We were surprised to find that they are just like everybody else."

Mrs. Simeri said she is convinced that the Chinese are indeed happy with their lot, despite a constant barrage from the national radio network of the various thoughts of Mao Tse-tung.

She was also impressed with the apparent lack of interest Chinese people showed toward material possessions.

"They weren't at all interested in our belongings, and when we tried to give them things they always refused to take them. What they finally did take was some Canadian pennies when we assured them they were really of very little value."

Despite the fact most Chinese were similar clothing in one of three colors—navy blue, military green or grey —"they put a lot of stress on individuality."

"They believe in equality, but the only uniformity seemed to be their clothing. And this is probably because they don't have the selection of fashions and material we have here in Canada."

WALL WAS STEEP — Helen Simeri, 23, a member of the Canadian table tennis team that recently toured Red China, stands on the Great Wall. She was impressed by its steepness. She says the American team got reporters' attention, but with the Chinese the Canadians came first. "It was subtle, but it was there," she said. Arm band she wears was given her by a Red Guard during a tour of a trade university in Peking.

MR. AND MRS. WILLEM BOUMA

Bouma — Cummins

Rev. Peter Teti officiated at the recent wedding ceremony in St. Thomas Anglican Church, Belleville, when Jane Ann Cummins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis John Cummins RR 1 Corbyville was united in marriage to Willem Bouma, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bouma, RR 5 Belleville, D. W. Davenport presided at the organ and Mrs. Grace Doornbos was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length creation of imported French alencon lace with the empire bodice feaaturing a ruffled neckline and matching ruffle outlining the yoke of the dress. The full Bishop sleeves of lace were gathered with wide cuffs and the skirt was accented at the shirred waist with a band of white satin and bow at front. She wore a mantilla headdress which flowed into a cathedral length train trimmed with chantilly lace applique. She carried a nosegay of yellow roses and pink carnations interminglied with lily of the valley and baby's breath.

Mrs. Gordenia Burris, sister of the bride as matron of honor wore a gown of lilac figured nylon chiffon over taffeta designed with patterns of white flowers and clusters of leaves and flowers. The empire waistline was accentuated with a wide mauve velvet sash with streamers and bow at front, and the bodice featured a high stand-up collar and short puff sleeves. A swirky flounce outlined the hemline.

Bridesmaids Miss Bonnie Cummins, sister of the bride and Miss Olga Bouma, sister of the bridegroom, along with the flower girl were dressed identically to the matron of honor. All carried parasols to match their gowns. The miniature bride was little Maxine Burris, niece of the bride who was dressed identically to her and carried a basket of flowers identical to those of the bride.

All attendants of the bridegroom were his brothers with Raymond as groomsman and Joe and Fred Bouma as ushers. Ring bearer was Michael Burris, nephew of the bride who carried the rings on a white heart shaped satin pillow.

A reception was held at the Gilead Hall when the women of the community served. The bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a mint green flowered dress with mint green sleeveless coat, white hat and matching accessories with a corsage of red roses. Assisting, the bridegroom's mother wore a pale mauve dress accented with matching mauve patterned scarf and a corsage of yellow roses.

For the wedding trip to New York State and home via Quebec City, the bride chose a white lace dress accented with a long orange scarf and white accessories.

On return Mr. and Mrs. Bouma will reside at 237 Albert Street, Belleville.

Successful Living

Grandparents Somewhat Crochety

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Recently I took my children to visit their grandparents so they could get to know them better. My intent proved to be a very frustrating experience.

Their natural curiosity and liveliness met with constant sharp rebukes, even though I was there to supervise their behavior and am noted for not being over-lenient. The children were pretty much on their best behavior and were being continually picked at about petty things.

When we got home the children were glad and said they don't care to visit there again. How do I keep them from are crotchety and old fogies, with no co-operation from them?

Grandparents: Please remember that early impressions are not erased and that these tender buds must be watered with love, understanding and kindness; so that when you become old and senile, you may not be just tolerated or even deserted, but visited, understood and loved in return. — Frustrated Mother.

Dear Frustrated: I couldn't agree more.

Dear Doris: We (two girls and I), are thinking of forming a club and have meetings during the summer holidays. The only problem is that we couldn't know what to do during meetings or what places to go.

Any ideas or suggestions from you would be welcome. We are each 12 years old. — Any Ideas?

Dear Any: Now that's the kind of git-up-and-go that will get you places. Round up your membership — maybe a few more than you three? — and elect a president, secretary and treasurer, like the big guns do.

What you do depends on your talents. Does somebody draw? Who could sew and make puppets? If you are athletically inclined, there's jogging, or yoga, or hiking to a picnic spot.

Have you thought of joining the fight against pollution? Or raising money for charity with a bottle collection? Find out what's needed most where you are, and lend a hand. And let's hear how you get on.

Dear Doris: Did you know that "Blank-Blanchary" do away with the smell of cigarettes? If you have company just put a few drops in each ash tray. Next a.m. you will never know there was a cigarette in your room.

You get it at the drug store. — Mrs. J. B.

Dear Mrs. J. B.: Glad to know about it. I'll pass on the name of this commercial product to anyone writing in.

Variations of Teriyaki Steak

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: In Hawaii recently on a vacation we enjoyed Steak Teriyaki several times. We never had it before and, as it seems to be a recent recipe or a Polynesian one (although friends have had it in New Orleans), it is not in any of my recipe books. Could you please trace it for me and send me the recipe? — Margaret J.

ANSWER: I had to test Teriyaki Steak because I could not remember making it before although I have tasted it.

I did it two ways; using a 1" thick slice perfect sirloin and 69 cents per pound blade pot roast sliced wafer thin. Both were good.

TERIYAKI STEAK No. 1

One 1" thick slice red brand well hung sirloin steak
½ cup soy sauce
2 tbsps. granulated sugar
1 clove garlic sliced
1 small piece ginger root crushed (or ¼ tsp. ginger).

Slice the steak into ¼" thick strips across the grain. The pieces should be ¼" x 1" x 2". Combine all remaining ingredients and soak meat in them preferably for 4 hrs. but if time is short 30 min. will do. Drain. Arrange on broiler rack and broil 5" from preheated broiler burner until sizzling. Turn over and do other side. This takes 5 min. in all. Usually served with rice.

TERIYAKI STEAK No. 2
2 lbs. wafer-thin sliced blade roast (see below)
6 tbsps. soy sauce
½ tsp. meat tenderizer
4 tsps. sugar
½ tsp. garlic salt
¼ tsp. powdered ginger

With a razor-sharp knife, holding blade roast firmly in your grip shave ¼" thick small slices of lean meat from it. Discard gristle and fat. I weighed my meat after it was trimmed and sliced, but it measured 4 cups. (I used the leftover roast for Vegetable Beef Soup — see last Wednesday). Combine all remaining ingredients and marinate meat in it for 4 hrs. covered, at room temperature. Heat large heavy frying pan and lift meat from sauce into it. Over high heat keep moving meat about until all is seared and deep gold. To serve pile mounds on fluffy rice. Surprisingly good and tender.

Home Recipe Plan Takes Off Ugly Fat

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your druggists and ask for Naran. Pour the little pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day as needed and follow the Naran Reducing Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way indorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Claims Homosexuals In Every Walk of Life

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have read several letters in your column from people who despise homosexuals. What do they want from us? Would they be satisfied if we were all locked up, isolated from society? Or would they prefer that we simply be shot at sunrise?

ANN LANDERS

Why don't people realize that the only difference between homosexuals and heterosexuals is what we do behind closed doors? We don't worry about them. Why should they worry about us? My roommate and I frequently entertain mixed couples and we have many interesting friends. We are honorable people. We don't play with girls, pretending to be straight, dragging them around to parties as a cover. We believe this is cheap and dishonest.

The notion that gay boys are all limp-wristed and swishy is absurd. Many homosexual males with whom I am intimately acquainted are extremely masculine in appearance, dress and mannerisms. They work at being masculine to avoid detection.

I am acquainted with homosexuals who are successful doctors, lawyers, clergymen, politicians. They are in every walk of life. The closest queens in the professions and politics must be very circumspect, however, because they are subject to blackmail. Isn't this shameful? A year of psychiatric therapy has helped me to accept myself as I am. I now know that I don't need the friendship of anyone who views me as a freak. I hope and pray that one day all people will be judged on the basis of what they contribute to humanity and how they treat their fellow man. Wouldn't that be wonderful? — WRITTEN IN BEAUMONT, MAILED IN NEW ORLEANS.

DEAR FRIEND: Yes, it would be wonderful — and I predict that one day it will come to pass.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 17-year-old girl whose sister (age 13) is driving me nuts. The kid is the world's Mrs. Clean and it is more than I can bear. She cannot stand to see a used dish towel on the rack because it isn't neat looking — so she stuffs it in the drawer. Want a moldy dish towel? Come on over.

My mother had to make her stop vacuuming the rugs because she was wearing them out. She can use a quart of furniture polish in three days. Our silverware needs to be re-silvered because she has rubbed the plating off. Everyone in the house has to check with Sis to locate hair brushes, washcloths, even soap. She hides everything.

Almost every argument in our house can be traced to my sister's super-neatness. We are not slobs, Ann. We are a normal family, but my sister is driving us looney. What do you suggest? — OHIO SOS.

DEAR O: There's more to this than neatness. Your sister has an emotional problem. A person who has a compulsion to chase dirt and cannot stand to see a used towel on a rack is driven by a fear or a feeling of guilt. I suggest counseling.

ST. JOSEPH'S CWL

Newly elected president Mrs. A. Eves chaired St. Joseph's Catholic Women's League at the monthly meeting in the parish hall on Monday, May 10.

Committee heads reported activities in their particular areas and Mrs. Doris Charland gave a report on the Brownie and Guide Packs which are sponsored by the League. Her resume was most interesting and enlightening. It was reported the recent auction sale was a complete success.

Bazaar convener Mrs. H. Clarke announced that the date of Wednesday, Nov. 17 has been set and the theme will be "An Old Fashioned Christmas".

Mrs. E. Barrett, membership chairman, reminded members that May is membership month and asked all councillors to have their reports to her by May 21.

Immediate past president Mrs. H. Clarke was presented with a pin by Monsignor J. A. Carley.

A social hour followed.

Goldwyn Never Coached But He Had Right Idea

TORONTO (CP) — Sam Goldwyn, the old movie-maker, never coached a football team—but he had the right philosophy for the job.

It was Sam who gave the world the immortal phrase: "A verbal contract isn't worth the paper it's written on."

Sam, of course, was talking about movie stars. But the Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League have felt the same way for years about football players.

Until now, that is. Suddenly, they want nothing to do with old Sam and his philosophy.

The Eagles had a verbal contract with a strapping young quarterback named Greg Barton, who—as soon as he became a free agent—signed to play for Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League.

Toronto offered a no-cut contract to get Barton. Philadelphia has a policy against such pacts.

"We believe no-cut contracts suppress free competition," said Eagles general manager Pete Retzlaff.

And anyway, he believes that the no-cut contract Toronto offered Barton was dangled a full month before the quarterback was free to accept any such blandishments. This is a point Retzlaff promises to take up with the NFL office.

Barton, for three years, warmed the bench for Detroit Lions before they tendered him to Philadelphia in exchange for leading draft choices. The Eagles also dealt away Norm Snead, their top passer, to make room for Barton.

The Eagles must have known something was in the wind, because they laid their suspicions before the NFL office in March. The NFL office notified the CFL office who notified the Argos that, in case they had missed it, Barton was untouchable until May 1.

Barton signed with Argos on May 3.

Retzlaff said that if Barton had signed with another NFL team, "the league would have made sure we received something in return for him."

"But the Canadian league isn't governed by our constitution."

You may take that as gospel, because Retzlaff has had prior dealings with the CFL.

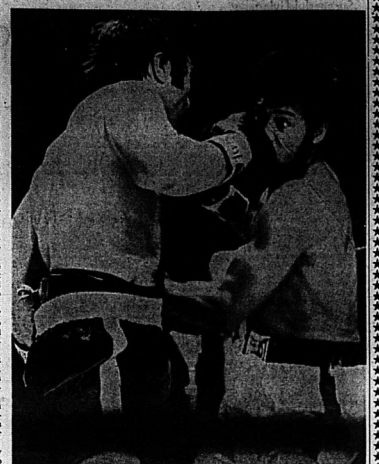
In 1969 the Eagles beckoned and Jerry Williams, with a four-year contract as coach of Calgary Stampeders in the vault, moved to Philadelphia.

"Sometimes ambitions can be disguised as obligations to a family's security and I don't doubt that the former has crept into my decision—I only hope that it has not been a dominant factor," he said at the time.

And the Stamps, who had denied him permission to talk to Philadelphia, said they had no choice but to fill his job and get on with the game.

Then there was the case of Jesse (Sonny) Wade, who went from little Emory and Henry College to be quarterback for Montreal Alouettes.

The Eagles took a run at Wade and were reprimanded.



Yet the Wade case bears striking similarity to the Barton situation.

The Eagles sent Wade a contract. He signed it. But before he could mail it, the Als dazzled him with a three-year pact.

Philadelphia isn't the only NFL club to have reached up north, of course. Halfback Bill Symons is reported to have said that during the 1969 salary dispute with the Argos he had three concrete offers from NFL teams.

But to get back to Sam Goldwyn. He had another phrase which apparently sums up the situation:

"If you can't give me your word of honor, will you give me your promise?"

Wide Open

Former World Boxing heavyweight champion Jimmy Ellis leaves himself wide open as he throws a left to the mid-section of Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo (left) during a 10-round bout in Toronto Monday night. The fight was part of a closed circuit-TV triple-header with other fights taking place in Oakland, Calif., and Chicago. Ellis won by a unanimous decision. (CP Wirephoto)

Clinic Status Changed

Hospital Psychiatric Services Will Be Reorganized

Belleville General Hospital is reorganizing its psychiatric services rather than deleting a service already in existence, a group of agency representatives were assured Thursday by BGH's psychiatric unit director, Dr. E. B. Conn.

Present at the meeting were representatives of the Mental Health Association, Hastings and Prince Edward counties health unit, board of education, hospital board, United Community Services and Family and Children's Services. Crown Attorney John Pringle spoke on behalf of the needs of the courts and law enforcement agencies.

Purpose of the meeting, said Dr. Conn, who is also the director of the Mental Health Clinic, was to "clarify any misconceptions" in the minds of those present concerning proposals he made to the hospital board March 15 and April 30 calling for "an objective review of the Mental Health Clinic with a view to discontinuing its current status as an open, public out - patient clinic".

"The confusion that apparently has existed in suggesting the phasing out of the Mental Health Clinic rests in the failure to recognize that the purpose is to reorganize our services rather than delete a service already in existence," said Dr. Conn.

At the conclusion of the meeting, representatives of several agencies pledged their support in obtaining a comprehensive mental health care program to serve the area from Brighton to just east of Napanee and north to take in all Hastings county.

The acting administrator of the hospital will inquire about department of health financial support for a full - time director; Isidore Cooperman, director of UCS will write Dr. R. T. Potter, Quinte MPP and minister without portfolio in the Ontario government to enlist his co-operation in obtaining financial backing; a committee will attempt to hire a Toronto psychiatrist said to be available for employment and the crown attorney will contact the Ontario director of psychiatric services, who, Mr. Pringle said, "seems to be the best man to get things done".

"The suggestion to close the Mental Health Clinic as it exists at present was on the basis of two main factors," said Dr. Conn, "the unavailability of staff and the need to develop other services.

"Once the concept of the Mental Health Clinic as a public clinic, to cover an unlimited area open to referrals from all sources could be phased out, it was then my proposal to concentrate the out-patient services to agencies or members of the medical profession who would first provide a screening of patients referred for out-patient services," the director said in the brief he read to the assembled agency representatives.

"The provision of a directorship over both out-patient and in-patient services would allow for the future development of these services in a balanced fashion," his brief continued.

At the April 30 meeting of the hospital board, Dr. Conn said he would be pleased to assume such a directorship.

At Thursday's meeting, Dr. Conn repeated statements he had made at the April 30 hospital board meeting about the difficulty of attracting psychiatrists to serve in a mental health clinic. He said psychiatrists preferred to remain at university centres, that their case-load was lighter in such centres than "out in community practice" and they preferred to combine private practice with part-time clinical service.

The budget of the Mental Health Clinic could be retained, he said, and would provide money for both in-patient and out-patient treatment through the acquisition of more staff.

Dr. Conn said he envisioned the development of mental health care teams that would move out into the community; for instance go to the courthouse to conduct interviews instead of bringing patients to the mental health clinic. He said there is need for reservation of a few beds at the hospital to treat crisis situations and disturbed children and young adolescents.

Mr. Cooperman questioned the psychiatrist closely on whether his brief represented his personal feelings or official policy of the hospital board.

After assuring himself that the position was official, Mr. Cooperman said commitment, communication and co - ordination of services were essential.

What about the fourth C - - - cash?" asked Mr. Pringle.

One of the chief problems in providing comprehensive out - patient and in - patient psychiatric care for the community, it developed, was the low salaries approved by the Ontario Hospital Services Commission for psychologists and social workers.

The top salary approved for a person with a master of social work degree is $9,800. In other agencies the same person can demand a top salary of $15,000, the group was told.

"It has always been a mystery to me why OHSC won't pay," remarked Dr. Conn.

Peter Nicholas of the Family and Children's Services asked why "some public fuss has not been made" over the OHSC pay schedule.

"If we want the province of Ontario to act, go after our member — after all we have him in the cabinet," remarked Mr. Pringle.

Waste Disposal Marmora Problem

MARMORA (Special) — Marmora's waste disposal problems have been dumped on a joint property committee comprised of members from the village and township councils.

The two councils were told at a meeting that the present site probably would not meet with stringent regulaions even if $800 were spent for a land survey and $1,250 were spent on an engineering assessment.

It was recommended that the site be open one day during the week and one day on the weekend, with an attendant present, and locked at all other times. The only safe way of avoiding dumping of refuse along roads during the time the dump is closed is to charge offenders to the full extent of the law, council was told.

Township council agreed to consider some sharing of the operating costs of the area.

It operated at a deficit of $615 and was billed $1,400 for insurance, $275 for engineering fees and $200 for snow removal from the roof.

Council will utilize the parks grant to begin work on the Madoc St. approach to the park and the car parking facilities. Trees will be selected and planted as soon as possible and fill from the water extension program will be used to build up the northern shoreline of the park.

Trees on village streets will be trimmed this year under the provincial - municipal employment incentive program, using Marmora's $1,015 share of available money.

The money will be used to hire three unemployed men for 21 days each at the rate of $2 an hour.

Consecon Wells Fail Tests

AMELIASBURG — Contaminated drinking water from wells in the village of Consecon is causing concern among authorities of the Ontario Water Resources Commission and the County health unit . . a letter received by council indicated.

The OWRC, reporting the results of a survey of 46 private wells in the community, with a population of 300, pointed out tests of more than half of the samples taken were not satisfactory. The report noted, however, part of the contamination was likely due to surface water leaking in from faulty well covers.

The seriousness of the situation is outlined in a notice going out from the health unit at Picton to all persons in the village with wells that failed to meet government standards. The warning includes the suggestion well water is not to be used for drinking unless it is treated (chlorinated) or boiled for a minimum of five minutes.

Harried Heifer Brings $150

CANNIFTON (Staff) — Restitution of $150 for a two-year-old heifer owned by Mrs. Sandra Bennett of RR 1, Plainfield, was granted by Thurlow Township Council Wednesday after application was made for damages.

Mrs. Bennett told council her heifer had wintered in the bush, with feed transported by snowmobile. The animal's body was discovered in a nearby swamp and tracks pointed to several dogs.

"We know there were dogs chasing her . . . she was a bit of a wild thing," said Mrs. Bennett.

"You could see where she lunged off her trail and there were tracks in the bush."

The owner told council tracks didn't point to a whole pack involved in the chase; however, it looked like two dogs had chased her into the swamp.

Council voted to make restitution of $150, the second such award made in two years. In 1970, Thurlow Township paid more than $1,200 in livestock damages. Most of the destruction is centered around sheep.

With the warmer weather, council expects more dogs will be let loose.

In an attempt to curb destruction of animals, council anticipates levy of charges and fines against violators of present bylaws which stipulate offences for dogs running at large. If necessary, more specific amendments will be adopted to control offenders.

To date, only 460 dog tags have been sold as compared to a year-end 1970 total of 825. Expiry date for sale of tags without penalty was March 31.

Quinte Officials To Be Prominent At LORDC Meet

Quinte area municipal officials and others will be taking a prominent part in panel discussions at the 15th anniversary conference of the Lake Ontario Regional Development Council to be held at the Rock Haven Motor Hotel in Peterborough, May 19 and 20.

Regional government will be one of the main topics of discussion at the conference with Carl E. Bateman, Clerk-Administrator for Hastings County to act as chairman for a panel on County Council's Role in a Future Regional Government. Alderman Mrs. Robin Jeffrey will be one of the panelists.

Belleville Alderman Jack Ireland will be chairman at the warden's luncheon on the opening day of the conference.

Donald Rodgers, ex-reeve of Stirling will be chairman of a panel discussion on the effect of the Toronto - Centred plan on the LORDC region with Ray M. Michel of Loyalist college as one of the panelists.

William Duggan, industrial commissioner for Prince Edward county will be panelist in an industrial development discussion; George Ellsworth, manager, Highlands of Hastings Regional Tourist Information Council, will be panel member for a discussion on whether tourism is an industry, and Walter H. J. Maloney will be panelist for a discussion on Education — How Far Should We Go?

Quinte riding member Hon. Dr. R. T. Potter will be the speaker at the noon luncheon on the second day of the conference.

In reply to a question from Mr. Pringle, Dr. Conn said three psychiatrists are needed now in this area to provide proper in-patient and out - patient mental health care.

A full - time psychiatrist working in a clinic would command a salary of $23,000 a year, the group was told. But Dr. Conn said the hospital doesn't need a full-time salaried psychiatrist. The main appeal for psychiatrists is a position in which they are attached to a clinic part - time and are free to take private patients as well.

George Wilson of the Mental Health Association, M. A. Godin, psychologist with the Hastings county board of education and Mr. Cooperman all said they have received applications from social workers and psychologists for positions with their agencies. They suggested greater co-operation among the agencies in referring these people to possible employment in the hospital's psychiatric department.

Mr. Nicholas said there is a gap in community services apparent to his agency in the parent - child conflict area.

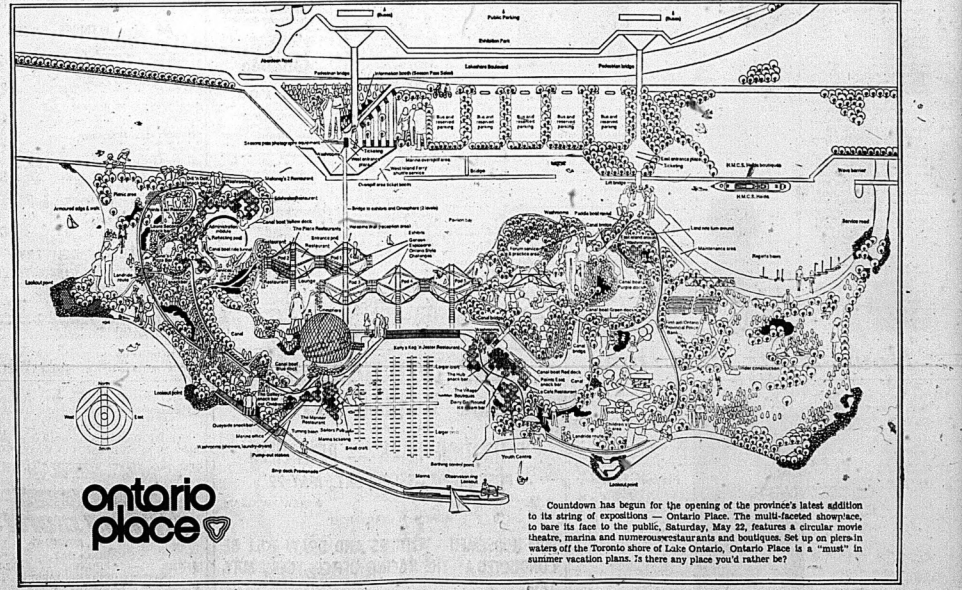
"Under the Child Welfare Act we at Family and Children's Services are concerned with those who neglect their children," he said. "But many parent - child problems don't involve neglect. Perhaps we need a private family agency to service these cases."

Mr. Pringle noted that the courts are concerned with "persons out of custody" who require continuing psychiatric treatment, don't have family doctors, but who must have a family doctor's referral before they can be seen at the local Mental Health Clinic.

"We should come together to co-ordinate our work, not just when we see red," said Mr. Cooperman toward the end of the meeting. He said the question for the agencies represented was how they could help set up a better and more comprehensive mental health care plan for the community and unite in helping to attract necessary staff.

The group will meet again in a month to review progress.

Students Study Local Geology



TWEED — Geology students from Brock University and the University of Toronto, have arrived in Tweed as previously planned, and are at present making a study of rock and land formations along the Clare River, and Otter Creek.

Evening courses are being conducted at the Tweed Hungerford Senior School.

Professor F. A. Peach of Brock University states that the students were finding the ground very wet for this time of year, and that the high water was preventing them from working along the swamp lands.

The Maxinaw Lake Outdoor Education Centre will shortly welcome the first group of about 35 students from the Lord Beaudown Public School, Toronto.

Students from Belleville and Ottawa are also planning to visit the Centre during the next two months, while a group of 14 students from Cloyne have already made use of the centre's facilities for teaching history and nature studies, as well as outdoor recreation.

Countdown has begun for the opening of the province's latest addition to its string of expositions — Ontario Place. The multi-faceted showplace, to bare its face to the public, Saturday, May 22, features a circular movie theatre, marina and numerous restaurants and boutiques. Set up on piers in waters off the Toronto shore of Lake Ontario, Ontario Place is a "must" in summer vacation plans. Is there any place you'd rather be?

Baby Hawks Default

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quebec Remparts are Eastern Canada's junior hockey champions because St. Catharines Black Hawks won't play any more.

The Remparts are expected to play a best-of-three series with Edmonton Oil Kings to decide the winner of the Memorial Cup, long the emblem of junior hockey supremacy in Canada.

Quebec and St. Catharines had been playing for the Richardson Cup, a new emblem representing the eastern junior championship. Until the latest hassle, it had looked as though there would be no east-west playoff this year for the Memorial Cup.

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, with president Earl Dawson doing the talking, declared the Remparts of the Quebec Junior League the eastern champions Thursday night. The move followed an official notice from St. Catharines of the Ontario Hockey Association circuit series that their Black Hawks would not go back to Quebec City for the sixth game of the eastern final.

Dawson said president Fred Muller of the St. Catharines club wanted the sixth game played in Montreal because it would bring a bigger gate.

The Remparts led the best-of-seven final 3-2 when the off-ice development ended the series.

St. Catharines players were given a rough time by debris-throwing Quebec City fans as they left the rink there after the fourth game of the series last Saturday. Head office attacks they refused to return to Quebec City and foreteited the playoff round.

Dawson said in Winnipeg Thursday the Remparts would play a three-game series with the Western Canada Hockey League champion Edmonton Oil Kings for the Memorial Cup.

He said the series, to be played in Quebec, still required approval of the CAHA board of directors. The directors would vote on the matter by telegram, likely today.

Dawson said he received a telephone call from St. Catharines Thursday night and expected to get a telegram confirming their refusal to continue the Eastern series.

"I got a phone call at home from the St. Catharines officials and they are not going back."

He said the "official story I got is that the St. Catharines players held vote this afternoon and the reason the five players were the only ones that signified they would return."

Fred Muller, Hawks president, said in St. Catharines that he too would have gone back to Quebec but the club players and their parents refused to go.

After Wednesday's fifth game at Toronto in which the Hawks beat the Remparts 6-3 to force the sixth game, Muller said that he and Hawks centre Marcel Dionne had received threatening phone calls from Quebec.

The Hawks Thursday still offered to play the sixth game in Montreal and Dawson accused Muller of being interested only in the money that would come from a bigger gate at Montreal.

Dawson said there were valid complaints about some games played in St. Catharines that Muller didn't mention.

Hawks Nearly Home-free

CHICAGO (CP) — Coach Billy Reay hopes his Chicago Black Hawks will erase the "homer!" stigma that has surrounded this spring's Stanley Cup final round when his team visits Montreal Sunday.

The Hawks put themselves in the driver's seat Thursday night as they shut out the over-anxious Canadiens 2-0 to take a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven National Hockey League final. Each team has scored its wins on home ice.

The Chicago victory came on the strength of a first-period power-play goal by left-winger Dennis Hull, a second period insurance goal by right-winger Cliff Koroll, and a fine goaltending performance by Tony Esposito.

A victory in Sunday's sixth game, scheduled for a 2:05 p.m. EDT start, would give the Black Hawks their first Stanley Cup since 1961.

"I said before this series started that it would go six or seven games," an exhausted Reay said. "Now I say it will go at least six," he added, with a grin.

"All I know is it is rough playing hockey in this warm weather," he added.

Asked if he could spell out the difference in Thursday night's win as compared to Tuesday night's 5-2 loss in Montreal, Reay said:

"The difference in the two games? I can't say. I'm not allowed to say."

Reay had been critical of the officiating after the Tuesday loss.

"All I can say is that everybody gave 100 per cent tonight," he said. "It was just a great team effort."

A hooking penalty to Montreal's Henri Richard at 10:23 of the first period paved the way for the Dennis Hull goal.

Thirty two seconds after Richard left the ice, Hull converted Koroll's goal-mouth pass behind Ken Dryden in the Montreal net.

Koroll's second-period goal came after Stan Mikita relayed the puck to Dennis Hull and the big winger fired a hard drive at Dryden. The rebound came right off the Montreal goalie, hit a skate and onto Koroll's stick.

The Canadiens wound up with a 31-22 margin in shots-on goal, but it was Dryden who was forced to make the more difficult stops.

CLIFF KOROLL

Esposito, whose shutout was his second of this season's playoffs, said that the only shot he could remember after the game came from the stick of little Yvan Cournoyer. He said he recalled that one only because it struck him on his masked face.

Unlike last Tuesday night's game in Montreal, which closed on a sour note with a series of misconduct and major penalties, the 2-0 victory by the Hawks was marked by only one fight.

That was between Chicago's Danny O'Shea and Montreal's Phil Roberto and was a carryover from Tuesday night when the pair drew majors in Montreal.

O'Shea won this one at 16:50 of the third period. He said he had been a bit fresher than for the earlier engagement and was merely getting back at Roberto for "trying to humiliate me in Montreal."

MacNeil said that while each team has won all the games it has played on its home ice, the Canadiens had defeated Boston Bruins in the seven-game quarter final by winning two games, including the all-important seventh game, at Boston Gardens.

He said he can see no reason why the Canadiens can not repeat against Chicago.

The seventh game, if necessary, will be played here next Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. EDT.

"They played a good defensive game," MacNeil said of the Hawks. "They kept their five men together in a tight pattern, while our guys were spread out too much.

"We let their defence stay up on us."

Dryden said the first goal by Dennis Hull had popped up and bounced into the net behind him before he could smother it. He had managed to get his arm in the way of the drive.

"There's no way we won't come back here for a seventh game," the rookie Montreal goalie said. "It doesn't matter that we haven't beaten them on their ice and I don't think where you play makes any difference whatsoever."

Bobby Hull, Chicago's great left winger, turned in a tremendous game despite another shadow job by young Rejean Houle.

Hull and his team-mates managed to hand the 163-pound Houle some crushing checks.

The Hull-Houle conflict finally caught the eye of referee bill Friday in the third period. The Montrealer was given a minor penalty for holding, and Hull the same treatment for a well-placed elbow to dislodge the tenacious Houle.

Friday had a quiet night apart from the O'Shea-Roberto duel. He called 13 minors—seven to the winners.

Richard Sounds Off

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette quotes Montreal Canadiens' centre Henri Richard as saying that coach Al MacNeil is "the worst coach I ever played for . . . an incompetent coach."

The newspaper says Richard made the comment to some French language sports-writers from Montreal after seeing only limited action in the third period of Thursday night's 2-0 loss to Chicago Black Hawks in Chicago.

The Black Hawks lead the best-of-seven final series three games to two.

The Gazette also quotes the 16-year veteran with the Canadiens as saying "I always gave 100 per cent. I never loafed and I don't deserve to be benched. I'm paid to play."

"He had three set lines when we won Tuesday night. What gives him the right to change it all for a bout time. Is someone says what everyone on the team is thinking. How can you expect us to win like this?"

Bowman To Seals?

CHICAGO (CP) — Charles O. Finley, owner of California Golden Seals of the National Hockey League, said Thursday he still has not decided who will be general manager of his club next season.

Reports from Boston and San Francisco Wednesday indicated that Garry Young, chief scout for the Bruins the last six years, had virtually clinched the job.

But in the background was Scotty Bowman, recently-departed general manager and coach of St. Louis Blues.

Bowman was here along with Cliff Fletcher, former chief scout with the St. Louis club during Bowman's tenure. The pair were here for Thursday night's Ish Stanley Cup contest between Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks.

Quebec Yells 'Foul'

CHICOUTIMI, Que (CP) — Jean-Paul Collard, president of the local Quebec amateur Hockey Association branch, says ineligible players participated in a national junior hockey tournament at the Canada Winter Games in Saskatoon fast winter.

Mr. Collard told directors of the Saguenay-Lac St. Jean regional junior league Wednesday night that Earl Dawson, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, "told me that the clubs had lined up players of 21 and 22 years of age."

"There is also the fact," Mr. Collard continued, "that certain provinces were represented by all-star clubs while Quebec, Ontario and eastern British Columbia were represented by the club champion in its class."

Howe Hints He's Done

TORONTO (CP) — Detroit his 20th season with the Red Red Wings superstar Gordie Howe says he may have played his last National Hockey League contest because of a recurrent wrist problem that seems to be getting worse.

The 43-year veteran, here Wednesday on a business trip, said in an interview he won't make up his mind about next year until he knows what condition he will be in for training camp next fall.

Will he retire?

"Maybe," said Howe, holding up a left wrist swollen with arthritis and so painful that sometimes he can't even pick up a cup of coffee, "It's all up to this."

The 43 - year - old right winger has already signed for team is anxious to know his Wings. He said he knows the plans before going into next month's hockey meetings in Montreal.

If Howe isn't going to play, the Wings probably won't bother protecting him in the draft, leaving room for one more draft choice on their roster.

Grade 12 Centennial Secondary School student Ron Richardson captured his second consecutive victory in the Bill Vermilyea road race yesterday with a record setting time of 15:02. A total of 109 students from the Belleville high school took part in the annual harrier competition, which has been held for the past three years.

Encore Effort By Richardson

The annual Bill Vermilyea road race proved to be even easier the second time around for Centennial Secondary School's Ron Richardson.

The grade 12 competitor covered the distance in a record setting time of 15.01 minutes for his second consecutive victory in the Centennial School's harrier competition.

Richardson had held the previous record for the three-mile distance with a clocking of 15:55 last season, the second time that the race had been held. A victory next year would give him a special plaque from former star distance runner Bill Vermilyea who donated the trophy.

Phys. ed. instructor Peter Mewett finished second in the field of 109 runners, while Philip Ancherll took third place.

The fourth spot went to grade ten runner Ron Brown, while Wayne Clapp was the first grade nine student to cross the line, with a fifth place finish.

The top girl in the event was Peggy Sulkevicius, while Johanna Flipson held second place.

Commercial Loss Could Be Industrial Gain

The Industrial Softball League appears to be on the upswing for the 1971 season.

"With the Commercial League having only five teams we've added some good ball-players," noted league secretary Garnet Bird. "we're trying to organize things so that we have a first rate league. We'll be playing some games at the Alemite, we've erased the debts incurred last year and there'll be a number of trophies presented to the top teams and players at the end of the season."

The list of 18 league entries have been finalized with Post Office, Union Carbide, Fire Department, Delora Stellite, Morch Manufacturing, AOCO, Unemployment Insurance Commission, Mead Johnson, Intelligencer and one CNR team returning from last season.

Now entries will include Brooke - Bond Foods and V. L. Card Construction.

In addition to the regular 22-game schedule, a pair of exhibition games with the Belleville Umpires Association have been arranged.

Regular league games will be played from Monday to Friday on the Prince Charles, CNRA and Prince of Wales diamonds, with one Monday night game each week being played at the Alemite park.

The top eight teams will be eligible for the playoffs which begin August 11th.

Doubleheaders Shared

Commercial Softball League fans will get a chance to view two - and - a - half doubleheaders a week this season.

The half - doubleheader will occur on Monday nights when a 6.30 p.m. Industrial League contest will precede the regular Commercial contest. Regular doubleheaders are slated for Tuesdays and Thursdays with the first game to get under way at 7 p.m.

The opening day games will pit the defending champion Ellis Juniors against Point Anne, preceded by a 7 p.m. contest between Rollins Construction and Howard and Robert Printing. Quinte Hotel will be the only team idle for the league opener.

The top four teams after completion of the 24-game schedule will be eligible for the playoffs, which will consist of two seven-game series.

One Night Added For County Softball

AMELIASBURG — Interest in organized softball is on the increase in Prince Edward County with the South Shore League preparing for expansion from a four to six-team operation.

Last year the league established headquarters in the Lonnaby's Corners area with Roblin's Lake playing doubleheaders two nights a week — Mondays and Thursdays.

In the expansion set - up the plans are for the league to decide on a third night in the week to work into a 30-game schedule.

Last year entries in the league represented the centres of Belleville, Wellington, Mountain View and Albury. So far Roasmore has indicated an interest if the six - club idea is put into effect.

League officials Ron Woods, president, Elgin Wyatt, vice-president and John Alison, secretary - treasurer received the assurance from Township of their undertaking would be given all possible co-operation. Members of council sit on the various boards which administrate facilities utilized by the softball league.

At the present time league officials seek to have a request for renovations and additions to their playing field approved. They asked for a homerun fence erected as a player safety improvement, a new scoreboard, a top over the backstop to safeguard fans in the stands against wild pitches and a resurfacing of—paint to finish the job of re-painting the bleachers started last year.

Safe!

Belleville and District umpires Al Kelleher, Maurice Huddleston and Mike Whalen will all be taking part in a clinic Sunday to be conducted for current and prospective members of the officiating ranks. The local umpiring body is comprised of about 20 members and requires a few additions to their ranks in order to handle the Commercial, Industrial and Thurlow-Sidney softball leagues, and South Hastings baseball contests which the association has contracted to work. Sunday's clinic will get under way at 9:30 a.m. at the Recreation Centre and will wind up at 1:45 p.m.

Trenton Lacks One Ingredient

The Quinte Junior Lacrosse league has been assured the services of a referee - in - chief and a league statistician, both from Trenton. Now all that remains to be seen is if there'll be a team forthcoming from the same town.

There's reasonable doubt right now whether or not there will be a Trenton entry in the league," stated Belleville manager Roy Payne. "they didn't send anyone to the meeting in Campbellford last night and no one seems to know who is supposed to be running their team."

The league did manage to gain the services of Peter Clearey as head of the officials and Bill Huffman as league statistician.

Definite entries will be fielded from Picton, Cobourg Campbellford, Tweed and Belleville, whose first regular season game will be Monday, May 31st. when they play at home to the defending champions from Campbellford.

The locals next exhibition test will come Monday night when they meet Cobourg in an 8.30 contest at the Belleville Memorial Arena.

Quinte Breaks Lacrosse Ice

Quinte Secondary School came up with their initial victory of the high school lacrosse league season last night by edging BCI 7-6.

The victory gave Quinte a record of 1-2-1, while the Collegians have managed only a tie in four starts. The battle for first place continued hot and heavy as North Addington and Moira battled to an 8-8 deadlock to leave them with identical 2-0-2 records.

Kerry Reid's third goal of the game proved to be the winner for Quinte after the two teams had been tied 4-4 after two periods. Steve McDowell, Barry Culkin and Terry Meagher counted the other Quinte goals, while Tom Helm added two assists.

Mike Scarlett was the individual BCI standout netting four goals, while Rob Richardson and Sandy Cunningham tallied a goal apiece. The losers were hit with 14 of the game's 24 penalties.

Names of the scorers in the Moira - North Addington contest were not available.

Squirts Sought

"Squirts" are being sought to join the mainstream of city softball.

Coach Jim Campbell has scheduled an open practice April 19 and 11-year-olds interested in trying out for Belleville's squirt entry in the Ontario Amateur Softball Association playdowns.

First practice will be held Monday, 6 p.m. at Queen Victoria School. For further information, contact Jim Campbell at 968-6332.

Fairway Feuds Sunday?

There may be a few family quarrels started on the Bay of Quinte Country Club's fairways Sunday.

The occasion is the first tournament on the club's 1971 fixture card, a mixed two-ball competition.

There are already 40 pairs signed up for the event, in which male and female partners alternate shots on one ball.

Post entries are being accepted for the tourney, which tees off at 9.30 Sunday. Dinner and prize presentation will follow in the clubhouse.

The Original Knight SOLUNAR TABLES When To Fish Or Hunt

The schedule of Solunar Periods, as printed below, has been taken from Mrs. Richard Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your day so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The Minor Periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

Use Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

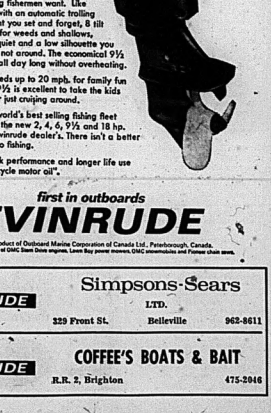
British Find Fishing Twice as Fascinating As Soccer Games

LONDON (CP) — Far from the tumult of the frenzied soccer and rugby stadiums, Britain's most popular participant sport has cast off for another season of skill, concentration and placidity.

Fishing addiction is spreading, especially among young enthusiasts. A survey shows that 2.9 million British anglers reeled out their lines in the 1968-69 season—one-third of them were under 24 years old.

Saturday appears to be fishing day, according to the survey, started in 1968 by the National Anglers' Council. On average, a million anglers don their waders for the day—double the number of spectators who turn out for soccer on a Saturday afternoon.

With all the tackle to be bought, opening a fishing shop here is a sure way of hooking a big one financially. Britain's fishermen spend £250 million on their gear during a normal season, the survey reports.



Trends and growth areas are reflected in the report, which took three years to compile. It predicts that by the year 2000 sea angling—hunting big fish like sharks and congers from small boats in offshore waters—"could become the dominant branch of the sport.

With more enthusiasts able to afford the higher costs of this type of fishing, the thrills of the big-time fisherman are beginning to outweigh the more intricate if less-exciting river angling.

Currently, 47 per cent of the country's anglers go in for sea fishing. Fresh-water coarse fishing, with 67 per cent of the sport's following—many chase more than one type—is on the way out. This kind of angling, essentially for fish like carp and roach, is suffering from neglect by river authorities and owners of river areas.

The fish are too few or too small in some waters, anglers complain.

Epstein Loses Shock, Regains Sock

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The shock is gone and the sock is back for big Mike Epstein, newest productive man for the potent Oakland Athletics.

Epstein, who was jolted last weekend when Washington Senators traded him to Oakland, drove in his first two runs for the Athletics Thursday night as they whipped Kansas City Royals 6-3 behind the six-hit pitching of Jim (Catfish) Hunter.

In the day's only other major league action, New York Yankees shaded Milwaukee Brewers, 4-3 in 10 innings for the fifth straight victory.

Epstein, dealt to the Athletics along with relief pitcher Darold Knowles six days ago, changed uniforms reluctantly. He had looked forward to a trade—and the opportunity to play every day—in the past, but when the trade came he was playing regularly for Washington.

But he has made a rapid adjustment. After going 0-for-4 in his first start for the Athletics last Sunday at Baltimore, the broad-shouldered first baseman has pounded out seven hits in 14 at-bats, hiking his season average to .272.

His lone hit Thursday night was a two-run single that keyed Oakland's five-run flurry in the fifth inning, enabling Hunter to breeze to his sixth consecutive victory after a pair of early losses.

The Athletics, who have won five of their last six starts, lead the American League West by 5½ games.

"If we keep going like we are now, I know we can go all the way," said Hunter, unbeaten since April 11. He gave up two unearned runs in the fourth inning and then finished strong.

Horace Clarke drilled his second triple of the game with one out in the 10th at Milwaukee and scored the tie-breaking run on Jake Gibbs' double down the first base line.

The Brewers had tied it on Al Yates' run-scoring single in the ninth.

Bobby Murcer stroked a single and a two-run homer for the Yankees, boosting his batting mark to .349-second highest in the league.

Hogan Takes A Nine!

HOUSTON (AP) — Ben Hogan threw a club and took a nine on a par-three hole Thursday.

Then, distraught, he withdrew after 12 holes at 11 over par. And a golf legend quivered.

"I've been watching this man play for 30 years," said one grey-haired spectator behind the fourth green of the Champions Club.

"This is the first time I ever saw him throw a club."

It was a gesture of dismay and futility and it came after Hogan had dumped the first of three shots into the Cypress Creek bayou fronting the dogleg 228-yard hole.

Hogan saw his latest comeback attempt collapse early in the first round of the $125,000 Houston Champions International golf tournament, one of his few appearances since he went into semi-retirement.

At the par-three fourth hole, already down two shots to par, Hogan characteristically cut his shot thin in an attempt to get close to the pin.

The ball landed in a thicket on the embankment. An official motioned to the tee that the ball was playable. Hogan walked stiff-legged to the green and climbed down among the bushes.

He decided the ball was unplayable.

He went back to the tee to hit his third shot, with a one-stroke penalty, while the following threesome—George Archer, Ray Floyd and John Miller—played through.

Hogan hit another shot. Arain It landed in the marshes. Then another. It also dropped into the Man's Land—three shots each with a penalty, counting six. Hogan finally flew his fourth attempt onto the green, about 20 feet away, and two-putted for a nine.

"I'm sorry, fellows, was Hogan's only comment to his playing companions. Masters champion Charles Coody and Dick Lotz, as they went to the fifth tee.

Sport Briefs

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts announced Thursday the signing of two running backs and a flanker.

Leon McQuay, who broke virtually every school rushing record as a junior last season at the University of Tampa was reported to have come to terms with the Canadian Football League club. This was later denied by a Tampa official.

Halfback Dave Cranmer and flanker Mike Eben, both Canadians who played in the Western Football Conference last season, were the other players signed.

Cranmer, traded to the Argos by Calgary Stampeders, ranked 11th in the WFC in both rushing and pass-receiving last season, scoring six touchdowns.

Eben, dealt to Edmonton Eskimos last season, returned to Toronto when the teams failed to agree on the identity of a player who was to have come to the Argonauts in exchange. He caught 48 passes for 733 yards for the Eskimos, scoring six touchdowns.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The weather and the resulting condition of the Pimlico racing surface is, of more concern to the trainers of Saturday's Preakness entries than the post positions.

After the bumping, crowding and blocking in the 20-horse cavalry charge known as the Kentucky Derby, the draw Thursday to determine the starting gate line-up for the Preakness was strictly ho-hum.

The 1 3-16-mile Preakness will have only 11 starters, so no traffic jams are expected.

Instead, with Pimlico being pelted by rain several days during the past week, including a downpour Thursday, the talk turned to the condition of the racing strip.

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — Gustav Thoeni of Italy, the World Cup Alpine ski champion, and 26 other starts from countries including Canada, are "all out" of the 1972 Winter Olympics in Sapporo, Japan, so far as Avery Brundage is concerned.

Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, said in Vienna recently that he had a "black list" of 50 skiers who allegedly received payments, in violation of IOC rules, for promoting ski products.

The two Canadians named by Brundage are Peter Duncan of Mont Tremblant, Que., and Rod Hobron of Vancouver. However, neither now is a member of Canada's Olympic team.

OTTAWA (CP) — A matter of jurisdiction held the attention of amateur hockey representatives for a good part of Thursday.

At a meeting with Gordon Juckes, secretary manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, president Marcel Robert of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association sought jurisdiction over Quebec players now under the Northern Ontario Association and the Ottawa District Association, both of which fall under the general control of the Ontario Hockey Association.

Both the Ontario associations overlap into Quebec and Robert asked CAHA permission to bring them back under the QAHA.

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — Jockey Sandy Hawley won two races at Fort Erie racetrack Thursday, but only one will count.

Hawley won the first race aboard Blue Stitch, but was disqualified for interference in the early stretch and placed second. Victory went to Tumble Tom.

Hawley came back in the seventh race to win with Early Victory.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Failure of Windsor Raceway employees and management to reach a contract agreement has resulted in the cancellation of tonight's opening of thoroughbred racing and Saturday's events.

The dispute also threatens to end the entire summer racing program, William Rowe, president of Windsor Raceway, said Thursday.

The raceway employees, members of Local 639, Service Employees International Union, gave overwhelming support to their executive for its stand in the dispute at a meeting Wednesday night.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Whites District

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mr. and Mrs. George Bilham made an overseas call to his 93 year- old mother for the first time on Saturday evening. His mother and family live in Leeds, England. With her at the time of the call were eight members of the family — sisters, a brother-in-law, a niece and nephew. Mr. Bilham's mother who celebrated her 92nd birthday on May 13 sang a bit of a song she had written herself.

Bible study was held at the home of Mrs. J. Palmer on Wednesday with a good attendance of members and three visitors.

Eight children were baptized at a christening service held at the Westminster Upper Church on Sunday with Rev. John Bunner officiating. He gave a message on adopted children for mother's day.

Eldorado

ELDORADO — Mrs. Lizzie Wasmund of Stouffville spent a few days with Mrs. C. D. McCann.

A number of people from the community attended the country style supper sponsored by the Anglican church in Bannockburn on Wednesday evening.

Miss Ann Boyle was presented with many gifts at a bridal shower held in her honor by the community on Saturday evening.

The local Hi-C club held a parents' night at the Queensboro United Church on Sunday evening.

Ask 100 people what is essential for physical fitness and perhaps 99 will say, "Exercise." We have been bombarded so much in the news about the need to jog, push-up, sit-up, walk, take up calisthenics, play tenffis, golf — that some of us feel guilty when caught sitting down.

Yet there is another side to the fitness problem. And that is relaxation. Too often this need is overlooked. Here is a note from the one out of 100 who does not think exercise is the only essential need for fitness.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Don't get me wrong. I'm not a physical exercise phobia. I take walks, play 18 holes of golf a week and go bowling with my family. So you see I'm not just a lazy cuss who hangs around sitting down most of the time.

But I believe there is another side to fitness and that is relaxation. I think this is often overlooked. You should keep stressing its importance L. your column.

Although I exercise moderately, I also know how to take it easy every day. I take a one-hour nap every afternoon. I make sure to get at least eight hours sleep (which I personally need) every night. And I take several short vacations throughout the year instead of long ones which bore me.

Don't you think that this balance between exercise and relaxation makes much more sense than just "keep moving" all the time? — Mr. U.

• • •

Comment: You know my answer,. I'm sure. I have the reputation for being against all exercise. I'm not. I'm in favor of moderate exertion for those who crave lo be on the move — or think it's good for their health. But I'm also in favor of periods of relaxation for fitness.

You have mentioned three important areas: naps, a good night's sleep and frequent vacations. There are others. Physical and mental fitness require these periods of physical and mental rest.

The other day I passed by one of two law partners and he was lying in his backyard hammock lazily reading a book. His partner, at least 50 pounds overweight, was cavorting around a tennis court. He played with a cigarette butt dangling from his lips.

By watching his dedicated expression, you knew that he was asking for an "A" in his search for physical fitness. If I were grading his way of life, I'd flunk him and pass his part ner who was lying quietly in the hammock. In this case, the odds were that the lazy man would outlive his overactive partner who also overeats and oversmokes.

As I said, moderate exercise is all right, but there are other requirements for fitness. Relaxation is one of the most important.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Why are you doctors too stubborn to prescribe bone meal for osteoporosis? It works! Takes awhile but does the job. Bone meal vitamin tablets cured my osteoporosis. I'm 76 and have better bones than I had 15 years ago. —Mr. J.

Comment: Not stubborn. We just don't believe that we have yet found a specific cure for osteoplrosis — a condition sometimes occuring later in life, when bones become soft and brittle. Although vitamins may help, it makes better sense to be under the care of a physician once the diagnosis of osteoporosis has been made. There will be less chance of deformity or other complications.

• • •

For Mr. T.: "Triorchid" is a birth deformity in which there are three testicles.

Need Relaxation So as to Be Fit

Sydney J. Harris Says

Spokesmen Aim to Cover Up

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the many specialty magazines I read regularly, in the relentless quest for column material, is Air Line Pilot. In its pages, a layman learns an awful lot about airlines, and airline people generally that the daily press oversimplifies or distorts avilation stories.

Some of this is simple ignorance or haste, Buckhorn admits: a reporter may confuse a precautionary landing with an emergency landing, or a flight recorder with a cockpit voice recorder. The trade press, on the other hand, rarely makes such mistakes.

But Buckhorn, a recognized and respected expert in the field, charges that a great deal of the over-simplification of the media "spring[s] from the industry's inability to communicate". The special jargon of aviation is sometimes aimed at preciseness; just as often, it may be aimed at obscuring the facts behind a lot of fancy verbiage.

As an example, he cites: "The cause of the crash was the pilot's failure to maintain sufficient altitude to avoid neighboring terrain." Translation: "The plane flew into the side of a hill." Or this classic bit of official gobbledygook: "The pilot's apparently unrecognized descent to an altitude below that of the airport."

The FAA doesn't speak of parachutes, but of aerodynamic personnel decelerators Engines don't fail -off; they always detach t h e m selves from airplanes that never crash, but only make uncontrolled descents into t h e ground.

If an oversimplification, or even an outright error of fact, appears in a story, Buckhorn asserts, it is not deliberate, "but it could be the result of some pompous, controlling, and unnecessarily complicated pronouncement by an airline lawyer, economist or engineer."

And what is true here is equally true in dozens of other fields. Most groups are interested in covering up their mistakes or ineptitudes, to save their reputations or to guard against lawsuits. The people they hire as their spokesmen to deal with the media are primarily concerned with making the group look good, and not with the plain facts.

The mass media oversimplify because the special interests overcomplicate and obfuscate the issues with legal and technical terminology. When the parachute fails, they want to blame it on the weather.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For May 15

Your birthday today: Most of the year ahead runs smoothly along established lines, then in the last month or two builds into an active challenging pattern. What you learn during the first 10 months prepares you for the rest of the year. The women born today are quick and are keenly intuitive, poetic, lively. The men tend more to personal study and less outgoing behavior. All develop their own elaborate theories.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your money has wings and will migrate on any excuse at all. It is about time you reviewed your budget and spending habits anyway.

TAURUS (Aug. 20—May 20): Tension rises as emotional ties come to a moment of crisis and you resolve a long-standing, unspoken question. Let people be themselves, listen rather than overquestion.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Catch up on notes, memos, belated correspondence. Details come in quickly and have to be attended at once. By evening the main issues are ready for major decision.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Everybody has a suggestion or hint about what you should do next. Intuition is the best guide for your own welfare.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Things are not quite as surfaces indicate. Look and get a sound opinion before making any serious choices. Sentimental ideas prevail later and distract you from hasty moves.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Optimism is the mood now. Positive approaches generate additional scope, new opportunity. Clear up neglected or unfinished business first.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your own values and ideas keep you from seeing issues between others on their own merits. Hearing both sides does not necessarily bring a firm answer.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Stick to your own pace; make up for your thoroughness by an early start and consistent application. Impatience for quick, showy results merely complicates what really has to be done.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): There is more than a chance you are forgetting something — think of your friends, family, and thus refresh your memory. Intuition will direct you to the appropriate deed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): If you have organized a project too tightly, not allowing enough time and space for changes, it shows up today. Pick up the pieces and start over.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Squabbles, minor disagreements easily escalate into quarrels. Seek some balance and cooperation.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Patience with friends and relatives turns the tide favorably with just a bit of tact. Fresh essays of time or commitment, more reasonable limits on activities and budgets are needed.

Conservationists Win Wilderness Park Fight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Conservationists concerned with the future of Canada's national and provincial parks gained an important victory in Ontario Thursday as Premier William Davis announced a ban on commercial logging in Quetico Provincial Park, a 1,750-square-mile plot of land in the province's northwest section.

The conservationists, headed by such groups as the National and Provincial Parks Association of Canada and the Algonquin Wildlands League, had lobbied the government for two years to ban logging in the park so that it could be maintained as a wilderness area.

Mr. Davis' announcement in the legislature came a month after a government-appointed committee listened to more than 200 briefs at public hearings. More than 90 per cent of the briefs favored the ban.

In other Canadian legislatures, discussion also was focused on use of natural resources, while the Manitoba house was presented with a budget.

Opposition members in St. John's attacked the Newfoundland government's mining policy.

William Marshall (P C—St. John's East) told a committee examining the department's estimates that two mining promoters had huge exploration concessions but were allowing them to lie idle.

He said it would be better for such areas to remain "fallow" rather than for the government to grant concessions to promoters unable to handle them.

However, Premier Joseph Smallwood disagreed.

"Our policy of mineral development has worked and succeeded," he said, "It has produced the result—not by the vast expenditure of money we did not have—but by the vast sums spent by people we enticed in."

In Fredericton, the New Brunswick legislature gave unanimous consent to the appointment of a select standing committee to study the position of the province's natural resources industries and find ways to strengthen the contribution of forestry, fishing and mining so the provincial economy can be strengthened.

Premier Richard Hatfield made the motion and his seconder was Opposition Leader Andre F. Richard, but their cooperation didn't last long. Later, Mr. Richard attacked the premier after 18 hours of debate on an Industrial Relations Act which was passed through committee-of-the-whole.

Mr. Hatfield said that although labor and management had expressed approval of the bill, opposition parties had delayed its passage. Mr. Richard said it was the first time a premier had criticized the opposition after a bill had passed the committee.

Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec had more to say about his government's plan to approve a $6 billion hydro-electric project on five rivers emptying into James Bay.

The premier made public three engineering studies on which he said he based his approval.

The studies suggested an immediate start on the project which Mr. Bourassa predicts will employ some 125,000 workers and will be the biggest such project in the Western Hemisphere.

In Winnipeg, Finance Minister Saul Cherniack presented a budget calling for no tax increases and predicting a slight operating surplus.

The budget forecast expenditure of $516.4 million and revenue of $517.1 million.

Opposition Leader Sidney Spivak said the budget should have had a system of tax credits to stimulate industry.

Hockey Helmets, Toilet Tissue Bestir Buyers

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Ontario consumers need safer hockey helmets, less expensive toilet paper and legislation allowing them to band together in suing companies.

Resolutions on these three topics and numerous others were passed Thursday by 150 delegates to the annual meeting of the Ontario branch of the Consumers Association of Canada.

The hockey helmet resolution asks the Canadian Standards Association to develop standards so that manufacturers can be required by law to list the energy-absorption characteristics of their helmets.

It was passed following a plea from Pat Bishop, a University of Waterloo professor and trainer for Ontario athletes at the Canada Winter Games.

He said deaths have occurred in Ontario and New Brunswick while the victims were wearing hockey helmets.

Because hockey is a rough sport and players receive frequent blows to the head, he said, it is imperative to know the energy-absorption properties of helmets.

Prof. Bishop failed to convince delegates to urge an immediate requirement that manufacturers display the quality of helmets. The delegates decided standards should be set first.

The toilet paper resolution asks that this commodity along with soap and toothpaste be made tax-free as "necessities to the proper hygiene of the nation."

Roadbuilding Techniques Outlined

Administrators and road building companies in Belleville and adjacent townships attended a promotion meeting sponsored by Allied Chemicals here last week.

Gravel roads held the limelight of the afternoon's talks dealing with maintenance, cost of building, safety and the increased efficiency of the road when treated with calcium chloride, a product of Allied Chemical.

On hand for the meeting were company officials from both Toronto and Belleville to fully explain the practicalities of calcium chloride.

"To build a standard gravel road, it is going to cost you about $1,000 a mile," said Herbert Parkinson, a sales representative for the host company.

"This road will have to be maintained often, it will be dusty, dangerous with potholes and side washes and will suffer from frost damage each year," said Mr. Parkinson.

"On the other hand," he continued, "for the extra cost of about $200 per mile, you can build a calcium treated road that will not suffer the previous ailments, will look better longer and will have to be graded about one half as often to provide a smooth surface and drainage for the road.

"In areas where there is a minimum of gravel roads," added Mr. Parkinson, "usage of the calcium treatment on soft shoulders will create a safer and cleaner road."

An engineer for Hastings County said later that calcium treatments were applied to almost all the gravel roads in the county.

"The only roads that we do not use the treatment on are those roads which require a very firm surface due to a greater traffic flow, in which case we use an asphalt spray."

FISHIN' MERCS!

They'll go anywhere the fish can go.

Are you the kind of fisherman who likes to take off for out-of-the-way places? The new Mercs—especially the Mercs from 4 to 20 hp—should fit you like a glove.

With Thunderbolt ignition, you scoot out fast in the misty morning.

Out on open water, a Merc really whips you along. Even our husky little 4 hp.

Inside weedy patches, you slip quietly through. The slanted design of the Merc's leading edge (we call it Glide Angle) slides over underwater obstructions.

Shallow-water slant (on 9.8, 7½ and 4 hp) automatically locks the engine in tilted position. You sneak into backwaters where the fish are just waiting for excitement to happen.

So what are you waiting for? See your Mercury dealer.

Committee Asks Cottages to Go

TORONTO (CP) Recommendations of the Advisory Committee on Algonquin Park, tabled Friday in the legislature, won general approval from Gavin Henderson, executive director of the National and Provincial Parks Association of Canada.

Mr. Henderson, in a statement, singled out a proposal that timber licensees form a consortium for unit operation of lumbering as a "suitable compromise to a complex problem."

"We have to recognise the fact that the forest operations in Algonquin are important to the livelihood of many people both in the park area and in those industries in southern Ontario and elsewhere that rely on the hardwoods of Algonquin for their supplies."

But he urged the government to "closely supervise the operations of any consortium so that top values will always be fully protected."

The advisory committee said the park should become "the average man's wilderness"— free from snowmobiles, motorboats, private cottages or youth camps—where he can escape from the increasing pressures of city life.

Rene Brunelle, minister of lands and forests, said he wanted to emphasize that the report "is not to be regarded as government policy with respect to the present or future management of Algonquin Park."

The report recommends that hunting and trapping be banned in the park unless required for a short term for control of wildlife and then only under the direction of the park administration.

It recommends that a fish management unit be set up to prevent the depletion of fish life in the waters and stop contamination and pollution.

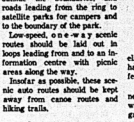
The waters in the park are clear and cold and contain less plant life to provide food for large fish populations, it says. Once the resource is depleted, replenishment takes a long time.

The report says the continued existence of cottages, private youth camps and lodges within parks is "at odds with the basic concept. They should be removed as their leases expire and non-conforming land use permits should be ended before 1980.

Prof. George Garland, past president of the Smoke Lake Leaseholders, says in a minority report that if the recommendation on cottages and lodges is accepted, there will be no accommodation in the park except for those with trailers and tents.

This would discriminate against thousands of potential visitors, he said.

Youth camps have given as much to the park as they have taken, he said.



He recommends instead of a ban on cottages, camps and lodges that they be recognized as desireable types of accommodation.

The majority report says Algonquin Park is world famous for its canoeing but already many canoe routes are overcrowded. It recommends the rapid development of more routes, including some which would start in the park and lead outside.

It suggests a ring of highways outside the boundaries, and roads leading from the ring to satellite parks for campers and to the boundary of the park.

Low-speed, one-way scenic routes should be laid out in loops leading from and to an information centre with picnic areas along the way.

Insofar as possible, these scenic auto routes should be kept away from canoe routes and hiking trails.

'If man keeps polluting, the fish will be dead before we can kill 'em!'

Outdoor Drinking Approved

TORONTO (CP) — Serving of alcoholic beverages on patios or sidewalk cafes "under the bright blue skies" in Ontario has been approved by the provincial government, Provincial Secretary John Yaremko announced Friday.

Mr. Yaremko, announcing the change in policy in a statement to the Ontario legislature, said outdoor drinking licences have been approved for 19 applicants, seven in Toronto.

He said the extension of lounge and lounge licences to outdoor areas does not mean the government is promoting consumption of alcoholic beverages. The new policy merely gives those who enjoy a drink with their meals the right "to do so in the open."

Canada Curiously Feminine Claims Novelist MacLennan

MONTREAL (CP) — For novelist Hugh MacLennan, Canada has always been "curiously feminine."

"That's why Americans have never understood us and never will," he told about 100 delegates to a national symposium on the Canadian universities at Loyola College Friday.

"When a Canadian says no, it's said the way a woman says no, or yes for that matter. And you have to know a woman pretty goddam well before you accept a statement as an affidavit."

"I've been screaming rape (about foreign domination of Canadian culture) for years. But the trouble is there's something feminine in the Canadian mentality.

"And then too, there's the well-known saying that you might as well relax and enjoy it."

Mr. MacLennan said he became concerned with the employment practices of Canadian universities in 1935 when he applied for a job teaching at Dalhousie University in Halifax.

He was turned down in favor of an Englishman with inferior qualifications.

"Perhaps you've got the wrong man for this meeting."

Dishonest Doctor 'Small Problem'

TORONTO (CP) — The newly elected president of the Ontario Medical Association described community by Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence to the OMA's annual meeting Friday as comparable to a doctor called to treat a case of pneumonia concentrating on an ingrown toe nail.

Dr. James T. Colquhoun of Thunder Bay said that the problem of dishonest doctors dealt with in Mr. Lawrence's speech was "a small problem in the total field of medical care."

In his speech, Mr. Lawrence admonished doctors in Ontario for having been "irresponsible" in allowing a minority of their number to break medical ethics by overcharging the government-run medical health insurance plans.

"It disturbed me a little" that "the whole emphasis" of Mr. Lawrence's speech seemed to be concentrated "on one little aspect" of medical care, said Dr. Colquhoun.

"If a doctor bills for something he has not done, this is fraud and it is up to the minister to stop it."

Commenting on the minister's reference to "a surprising number of surgical procedures of questionable necessity being performed" in Ontario, Dr. Colquhoun said:

"There is very little unnecessary surgery going on. If Mr. Lawrence or anyone else can provide evidence to the contrary this should be reported."

At a news conference following his speech, Mr. Lawrence, questioned on this point, referred to whether the volume of tonsilectomies could be vindicated, and suggested this should be the subject "not of a political debate, but of a scientific debate."

One delegate suggested that the results of an investigation previously announced by the minister into the high sums collected by some doctors from Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan and the Ontario Hospital Services Commission would show 99.9 per cent of the province's doctors "are honest."

He asked whether the minister would call a major news conference to announce that finding.

The minister replied: "Absolutely."

He said that he could not advise them to seek special government legislation to stop American domination of Canadian universities.

"The government still seems to want to encourage immigration which is bad. The government doesn't want to interfere directly with a university administration which is good. No good has ever come to any academic community when a government muscled in on it."

He said governments have never, really wanted to change the status quo and that he had tried for many years to influence Canadian politicians on this problem.

"But what on earth could anyone ever do to Mackenzie King," he said. "If you put your thumb into him in one place he bulged out somewhere else."

He said that Victorian Englishmen used to refer to a colony as a place which could provide employment for those who couldn't find work at home.

"That makes most Canadian universities American colonial institutions," he said.

Furthermore, Americans make bad immigrants, Mr. MacLennan said.

"They don't adapt to our traditions. They try to apply their own inapplicable politics to our situation here. They're not too eager to become Canadian citizens and they continue to think of Canada as an extension of the United States."

Answer to Frustration

Community Television 'Gives Dignity Back to the Poor'

WINNIPEG (CP) — Once when poor people wanted to be heard, they had to picket, demonstrate and throw rocks, said Bruce Arnold of Toronto. "But now they've got community television, and they're getting their dignity back."

Mr. Arnold, one of 200 delegates to a community television conference which opened Friday at the University of Winnipeg, said in an interview community television is "a last chance" to give the public access to the media and revitalize grass-roots dialogue.

"It could end the militant action and violence that is spawned by the frustration of being ignored."

Mr. Arnold, who co-ordinates a one-hour weekly community-television show in Toronto, sees cable TV as a tool for solving social problems.

The technological breakthrough that enabled an amateur cameraman to shoot a video-tape film with inexpensive equipment, then transmit the film over one of Canada's 350 cable-television systems into subscribers' homes now makes community television feasible.

Dorothy Todd Henaut of Montreal said social organizations are becoming excited about the possibilities of using some of cable television's 12 channels to promote more community programming.

"They're excited about cable because they see a vacuum to be filled. For once, the avenues of access to media are not blocked off to ordinary citizens."

Her involvement in National Film Board experiments with community television in Montreal have convinced her "there are fewer confrontations when people can say their piece."

Most of the one million Canadians homes that are hooked to a cable television system do not have community television available to them. Of those that do, sporadic programming is limited to a few hours a week.

There are several difficulties to be overcome before community television becomes widespread.

Cable system owners are generally not enthusiastic about community television because it will not be a source of revenue for them. Two Winnipeg cable owners who spoke to the conference Friday complained about taxes, rental charges for the use of Manitoba Telephone System wires and government regulations.

The Canadian Radio-Television Commission, which has endorsed the concept of community television in policy statements, still considers it to be in the experimental stage and might not be prepared to assist with legislation.

Frank Spiller of Ottawa, a CRTC member, told delegates Friday: "I am armed with an uncomfortable feeling that some of the human qualities that we say we want to preserve could be lost in all this dedication (to promoting community television)."

Other unresolved problems arose during discussions Friday:

—What safeguards are there that more vocal citizens, those with are given most exposure in the commercial media, will not get too much air time on community television?

—Groups using the system may find they are communicating only with groups in their own income level, and no community-wide dialogue is achieved.

—Where will funds come from to support community operations and who will have control over programming?

Broadcaster Larry Zolf of Toronto told delegates he considered community television extremely useful in guiding social change, particularly in ending poverty.

Moira Lake Water OK Says OWRC Letter

Despite recent "adverse" publicity regarding mercury and arsenic poisoning, the fish in Moira Lake are safe for eating and the arsenic concentration of lake waters is not considered to present any health hazard for recreational purposes.

This is stated by the Ontario Water Resources Commission in reply to a letter from Madoc Reeve Thomas Burnside who said that he was cause of the reports of mercury and arsenic, residents were non-residents are losing confidence in the lake.

The OWRC reply to Reeve Burnside's letter, written May 11, said that fish in Moira Lake have been found to contain less than 0.3 parts per million of arsenic, this being wet within the recommended maximum level is food of 3 PPM set by the Federal Food and Drug Directorate.

"Therefore, arsenic is not considered to pose any health hazard to persons eating fish from Moira Lake," the letter said.

"The average concentration of arsenic in lake water in 1970 was found to be 0.09 ppm and is considered to be satisfactory as a source of drinking water by summer cottagers and campers.

However, the level of arsenic is still slightly in excess of the drinking water quality criterion of 0.05 ppm for use on a year round basis.

The OWRC said the arsenic concentration in the water of Moira Lake was decreasing. With the commissioning of the 0.09 ppm comparing to 0.13 ppm in 1969.

With further improvements in the treatment facilities at the Deloro, it was hoped that the average concentration of arsenic in Moira Lake can be further reduced. The expansion of the sewage condition system at Deloro is expected to be completed by the end of this month.

The OWRC letter said the normal efficiency of arsenic removal of the Deloro treatment plant was 99 per cent but during the spring runoff period, efficiency was reduced to about 70 per cent.

The company has been requested to correct this hydraulic overload problem by diverting uncontaminated surface runoff around the treatment facility and this diversion is also expected to be completed by the end of May.

But not all the arsenic concentration in the Moira comes from the old mine tailings at Deloro.

The OWRC report said one mile upstream from Deloro, the arsenic concentration was found to be 0.03 ppm. The belief is that the upstrea mconcentration of arsenic comes from natural sources.

Diversion of the river around the old Deloro plant site has been considered but the cost of such an undertaking is estimated at $2 million and treatment of arsenic-containing water would still be necessary.

Tourist resort operators on Moira Lake have complained of the condition of lake water for several years, with William Hawthorne, operator of Crystal Beach taking a leading role.

Last year Mr. Hawthorne said he was closing his operation, while this spring Clayton Smith said he was closing his motel operation on the south shore of the lake. Reeve Burnside, in his letter to the OWRC, said Moira Lake has been plagued with excessive algae growth, that fish had been found to contain mercury poisoning and excessive arsenic, and complaints by property owners on the lake that there were excessive and dangerous amounts of arsenic present in the waterway.

These claims were said based on analysis of samples collected privately and from studying reports published by the OWRC.

Reeve Burnside said his village depended to a large degree on business from summer residents, tourists and tent grounds operating on Moira Lake and that the reports were not publicity but aroused a very real concern.

City Says Firemen's Salaries Should Reflect Local Average

Firefighters' salaries should have some relationship to rates paid other employees in the local community and not necessarily be expected to match the levels of departments in other centres where a high general wage rate might prevail.

This was the submission yesterday by Toronto lawyer C. G. Riggs as he presented the city's position at an arbitration board hearing to decide on 1970 salaries for members of the Belleville Fire Fighters Association.

City firemen are asking $9,355 for a four year fireman, or an increase of approximately 10 per cent over the 1969 rate.

The hearing, lasting about four, hours, was concluded early Friday afternoon and although a decision was expected to be reached by last night, chairman Judge H. J. Reynolds said it would be up to the board where the final decision would be announced immediately.

The board hearing was to decide on 1970 salaries only, with neither side approving a board suggestion that the 1971 wage package be considered at the same time.

One of the requests of firemen was they be given wages approximating the schedule paid policemen.

Mr. Riggs, however, as counsel for the city, said that in a representative of municipalities across Ontario, police rates were higher than those for firemen.

Also in previous years he noted that Belleville firemen had voluntarily accepted salaries less than police received.

Submitting that firemen's wages should bear some relationship with rates paid to other employment in the area, Mr. Riggs said that general wage rates in Belleville were substantially lower than in Oshawa or Sudbury where there were specialized industries.

He maintained also that wage rates should have some relationship to the cost of living index which showed increases much lower than those asked by firemen.

Mr. Riggs objected to the firemen's request that regulations forbidding "moonlighting" be removed completely from their contract.

He noted that there was a clause in the city contract with policemen which would not allow them to moonlight except in "special" circumstances.

"I am not in favor of firemen moonlighting either, if they are paid properly," commented the board chairman. Mr. Riggs replied he objected to the firemen's request because "moonlighting" is removed completely from their contract.

The OWRC letter said the increase for department radio-telephone operators to $2,325 which he said represented a 55 per cent increase over the present figure.

Such an increase, he maintained, would be extremely difficult to justify.

"They don't have the responsibility and are not doing a fireman's job," Mr. Riggs maintained.

Mr. Riggs also questioned whether a radio telephone operator could rightfully be classed as a fireman.

In rebuttal to corporation counsel's submission regarding the pay of radio telephone operators, John Jessop, representative for the International Association of Fire Fighters said that in many departments such personnel were classified as technicians and received fourth year firemen's pay.

And striking a note for women's liberation, Mr. Jessop said if there were women on the department who could be classified as technicians, they also rightfully should have technician's pay.

"Please," interjected the board chairman, "don't let's get into that — we have enough problems as it is."

With this comment Judge Reynolds adjourned the hearing, noting that members would retire to consider their decision.

City taxpayers have already been assessed sufficient funds to pay expected 1970 increases for firemen.

And when the 1970 wage contract is settled, city firemen will start making plans on their application for this year's wage package.

PUC in Black For 1970

The Belleville Public Utilities Commission announced yesterday their 1970 auditor's report showed an over - all operating surplus of $109,227 at year - end.

E. L. Burnham, PUC manager, explained that although revenue in the electrical department was $2½ million and almost 7½ million in the water department, by the end of last year the year - end surplus was down by $32,918, as compared to 1969.

"This drop was brought about because of increased operating rates such as hydro and labor," said Mr. Burnham.

Records for this year already show a sharp drop when compared to figures of 1970.

At the end of March, the PUC had lost $1,151 in the water department and $52,138 in the electrical department. In 1970, at the end of the same period, a loss of $2,317 was recorded for the water department but a surplus of $35,528 had been accumulated in the electrical division.

However, Mr. Burnham explained there was no cause for worry. Explanation given every year and during the summer months these losses would be rectified.

Local Youth Ottawa Guide

A young Belleville university student will act as one of approximately 15 civilian tourist guides to work at the parliament buildings in Ottawa this summer.

Hastings MP Lee Grills said today that Ronald Chaplain, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Chaplin, 26 Chatham Street, had been accepted as a summer tourist guide and would commence work on Monday.

Mr. Grills said he had proposed the Belleville student to Lucien Lamoreaux, Speaker of the House and was notified of his acceptance some days ago.

Mr. Grills said it was the first time that a Belleville student has been accepted as a tourist guide at Ottawa.

IN MEMORIAM

JOHNSON — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandpa, George Edward Johnson who passed away May 15, 1966.
The love of a dear husband,
The love of a kind father dear,
Memories are treasures no one can steal,
Remembrance keeps him near.
— Sadly missed by wife Ethel, daughter Marion, son-in-law Bill and Georgie.

WRIGHT — In loving memory of a grandson, Lindsay Wright, who passed away May 15, 1966.
Sweet memories are all we have left,
To look at in sadness and pain,
But we shall meet him in heaven above,
And never shall part again.
— Never forgotten by grandmother.

REDDICK — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Ethel Reddick, who passed away May 15, 1967.
May 15 1967, marked May 15, 1968, brought May 15, 1969, and May 15, 1970,
For each of us they did their best,
Left us with memories we can't forget,
Memories of a mother who was loved,
Memories of a mother who was kind,
Memories of a mother who will be,
Memories locked in our hearts forever.
— Sadly missed by mother, Mark, Alvin, Ruth and families.

ATTFIELD — In ever loving memory of Alfred, of Trenton and Petawawa, who was accidentally killed on May 15, 1970.
— Remembered by his grandmother and family.

SHARP — In loving memory of a dear mother, Irene Sharpe who passed away May 15, 1966.
What is a home without a mother,
A place filled with sorrow and pain,
But when I look my memories over,
I find mother there again.
— Sadly missed by daughter Mary Lou Fleming, son-in-law Bruce, grandchildren Bruce and Susan.

REMARK — In memory of a dear husband and father, Ernest Remark who passed away May 15, 1965.
Memories are golden,
We watched you fade away,
Your heart was weak and broken,
You fought so hard to stay,
Your life was full of kindness,
Your love was true and kind,
You could not wish you best,
To leave behind,
So softly passed by mother, Mark, Alvin, Ruth and families.

REMARK — In loving memory of a dear husband, Ernest Remark who passed away May 15, 1965.
What treasures we are give to cherish,
What memories we have,
Dear husband, you left us,
To bear her voice, to see her smile,
To hear her laugh,
Sadly missed by wife Ethel,
— Sadly missed by daughter Mary Lou Fleming, son-in-law Bruce, grandchildren Bruce and Susan.

WRIGHT — In loving memory of a dear son, Lindsay David Wright, who passed away May 15, 1966.
Remembrance is a golden chain,
Death tries to break, but all in vain,
The links are formed of memory,
In the great storehouse of the past,
Where love's treasures are kept safe and fast.
— Sadly missed by Dad, Mom, Grandma Kenny and Aunt Laurie-Anne.

Fireworks Warning Repeated

The Ontario Safety League has reported that there were 134 injuries resulting from the misuse of explosive materials on, and around, Victoria Day last year.

The most common was injury to the eyes, followed by burns to various parts of the body, centering on the index fingers of both hands.

Extensive legislation has been passed by the federal government to create the safest possible firecracker, but it remains as the most dangerous of play explosives says the Ontario Safety League.

No firecrackers are made in Canada and all imported firecrackers and fireworks must pass inspection by the federal government before they can be sold or used in the country.

George C. Ham, manager of the family safety department, mentioned that adequate protective legislation exists and if consumers did their share by applying a generous amount of common sense in the use of firecrackers and fireworks, it would go a long way to eliminate the 134 injuries.

Of all injuries sustained by the use of firecrackers, 80 percent were connected with children between the ages of five and 14.

Because of these and similar statistics, the city of Belleville has passed bylaws prohibiting the sale of any form of firecracker to anyone under the age of 16.

Any violation to this bylaw will result in a $300 fine to the proprietor of the shop.

As a further warning, inspectors from the Belleville Fire Department have been conducting assemblies and classes in the junior schools to acquaint students with the dangers of a firecracker.

The best precaution that can be taken while igniting fireworks and firecrackers, say the experts, is to follow the instructions on the back of the piece. This will ensure that the firework will be placed safely and free to discharge naturally.

Canadiana on Display

Mrs. Jane Pope displays an Indian back-rack for carrying an infant — one of the hundreds of Canadian craft items sold in the family's Main Street shop in Brighton. The Klee Wyck Shop will soon be moving to a new location where it will be joined by a Canadian cuisine restaurant.

Canadian-made Crafts Their Stock in Trade

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

BRIGHTON — The Klee Wyck Shop at 99 Main St. here is the kind of place that if you wink you miss it.

Operated by John Pope, a lecturer at Humber College in Toronto, and his wife Jane, the Klee Wyck is modest in size but is still the largest Canadian crafts boutique in the district.

"We were prompted to open a year ago because of the total lack of this kind of shop in the area . . . it was a crying shame," says Mrs. Pope.

The largest problem faced by the Popes in establishing here was to find suitably popular craft goods to market.

"We are trying to display as many local crafts as possible but find ourselves beating on doors to find the craftsmen," Mrs. Pope explains.

Elaborate mobiles made by Mrs. Erika Rosenthal of nearby Stockdale are now on sale at Klee Wyck, along with Indian crafts from Tyendinaga and Curve Lake Reserves.

Pottery is also coming to the shop from the kilns of Mrs. Mary Snider of Actinolite. Other crafts with Wiarton and Owen Sound labels are also sold.

"The progress made in Canadiana is fantastic. A few years ago, the only reasonably good Canadian crafts one could buy were in the Blue Mountain pottery line and that stuff was grossly overdone," says Mrs. Pope. "The tide has turned, however; "there is now loads of Canadiana. You can pick and choose rather than take what you can get."

Mrs. Pope explains the Ontario government has moved in to help market Indian crafts, the federal to market Eskimo goods.

Works of artisans living in isolated communities are now making their way to civilization in southern Canada, she says.

"It is the isolated tribes that are doing what they want to and that is where the real originality is coming from."

Now a shop like Klee Wyck in a small community can easily sell curios from Lansdowne House, original Eskimo parkas, baskets made by the Micmacs of New Brunswick, Huron pottery and the best of Baffin Island soapstone.

When the Popes are not tending store, they are usually out on the backroads of the country searching out Gaspesian wood carvers or backshop jewelers.

They believe the trend of the times is on their side. "There really is a turning away from mass - made goods and the market is turning to truly Canadian things," Mr. Pope contends.

The family will soon be moving the Klee Wyck across town to the Maple Grove Motel on Highway 2 which they recently purchased.

In the new location, the Popes will expand their Canada - first sales pitch with a larger stock of crafts and a small Canadian kitchen restaurant.

A selection of quiches, tortieres, beef heart and onion soups, and such dessert items as apricot crepe with whipped cream will be featured on the menu. Restaurant tables are now being made by an elderly Deseronto carpenter.

Officers Elected By Jaycees

PATRICK GERVAIS

The Belleville Jaycees Tuesday held their annual election of officers at the Shrine Club on Highland Avenue.

The officers, elected to serve in the 1971-72 years are: president, Patrick Gervais, vice - president, William Cobb, secretary, Brian Baker, treasurer, Leo Johnston, and directors Jamie Trudeau and Robert Worley.

Outgoing president Glenn F. Wardell and his executive will complete their year at the annual Jaycee awards banquet at the Shrine Club at 6:30 p.m. on May 28.

Students Plant 3,000 Trees

WOOLER (Staff) — Senior students of Stockdale Public School added to their reputation as active conservationists by planting 3,000 trees on a farm just south of here Friday.

The youngsters, who have formed a conservation club at their school have already planted over 18,000 trees on previous plant-ins.

Ameliasburg Dump Said 'Raided'

AMELIASBURG (Special)— Since a township dump was opened and council subsequently decided to assume the operation of the refuse collection service, evidence confirms that the garbage and waste disposal responsibility is no bed of roses.

One unforeseen problem developed recently can cost the taxpayers more than $2,000 a year as well as compelling council to impose stringent measures in order to stop "outsiders" from using the municipality's disposal facilities.

Roger Redner, chairman of the waste disposal committee, blames residents of Belleville for aggravating a situation whereby all residents of Ameliasburg must suffer.

His report to the regular monthly council meeting earlier this week indicated both the maintainence of the township dump and waste collection service were running along smoothly until the city closed its dump on the waterfront. Bellevillians driving to the township dumps with refuse grew in numbers daily to start the trouble, he related.

Expanding criticism of outside interference he added: "The invasion became full scale at times and the violators soon turned the place into an unsightly mess with garbage and junk strewn everywhere instead of at the bottom of the pit where it is covered as arranged. The day someone deposited an old car body in the middle of the mess and a truckload of rotting carp heads appeared beside the space visitors park cars was the payoff, he disclosed.

Rednerville Road residents G. W. Morrall and W. F. Jones, appearing in person, told council they were not happy with their neighbor living in a trailer in a residential area. And they advised they intend to test the bylaw if owner Brian Holmes decides to build an addition to the trailer to meet zoning regulations.

Earlier, council had induced Mr. Holmes to sign an agreement to erect a home on the lot, suitable for occupancy by November 1, 1972. Mr. Holmes assured council he planned a home that would fit in with other expensive residences on property that cost him $12,000.

Under present zoning regulations, the township permits the use of trailers as residences providing the floor space equals the same as a permanent home which is 900 square feet within the boundary of the village of Rednersville as in this case.

New construction is under way in earnest as figures from building inspector Harry Bildoe showed that the six permits he sold during April represented almost $80,000.

Village Dump Must Be Closed

FRANKFORD (Staff) — This village of 1,900 is now facing the same garbage disposal problem with which Trenton has to cope.

Like its large neighbor to the south, Frankford council has now been instructed by the department of energy and resources management, to close its dump because it is a pollution threat.

However, Reeve William Rose has difficulty understanding the threat — the village dump, located on a 50-acre site on the 6th concession of Sidney, is over half a mile from the Trent River.

He says an agent of the department visited the dump at the beginning of May, took photographs, and sent council a letter saying the dump must close.

Frankford council does not like the department decision, by which they must find an alternate garbage dump by August 15. Councillors feel they should have been presented with a list of things wrong with the present site and given the chance to rectify whatever problems exist.

Reeve Rose says operators of the Aitken's Road dump, owned by Commercial Refuse Ltd., have quoted a price of $7,500 for use of the dump. He contends this is an excessive sum in view of the fact the price quoted in Trenton (population 14,009) was $25,000.

The reeve raises the possibility that Frankford may become prime customer along with Batawa and perhaps Stirling, in a new dump that may open near here.

Progress Anyway

Because of its federal-provincial government structure Canada is a strange mixture of progress and excessive government control which by contrast hinders progress.

The bureaucratic processes alone which are involved in the federal-provincial government systems, the paper-work, the form-filling, the duplication of effort and all the rest of what passes for government administration, all this can only serve to retard progress.

The wonder is that, given the vastness of this land, we are in fact one of the most prosperous and progressive countries in the world. But we could make still more strides if government could streamline its functions. In the business of tax reform, for instance, we would hope that some thought will be given to simplifying the actual process of collecting tax. The annual mathematical grind, resulting error and corrective work by Ottawa, is time wasting, the whole process too complex. It is the sort of proliferation of effort which Professor Parkinson was talking about when he came up with his celebrated Parkinson's law: work expands to fill the time available for its completion.

But to get back to federal-provincial affairs, another specific example of conflict between the jurisdictions is in the making over communications. Premier Davis spoke of it in Hamilton last week when he indicated that Ontario may act to protect its own interests in the control of telecommunications with or without Ottawa's consent. The province has already announced plans to create a department of transportation and communication which, it is understood, will seek to exercise more management of federally-controlled communications.

Mr. Davis said Ontario was determined to establish a better vehicle than the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, in which the province is an interested party, for continuing dialogue at the policy level. He added that areas of concern were radio and television broadcasting, educational television, cable and special-purpose video transmission, telephone, telegraph and the proposed telestat communications satellite.

The provincial government's interest in having greater control over this vital area of telecommunications is understandable. At the same time it cannot be achieved by unilateral action. Since the federal government is vitally concerned, indeed is the principal controlling body in this as in other matters, no province, Ontario included, can run roughshod over it. Unless of course Ontario plans to emulate its unruly neighbor Quebec. And somehow we cannot envisage that happening.

One other thing, which we spoke of recently, following Premier Davis' visit here for the opening of the Bell Canada Training Centre. That is, we must look to quality in the whole field of communications. The medium has the power both to educate and corrupt. Let us ensure that we make the correct choice in this matter.

BBC Under Fire

Everyone is aware of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's predilection for emphasis on the latest happenings in our day, such as isolated acts of terrorism in Northern Ireland, interviews with FLQ members undergoing guerrilla training in the Middle East, and interviews with left-wing oriented speakers.

U.S. television news errs in the same direction, and now there is word that the British Broadcasting Corporation is in the same boat. According to the Ulster Times there has been a storm of protest following appearance on a television program of members of the IRA.

That is nothing new of course, because IRA sympathizers have appeared on CBC, not to mention the FLQ people on CBC programs. In any event it seems there have been frequent allegations of bias in radio and TV programs in Britain and they are being investigated by the Conservative party's broadcasting committee.

Meanwhile, Cyril Aynsley of the Daily Express makes a good point in this connection when he says that the present rash of trouble in Ulster "is comparatively not too serious," and adds: "Television cameramen on the spot can unwittingly convey an impression of a whole country in revolt by concentrated coverage of a small mob of hooligans throwing stones and a few petrol bombs at police. . ."

From this we are reminded once again that television coverage, both those programs which are obviously biased, and those which convey the same impression by more subtle means, must be viewed critically, realizing that they may be calculated to convey an unfavorable impression of a country, community or situation.

Only the P.M. Will Miss Him

Uncompromising Eric Kierans Opts for the Wilderness

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Now that old political soldier Eric Kierans is fading away — to vanish utterly, he promises, after the next election — the wit will miss him!

And fading he is without even shadow of question.

For although he will be speaking his piece in the coming Budget Debate and the threatened summer-long parliamentary war over White Paper on Taxation, who will be listening, much less caring?

He has dropped out of the circle of Cabinet power and scarcely can avoid vanishing into the background of those "nobodies" as Prime Minister Trudeau has called the occupants of the non-ministerial backbenches of the Commons.

Without the power of sharing in Cabinet decision - making, he will be just another among the well-populated ranks — Liberal and Conservative alike — of former Ministers of the Crown.

But about that question, though, of who will miss him, even if few are listening to him or caring much about what he says, since now it will make so little actual difference.

The Prime Milfiker will miss him.

It was Pierre Trudeau, alone in that 29-member Cabinet who enjoyed Mr. Kierans.

And it was Pierre Trudeau who insisted, against the majority opinion of that cabinet, that Eric Kierans remain in the circle of power as long as he did.

For Eric Kierans — and just ask any of his former colleagues in the Cabinet — was a trouble-maker.

But he was intellectually stimulating, forever spinning off policy ideas.

And by the Prime Minister this was just dandy, even if few of the policy ideas ever panned out.

It was good enough that they provoked controversy, compelled consideration, stirred debate, created conflict in Cabinet and the Commons alike.

It was all a part of Pierre's "participatory democracy," and the Prime Minister was always in the convenient position of being able to veto Kierans' experimental initiatives when they got out of hand as they so often did.

Until the last one, of course, when headstrong Eric, deaf to the Prime Minister's pleas turned in his Cabinet membership card.

Trouble with Eric Kierans was that he was just too efficient for politics.

He thought in the neat and tidy process of economic equations, statistics, cost-benefit analysis and such with his computer mind, and not in the loose, bendable, give-and-take of compromise of the political brain.

Not for Efficiency Eric the cautious backing and filling, weaving and feinting, on-one-hand- and - the - other ways of most politicians.

He knew little if anything of the art of the possible, so necessary for political survival.

If it made statistical sense it had to be done, the way he saw it, and it mattered not whether people wanted it done or indeed would do it.

And that was why Eric Kierans in his more than three years in Cabinet, first as Postmaster General, and then as Communications Minister, was in more political trouble, routinely, than all other 28 Ministers combined.

He blistered on sharp answers to questions which might better be left blandly alone.

He wanted a hard yes or, no instead of a soft well, maybe.

He abominated the easy, expedient answers.

And so he was up to his eyebrows — and then finally over his head — in trouble.

First he wanted Canada out of NATO — out all the way, and made a public fuss about it.

Then he was into those endless, publicly - irritating and politically costly disputes with postal employees which kept the mails in a bind.

Sure, he was usually right, and they wrong.

Like when he discovered all those postmen wasting an average of 40 minutes a day in unnecessary letter-sorting. It was a simple matter to him of how many men at so many dollars at so much an hour, and it did not make sense. So change it, and in changing it, change the whole work routine, with the unions out on strike in protest.

Then he learned that in Montreal there were 150 more mail truck drivers than were needed after he closed all those letter-boxes outside the doors of Liberal MPs and party organizers. Again, right on, he the jobless truckers take up changing tires, breaking windshields, and beating up on new drivers when the job was first cut, in a commonsense businesslike way, to contract. And the jobless drivers — how do they afford it? — still drive up from Montreal daily to picket Parliament Hill and insult the Prime Minister.

Sure the decisions made sense in the world of business, but not in the world of politics which, being slightly crazy, likes things to run smoothly even if it does cost the taxpayer a little more.

Couldn't Eric do anything without generating government into trouble, grumbled the Liberals. After all, they complained, the Post Office did work in at least a make-do way and had decided to make it efficient.

So Efficiency Eric could not stand the inefficiency of politics and Parliament. And only the Prime Minister will miss him.

Marzipan Anyone?

Lubeck is a charming old city and port in Germany's northeast bordering on Communist East Germany. It is a city of churches, one of which has a roped off area damaged by Allied bombing and which has been preserved as a war memorial, outdoor restaurants and there is one store in particular, a coffee and candy shop — a delightful, spotlessly clean, establishment — where you can obtain the product illustrated above. For Lubeck is the marzipan capital of the world. Up to 20 tons a day are sent abroad to 43 countries from this plant, the world's largest. The automatic assembly line produces and packs 10,500 of these blocks in 15 minutes. One hundred million of them were consumed in 1970.

Education Building Under Fire

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

So they have finally done it. As was predicted by one of the unsuccessful candidates in the school board election campaign Hastings County Board of Education will spend half a million dollars for an "educational services" building.

It is nice to see that the board will make an attempt to hold the provincial government to a promise of assistance before deciding to go it alone.

Undoubtedly the sheep-like taxpayers will lie down to this latest educational expenditure with the docile acquiescence of the defeated. As each departmental empire expands there seems to be always a need for board rooms, libraries, archives, and other such impediments. In these inflationary times it would be more commendable if our administrations accepted the challenge of temporary or small, cramped quarters.

Mr. Clarke notes that the present set up involves a "tremendous amount of memo writing" which the new building, presumably, will eradicate. Executives, in order to function, it appears, have to be set up in the right trappings, and once this stage is achieved it is time to look around at the "in" and "out" baskets. No self-respecting executive could exist without recourse to departmental memoranda.

Like so many other expensive innovations, the timing of this building is, to say the least of it, inopportune. Trustee, Mrs. Miriam Graham was near the truth when she commented "we are in no position to ask the taxpayers to pay the whole shot for this". The lady is right, even if the province agrees to help, it will still be taxpayers' money, and I have to say that I suspect the taxpayer is getting awfully tired of being mulcted to bear the brunt of expensive, unnecessary and inflationary empire building schemes.

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY

* * *

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Re the decision of the Hastings County Board of Education to erect a $1,000,000 dollar "educational services" building at Bayside school.

Some questions arise:

1. What do the trustees mean by "go it alone" on financing? Are they (the trustees) prepared to go it alone without government grants or do they mean we, the taxpayers, are to "go it alone" on their decision?

2. The article states the motion was approved "with trustees Nelson McGibbon and Robert Orton Collins opposing the motion". Opposing the motion to ask for government assistance or opposing the proposal for the new building?

Reasons were presented in an effort to justify the need of the proposed new building, but it might be enlightening to the people who are going to buy this proposal (literally) to hear from the opposing trustees whose reasons for opposition are not mentioned in the article.

Another Member of the Opposition.

Work of the Humane Society

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Alderman Joyce's critical remarks regarding the Ontario Humane Society policy of requiring the names of complainants before acting on them is rather surprising. The names are not disclosed and certainly discourages irresponsible calls. Your paper puts the same stipulation on letters written to the editor.

His remark "the City is not getting its money's worth" requires some further explanation on his part. If he has a more economical and better service to propose let's hear it and evaluate it.

The money paid by the City to the Ontario Humane Society does not fully compensate them for the services which they supply and would not be available to us were it not for other sources of income such as donations, etc.

Let us take advantage of this situation by communication, not petty criticism. Their willingness to do a job has been offered to anybody who has taken time to look into it. Let's convey to them what we require if it is not working out.

I, personally, had two occasions to call upon the Humane Society (both at most unusual hours) and can only say that I was amazed at the enthusiasm to do the service and the consideration shown the animal.

In this day and age there are unfortunately, very few occasions when responsibility toward the job in hand is the aim and not the almighty dollar.

They are the only active group interested in the welfare of animals and this service in itself is a bonus to us.

No Back-door Dentistry

Ottawa Journal

The answer to the shortage of dentists — and the high cost of dentistry — is not to allow persons, Ontario Health Minister Bert Lawrence has aptly called "dental bootleggers" to start fitting patients with dentures. "Denturists" do not have the professional qualifications to justify their practising a highly - developed dental specialty, without licence and government - imposed training, for which dentists train for years.

The proper approach to the problem of finding more dental manpower was set forth earlier this year in a report made by the "Ad Hoc Committee on Dental Auxiliaries" to the federal Department of Health and Welfare.

That committee advocated more effective use of dental hygienists, dental technicians and dental assistants. The dental profession has been too hesitant in promoting the use of such trained personnel for some procedures.

But that is no reason to fall for the high - pressure campaign by the denturists and to allow them into the dental profession by the back door. There should be no short-cut to professionalism where the health of the public is involved.

For their part, dentists will receive more support for their proper insistence upon high standards of training if they better police themselves and stop some members of the profession from hurting the public by charging outrageous fees. Dental bills which are out of all relation to the time dental work has taken do more harm to the integrity of dentistry than all the denturists in the province.

Communists, Catholics Are Less Antagonistic

VIENNA (Reuter) — The pace is quickening in the dialogue—unthinkable a few years ago—between the Roman Catholic Church and Communist authorities in East Europe.

At last there seems to be a truce in the great battle between the Roman Catholic faith and the materialist Communist ideology.

Top-level contacts are developing between the two sides.

Even in the Soviet Union, where Roman Catholics are a small minority of the religious community, a Vatican envoy has been given an encouraging reception.

Archbishop Augostino Casaroli, the Vatican's top diplomat for dealings with Communist states in Europe, visited Moscow in February. Later, he reported he felt the beginning of a thaw between the Kremlin and the Vatican.

President Tito of Yugoslavia arranged to see Pope Paul at the end of his visit to Italy. The historic visit symbolized the new developing relations between Eastern European states with the Vatican.

Of the Communist states, one major power—China—still refuses to have any dealings with the Vatican. One minor power, Albania—China's ally in Europe—is also remarkably atheistic. It has converted mosques and churches into film theatres and storage depots.

Elsewhere in East Europe, church bells peal on Sundays and feast days, although the ideology of communism decries the existence of God.

Even in Czechoslovakia, where the liberal tide of 1968 has been turned back and where Catholics are again under pressure, talks have opened in Prague between Vatican and Czechoslovak representatives.

There is growing talk of a papal visit soon to Poland and possibly also to Yugoslavia, and relations with other states are easing, too.

Hungary has shown signs for the first time of wishing to reach an accommodation with the Roman Catholic authorities. Eighty Hungarian pilgrims—the first group to visit Rome in years—saw the Pope at St. Peter's Cathedral in March 24 and heard him praise Hungarian Catholics for the firmness of their faith.

The picture is obscured only by the fact Cardinal Mindszenty still remains in voluntary confinement in the U.S. embassy to protest the refusal of Hungarian officials to grant him full rehabilitation.

The special Vatican mission to Czechoslovakia will ask the authorities for their views on the appointment of an archbishop for Prague, an office vacant since the death last year of Cardinal Josef Beran.

Church-state negotiations are believed to be the main topic in discussions Pope Paul has been having in the Vatican with senior Polish prelates.

MR. AND MRS. ALLAN E. BARNARD

Barnard – Dickey

Emmanuel United Church, Foxboro was the setting on Saturday, May 8 at 1 p.m. when Annamae Jennie Dickey, daughter of Mr. Earl Dickey, Bellville was united in marriage to Allan Edward Barnard, Oshawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Barnard, RR 5, Madoc. Rev. Abel Parsons officiated and wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Robert Sills.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an A-line wedding gown of crystal peau in empire style with the bodice and sleeves of the gown in Venise lace enhanced with high roll collar and cuffs of crystal pearl. The back of the gown was highlighted with a full length train extending from the middle and was edged with matching lace. Her four tiered scalloped silk illusion veil was caught to a petal headdress of lace encrusted with pearls and aurora borealis. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and fern.

Miss Linda Lee Brough, cousin of the bride as maid of honor, wore a gown of lilac organza over taffeta in empire style with long sleeves and high frilled neckline trimmed with lilac daisies and centred with green leaves in Guipure lace. She wore mauve 'mums in her hair and carried a bouquet of white and mauve 'mums. Bridesmaids Mrs. Ralph Detlor and Miss Elsie Barnard, sister of the bridegroom were attired identically to the maid of honor.

Lawrence Barnard attended his brother, while the ushers were Wayne Barnard, brother of the bridegroom and Murray Caley.

A reception was held in the church hall, where the bride's aunt Mrs. Morden Brough welcomed the guests wearing a dress of rose shantung with matching coat, rose and black accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses and white 'mums. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing an alabaster white crepe dress with matching jacket, turquoise and black accessories and a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses and turquoise tinted 'mums.

For the wedding trip the bride chose a dress of turquoise knit with matching sleeveless coat, black patent accessories and a corsage of yellow 'mums.

On return Mr. and Mrs. Barnard will reside at 319 Crerar Avenue, Oshawa.

Ann Landers

Real Common Name Results in Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I say a word to "Marmaduke Crumbum," the guy who wanted to know how to go about changing his name legally because it was so different? He doesn't know how lucky he is to have a name that is out of the ordinary.

ANN LANDERS

My name is not Joe Smith but it's equally common. I hate it. Wherever I go I am one of many. In school it was always a mess. In the Army it was worse. I was forever getting somoody else's mail. Now, it's a problem with the bills. And since the computers handle everything, there's no way out.

My wife and I have agreed to give our children ridiculously far-out names so that no one will ever forget them. People may laugh, but they will remember. — JOE.

* * *

DEAR JOE: In behalf of Birdseed Wilson, Tonsilitis Moore and Numlerrsgame Jones, I thank you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Is there a cure for a man who is so tight with money that he makes his wife's life hell? My husband earns a good salary — over many years. But he is so afraid of being poor again that he counts pennies. He makes $1,500 a month and our expenses run about $300. He must have a small fortune saved. When I ask him what we have in the bank he says, "Enough so we won't starve if something happens to my job."

As time goes on he becomes worse instead of better. We cannot enjoy life because he is so tight-fisted he won't spend money to see a movie and gets mad when I go. He never wants to eat out because it's cheaper to eat at home. When I ask him for money to make a donation to a worthy cause he says, "Who will take care of me when we are down and out?"

Can extreme poverty in childhood do this to a person? Please help me understand, and tell me what to do. — SCROOGE'S WIFE.

* * *

DEAR WIFE: Yes — extreme poverty in childhood can do that to a person, and this is probably what happened to your husband. Poor fellow has a clinker in his thinker.

Statistically you will survive Scrooge. This means he will have scrimped and saved all of his life, denying himself many simple pleasures because he was unable to part with a buck. Sad. My condolences to him and to others who suffer from the same illness.

* * *

DEAR ANN: I was touched by the beautiful letter from the 15-year-old boy who was so kind and generous to the old man who lived next door. It was a heart-warming letter and I thank you for it. I'd give 15 years of my life for a son like that. — SCARSDALE.

* * *

DEAR SCARS: I'll bet that's about what the boy's mother gave — 15 years of her life. Thanks for writing.

Fibrosis Clinic

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — The University Medical Centre has opened a cystic fibrosis clinic similar to those already operating in Montreal and Quebec City. The clinic will help local patients who often pay from $50 to $100 a month for drugs alone, not including the cost of office visits, specialized treatments and equipment for home care.

Second Glance

By Viva Richmond Graham

O MONEY, MONEY, MONEY

"Money . . . represents the prose of life." — Emerson.

* * *

Congratulations were in hand when a member of the family came home flourishing a bank-note which he had rescued (I didn't mind stooping down for it, one bit!") from a muddy street puddle, and then we all began commiserating with the unknown loser.

"But why is it such a calamity to lose money?" one wished to know.

"Because it is," declared an uncle. "I don't mind spending it, but to lose money is the ultimate insult. In the first place it isn't all that easy to come by, and then perhaps Somerset Maughan precisely put it by saying that it is like a sixth sense without which you cannot make a complete use of the other five."

Lost-money incidents capturing universal interest appearing as news items were recalled and related:

"Take the case of an Albert Schroeder in Melbourne, Australia, whose three asters with whom he lived noted his night-ly habit of going out to his chicken coop over a period of 40 years. His purpose in going to his chicken coop was to burn the unsightly chicken stash away his egg money in old paint cans, unknown to his asisters.

"When he died at the age of 84 his asisters hired men to coop. Suddenly they frantically tried to douse the flames; bank notes were going up in smoke everywhere. Police estimated from ashes in the cans, thousand's of dollars were lost. A sum of $11 was salvaged. Said his sister Violet, 'We thought it best sent out to take care of the chickens'."

This was another incident, recalled: "Think how 18-year-old Michael Cottle of Lynwood, Washington felt when the $500 which he had saved from the age of 10, and kept in an old wallet, was unwittingly thrown into the garbage by his mother, when she emptied a little waste basket. His 12-year-old brother had thought the basket a better hiding place than the wallet, placed the money in it and covered it over with scraps of paper.

"Michael's mother said on learning what she had done, she alerted the family and neighbors who rushed to the garbage dump in time to see tons being emptied. 'We dug,' she said, 'with sticks for about 20 minutes before we found the money. It was terrible experience. But weren't they lucky?'

Still another cited: "How would you feel if your 2-year-old son tossed a cookie-box containing family savings of $2,645 out of the car, as you were driving to the drive-in movie? That's what little Richard Brown of Baltimore did recently, with the box his mother had taken along for safe-keeping. People ran from their homes, dodged traffic to scoop up fistfuls of currency floating from the cookie box — as other cars run over it. However, many, after second thoughts, turned their found money over to the police, who returned $2,197 to the Browns."

"Extreme miserliness elicits almost as much universal horror as lose," our Aunt observed, and spoke of an 89-year-old spinster, Ann McQuilken Keeple of Delmont, Pa. A recluse, she used a flashlight to save electricity, had no indoor toilet facilities and raised the roof when the state sales tax went up one percent. She died several years ago, leaving an estate of $1,250,000.

There was rejoicing, however, upon hearing of Mrs. Ingar Guhren of Stockholm, Sweden, who, when a gunman entered the bank where she was cashier, and grunted, "money", merely asked, "why?" as she haughtily raised her eyebrows — all of which completely routed the would-be-thief.

Bravo! Mrs. Guhren.

Twin Tattoos

BRISTOL, England (AP) — Marianne and Ivor Holder were married in a civil ceremony recently, then went to a tattoo parlor. Now Ivor has "Till Death" on his left wrist, and Marianne has "Do Us Part" on her right. Ivor, 32, said he and the 25 - year - old bride have been tattoo enthusiasts for years. Drawing Protests

TORONTO (CP) — The University of Toronto was accused at a public hearing on a university proposal to abolish its faculty of food sciences. Shirley Cornfield, a food sciences graduate, contended the university had neglected the faculty, allowed the staff to dwindle and failed to search for sources of research grants.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. Williams, Oak Hills, Stirling, announce the engagement of their daughter Nancy Elizabeth to Mr. Howard Robert Garrod, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Garrod, Ottawa, Ontario. Marriage will take place June 19, 1971 at 4.00 p.m. in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville.

* * *

Previous to her recent marriage Mrs. Allan E. Barnard (nee Annamae Dickey) was honored at a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Barbara Delior, Miss Elsie Barnard and Mrs. Betty Lambie at the home of Mrs. Lambie. A rehearsal party was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Clayton Johnson of Belleville announce the engagement of their daughter Brenda Joyce, to Mr. Raymond Joseph O'Coin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo O'Coin, also of Belleville. The marriage will take place on Saturday, July 3, 1971, at 3 p.m., in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville.

Hard Work

TORONTO (CP) — A day in the life of a top model is not as glamorous as it appears on the surface. As Marianne Lenchuk, a top model and mother of two sons tells it: "Behind the scenes modelling is plain, hard work." Marianne, in private life Mrs. Marianne Grosh, ought to know. She started modelling some years ago after wheeling a couple of beauty titles and being crowned Miss Toronto in 1957.

Transfers for Pottery Developed About 1750

The printing of patterns for transfer to china and pottery was first developed about 1750. It represented the culmination of a number of skills. First, the development of a strong transfer paper without oils that could take the design. Second, the development of the technique for engraving copper plate.

Beyond these basic inventions it required a whole battery of technicians and determination on the part of the potters.

Once the plate had been engraved the printer had to size the tissue which he did with soap or glue. Then he heated the copper cylinder plate, filled the engraved lines with color, ran off the pattern on tissue, then repeated the process.

The tissue, which contained all the design he applied, centre medallion, edge decoration, back stamp, was taken by a setter, who trimmed the pattern and arranged it for the transferer.

Transferring was usually done by a woman and required great dexterity and strength. A good transferer made the pattern match exactly and replaced with her hands the pressure of the cylinder press on the pottery. The slightest fraction of an inch error was noticeable. The transfer had to adhere perfectly so the print would be absorbed.

Once the transfer had been made to adhere firmly it was carefully removed, using water. A careless gesture would remove the pattern and ruin the pottery as well.

The pottery was then dried, heated, glazed and fired, to emerge as the finished product. Because the glaze was over the pattern it had superior wearing qualities, much better than other wares on the market. The full development of the process is credited to Josiah Spode in the 1780's. The characteristic color of the printing was blue, which would stand up to kiln-firing and allowed for color gradations.

Earthenware of the 1780's was generally cream-colored. With the development of Spode's blue cobalt oxide transfer - printing, white became the important background. At the beginning of the 19th century transfer-printed designs changed from decorative borders to scenery.

Glaze applied over the transfer added depth to the design and in some cases gave a remarkable three-dimensional effect. In the 1830's taste changed and a blurred effect was desired now known as "flow blue". It looks as though it has been left out in the rain and the color ran. The effect was intentional and was extremely popular in its day.

In 1845 synthetic colors were introduced and the blues became stronger and harsher.

Transfer printing continues to be used. Modern pieces (since 1891), are either marked with a country of origin or say "Made in . . .". The piece illustrated is modern Wedgwood in a 19th century design and still being produced.

In North America the most prevalent early transfer printed wares were made by Spode and Ridgway. Scenic patterns are especially desirable and the price is rising. Even "Blue Willow" the commonest of blue printed wares, is desirable and collectible.

ST. ANDREW'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY

Mrs. W. Clendenan announced the spring rally to be held on May 19 at the recent meeting of the missionary society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held in the church parlor. This month, prayers will be offered for the fellowship houses and those who look after them.

A discussion was held regarding a coffee break to be held in the church on June 2. Mrs. R. White took the study book, assisted by Mrs. Bennett. Miss F. Matthews and Mrs. W. Mantle. The meeting closed with prayer.

A Suitable Poem for Calorie Counters

By DORIS CLARK

O.G.I.C. IT COMING

There, was a time when I could dress
In garments sweetly labelled "S";
Alas, I had to switch from them
To somewhat ampler ones marked "M".
And now it isn't hard to tell
I'm inching toward that demon "L".
No longer do I dare refuse
To mind my diet P's and Q's,
Or some day I am apt to be
What's lustily known as F.A.T.!!

Mrs. Jean Hyatt Addresses May Meeting of QMSA

The May meeting of the QMSA was held at the home of Mrs. Max Cathcart and chaired by President Diana Maxwell. Members welcomed guests - Mrs. Rosemary Belanger from Dr. R. F. Miranda's office, Mrs. Saundra Deane from Dr. G. A. Pearce's office and Miss Mary Beth Plumpton from Dr. J. R. Scott's office.

Members will be attending the Ontario MSA convention this Tuesday and Wednesday in Toronto. On June 9, the local group will be joining the Kingston MSA for their annual dinner to be held this year at the Pine Lodge Inn in Kingston. QMSA are busily planning their annual potluck supper for June 16.

Guest speaker for the evening was Mrs. Jean Hyatt, Director of Hastings and Prince Edward County Health Unit. This Health Unit covers a vast area and has been involved in a pilot project - being responsible for immunization and hearing level scans of children in school and pre - school immunization. They also hold pre-natal clinics, including a special clinic for fathers - in waiting. Tuberculin testing in the schools is being planned for the fall along with drug counselling programs in the high schools. This busy Health Unit is also considering holding courses, workshops and family planning clinics. Mrs. Hyatt was thanked by Jacki Vivian.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Eileen Conley and Mrs. Lena Anderson.

Mother: "The dolls cost the same. I thought you would like them to be a little different. After this I'll get gifts that are exactly the same."

Even twins should not feel they always must receive identical gifts or even gifts of identical value. Certainly children of different ages should not. Let each child know you chose a gift especially to please her, and not because you want to keep things peaceful.

A Request for French Dressing

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I made all of your salad dressings in the paper two weeks ago but I want to make my own French dressing. Would you please tell me how you make yours?
— Sara S.

ANSWER: There are several versions of French Dressing but the one I am giving below has some choices to follow it for your basic dressing.

FRENCH DRESSING

½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. dry mustard (optional)
⅛ tsp. MSG
¼ tsp. paprika
1-16 tsp. freshly ground black pepper
⅛ tsp. sugar (optional)
2 tbsps. lemon juice
1 tbsp. vinegar
2 tbsps. water
2 tbsps. Rose wine (optional)
⅛ cup olive or salad oil
1 sliced clove garlic (optional)

Measure all ingredients into a jar with snug-fitting lid. Shake well. Keeps indefinitely in covered jar in refrigerator.

QUESTION: One of my neighbors is from the Orient and she soaks rice in cold water and cooks it in the soaking water and each grain is separate. Could you tell me the proportions? — Annie G.

ANSWER:

BOILED RICE (Cantonese style)

1 cup raw long grain rice
2½ cups cold water
½ tsp. salt

Two hours before mealtime into heavy pot with tight-fitting lid measure the three above ingredients and let stand. One-half hour before mealtime place over high heat and bring to rapid boil. Do not remove lid. Turn off heat for 5 min. Turn on heat as low as possible for 20-25 min.

Dear Doris: I felt I must write you to say that your answer to Disgusted views the behavior in question narrowly. As a mother, and wife of 10 years to an intelligent professional man who is both a loving husband and an excellent father of three children, I too am addicted to loving and intimate embraces when our children are around. I know that they are the result of my husband's translation of loving thoughts and a healthy physical appetite in action.

I wonder, especially in the light of the new baby boy, whether the husband in question hasn't had a dearth of physical affection. I know, if the baby is new, how differently the sexual appetites of men and women can be after some period of deprivation and the woman's emotional upheaval of childbirth. This might be a consideration to act on.

I'm also quite sure that a three-year-old's mind is not so much corrupted by such actions, as it is shaped by the strong catechisms of the parents to the actions. Do realize that most loving married couples have intimacies of their own. — A Faithful Reader

Dear Faithful: Thank you. I appreciate your thoughts in this case, though, one parent's reactions were pretty strong, and the two were obviously not together on the issue. Doesn't this count?

Dear Doris: You give marvelous help. Please could we have more information on what movies are fit to see? Or could you speak to teenagers to try to avoid seeing these, and maybe rebelling, themselves?

As a result we may have a better world in which they will be able to bring up a generation of better individuals — less crime, etc. — A Concerned Parent

Dear Parent: Do you really think it worked, when our main effort was directed to saving young ears from hearing the bad words, and young eyes from seeing violence and various aspects of "sin"?

I can just see today's teenagers, with their lively curiosity, eagerly snooping into anything which has been earmarked as censored. I don't like the rude, offensive presentations either, but thank Heaven our kids get their moral values from the homes they are raised in.

The one way to identify movies worth seeing is to read the reviews.

To know all is to forgive all. Let Doris help you to understand and live happily with those you care about.

Stamps Commemorate Politician, Explorer

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Described as a mysterious man in Canadian history, Louis Joseph Papineau is remembered as a leading spokesman of French Canadian hopes and an opponent of parti Canadien in a battle for constitutional reform that lasted until the 1837 rebellions.

Samuel Hearne in July of 1771, became the first European to reach the Coppermine River and Canada's Arctic coast by travelling overland. His written records provided much needed research of the forbidding 5,000-mile territory.

On Friday, May 7, the Canada Post Office released 12 million commemorative six-cent stamps honoring these famous Canadians.

Both stamps, of a rather drab, yellowish color format, are printed by the British American Bank Note Co. Ltd. The Papineau stamp offers a striking variance in design with the bust of the member of the Legislative Assembly of Canada in dark blue and black . . . a contrast to the mellow background design.

The Hearne issue is a simple reproduction of portions of the Copper Mine River map. The over-all impression is one of an old parchment map.

Louis Joseph Papineau became speaker in the assembly in 1815 and held this post for the next 20 years. He did not enjoy politics the records show; this world separated him from his family life and seclusion in Montebello, location of his seigniory.

Born in 1786, he became a lawyer but was at loose ends until asked to run for the legislature. Noted for inspiring the famous 92 Resolutions of 1834, an extreme presentation of grievances coupled with demands for elective institutions, this stand was his last attempt to gain reform constitutionally before the rebellions of 1837.

It was in that year he began touring rural counties to drum up popular support and drum up popular support and promote a boycott of imported products. However, events moved too rapidly for his plans and the rebellion failed in the offing.

Although his effective political career was over, he returned to public life ten years later, in 1847 and sat as an isolated oppositionist until retirement in 1854. Henri Bourassa carried on the political leadership traditions of his grandfather, whose life ended in 1871.

Explorer, seaman, author and historian, Samuel Hearne was borne in London, England, in 1745.

In the service of the Hudson's Bay Company at Fort Prince of Wales, he was commissioned to search for a northwest passage and to locate a copper mine, rumors of which had been passed on by the Indians.

Two abortive attempts to reach his goal were followed by a successful mission accompanied by famed Indian leader Matonabbee, who served as guide to the Hearne party.

Although neither northwest passage nor copper mine were discovered, Hearne's journal and records provided explorers with a wealth of information concerning wildlife and geography. In 1774 he founded the Company's first inland post, Cumberland House in present east - central Saskatchewan.

Retired in 1787, he lived out the rest of his years in London, until his death at the age of 47 in 1792.

Philatelic stock is available from the Philatelic Service, Canada Post Office, Ottawa, Ont. K1A, 0B8.

School Site Cleaned Up

PICTON (Staff) — Litter and garbage lying behind the partially demolished Mary Street Public School has been removed by town workers. A letter received from a Mary Street resident at council's May meeting emphasized the property's condition and urged action by town councillors.

"To say that this property as it is now, is a disgrace to the town of Picton, and in particular to the residents and taxpayers in its immediate vicinity, is rather a mild statement," the letter observed. Reference also was made to "shenanigans" at the former school site. The letter writer claimed the appearance of the property coupled with incidents occurring there "depreciates the value of all surrounding property and should warrant an adjustment to lower assessments."

Councillor Ross Cronkwright concurred with the Picton resident's complaints regarding the property's appearance, that behind the school "it is worse than the dump." He was promptly informed by Picton reeve Albert Pirrth that the litter at the school had been removed from town streets and trucked there because here was no other place to dump it. He assured council the property would be cleaned up and the interior of the old school tidied.

Reeve Pirrth earlier had urged fellow councillors to consider the remaining portion of the former school as a possible site for a lock-up and town offices. It was noted, however, to build an addition to the Picton fire hall to house these facilities.

The paved schoolyard is now used as a free parking area for shoppers, since the building is located only a short distance from Main Street.

Now that's a lot of car for your money. And we can prove it.

You've always had more value for your money with a Big Chevrolet—Caprice, Impala, Bel Air and Biscayne. Now there are lots more reasons to see a big, new Chevrolet...including a chance to win up to $30,000.

Let's check out the value reasons first. Standard power front disc brakes for improved straight-line stopping. New double-panel steel roof, at no extra cost, keeps noise out, comfortable quiet in. And, Chevrolet was judged the roomiest car in its class by Automotive Industries magazine. Stretch out in a Big Chevy. And ride smooth on the longer (121.5 inches) wheelbase. Get a better look at things too, because there's even 15% more glass area in the windshield.

You can depend on Big Chevrolet because of side-guard door beams and 25 other safety and security features. Check out Big Chevy's value—when you buy and when you trade. Big Chevy—that's a lot of car for your money. Need even more proof? See your Chevrolet dealer.

You could win up to $30,000.

But hurry. Entries must be in by May 31st. Chevrolet. Putting you first keeps us first.

Some of the equipment illustrated is optional at extra cost.

You cut down on air pollution, too.

About a decade ago, we made a promise to remove our cars from the air pollution problem.

Today we're making good. We're almost there.

1971 Chevrolets emit 80% less hydrocarbons than typical cars of roughly ten years ago. And about 2/3 less carbon monoxide.

Best of all, we're testing devices that can reach control levels as high as 95%.

But it hasn't been easy. We've had to develop devices that muzzle and reburn exhaust fumes.

Devices that check wayward gases around the crankcase vent.

Devices that prevent the escape of raw gasoline vapors.

We've even had to invent instruments sophisticated enough to measure the effectiveness of these devices.

The goal and reward have been one and the same: cleaner air.

Estimates are that if all North American industry could make similar strides, and all cars on the road today were emission controlled like '71 Chevrolets, we'd be breathing 1940 air.

You might call that a great step backward. A step we've been proud to take.

Chevrolet has been and will continue to be your number one shoulder to lean on when you can't see both.

Junior Issue Simmers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

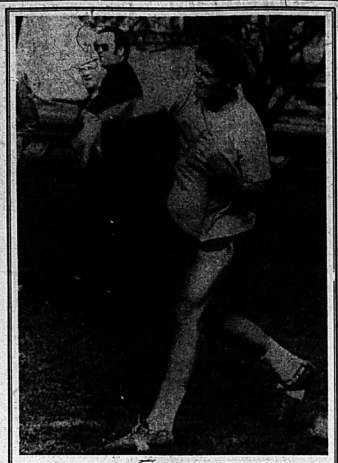
Edmonton Oil Kings move to Quebec City today to meet Quebec Remparts in a playoff for the Memorial Cup, a trophy which, until Friday, wasn't supposed to be awarded this year.

And because the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association turned its back on the Ontario Hockey Association in approving the national junior championship, the issue could have repercussions at the annual CAHA meeting in Thunder Bay, Ont. next weekend.

OHA president Clarence (Tubby) Schmalz said Friday he will bring the issue up at the annual meetings.

The OHA's first - level junior group and the Quebec Junior Hockey League had until this week stood together against a national playoff with the Western Canada Hockey League from which Edmonton emerged this year's champion.

At a meeting in Toronto two weeks ago, the presidents of all CAHA branches except Ottawa district voted to withhold any decision on awarding the Memorial Cup until the meetings at Thunder Bay.



That position was reversed Friday when an official vote of the CAHA board of directors approved a three-game Memorial Cup series between Edmonton and Quebec starting Monday.

Events leading up to the CAHA's change of position have occupied headlines during the last week:

—A week ago today St. Catharines Black Hawks of the OHA were in Quebec City for the fourth game of their best-of-seven eastern final against the Remparts. The Remparts won to take a 3-1 lead in the series but the Hawks were pelted by debris thrown by angry Quebec fans. The Hawks players later had to duck to the floor of their bus to avoid debris thrown through the bus windows by an angry crowd of about 2,000.

—Wednesday, the Hawks management appealed to the CAHA executive, meeting in Toronto, to move a sixth game, if necessary, to Montreal instead of Quebec City. The CAHA refused, saying adequate police protection had been assured for a sixth game at Quebec.

Meanwhile, representatives of the Quebec league abandoned the OHA and agreed with the WCHL that if the Remparts won the series, they would meet Edmonton for a Memorial Cup playoff.

Never Too Early

The Stanley Cup finals are still in progress but its not too early for the Canadian Football League to begin training for the upcoming season. Quarterback Greg Barton, a player Toronto Argonauts obtained recently from the Detroit Lions of the National Football League, tosses a football around in a workout in Toronto. Larose Agrees With Richard: MacNeil A Failure As Coach

MONTREAL (CP) — Peter Mahovlich figures he will be traded if the Montreal Canadiens will be laughing when the Stanley Cup final series with Chicago Black Hawks is over.

He said as much when the team returned here Friday after Thursday's 2-0 loss to the Hawks in Chicago which left the Canadiens trailing the best-of-seven series 3-2.

"We'll be laughing when this all is over," the tall forward said, pointing to victory in Sunday's sixth game here which Chicago Tuesday.

would force a seventh game in

But his words did not carry a ring of confidence they had carried when Montreal edged Boston Bruins in the quarter-finals or when they returned here last week trailing 2-0 in the series.

The reason for that may be a tenseness felt by the club—a result of Henri Richard's tirade against coach Al MacNeil following Thursday's game.

Richard called MacNeil the worse coach he had ever played for, "an incompetent coach."

"He's the worst coach I ever played for in my whole career," Richard was quoted as telling some French-language reporters.

Richard was reported miffed at having little ice time following a first-period penalty he sat out.

"It's hard to win games when they're run like that," he was quoted as saying.

"It may be easy to win games by frequent line changes with a club like the Voyageurs, but it doesn't work like that in the National Hockey League."

MacNeil coached the Voyageurs, Montreal's entry in the American Hockey League, during the 1969-70 season.

"I always gave 100 per cent," Richard said.

"I never loafed and I don't deserve to be benched. I'm paid to play."

HENRI RICHARD

Richard was a little sheepish Friday when the team boarded a plane to return to Montreal and all he would tell reporters was:

"I should have kept my mouth shut."

No sooner did he quiet down than did a story appear in a French-language daily quoting right winger Claude Larose as being disgusted with his coach.

"I have never criticized a coach in my life, but today, I'm disgusted," Larose told a French-language reporter.

"I've got nothing to lose and I'm certain that I won't be in the Canadiens' organization next year," he is quoted as saying.

For that reason, Larose said he felt he could speak out.

"MacNeil simply has not been honest with me since he replaced Claude Ruel last December," Larose is quoted as saying.

He said he was not the only Canadiens player who felt this way about MacNeil, adding that Richard, John Ferguson and Pierre Bouchard also shared his sentiments.

The teams play the sixth game Sunday afternoon, a 2:03 EDT start which will be televised by the CBC television network.

Should Canadiens lose, it's all over until next season.

General-manager Sam Pollock feels, however, that Richard and his team-mates will come back strongly against Chicago.

CLAUDE LAROSE

"The same kind of thing happened four years ago and Henri came back and helped us win the Stanley cup against St. Louis," he said when he learned of the incident.

Favorite Has Long Way to Go To Live Up to Preakness Billing

BALTIMORE (AP) — The phoney Black-Eyed Susans and the weathervane paints are ready, as Preakness tradition demands, but something will have to give if Jim French goes to post as the favorite today.

Favorites have won more than 50 per cent of the previous 95 runnings of the $150,000-added classic, and Jim French has been cast in that role to halt the Triple Crown bid by Kentucky Derby winner Canonero II.

However, only once since the Preakness began at Pimlico race course in 1873 has a winner broken from the No. 11 post position which Jim French and jockey Angel Cordero Jr. will occupy today.

With 11 starters, nine less than the Derby, the extreme outside stall shouldn't prove a hindrance, and Jim French is a late rallier anyway.

Nine of the starters are from Kentucky, where 67 per cent of the previous Preakness winners were foaled. The only exceptions this year were Maryland-bred Royal J D, and Impetuosity from Florida.

Royal J D, with jockey Eddie Belmonte aboard, is also the lone gelding.

Regardless of the traditions to break or uphold, the starting gate is scheduled to open at 5:40 p.m. EDT. If 11 start, each carrying 126 pounds, the gross purse of the second leg of the Triple Crown will be $189,000, with the winner getting $137,400.

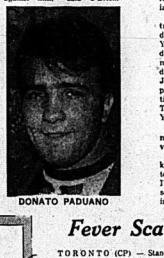
The 1 3-16 mile classic will be telecast on the CBC national network.

With clear skies and temperatures in the 70s forecast, a crowd of about 40,000 was expected.

After the race, the winning owner's colors will be painted on the blouse of the jockey atop the weathervane on the clubhouse.

The winning horse is traditionally presented a blanket of Black-Eyed Susans, the Maryland state flower. But since the flower doesn't bloom in Maryland during May, the centres of hundreds of daisies are died with shoe polish.

Paduano Joins 'Big Boys'



NEW YORK (CP) — Donato Paduano's invasion into boxing's middleweight division could be a one-night stand, if all goes the way Bobby O'Brien says it will when the two fighters meet in their scheduled 10-round bout in Madison Square Garden Monday night.

O'Brien, a rugged six-foot-one Irishman from Bayside, Long Island, says he will force the Montreal fighter into submission and "send him back with the little boys in his own division."

"I will give Paduano so much pressure that he will think we are siamese twins," O'Brien said in an interview. "He will fight my fight because he has no choice."

O'Brien, despite his height and reach advantage, is an oddity in that respect. He likes to bang away inside instead of stabbing and running as most lanky fighters prefer.

"I have seen the way Paduano fights, and I have seen the way his opponents do best against him," said O'Brien.

DONATO PADUANO

"Pressure, pressure, pressure. "And little Paduano is gonna know the meaning of the word in whatever language he prefers," O'Brien said of the Italian-born Canadian.

Johnny Sulla, O'Brien's trainer, is no stranger to Canadian fighters. The little New Yorker has trained many Canadian imports into boxing's mecca, including the late Canadian lightweight champion Johnny Greco of Montreal and present Canadian heavyweight titleholder George Chuvalo of Toronto on their visits to New York.

Paduano, commenting on his move into the middleweight division, said:

"It's been very hard for me to keep my weight down in order to fight as a welterweight. Now I'm going for a middleweight so I can enjoy a pasta dish once in a while.

Windsor Meet Stalled

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The opening of thoroughbred racing at Windsor raceway has been delayed again.

Tony Simms, director of racing, announced Friday that Sunday's card had been cancelled because of labor problems with Local 628, Teamsters Employees International Union.

The season was scheduled to open Friday but that day's card and today's were cancelled.

Mr. Simms said Windsor Raceway still is hoping for a settlement with its mutuals employees but added that the earliest possible opening now is Wednesday.

The union has asked for a $2-a night increase for all workers. The company has offered $2.70.

Fever Scare Spreads

TORONTO (CP) — Standardbred horses with swamp fever will be barred from The Jockey Club's Ontario Harness race circuit as of June 1, racing director Ed Bradley said Friday.

"That date applies to shippers —horses come to us from other tracks or from farms."

Garden City Raceway in St. Catharines opens Sunday for a 47-day meet and the new rule will prevent infected horses from being entered there.

Horsemen with stock stabled at Garden City and at Mohawk near Campbellville will be given until July 15 to have their horses tested for the disease, Bradley said.

"It takes time to have all the horses tested and we have to allow for a breakdown in procedure."

The agriculture department has been conducting tests for two weeks and four horses were found to have the disease. The department regulations state an infected horse must be either isolated or destroyed.

Czech Netters Advance

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Czechoslovakia advanced to the semi-finals of the European Zone A Davis Cup tennis competition Friday with a doubles victory over Portugal.

The Czechs, who won both singles Thursday, took an unbeatable 3-0 lead in the best-of-five match when Jan Kodes and Jan Kukal defeated Raul Peralta and Afredo Vaz-Pinto 6-0, 6-2, 6-1.

France took a 2-0 lead over Finland and Spain made it 1-0 over Switzerland in other Zone A quarter-finals, Russia and Belgium split their opening singles and West Germany took a 1-0 lead over Austria.

In Zone B, Yugoslavia took 1-0 lead over Italy when Zeljko Franulovic defeated Nicola Pietranagelli 7-5, 8-6, 6-1. The second match, between Boro Jovanovic of Yugoslavia and Italy's Adriano Panatta was continued today because of darkness.

Szabolcs Baranyi defeated Georges Leguin 6-2, 6-2, 6-2 and Istvan Gulyas downed Joseph Offenheim 6-3, 6-2, 6-0 to give Hungary a 2-0 lead over Luxembourg in another zone B competition.

Lemon's Wright Move Proves Wrong for Royals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Wright move was the wrong one for Kansas City Royals manager Bob Lemon Friday night.

After Lemon lifted starter Ken Wright with a 2-0 lead in the ninth, Oakland Athletics scored five times for a 5-3 American League baseball victory.

Why pull a guy working on a four-hitter?

"Because that's the longest Wright has thrown in the major leagues," said Lemon. "that's why I didn't go with him any longer. He looked tired. I'd decided he'd had enough."

Wright, formerly a relief pitcher, made his first major league start May 2 against Baltimore Orioles and lost 3-2 in Mike Cuellar after going 4 1-3 innings. On May 9, he pitched 4 1-3 again and got credit for a 6-2 victory over Detroit Tigers.

After Wright walked the leadoff batter in the ninth on his 135th pitch, a parade of four relief pitchers marched in—but none could keep his finger in the dike.

"I kept bringing in someboy and kept hoping he could throw strikes," said Lemon, disgustedly, "but nobody could."

Washington Senators beat Detroit 3-2, Boston Red Sox tripped Baltimore 2-0, Cleveland Indians whipped New York Yankees 2-1, Minnesota Twins shaded Chicago White Sox 4-3 and Milwaukee Brewers stopped California Angels 4-1 in the other American League games.

Wright left the scene after walking Reggie Jackson. Reliever Tom Burgmeier walked Mike Epstein and gave way to Ted Abernathy, who walked Sal Bando to fill the bases. After Rick Monday hit into a force-out at home, Abernathy gave the Athletics the first run by walking Steve Hovley.

Tommy Davis greeted the Royals' next reliever, Al Fitzmorris, with a two-run single. Then Bert Campaneris delivered another two-run single off Jim York.

Oakland ace Vida Blue, who appeared on his way to a loss that would have snapped his eight-game winning string, said: "It's sure nice to come out of it with an 8-1 record instead of 8-2."

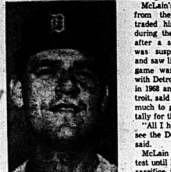
Sonny Siebert beat Jim Palmer in a mound battle as Boston stopped Baltimore. Siebert gave up eight hits to Palmer's five, but was able to pitch out of tight situations. Siebert knocked in one of the Red Sox runs with a seventh-inning single.

Greig Nettles' solo homer in the sixth broke a 1-1 tie for Cleveland and gave Ray Lamb his first American League victory and first as a starter in the majors.

Cesar Tovar tripled to open the ninth inning and roared home on pinch-hitter Rich Reese's infield bounder to give Minnesota its victory over Chicago. Rich McKinney and Tom Egan slugged homers off Minnesota's Jim Kaat in the seventh to tie the game 3-3.

Rookie Bill Parsons, getting late-inning relief help from Ken Sanders, helped Milwaukee beat California. Parsons went 6 2-3 innings, yielding four of the Angels' six hits. The 23-year-old right-hander limited his earned-run average to 1.83.

McLain Relishes Win



WASHINGTON (AP) — Denny McLain says his victory over Detroit Tigers wasn't the greatest one of his career. It ranks, however, of the 1968 World Series 'my greatest victory," said McLain after he beat Detroit 3-2 Friday night.

"But I've got to put this up among the best ones."

McLain's confidence stems from the fact the Tigers traded him to the Senators during the 1970 World Series after a season in which he was suspended three times and saw little action. Friday's game was his first meeting with Detroit since the trade. In 1968 and 69 in 1969 for Detroit, said he didn't have to do much to get himself up mentally for the Tigers.

"All I had to do is look and see the Detroit uniforms," he said.

McLain didn't win the contest until Paul Casanova hit a sacrifice fly in the ninth inning to score Toby Harrah who had doubled and moved to third on an infield out. McLain blew a 2-0 lead in the top of the ninth when he gave up a bases-loaded, two-run single to pinch-hitter Ike Brown.

Pitching Still Big Met Threat

Pitching is still the main strength of New York Mets, but nobody bullies their batting order anymore either.

The Mets continued to flex their muscles last night, pounding out 10 hits, including home runs by Bob Aspromonte and Cleon Jones, on the way to an 8-2 romp over Pittsburgh Pirates.

New York has won 13 of its last 16 starts for a two-game lead over the second-place Pirates in the National League East Division. And the Mets' .271 team batting average is high in the league.

"You can see what it means if you get hitting with our pitching," said manager Gil Hodges.

Last year, the Mets topped the NL in pitching but were ninth in club batting with a .249 mark while finishing third in the division title race.

In other National League action, San Francisco Giants whipped Los Angeles Dodgers 8-4, Cincinnati Reds downed Montreal Expos 5-2, Atlanta Braves and Philadelphia Phillies 3-2; St. Louis Cardinals beat Houston Astros 4-2 and Chicago Cubs defeated San Diego Padres 3-2.

Lefthander Jerry Koosman pitched his first complete game of the year for the Mets, who chased Pittsburgh starter Bob Johnson in the first inning, shooting ahead to stay on Ed Kranepool's two-run double.

They scored again in the second, padded the lead to 4-0 in the third on Jones' homer and wrapped it up with four runs in the seventh—the last three on Aspromonte's homer.

Aspromonte, who batted .213 as a part-time player with Atlanta last season, with no homers and seven runs batted in, has hit .265 thus far for the Mets and shares the club lead in homers, with three, and runs batted in with 15.

Kranepool, who had no homers, three RBI and a puny .170 average in 1970, is batting .333, with two homers and 11 RBI.

JERRY KOOSMAN

Jerry Grote, .351, Dave Marshall, .339, and Ilbil Buddy Harrelson, .319, also are swinging hot bats for the division leaders.

The Giants roared from behind with a five-run rally in the seventh inning to flatten Los Angeles and widen their West Division lead to nine games.

Chris Speier slammed his first major league homer and Willie Mays hit the 636th of his career for the Giants, who have won four in a row. Duke Sims drilled a two-run homer for the Dodgers.

Green Proves Scrambling Key to Golf Tour Success

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — "If you can't scramble, you don't belong out here," said Hubert Green, possibly one of the best scramblers of them all.

The 24-year-old tour rookie, who has threatened strongly in the three last tournaments, scrambled out of all sorts of trouble and took the second round lead in the $125,000 Houston Champions Invitational Golf Tournament Friday.

Green, winner of $34,200 already this year, had a second round 69, despite putting one shot in the water, visiting the pinewoods several times and ambling in and out of six sand traps.

"I was in so many traps I was beginning to feel like Lawrence of Arabia," drawled the Birmingham, Ala. native, a Florida State graduate who joined the pro tour late last year.

He had a 36-hole total of 137, five under par on the tough, 7,166 yard Champions Golf Club course, a tree-lined layout that sent the first round leaders reeling back in the pack and posed a variety of problems for pretourney favorite Arnold Palmer.

GEORGE KNUDSON

Kermit Zarley and Larry Hinson, who shared the 18-hole lead, each took a 73 for 142. Palmer also had a 73 and was well back at 146.

Canadian George Knudson of Toronto had 149.

Homero Blancas, a Houston native playing before his hometown fans, was just one stroke off the pace with a 68 and 138.

Blond Ben Crenshaw, a 19-year-old amateur who is a freshman at the University of Texas, barged into contention with a 69 for 139.

Crenshaw was tied for third with Dave Hill and Dewitt Weaver. Weaver had a 69 and Hill a 70.

"You can't penalize yourself by letting a bad shot bother you," said the lean, dark-haired Green. "That bad shot is history. If you let it bother you on your next shot, well, you'll probably hit that one bad too and it just goes on and on."

Minor Baseball Swings Away from All-starism

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

Minor baseball appears to be taking a swing away from the all-star oriented former years and more towards local district house league participation.

"We've had a great many boys sign up to play house league, maybe 100 more than last season, but the number turning out for the representative teams formerly called all-star teams) hasn't been as great," explains Belleville minor baseball president John Emerson. "Maybe our philosophy of gradually decreasing the emphasis on all-stars is beginning to catch on."

While the quantity of ballplayers turning out for the city's representative squads has been scaled down, the quality is high enough to warrant a great deal of enthusiasm in that section.

The youngest age group in the minor baseball association, which was started in 1960 by Ron Lapenette, is the tadpoles. They consist of boys 7-9 years of age and play on a scaled down version of a regulation baseball diamond and under a few modified rules such as an enlarged strike zone to encourage batters to swing freely.

There are no representative teams in this division, but with seven house league teams operating the number of boys participating is close to 100.

In the tyke age group (9-10 years old) there are a total of six house league teams. They play seven league games on a larger diamond than the tadpoles, but again some special rules are in effect such as the one governing the number of innings that a boy may pitch in a game.

The division is represented in Eastern Ontario Baseball action by the Tyke Tykes. Coaches Bob Revay and Bill Henderson have only three players returning from last year's team but hope to recruit some promising newcomers from the house league ranks.

They expect to rely heavily on the services of tadpole graduate Dale McTaggart, who hurled Plane's Concrete to the house league championship in that age group last season.

Second year players include catcher Bruce Bell and infielders Marty Henderson and Ken Revay.

The peewee division has a total of six teams lined up for house league action in addition to the representative team which will play EOBA opposition.

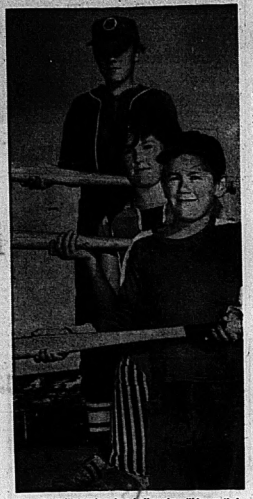
Coaches Darwin Hoskin and Jimmy Hall are banking heavily on a strong mound staff which includes lefthanders Clyde Rostley and Billy Whalen from last year's team and tyke graduate Peter Hall a righthander.

Murray Hanlon, who played minor baseball in Montreal last season is expected to supply some of the catching strength, while Simon Bennett, who performed previously in Toronto is expected to be in the thick of the fight for the first base position.

Returning from last season are infielders Paul Weeks, Tony Meagher, Howie Coons and Mike Burke.

The coaches stress that all positions are still open and welcome any ballplayers of ages 11 and 12 who wish to try out for the team.

In the bantam section for boys 13-15 years of age there are four house league teams operating this season as well as the Legion Branch 99 Midget Representative team.



The Lions midget representatives have about 30 boys vying for positions on the team and coaches John Emerson and Ron Lapenette hope to be able to field a house league team to play teams in the immediate area, as well as the regular EOBA entry.

Among the returnees from last year's team are fastball pitcher Carm McCaffery and curve ball artist Dale Bamber, who along with bantam graduate Ron McTaggart are expected to shoulder the bulk of the pitching load.

Other second year veterans include outfielders Steve Rushlow and Danny Lupenette along with infield candidates Dave Smith and Eric Tognette.

Five graduates of the Branch 99 bantams and an equal number of overage players from the Thurlow bantam all-stars are in the thick of the battle for starting positions.

The coaches share the optimism of their coaches throughout the minor baseball association which begins regular season play Monday, May 24.

Belleville's minor baseball ranks will be swelled by three new entries from Thurlow this season. Representing Thurlow tyke, peewee, and bantam entries are, from bottom to top, Tom Masterson, Sandy Waterson, and Rod Dafoe.

Thurlow Signs Up

It wasn't that Thurlow minor baseball teams had problems beating their Eastern Ontario Class "C" competition that caused them to cast their lot with the Belleville Minor Baseball Association. Instead it was the heavy costs of travelling to distant weekend games and high umpiring costs which the Thurlow teams found difficult to contest with.

For these reasons the teams, which have captured seven EOBA championships in the past five seasons have decided to forgo the all-star route and join the Belleville house league setup.

A total of 60 boys are involved in the Thurlow setup which includes the Thurlow Merchants bantams and Thurlow Foster peewees from last season as well as the newly formed Hopkins Auto Wreckers tykes.

In fact so many players turned out for the peewee team that coach Jerry Masterson was able to lend ten players to one of the Belleville entries in the house league.

Masterson will be looking after the coaching duties for Foster's again this season after piloting the team to the OBA peewee "C" finals last season.

Returning to action with the team will be pitcher Randy Adams along with outfielder Tony Lattone and infielder Brad Sullivan and Brian Masterson.

Former South Hastings performer Terry Casselman and Carmen Dafoe will handle the Merchant bantams this season after the team made it to the OBA semi-finals in 1970.

Players with previous bantam experience include infielders Craig Empey and Ross Geen as well as Peter Tumson and Bruce Sullivan who are slated for outfield duty.

The Hopkins peewees, in their first year of operation, will be handled by Neis Vader and Jerry Hill.

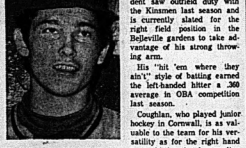
Juniors Boast One-two Batting Punch

Glenn Carleton and Brian Coughlan use widely different methods, but the end result is the same, supplying batting punch for the Belleville Kinsmen baseball junior entry.

Carleton a reedy 160 pounder relies on spraying the ball all fields and keeping the defence spread out to accomplish his offensive exploits while the six-foot, 200-pound Coughlan looks after much of the team's long ball attack.

Carleton, a 17 year old Centennial Secondary School student saw outfield duty with the Kinsmen last season and is currently slated for the right field position in the Belleville gardens to take advantage of his strong throwing arm.



His "hit 'em where they ain't" style of batting earned the left-handed hitter a .360 average in OBA competition last season.

Coughlan, who played junior hockey in Cornwall, is as valuable to the team for his versatility as for the right hand power hitting that he supplies.

The 18 - year - old sophomore could see action at first base, catcher, third base and the outfield this season.

Coughlan paced the Kinsmen in home runs last year with three round trippers in addition to his .340 batting average and should fill one of the third, fourth or fifth spots in the Belleville Juniors batting order this season.

The Kinsmen open their Eastern Ontario Baseball Association 24 - game schedule, Wednesday May 26 when Kendall will be at the Bellevillefairgrounds for an 8 p.m. contest.

Prince Edward-U. S. Linkup Revived by Picton Tycoon

PICTON (Staff) — Construction magnate and former mayor of Picton, Harvey J. McFarland has revived a plan to link Prince Edward with the mainland and the United States through a multi-million dollar bridge network.

Mr. McFarland announced yesterday that he plans to hold a meeting in Kingston for those immediately concerned with the project probably "within a month."

The Picton tycoon first introduced his proposal here two years ago at a dinner honoring Frank N. Piasecki, then owner of land holdings at the former Camp Picton. His remarks then were addressed to guests Hon. Jack Pennyman, federal minister of fisheries and Hon. George Gomme then minister of Ontario highways.

Mr. McFarland urged a plan to link the southern tip of Prince Edward with Amherst Island, in turn with Wolfe Island, the city of Kingston and Cape Vincent, New York. Then mayor of Picton, Mr. McFarland stated that if the government rejected the proposal he would be willing to form a company, construct the bridges himself and equip them with toll gates.

Mr. McFarland said yesterday his suggested network of bridges and causeways would open Prince Edward to the United States and dispense with three government ferries operated by the Ontario government. He estimated the cost of the required bridges at $70 million to $100 million. Two years ago Mr. McFarland said he thought his proposal could save the government approximately $7 million initially and reduce the cost of the ferries during a period of several years.

He said yesterday that a four - mile bridge linking Kingston with Wolfe Island could lead to "a tremendous connection scheme.

"It went over well then," said Mr. McFarland referring to his initial presentation of the plan two years ago. "Both the provincial and federal governments called it a good idea and I got many letters from the people living on the islands and they said it was a good idea."

When the proposal was introduced here two years ago Mr. Benson said the bridges would have to be paid for by the province of Ontario and that it would be necessary for the federal government to pass a bill because an international crossing to the United States would be involved.

Student Mechanics Compete

TWEED — Two senior students from Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc competed in the Chrysler Trouble Shooting Contest at Woodbine Raceway, Toronto.

Randy Geen and John Latchford brought home no outstanding prizes but mechanics' teacher, Grant Stapley, who accompanied the boys, said he felt the knowledge gained and the experience of practical work was beneficial to the students.

A Toronto school team topped the "A" division, while the winner of the "B" contest was the Picton Collegiate Institute team.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Children Can Have Diabetes

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I know that diabetes is hereditary, but are young children susceptible? Even if their parents or grandparents have it, isn't it likely they won't see it until they become much older.

I am 32 and the doctor has found sugar and diagnosed diabetes. My father also has diabetes. We have an only son who is 10 years of age. He appears healthy and playful.

The only thing we've noticed is that he's always asking for water or cokes. In fact, he'll drink anything because all we hear is, "I'm thirsty". And of course, as one might expect," he goes to the bathroom quite often to urinate.

Even though he feels well, would you suggest we take him to our pediatrician? He hasn't had an examination since he was a baby — Mrs. W.

• • •

Comment: It's really your suggestion — and a good one. Take him if for an examination. I believe his doctor will consider ordering a blood sugar tolerance test. With your family history of diabetes melitus, that is important.

The laboratory technician will give your boy a concentrated sugar drink and take blood specimens for sugar tests every hour for five or six hours. This will furnish the data on which we base the blood sugar tolerance curve. Examination of the urine is important, but the blood tests are more so.

Yes, it's possible to find diabetes in youngsters — especially when there is a distinct family history of diabetes. They may develop it rapidly.

As it happens, the symptoms of excessive thirst and urination, which your son has, often fit into the typical picture of a patient who has diabetes. But not necessarily. The sugar tolerance test will tell the story.

Although diabetes in youngsters can be serious, if it is diagnosed early and if proper diet and insulin dosage are instituted, the children can live normal lives.

To repeat: It's time for a complete checkup. Don't rely on urine examination alone.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am a teenager. My brother and I would like to purchase a sunlamp for use in treating our skin blemishes. We have heard people say that sunlamps sometimes cause skin cancer. Will you please let us have your views on the matter? — Miss L.

COMMENT: If my guess is correct that "skin blemishes" is an euphemism for "acne" — then a sunlamp may be helpful. However, better let your family doctor suggest what kind to get and how to use it.

I doubt that skin cancer is a probability, but overuse can cause severe burn and skin irritation. People don't get into trouble with sunlamps unless they "overtreat" themselves.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: This question has puzzled me quite often. At last I'm trying to find the answer. If a person takes aspirin for a headache, an antibiotic for an infection and vitamin-complex pills all at one time, what happens? Do they go their separate ways? Or, do they get all mixed up and do not good? — Mr. B.

COMMENT: They do their jobs. After they leave the stomach they get into the bloodstream and the circulation takes them to their various destinations. Even as a doctor, I often marvel at how efficiently the headache pill finds the head, the liver pill the liver, the heart pill the heart, and so on. Taken singly or together you can count on medications fulfilling their various duties.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For May 16

Your birthday today: This year is somewhat uphill but rewards vigor and is highly productive. You find and defend your principles rather than seek material gain. Emotional ties are tested — either strengthened by experience or rejected to make room for other relationships. Today's natives are gifted with an uncanny ability to take ideas apart or to present original thoughts in organized fashion. Their manners are tongue, much like the concise way they select words.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): What occurs this Sunday depends partly on how big a chip you carry on your shoulder, and you almost certainly have one about something. Don't permit casual comments to disturb you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Today's happenings will require you to get and give. Select times and terms and go ahead. Think about the coming week and what can be done in your career or regular work.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Even though it is Sunday, in the course of your rounds you may encounter a way of get. Jog a real bargain in property. Look about your neighborhood, get acquainted with newcomers.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Indications are that you fix dependon purely personal sheerest projects and are unlikely to let anything else take your attention. Others may misunderstand or be sensitive to a word of impatience.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Exemption from routine does not quite mean real freedom of expression — it's easy to say too much about things that are not fully defined.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Attend community customs, but let it go at that. People are settled in their grooves, unwilling to be jolted or coaxed out of them. Another time promises better; wait.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Quite a variety of chickens come home to roost. Whatever you promised to do for or about young people is now due, with little alternative open to you. Keep matters peaceful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Economy of energy and means is the key factor in your daily living. People want more than you can lend or give. Preserving healthy self-interest will not spoil friendships.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Gently does it! Direct candor, yes, but leave intact the sensibilities of associates. Serious reflection is essential.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): You share with most others the experience of being so deep into your own concerns that you don't respond readily or well to their suggestions. Concentrate on things which are best done single-handed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Sustain your share of the community's expressions of faith, then take it easy to conserve energy. There will be plenty of mental stimulus without asking for more.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Conventional surfaces persist in good order, but you must follow intuition rather than logic. Preserve a placid appearance while you cope with moods and tendencies which are quite stressful.

For May 17

Your birthday today: Your persuasive talents develop this year and should be used to establish a sounder base from which to operate. Take nothing for granted while retaining an intrinsically optimistic philosophy. Today's natives are endowed with tolerance and a capacity for industry which opens most career doors to them.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Open your day cheerfully, no matter what the circumstances. Co-operation is available where you are prepared to carry your full share of a group effort.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Financial deals have a way of getting complicated. Lending or borrowing almost certainly brings repercussions nobody anticipates. Wait for the full story before you act.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Sometimes adhering to traditions and rules works out better than any other approach. Pace your efforts, avoid haste and fatigue.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): The sympathetic side of your nature fills many needs — stay on the optimistic side wherever there is a question. Keep the initiative in your work situation.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Provocation is a natural element in your present environment. How you react to it is of interest to others as well as important to your immediate future.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Trifles, budget rearrangements neglected or misplaced articles and inconvenience, but may inspire you to a general clarification.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Drop old habits which are known to upset or annoy sensitive people. You get nothing good from time and energy spent being a nuisance so change courses.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Belated recognition for past efforts arrive. Accept comments within the limits of their sources, then make your own way as planned.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Fresh leads open and you likly follow them for a considerable distance. You learn much from any venture that begins now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): It is far better to straighten out details and conclude existing programs than indulge in partially organized new ventures. Be tactful with those who are impatient.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your enjoyment of the day depends on whether and how deeply you involve yourself with the cross-currents of competition and other people's projects, and how well you endure minor delays.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Ask for whatever you are sure you have earned in improvements, increases. Diligent application should bring useful, practical results.

Grain Bill

MPs At Odds Over Value to Farm Family

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons went to committee Friday a bill opposition MPs said will drive family farmers to the wall and the government says will protect them from the rigors of weather and world trade.

The government bill—given second reading and sent to the agriculture committee—has two main features.

It would provide a $100-million cash payment to grain growers for the 1970 crop year.

It would establish a joint farmer-government fund from which farmers could draw when the gross income of the grains industry falls below the average of the preceding five years.

Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin said he liked the principle, but promised Conservative opposition unless the bill is changed in committee.

It was another example of the "economic genocide against the small farmers," being perpetrated by the government.

But Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, said the fund would protect farmers from the disasters of weather and international price fluctuations.

He pledged the government's commitment to aiding farmers who are prepared to maintain operations.

John Burton (NDP—Regina East) said the bill reflects a reduction in the government's commitment to agriculture just as rural society is being threatened.

"Rural Canada is in a crisis situation. A process of disintegration is underway that could result in its complete destruction."

The stabilization plan made no allowance for soaring production costs faced by farmers.

He offered a motion—ruled out of order by the Commons Speaker—that would have raised the cash payment to $250 millions and linked the payments from the fund to rising farm costs.

Mr. Lang said that by basing the fund on gross income rather than net income, efficient farmers would be rewarded for keeping their costs down.

He rejected claims by opposition MPs that the fund would just stabilize poverty on the farm.

The five-year base for its first year of operation would include the best, second best and seventh, 10th and 11th best years in the history of the grains industry, he said.

The one-shot $100 million payment is intended to raise the 1970 income of farmers to about the average of the last five years.

It is a transition between the proposed stabilization fund and the scrapping of the Temporary Wheat Reserves Act, under which the government pays the storage cost of stockpiled grain over 178 million bushels.

Under the stabilization plan, farmers would initially pay up to $300 a year into the fund, or two per cent of the worth of their deliveries of the six quota grains—wheat, barley, oats, flax, rapeseed and rye.

The government would contribute four per cent of the value of all grain deliveries, or twice the amount paid by the farmers, whichever is greater.

Quebec Adds Fuel To Chicken-Egg War

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A burst of fire in the chicken-and-egg war between Quebec, New Brunswick and Ontario rattled through the Quebec national assembly Friday night with passage of legislation providing for the seizure of agricultural products sold without permits.

It came in the form of a bill authorizing the department of agriculture to regulate the marketing of products not handled through marketing agencies.

Other provincial legislatures sitting gave attention to procedural matters and, in the case of Ontario, to regulations in a huge provincial park, Algonquin.

The new Quebec law does not apply to products already handled by marketing agencies such as FEDCO, Quebec's egg marketing board which controls the sale of all eggs in the province.

Earlier this month a similar law providing for the seizure of eggs was passed, providing for fines of $500 for any individual and $1,000 for any corporation found illegally importing eggs into Quebec. Repeated offences could cost as much as $4,000.

When the bill regarding eggs was passed, Agriculture Minister Normand Toupin said that the two bills were in retaliation for Ontario's Bill 10 which restricts broiler chicken imports into that province.

Quebec has a surplus of broiler chickens.

FEDCO, established by the Quebec Federation of Egg Producers, started the war a year ago by restricting egg imports into Quebec to 40 per cent of the total provincial market in 1970.

Nw Brunswick entered the battle last Monday with a bill to curb the movement of broilers into the province. The bill, which needs only one more reading to become law, provides for fines up to $500 and prison terms up to six months.

Agriculture Minister Edison Stairs of New Brunswick said Quebec could ship in "massive quantities of broilers" and the N.B. industry was "threatened with extinction."

Legislation has also been passed by the western provinces and Nova Scotia, restricting the sale of chickens from outside each province in local markets.

The Supreme Court of Canada is to decide on the constitutionality of measures passed by Manitoba and Quebec. The British North America Act forbids trade barriers between provinces.

Under Two Mills

Scott Predicts Small Tax Hike

Budget Meeting This Afternoon

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

A tax increase of something less than two mills over last year's rate was predicted this morning by Mayor J. Russell Scott as city council prepared for its 1971 budget meeting this afternoon.

"Depending on the school board, the tax rate will go up less than two mills," Mayor Scott prophesied.

He didn't elaborate, however, on his comment with respect to school board costs.

Mayor Scott admitted that any increase in taxes was not palatable, but said the expected hike of less than two mills was good, considering the increased costs of operating the city.

He said wages have gone up an average of 18 per cent over last year, while equipment purchase costs have taken on a similar increase.

The mayor commended the budget advisory committee, which he said had gone very carefully over the budget to be presented by City Manager J. R. Reynolds.

"I hope the rate increase will not go any higher than two mills," the mayor said.

Last year's rate for residential property owners (public school supporters) was 48.5 mills, and for residential separate school supporters 50.79 mills.

Helping to offset this year's additional costs for wages, general operating costs and schools will be an $8 million boost in the city's taxable assessment, to $125 million.

Israeli Consul Is Kidnapped

ISTANBUL (Reuter) — The Israeli consul-general in Istanbul was kidnapped today, police reported.

The reports said eight armed and masked men broke into the residence of Consul-General Ephraim Elrom, tied him and made off in a car.

The residence is on Comburnyet Avenue, one of the busiest main streets in the city.

Police said the men tied up everyone in Elrom's home.

Police said he was driven off in a car through the busy traffic.

Police immediately set up barricades at each end of Comburiyet Avenue and stopped every car of the make used in the kidnapping.

Rail Strike Begins In U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pickets from the 13,000-member AFL - CIO Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen, their lines stopping member of other unions, began shutting down the vast United States rail system today.

In Key Biscayne, Fla., White House sources said President Nixon will ask Congress to end the strike by legislation if the walkout continues.

It was thought likely at the Florida White House, where Nixon spent the weekend, that the administration would make the request by the end of the day.

It was the fourth nationwide rail strike in the last 26 years.

No trains were reported moving in several cities and a Penn Central spokesman in Philadelphia said all of that company's trains were stopped or would be stopped as soon as possible.

The hardest hit area in the first few hours appeared to be New York, where thousands of commuters depend on trains to get to work each day.

The small union represents only two per cent of the rail industry's workers, but members of other unions were not crossing picket lines.

Pickets were reported at numerous points along the eastern seaboard and, as the strike time was reached in other time zones, strikers began appearing in other areas.

The strike came despite government efforts to mediate a settlement between the union and the National Railway Labor Conference, representing the rail owners.

Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson, who announced the shutdown in a 1:30 a.m. news conference, said the department would continue its efforts to mediate a settlement. But he did not mention any new bargaining sessions.

Hodgson said the strike will have a "disastrous effect" and, as soon as the impact of the walkout is determined, the labor department will ask Congress for legislation to restore service.

Moore was the cause of the breakdown in the marathon talks, Hodgson said, adding that progress had been made in settling non-wage differences. The union had asked for a 54-per cent increase spread over 36 months in the $3.78 hourly wage for skilled signalmen.

Management said it favored a formula, recommended by the emergency board President Nixon convened at the start of the cooling off period, for a 42-per-cent increase in 42 months.

Trudeaus Arrive In USSR

MOSCOW (AP) — Prime Minister Trudeau arrived in the Soviet Union today for talks with top Russian leaders and a tour that will include sunny central Asia and far northern Siberia.

It was the first visit ever made to the Soviet Union by a Canadian prime minister. Trudeau was accompanied by his 22-year-old bride, Margaret.

Trudeau's plane landed at Moscow's Vnukovo airport at 3:56 p.m. (8:56 a.m. EDT).

Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin was at the airport to meet the prime minister and his wife, who were married in early March.

During his scheduled 12-day stay in Russia, Trudeau will meet Kosygin and other Soviet leaders for talks expected to range over Europe and the Far East as well as bilateral relations.

Trudeau was originally scheduled to visit Moscow in October, but postponed his trip because of a kidnapping crisis in Quebec. Since then he has married and his wife will accompany him on his six-city Soviet tour after three days of talks in Moscow.

Sadat Wins Commendation By His Purge of Leftists

CAIRO (AP) — Few people thought Anwar Sadat had it in him to be a strong leader when he succeeded Gamal Abdel Nasser as Egypt's president seven months ago. His smooth and apparently effortless purge of leftist political opponents has changed his image.

"He really showed he had guts by taking them on," said a cafe waiter. "Good for him."

The government reported that thousands of Egyptians sent messages giving Sadat their complete backing. Workers and students marched through Cairo's streets Saturday in organized demonstrations of support.

Sadat confronted a group of six ministers and three political bosses Thursday and arrested them because, he said, they tried to overthrow him.

Part of the approval generally expressed for the president's action arose from the fact that the ousted men, and particularly Interior Minister Sharawai Gomaa, were widely disliked.

Sadat followed his initial move with a thorough cleanup of top administration posts, replacing holdovers from Nasser's days with his own men.

Scores, perhaps hundreds of government posts, seem due to change hands. For example, Sadat fired six senior officials of the government radio and television stations Sunday.

The president installed a new commander-in-chief of the armed forces, a new minister, a new chief of intelligence, a new district attorney and a new speaker of the national assembly.

A new 33-man cabinet, sworn in Friday, retained Premier Mahoud Fawzi and Foreign Minister Mahoud Riad. They have been prominent in assisting Sadat's efforts to reach a political settlement with Israel.

Sadat also said that Egypt's only political party, the Arab Socialist Union, will be reorganized to make it more representative. He promised "100-per-cent free elections supervised by myself."

A significant factor in the emergence of the new Sadat is that he apparently used only his personal prestige in knocking down his opponents. He called out no military units to round up his opponents.

Sadat's new confidence was evident in his 85-minute broadcast Friday in which he told his story of the power struggle.

Egyptians are unaccustomed to admissions of vulnerability from their leaders, but Sadat told them openly that the conspirators came close to toppling him. Only a tipoff by an unidentified young Egyptian officer ayoided disaster and gave him the information necessary to head off the plot, the president said.

Israel Expects Talk Lull

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli analysts predict a lull in negotiations with Egypt as a result of the uncertain political situation in Cairo following President Anwar Sadat's purge of his Egyptian rivals.

They said until the situation in Cairo clarifies, Washington will be unable to pursue its campaign for an Egyptian-Israeli agreement to permit reopening of the Suez canal.

Diplomatic manoeuvres also will be hampered for the rest of this month because Premier Golda Meir will be visiting Scandinavia, and Foreign Minister Abba Eban will be touring Africa.

Israeli leaders took a restrained attitude toward Sadat's arrest of rivals he accused of plotting against him.

Specialists on Arab affairs agreed that Sadat's purge was prompted by internal political friction and not by his recent attempts to reach agreement with Israel on the canal.

Lava Flows Near Village on Etna

CATANIA, Sicily (Reuter) — The inhabitants of a small but prosperous village situated on the slopes of Mount Etna hastily completed plans today for a religious procession as a river of red hot lava crept relentlessly down toward their homes.

Higher up the slopes, 10 peasant huts were in more immediate danger from the lava flow which is engulfing everything in its way.

Vatican's Expert On Russia Dies

VATICAN CITY (CP) — The Vatican's leading authority on the Soviet Union and communism, Gregory Peter Cardinal Agagianian, 75, died Sunday night.

An Armenian, Cardinal Agagianian was born in what now is Soviet Georgia and attended the same seminary at which Josef Stalin studied for a short time.

The cardinal had been ill for some months at his apartment in Rome. He resigned a year ago as head of the Congregation for the Evangelization of Peoples, which oversees the missionary work of the church.

Pirate Radio Vessel Is Fire-bombed

AMSTERDAM (Reuter) — Dutch police sought today the mastermind behind the weekend fire-bombing of a pirate radio ship after announcing that two of three men detained in connection with the plot had confessed.

Commander Theo Nelissen of the Dutch state water police said the three—all professional frogmen—were believed to have been paid to carry out the raid on the 670-ton vessel, Radio North Sea International, which operates just outside Holland's territorial waters.

Late Saturday, Radio North Sea International broadcast Mayday messages, breaking into a music program, saying the ship was on fire. Ten of the crew of 12, including three disc jockeys, took to the lifeboats.

Police later boarded the vessel to investigate the cause of the five-hour blaze. When it was extinguished the crew and disc-jockeys returned to the ship and programs were resumed.

Nelissen told a news conference the three professional frogmen had left from the nearby port of Scheveningen in a rubber boat Saturday night at a time when most of the crew of Radio North Sea were watching a soccer game on television.

One man remained in the rubber boat and the other two climbed aboard and went to the ship's engine room.

Nelissen said the men deposited sacks of old rags soaked in gasoline next to a fuel tank. They attached a stick of dynamite to the tank and ran a fuse to the ship's railing.

There was a visceral explosion and the men were either blown overboard or managed to get away in time. The stern and the bridge of Radio North Sea were destroyed.

After the explosion the three men returned to Scheveningen.

Mountain View to Be Scene of Air History Pageant in June

By ELMER BONTER
Staff Correspondent

TRENTON — The choice of Mountain View airport as the site for Canada's first international antique airplane fly - in and air show late in June is looked upon as a great compliment to residents of the Quinte area for their contribution to world aviation history - particularly in two World Wars.

The location on Highway 14, five miles south of Belleville, has been operated as a satellite of CFB Trenton since the days of the Commonwealth Air Training Scheme 30 years ago.

The weekend of June 25, 26 and 27 the air space above Mountain View airport will pulse with the motors of vintage aircraft most of them from a collection at Ottumwa, Ohio the largest of its kind in existence. Many of the models in flight will never have been seen before by the younger generation. One of them expected to participate dates back to the early 1900s.

The International antigos airplane fly - in and air show goes over big on every presentation, according to Ron Bailey, special events chairman for the Toronto region wings of the Royal Canadian Air Force Association, spokesmen of the event in conjunction with the Antique Aircraft Association, an international organization. Elsewhere crowds of 40,000 attend the unique exhibition and flying demonstrations, he revealed.

Antique aircraft buffs from as far as California and Alberta have informed the organizers they plan to make where the models on display numbered 100.

The undertaking is one of the RCAF Association's major assignments to raise funds for two worthwhile efforts in 1971.

After expenses, the profits will be split — $7,000 to the Air Cadet League of Canada for the purchase of a flying endurance glider for use in cadet training and the remainder to the RCAF Memorial to be erected here at Trenton. The latter could receive a boost of as much as $40,000 from the Mountain View project, Mr. Bailey pointed out.

Entertainment during the three-day meet ranges from the opportunity of taking a ride in a former giant passenger carrier, the impressive looking Ford tri-motor transport, to one of the most spectacular aerobatic displays in a World War II propeller-driven fighter aircraft. Captain Hayden-Bailey, a collector of old aircraft, went to a lot of trouble bringing the Sea Fury back from Australia to satisfy a hint for flying fast high-powered wartime designs. The Sea Fury is an adaption of the famous Spitfire and a favorite with navy pilots flying into combat from aircraft carriers.

There will be numerous models in the static displays reminding visitors of the names Curtis, Stinson, Waco, Fokker, Wright, Locke and Sopwith, Dellavalland all synonymous with the development of aviation.

If there is anything Quinte area residents haven't seen first, finished or built by flying, it's probably a dirigible. There'll be one of those lighter - than - air machines at the Mountain View show as well as other rare aviation oddities, the spokesman noted.

The antique show has involved members of the RCAF Association's 418 wing of Belleville. And since its inception Belleville wing president Pat Karkheck figured in the details of planning.

The production of the three day event, however, calls for the services of more than 100 extra personnel which means air cadets from Toronto and members of the Air Force Association (veterans) from the Toronto region will be required for duty as administrators.

At the airport the static display area local wing will be responsible for the marquee where the replica of the Red Baron will be on public view. Members will sell souvenirs — gold find silver coffee spoons with crests, the proceeds for the memorial fund.

Missing Steer Rounded Up

Farmers east of Belleville can safely let their cattle out to pasture now, the Belleville Livestock Yards announced this morning.

Late Saturday morning Alex Beaudrie of RR 1 Foxboro, successfully rounded up his 800 pounds of rampaging steer which escaped from the sales barn May 4, swam the Moira River and trotted off to the CNR express yards, trailing city police officers. Humane Society officers and a tranquilizer gun-carrying veterinarian.

The merry chase kept amateur steerchasers busy until dark and it wasn't until this Saturday that a tired, somewhat bedraggled animal was led home by it's owner, one of the tranquilizer darts still imbedded in it's shoulder.

Yesterday was a combined church parade day for local Cubs, Brownies, Scouts, Girl Guides, Venturers, and Explorers when several hundred young people, spruced up for the occasion in their respective uniforms, marched from the East Hill Playground on Bleecker Avenue, down Bridge Street to services at the Belleville Memorial Arena. These five representatives in the color party recited their oaths of allegiance at the church services.

Apologies Extended

IN MEMORIAM

BOW — In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, Earl Bowden, who passed away May 17, 1966, eleven years ago.

Time speeds on, eleven years have flown,
Since dear Dad to heaven was won.
Without our home, where all seemed sad,
And left from us a shining light.
We miss that light and cannot find
His vacant place, there is none to fill.

Down here we mourn, but not in vain,
For up in heaven we'll meet again.
—Lovingly remembered by wife Hattie, son Austin Dear and wife Marion, daughter Mary and husband John and grandchildren.

Regional Detention Centre Shines in Comparison to Old Jail

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

NAPANEE — At the old jail here Saturday morning, the large steel cell-block doors closed for the last time. The freshly scrubbed atmosphere of the vacant cells could not quite dispel the odors of more than a hundred years of prisoner habitation in these archaic cubicles.

Two miles north of the centre of Napanee, doors swung silently open to admit guards and dignitaries for the opening of an ultra-modern facility specially designed to fulfill the needs of both a minimum and maximum security provincial jail.

Well lit, airy rooms in the minimum security wing with enough space to allow a certain freedom of movement, have replaced the cramped quarters of jails in Belleville, Kingston, Napanee and Picton, which were built in 1838, 1855, 1905 and 1834, respectively. These 48 rooms don't differ greatly in appearance from quarters available at most YMCA hostels.

Even in the four maximum security wings, the 48 prisoners there will find a much more livable atmosphere than in the old cells.

The Quinte Regional Detention Centre here is the first such centre built for the Ontario department of correctional services after introduction of a scheme to centralize and improve jail facilities across the province.

Allan Grossman, former minister of correctional services, first suggested replacement of out-dated jails when he addressed the John Howard Society in Kingston, in 1966.

Present minister of trade and development, Mr. Grossman provided an explanation for the government's decision to update its provincial detention facilities.

He referred to tours of the 37 ex-municipal jails on a journey into the past, . . these terribly old, dark, dismal structures; these archaic museum pieces."

During his speech to the hundreds of guests gathered for the official opening ceremonies, Mr. Grossman said the old jails, which handled in the neighborhood of 50,000 committals annually, also housed "persons committed for trial and therefore presumed innocent.

"In fact, some 7,000 persons committed to these old jails annually were eventually found not guilty," he stated.

During the press tour of the Napanee jail, D. W. Kerr, director of the information branch of the correctional services department, said the government was faced with situations wherein persons being held for trial were lumped in with prisonery serving sentences.

"There was no line drawn between minimum and maximum facilities . . . the old jails were equipped only for maximum detention," he said, pointing to the heavily barred cells and corridors of stone.

Outmoded plumbing, inadequate medical facilities (an unmattressed steel examination cot is still suspended from a corridor wall), poor visiting and interview areas and drab, claustrophobic interiors made it plain that improvements were necessary.

Mr. Grossman also said that the physical layout of the old jails was so poor that proper supervision was not possible and a "constant danger of injury to staff and to prisoners tended to maintain an air of tension that seriously impeded the development of open communication between staff and prisoners."

"Here, in this bright, modern, well - equipped centre, we are confident that new approaches and techniques will be developed to meet the needs of those entering the care of the department, especially a correctional setting for the first time," he said.

Detainees awaiting trial for serious offences, sentence on serious charges, or awaiting transfer after sentence to reformatories or penitentiaries will be housed in the long corridors of the new maximum security centre, a honeycomb-like labyrinth, manned by guards at a central electronic control post. Here, prisoners live in cells equipped with a combination toilet and wash basin, a writing desk and bed.

In the minimum security wings, which boast pastel walls, tiled floors and foam-rubber mattresses, a sign-making shop will be established and inmates will have an opportunity to learn quantity cooking in the modern kitchen and a chance to work at various outdoor activities such as grounds maintenance, landscaping, and work on a small vegetable garden.

Multi-purpose rooms in both the men's and women's sections will be used for recreation and entertainment activities and group counselling. A chapel and small library have also been provided.

Because the new centre is designed to house "men and women serving short sentences . . . 30 days or less . . . there are limitations on the type of programs which can be operated within these facilities to meet the prisoner's long - term rehabilitative needs," the minister continued.

He added that community referrals and implementation of the Temporary Absence Program would play a major role in this first of several similar centres.

During the first 30 months of the TAP system, through which 2,767 prisoners have been allowed to go into the community during the day for academic and vocational training, or employment only 36 inmates proved to be unsuccessful participants.

"This is a tremendous record," C. J. Syl Apps, present minister of correctional services, said during the opening ceremonies.

Mr. Apps said that jail superintendents had received increased authority to grant leaves, increased from a three to five - day basis.

Every effort will be made to rehabilitate the prisoner and give him as pleasant a stay as possible.

When periods of incarceration are terminated, after - care officers will aid those in need of accomodation, employment and counselling.

"As the first of its kind, this regional detention centre has tremendous potential as an innovating and an experimental institution. This can be a testing ground, a pilot project, in which new approaches and techniques can be utilized and evaluated. The most effective methods developed here can be refined and improved, and then introduced at the other new regional detention centres now under construction, or being planned," said Mr. Grossman.

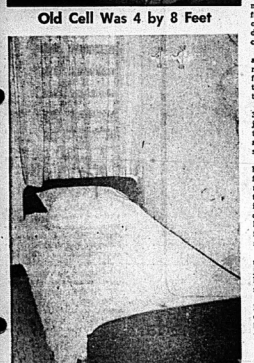
He told the gathered guests and dignitaries, including visiting judges, police chiefs and crown attorneys, that "the whole field of criminal justice and corrections is undergoing tremendous changes.

"Many progressive changes are being made in legislation affecting such matters as bail, while new alternatives to incarceration are being proposed and experimented with to deal with such problems as the chronic drunk.

"In this era of innovation, it is extremely difficult to predict and plan the needs of the correctional institutions of tomorrow.

To this end, all eyes will be focused on the future success of the Quinte Regional Detention Centre as preparations proceed on other jails. At present the Ottawa-Carleton Regional Detention Centre is under construction and tenders have been called for a new jail in the Niagara Region to replace the jails in St. Catharines and Welland.

"The days of locking offenders completely away from society, of building walls around correctional institutions to keep the prisoners in and the public out, are gradually fading away," continued Mr. Grossman.



"If correctional rehabilitative programs today are to be truly effective, the offender, wherever possible, must be more directly involved in the day - to - day life of the community; and the community, in turn, must become more directly involved through thoughtful citizen interest and volunteer participation, in the correctional field."

The future of the old buildings has not yet been established in all cases, but tenders for demolition of Belleville's jail have been announced and rumors indicate the facility here might become the new police headquarters for the town.

All detention staff have been given the opportunity to transfer to the new centre, which will prove to be less expensive to operate than the four old jails. The old jails cost taxpayers $563,000 annually, whereas the new $3.5 million centre is expected to cost $63,000 less.

School Discipline Moves with Times

PICTON (Staff) — Teachers confronted by pupils living in a changing world earmarked by violence are not sure "the old ways" of child discipline are still effective, Robert Goodson, Regional Education-al Consultant with the department of education, Kingston, Thursday night told parents attending the annual meeting of the Prince Eward Home and School Council the strap is no longer advocated in Ontario schools.

Mr. Goodson observed that students with behavior problems can be dealt with in two different ways, one based on reward system. Psychiatric help can be sought for the youngster whose misbehavior indicates he is "really sick." This method of coping is based on what Mr. Goodson termed "the medical model."

A second method involves implementation of the theory that the individual behaves in a way that he has discovered is rewarding to him. Problem children frequently misbehave because their misconduct rewards them with attention. "You're a rotten kid, but at least you're a kid," can be a pupil's "reward" when he disrupts a class.

The educational consultant urged that by stressing the positive teachers can establish a base for modification of behavior. Even small steps in the right direction taken by the difficult student should be applauded. Many of the things which are "bad" should be ignored.

To illustrate the principle of this theory Mr. Goodson referred to a 13 - year - old Belleville pupil who had memorized his teacher" and had a vocabulary "like our Prime Minister's." The youth disturbed the entire teaching staff with foul language and open disobedience which could not be ignored. The reward system was implemented to combat the student's behavior problems. Each time he became incorrigible his mother was called to take him home from class. She agreed to allow him to watch television for periods of time proportionate to the hours he spent in school. "Hopefully, he'll learn that by staying in school he'll get a reward," said Mr. Goodson.

He added that many persons consider these tactics "bribery" and "immoral." and admitted that to some degree bribery is involved. "Our bribery system is not just now being introduced, just expanded to take in the whole school population," he explained.

Mr. Goodson noted that the bright pupil is consistently rewarded with good marks eventually with a graduation diploma. These provide his or her incentives. The now learner realizes that he can never achieve an A and nonetheless doubts the value of a diploma if, for example, he is from a slum family where his father is apparently "doing OK" without one.

Mr. Goodson recalled the colored stars awarded to industrious students and called this system discriminating motivation. "Let's go back to giving out stars but let's put up a fair game so everyone can win." He suggested improvement stars could be given to low achievers among them part of the reward program.

"Let's pay a great deal of attention to the good things children do," stressed Mr. Goodson. He said that "shaping" is the process of gradually arriving closer to the desired behavior pattern. Parents convinced of the merits of the reward system can assist schools in introducing this program, Mr. Goodson confirmed that all boys' training schools in Ontario use the reward system and he noted it is also used effectively in mental hospitals. "We want to reward our children for doing the things we want," he stated.

The Bureaucracy

Stories about Canada's impregnable bureaucracy abound. Scarcely a week goes by that we do not see some report about the legendary power of the "mandarins," the deputy ministers who remain on duty while ministers and governments come and go, the men who by reason of their degree of permanence in the job consider themselves the real decision makers.

How true is this? Well, the one constant factor in all these stories is that despite all kinds of threats and brave words from the Prime Minister on down (Energy Minister Joe Greene is the latest, as today's report on this page indicates), the bureaucrats still seem to prevail.

Even Mr. Trudeau's plan to shift deputy ministers around the different departments does not seem to have come to anything.

And look at the amount of travelling they do.

Maybe the ministers, and not the civil servants, really do make the decisions, as Mr. Greene claims. But one thing is sure . . . like death and taxes, the bureaucrats are always with us.

Traffic and Hikers

Among other locations we note that traffic lights are to be installed at the intersection of Bay Bridge road and West Dundas street. This should make for a smoother flow of vehicles in that area, and facilitate in particular traffic coming off the overpass during rush-hour periods and on Friday afternoons.

Something of a nuisance in this area is the prevalence of hitchhiking. Even if a driver is disposed to giving anyone a lift, the Dundas Street bridge route offers no safe opportunity for drivers to stop. Sudden stops on the overpass can be equally dangerous. However, the facial expressions alone of some saucy kids, who are somehow under the impression that the motoring public exists only to serve them, is usually sufficient to guarantee them no ride. Then there are the other kind who stand with in easy reach of the city and expect to get a ride into town. It is the something-for-something mentality at work and it should not be encouraged.

Summer Jobs

There is a happy note of compassion, humanity and usefulness in some of the jobs being provided under the federal government's summer job program. With the aid of 20 interested students Edith Phillips, 23, and Anne Partington, 18, Fred Wardle, 76, will enjoy his first real outings in two years. Mr. Wardle is confined to a wheel chair, but with the help of his two project assistants he will now have a new lease of life. The two economics students will earn $1,000 each for the job.

In another situation, York University students Avery Edwards, Joan Turkish and Lisa Socket will spend the summer teaching Toronto mothers how to care for their children and manage their households. For this they will be paid $65 each plus expenses.

Scary Ride

Here is a new angle on survival: "I figured we were dead right then. The Devil must have been with us." Appropriate words maybe, for they were uttered by one Mike French, one of the heads of the Satan's Choice motorcycle gang in Montreal. He and two companions were driving down a hill when the brakes of their big vehicle failed. Faced with a choice of hitting pedestrians or heading for a board fence blocking off construction on the Trans-Canada highway, French chose the latter. The car burst through it just as the driver realized this was where the highway was being dug. The car fell 40 feet into a mud-filled pit. A girl riding in the back suffered back and arm lacerations, but these were the only injuries. Said French, told by police they would have to go to hospital for a checkup: "Man, I still can't believe we're walking."

Cool Spring

Spring is still pretty lack-lustre in these parts, nothing like the record high temperatures (mid-eighties) in Alberta, but the sun has been out and that is exercise points of view — tennis, golf or whatever — conditions have been near-perfect.

A man feels alive, energetic in such circumstances and in no danger of suffering from either the heat exhaustion (Alberta) or two different things apparently) which Dr. Steincrohn was talking about the other day.

It is time for mowing the lawn too after all that precipitation, and is there anything quite so pleasant and relaxing as having the old power mower do its thing once again. Far better than weeding or gardening which is exhausting by comparison. The grass smells good too, when it is cut, and complements those beds of daffodils and tulips.

The Power of the Bureaucrats

Joe Greene Latest to Cross Swords with Civil Service

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Mounting government irritation with the top civil service has been displayed by Energy Minister J. J. Greene.

"The government speaks for the government and, popular opinion is the contrary, it is not the officials who determine policy," he said in the Commons May 11.

He had been asked for comment on a speech by his own deputy minister, Jack Austin.

Mr. Austin is not even a career civil servant but a prominent British Columbia Liberal who served his political apprenticeship here as executive assistant to Works Minister Arthur Laing.

Mr. Greene has had abrasive relations with some of his staff in the past but it is still highly unusual for a minister to chastise publicly his most senior public servant.

Cabinet sources say the senior civil service cash and often does frustrate the policies devised by the elected representatives — that is, the cabinet.

Not through any sinister intent, they say, but simply because the knowledgeable civil servant, who has usually been in Ottawa and on the job longer than his minister, genuinely believes he knows best.

When he was a deputy minister, Mitchell Sharp, now external affairs minister, said his main duty was to protect his minister, whoever that was.

This usually means, in essence, not rocking the boat. That means, in turn, avoiding initiatives which might get the minister in political hot water or, worse, laughed out of court.

Alvin Hamilton, former Conservative agriculture minister, complained publicly that the senior civil service was practically "immovable." He said bluntly after the defeat of the John Diefenbaker government in 1963 that the real energy was consumed in trying to get action from some civil servants.

It was a civil servant who informed John Diefenbaker a few days after he had become prime minister in 1957 that he could not look at some secret external affairs files Mr. Diefenbaker had asked for.

Mr. Diefenbaker had to obtain the help of his predecessor, Louis St. Laurent, to get access to the files.

Mr. Diefenbaker was particularly harsh, as Prime Minister Trudeau has been, with the external affairs department.

Mr. Trudeau has said he can learn as much from the newspapers as from confidential diplomatic reports.

Cabinet sources say the senior civil service "old boy" network is even more effective than the cabinet's.

Examples are cited where the top public servants in one department get together with their counterparts in other departments to persuade their ministers to support a certain piece of policy.

Then the favor has to be returned.

In this way, the sources explain, policies formulated by public servants can prevail over what some individual ministers might want.

When Mr. Trudeau took office, he promised to move deputy ministers around among various departments.

He has been able to do comparatively little of this.

But he has expanded his own staff within his office and the Privy Council office, which sometimes bypasses normal civil service channels.

Such assistants as Ivan Head have been dispatched on special foreign assignments — over the heads of ambassadors.

Cabinet sources say the civil service nevertheless remains, enormously but powerful.

A sidelight:

Between April, 1967, and November, 1970, the government has informed the Commons, $47 million was spent for travel by civil servants on Air Canada alone.

Civil servants now do so much travelling on "government business that the supply department has set up an air travel centre. Mr. Trudeau recently said that more than 6,000 civil servants get more salary than do MPs. He said that a bill, now out of legislation to increase total MP salary and expenses to $36,000 from $18,000.

Sergeant-Major Walter Leja, 54, was severely injured when a terrorist bomb in a Montreal mailbox blew up in his hands eight years ago today—in 1963. Three days later, police arrested 20 young members of the Front de Liberation Quebecois and Marie Bachand, 21, was sentenced to four years for placing the bomb which maimed Sgt.-Maj. Leja. In another bombing incident, a janitor at an army recruiting depot in Montreal had been killed.

Future of Property In Wellington Crescent Area

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In the choice residential area of Wellington Crescent every property owner takes a pride in the appearance of his property.

This Crescent abuts upon land to the rear of Albert College Manor part of which is to be sold for the construction of apartment blocks to contain, as I am advised 72 units.

This will destroy the character of the Crescent and eliminate a children's playground which has been used as much for a number of years thus destroying the only area in the West end of the city suitable for the purpose.

In addition, while the present sewer is just adequate, the addition of 72 families will render this entirely inadequate and the cost of a new sewer over will highly probably be assessed upon the Crescent property owners.

I understand that widening of the Crescent to accommodate additional traffic will also be necessary resulting in the expropriation of land which, with other undesirable features will seriously depreciate the value of property in the area.

For these reasons I join my neighbors in the strongest possible objection to the construction of these apartment blocks and, while sympathetic to the financial needs of Albert College would point out that there are other sites, notably on Sidney St., which are available and could be used without disrupting this peaceful area.

The land proposed to be sold should be purchased by the city as a safe playground for children and a recreational area not only as a profitable site for tennis courts in the summer but for skating rinks in the winter and a long term investment for capital gain.

Bethune Served China, Not Canada

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

A short item in our local newspaper recently read: "Canada may give belated posthumous recognition to the career and achievements of Dr. Norman Bethune, a Canadian who has become a folk hero in Communist China.

Prime Minister Trudeau told Conservative Gordon Aiken that the Historic Sites and Monuments Board will meet next month to consider the designation of Dr. Bethune's birthplace as an historic site.

Dr. Bethune identified with left wing causes served as a surgeon during the Spanish civil war, then went to China to become a surgeon in Mao's 8th Route Army in the war against Japan."

An item in College Magazine of Nov. 1968 read: "Comrade Bethune a member of the Communist party of Canada, was around 50 when he was sent by the Communist party of Canada and the United States to China; he made light of travelling thousands of miles to help us in our war of resistance against Japan. To our great sorrow he died a martyr at his post". Later on in the article we read: "Every Communist must learn this true spirit of Communism from Comrade Bethune." This item is in his article, (printed in College) from the selected works of Mao Tse-tung.

I suppose we should feel flattered to have a Canadian, receive such high praises from Mao Tse-tung. But I still think that if our prime minister wishes to commemorate a hero, he should choose someone who did something for CANADA.

I personally, think someone should do something to the memory of our late Quebec labor Minister Pierre Laporte.

Amidst screams of "fascists" by the Rose brothers and other members of the FLQ, the strong defense for Quebec's right to 'self determination' by the FLQ and the NDP, everyone seems to have forgotten the fact, that a true French Canadian — a respected member of the cabinet, was kidnapped last October, then brutally murdered, by a gang of the lowest type of criminals.

Farmers Find Going Tough

Peterborough Examiner

There are strong indications that the food-buying public is in for a rude awakening as far as prices are concerned.

For many years, consumers in Canada and the United States have been spending 20 to 25 per cent of their income on food. By comparison, people in many European countries spend much higher percentages. Expenditures of 40 to 50 per cent are not uncommon in such countries as France, for example.

While shoppers realize that food prices are going up, many do not realize that the farmers who produce most of the food we eat have not seen the prices they receive rise at the same rate.

In Peterborough recently about 20 farmers from three area locals of the National Farmers' Union gave away produce as a protest against shrinking profits.

The shoppers who walked away with meat, eggs, potatoes and other produce during the giveaway probably thought the farmers were a little crazy. They aren't crazy but they are angry and they are getting desperate.

One sign displayed at the demonstration claimed that the farmers' share of the food consumer pays for meat is only 37 per cent. The meat packers take 24 per cent, the retailer takes 33 per cent and the remaining six per cent goes for transportation.

More and more farmers are finding themselves in financial straitjackets. Every year it costs more and more for them to plant, raise and harvest their crops or to raise and market their beef or pork.

Many farmers must work from dawn until dark week in and week out because they can not find help or afford to hire help. Many others have had to give up family and take a job in the city to make ends meet. Farming is a big and costly business. Next time you think the new cars are expensive, take a look at the price tags on farm machinery.

Regional Government Review

Ottawa Journal

The capital budget approved by Ottawa - Carleton regional council despite a considerable increase over 1970's budget, is hardly a prime example of innovative municipal spending. Except for some welcome, if overdue, spending on pollution control, much of the $40 million to be spent this year will be on "housekeeping" duties.

It is sad that is what municipal government is really about: maintaining and building roads sewers, and other necessary services for city living. Nothing that will last a while.

What is disturbing about the five-year capital budget is the extent to which the region is borrowing. By the end of this year Ottawa - Carleton will be $186 million in debt. By the end of 1975 the region expects to be $258.5 million in debt.

Based in generally accepted financing rules, Ottawa - Carleton will be $1.7 million above its maximum borrowing authority by the end of this year. By the end of 1975 the debt is forecasting will be $184 million over the maximum — almost seven per cent further in debt than accepted guidelines suggest it should be!

The guideline is not a hard and fast rule, and a number of municipalities perpetually ignore it. But the question is whether Ottawa - Carleton as well as Ottawa-Carleton shows good judgment by getting off on such uncertain financial footing.

Give-and-Take Said Vital in Every Learning Situation

By JUDY SCHNEIDER
Staff Reporter

The usual structured educational seminar took a different turn Saturday as Loyalist College's one - day seminar on "creating a learning environment for adults" let the formal lectures fall by the wayside in favor of participatory sessions.

Sponsored by Loyalist College and the Ontario Association for Continuing Education, with arrangements by the United Community Services of Belleville, the discussions were guided by resource leaders Dr. Norman High and Dr. Foster Vernon.

Dr. Vernon is the current president of the OACE and chairman of the Applied Arts Division, Seneca College, Toronto. Dr. High is the immediate past president of the OACE, professor of Adult Education at The Ontario Institute for Studies in Education, Dean of Arts, University of Waterloo and consultant on staff development programs.

Participants in the seminar were adult educators and community leaders from Belleville and district. "It is not part of our normal learning to learn to work in groups," Dr. Vernon stated. However, such was the informal, interactionary atmosphere created Saturday in an effort to encourage the best of learning situations.

"The best kind of learning takes place when the resources of the people available are brought together. In order to draw in the totality of people as resources, more about them must be known."

And so sensitivity - type session followed, with each participant picking out another individual within the group with whom they were to "be themselves" for five minutes.

Dr. Vernon explained, "we gain impressions concerning people which we build on bit by bit. We must break down those barriers as far as we can, for real learning can only take place when we're willing to understand someone without evaluating him."

Such barriers are dearly in a teaching - learning situation.

"To work effectively with adults, one must have a certain view of human nature," stated Dr. High.

This statement was the focal point of the day's discussion. After all, "students are a lot like people".

There must be a team effort, an interaction in any learning situation.

According to Dr. High, it's a case of "letting your mind flow".

"In working with adults, it's a case of freeing them so their imaginations can flow. As a result, the teacher of adults becomes a facilitator of resource arrangements."

What the entire seminar all boiled down to was a controversial discussion between two very different schools of thought in the field of education. On the one hand, the traditional or more conventional pedagogical approach, which sets the teacher in the authoritarian position, as opposed to the process of program development, that of self-imposed learning.

A questionnaire set forth a number of learning propositions to be scaled by seminar participants brought to light this dichotomy which exists in the present learning-teaching situations.

"There is still something about the traditional approach which is hanging on," Dr. Vernon remarked. "The fundamental question is — Do I as a teacher have the right to structure or unstructure my program?" Undoubtably, the modification of the traditional approach is an "agonizing experience".

But, as Dr. High emphasized, "In learning, one must feel free to go outside the restricted barriers, to get beyond the square you've been conditioned to live within."

Both men agreed that there are indeed definite models of competency, irrefutable cores of knowledge, which must be maintained in a teaching program. But it is the methodologies and techniques employed by teachers to present this knowledge which Dr. Vernon and Dr. High contest. A communality of purpose is essential in a teacher-learning situation.

"There is a need and a problem with adults, to unlearn old ways and relearn new ways," said Dr. Vernon. "Therefore, teaching techniques must change. We must try to the best of our limited abilities to move towards our students' goals."

Of course, as was stressed by Dr. High, "You cannot tell another person precisely how to operate in a teaching-learning situation. In the ultimate and final sense, each teacher works out his own salvation."

Isidore Cooperman, executive director of United Community Services, thanked the Department of Extension, Loyalist College, for making the seminar possible and expressed the hope for follow-up sessions which would see the establishment of a chapter of the OACE in the area.

On behalf of Loyalist College, Hal Butterill, director of extension, expressed thanks to Mr. Cooperman for arranging the seminar.

Technicians' Courses Emphasize Pollution

TORONTO (CP) — A new type of technician is training now, learning how to fight pollution.

Students at several community colleges are taking laboratory technicians' courses with the emphasis on pollution. They want to work for government and industry detecting and identifying polluters and pollutants and helping, as one of them puts it, "to clean up the garbage."

At Seneca College the first year of its two-year pollution prevention course is finishing. Both students and faculty acknowledge they are uncertain about just where the jobs will be found or how effective technicians can be unless legislation and attitudes change.

They seem hopeful, though, in a wary kind of a way, because the approach is new and they feel the urgency of the problem will open the field in the next few years.

The course director, Ashley Nicholson, says: "Pollution is occurring. We think each benefits the people now who can detect and arrest it. In the future, the goal may be in a different direction, in producing people who can prevent pollution, for instance, by designing new industrial machinery."

In the meantime, he says, there are indications of interest in potential graduates from the Ontario Water Resources Commission, the air management branch and Ontario Hydro.

Community colleges have been established by the province specifically to train people for jobs. The pollution students take chemistry, biology, physics, math and chemical instrumentation, all with a special emphasis on pollution tests.

Mr. Nicholson says the course content damped the enthusiasm of a few who wanted to fight pollution but didn't realize how much work was involved.

Most of them did, however, and the pollution problem had added purposefulness to an existing interest in science in most cases.

Mark Warriner of Niagara Falls, Ont., has already worked in a factory lab. What he saw there took him back to school.

"The place was an obvious polluter. I worked in tunnels under the Falls, and I've really seen pollution firsthand. I got interested, and when this course came up I took it. I hadn't really been planning to go back to school."

Sandy Agnew came to the course after a period of uncertainty that included a false-start year at university.

"I couldn't find anything I was interested in, but I'm interested in ecology. I was raised in a rural area and I watched the creek get progressively deader."

The students say they consider the governments their best hope for jobs at first because they do not believe private industry will give up profits to fight pollution unless it is forced to.

Mark says: "If you're working for a company, they're not going to shut down if you say they're polluting."

Sandy agrees: "A person in business can lose his livelihood or lose his business.

"I'd like to go into resource management eventually, but you've got to clean up the garbage first. I don't see any technical problem about cleaning it up."

Hi and the others say they are aware of the economic and social problems involved, but consider them less important than the damage done by pollution.

Sandy says: "I think we have a responsibility to the other forms of life on the planet."

Mark says: "A man from a chemical company talking about pesticides asked us, 'What do you want, people or fish?' I think each benefits the other and I don't think it's correct to say you have to make a choice."

To which Judy Patrick added pleasantly: "We'd probably do better with a lot less people than with less fish."

The students have applied to the federal Opportunity for Youth program for money for a summer project that would extend a project they started in class. They want to do an 8-to-10-inch pollution survey of the Don River in Toronto.

Ed Gnits, their biology instructor, says the tests they have already done will be brought to the attention of river pollution by the Society of Professional Engineers of North York. It is hoped these interests might be moved to improve the situation.

Mr. Gnits says that regardless of whether the federal help comes through, he wants the Don project to be continued as part of the course. He wants to keep a record year after year.

"There is no reason, with today's standards of technology, that the water can't be returned to a drinkable level of cleanliness."

It is the sort of work his students want in do.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

MELROSE WI

The following officers were installed at the annual meeting of the Melrose WI held on Thursday evening at the township hall: president, Mrs. president Mrs. K. McMeehan; 2nd vice president, Mrs. J. Jack Macfarlane; 1st vice-Summers; secretary treasurer, Mrs. F. Clarke; district director Mrs. A. Long; public relations Mrs. G. McLaren; auditors, Mrs. J. English; pianists Mrs. C. Bates and Mrs. R. Badgely; auditors Mrs. D. McFarlane and Mrs. J. Sherman.

Conveners were appointed, as was a card committee and the newly elected president accepted her appointment with appropriate remarks.

Earlier the hostess Mrs. D. Macfarlane welcomed the guests numbering 23. Correspondence read included replies to the letters written to Clarke Rollins, Tyendinaga township council and Hastings county council regarding the rock festival to be held in Madoc township. This organization strongly objected to this kind of gathering and expressed these objections to influential people, hoping that steps would be taken to prevent the continuation of preparations.

Mention was made of the proceeds of the next euchre being given to the cancer society and Mrs. A. English will be hostess with a committee assisting with the arrangements.

Mrs. E. Badgely reported on the results of the recent 4-H club achievement day when two Melrose clubs participated. Pamphlets from the fire marshall were distributed.

The Melrose WI will continue to donate an award to the top senior boy/girl man in the Melrose 4-H calf club.

Delegates were appointed to attend the district annual to be held at Foxboro on May 13.

Reports were received from officers and conveners and the retiring president Mrs. Roy McLaren thanked the members for their co-operation during her term of office.

Written suggestions for next year's program were discussed after which Mrs. K. McMeehan conducted a few contests. The meeting concluded in the usual way.

MARYSVILLE CWL

On Tuesday, May 11, the members of the Marysville CWL enjoyed a delicious dinner at Maple Inn, after which gifts were presented to Mrs. John Murphy, the eldest member present, to Mrs. Frank Maloney on the occasion of her birthday and to Mrs. C. Milligan, the youngest member present.

After mass was offered by Father W. A. Dwyre, the director installed the new executive. At the meeting which followed, Mrs. Don McLaren presented the president's pin to Mrs. Fred Farrell, Mrs. Farrell then presented a past president's pin to Mrs. McLaren.

Mrs. Francis Callaghan will be membership convener. It was announced that fees are due now. Mrs. Callaghan will attend the convention in Belleville to May 29 and 30. Mrs. Fred Farrell announced September 25 as the date for the annual bazaar. Mrs. Jack Murphy displayed an attractive quilt for which a draw will be held.

Mrs. B. O'Sullivan will be in charge of the June meeting. Mrs. C. Milligan volunteered to be the press convener for the coming year. Mrs. Fred Farrell reminded members to write down and hand in their suggestions for improving the work of the CWL.

CLUB ACTIVITIES

TWEED HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY

A large gathering was in attendance at the meeting of Tweed Horticultural Society on Tuesday, May 11, held at the S. H. Connor Public School.

The guest speaker, Mr. Robert Patterson, District Director for District number 3, Ameliasburg, was present with colored slides and showed, "Queen of the Flowers", and gave a fine talk on the planting, growing and care of roses which was very informative. He also included numerous, interesting details on how to properly prepare roses for display at rose festivals — Belleville Rose Festival will be held June 26-27th, 1971, of which Mr. Patterson is awards chairman.

Mrs. Larry Wilson, president, voiced a note of appreciation to Mr. Patterson on behalf of the meeting.

During the business period, several matters were dealt with and it was learned that Mrs. Lavina Driscoll had donated several red cedar trees. Mr. S. H. Connor was offered 25 Canterbury Bells and it was suggested these plants be sold at 50 cents each and the proceeds turned over to the Society.

"Clean-Up Week" — May 17 - May 22, was discussed and also the flower planters to be placed on Tweed main street.

On Saturday, June 19, 1971, the society is planning to hold a flower show at the Hungerford Township Hall. This show is non-competitive and will be composed of local flowers grown by residents. Participants need not necessarily be a member of Tweed Horticultural Society to take part in this show. It is primarily to develop a deeper interest in flowers for everyone and to gain all information possible from each other.

The Township Hall will be opened early on the morning of June 19, for the convenience of the "early birds".

There will also be a table of homemade baking in conjunction with the flower show.

The treasurer, Mrs. Jane Hughes, reported $8.00 had been realized on a draw for a beautiful vase of home-grown cut flowers, donated by Mr. and Mrs. Larry Wilson. Mrs. Jim Wilson was the lucky winner.

The Society also gained six new members. Mrs. Roy Parks, secretary, read an invitation from the president of Stirling Horticultural Society, Mrs. Armstrong, to attend its meeting on Monday, May 17, at 2 o'clock.

Tweed Horticultural Society holds its meeting on the second Tuesday in each month.

Being Sarcastic Is Not So Smart After All

By DORIS CLARK

"Sweet Sixteen. What a lovely age!" This was the mother's comment.

Another responded, "Oh I don't know about that. At 16 I suddenly learned that my habit of being sarcastic — clever, I thought — wasn't really calculated to win friends and influence people. A friend of my brother's said to me, 'Why are you always so sarcastic to everybody?'

"Suddenly I realized what I sounded like to other people.

"I suppose it made you feel superior to everybody else — for a minute," Yes, for just a minute. That was about it."

I thought I would like to take that little conversation and just set it down in the middle of a few superior-sounding teen-agers, and see if anything happened.

* * *

Dear Doris: At 14, I find it impossible to get used to Canadian customs. I've been here three years and I find the people so cold.

Because I was lonesome for my old European home I started writing a story about my grade two memories. The other kids were nasty to me because I did so well in school, but there was one young teacher who always cheered me up.

She was an angel, Doris, and I have written 10 poems about her. I want so much to go back to Europe and be with her again. How can I possibly find her?

She may not even remember me. She may be dead. But I must find where to write her a letter. I need her friendship so badly. — Longing For My Teacher

Dear Longing: All our strange, busy ways upset you — and I don't wonder! But life does not stand still, and we can never go backwards. One of these days, God willing, you will find another wonderful teacher or friend right here in Canada who will take you by the hand and open up new worlds to you.

Your old friend may well still be teaching right in the same spot where you saw her last. Write to the school yourself and ask for her present address.

Human nature is warm and loving, even if it does express itself a little differently here. Are your school friends as nasty to you in Canada as back home? Start believing in us.

* * *

Dear Doris: I met a boy I really liked. I felt so wonderful that I thought there could be no other. Just three weeks ago I met another boy who was just fantastic. I suddenly forgot about the other guy with whom I was in love until just the other day.

Lately I met three other guys who were equally fantastic. Now I'm stuck with five boy friends who think I like them alone. I feel like a heartless idiot and don't know what to do. — Ashamed

Dear Ashamed: You rival Houdini if you can juggle all of them without any other one finding out. So you'd better not with it before you get caught two-timing.

Publish a bulletin announcing that from now on Ashamed is playing the field. Or gently tell each one same times, and that you still think he is terrific.

You are in love with love, my little Cleopatra. Perfectly normal, though highly unsettling.

Ann Landers

Many Young People Resent Authority

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 20-year-old boy who has been looking for a job for seven weeks. The last three places I applied seemed promising but I wasn't hired. I decided to check back and find out why. All three personnel heads said my qualifications were excellent but my appearance was against me. What it boiled down to was long hair and a short beard. I finally asked the last personnel guy if he would hire me if I cut my hair and shaved off my beard. He replied, "Yes." I looked him straight in the eye, said, "Nuts to you," and walked out.

ANN LANDERS

The system is rotten and this is proof. What has my hair and beard to do with my ability? I consider it my constitutional right to wear my hair any way I please and to have a beard if I want one. I would like your opinion on this. If I get the answer I want I will take it back to those jerks and shove it in their stupid faces. — BATON ROUGE.

* * *

DEAR BAT :Sorry, Buddy. When you are asking for something — you do it their way. If an employer doesn't want a kid with long hair and a beard, it's his constitutional right not to hire him.

Some of you kids make a lot more trouble for yourselves than you need. You walk around as if the world owes you a living. You talk about your rights but not to accept you and when they don't you yell, "Damn the establishment!"

You'll do a lot better, folks, when you learn to smile and meet the world half way. A chip on the shoulder is usually a sign that there is wood higher up.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This will probably sound like a dumb question and I would not be asking it except that something fantastic happened today. Can a lady have a baby without knowing she is pregnant?

Today a woman gave birth in the parking lot of a supermarket. A couple of people from the store rushed her to the hospital. She is in pain, unable to open the door. One man said to her, "I'm going to call an ambulance right away or the baby will be born here." The woman shrieked "Rubbish! I am not pregnant. It's appendicitis or something I ate."

Within a few minutes that woman gave birth to a baby. Someone hailed a passing squad car and the woman and her baby were taken to a nearby hospital.

How in the world could such a thing happen? Was this lady nutty? Did she suddenly develop amnesia? Please explain how a woman can go through a pregnancy and not know it. — IF I DIDN'T SEE IT I WOULDN'T BELIEVE IT.

* * *

DEAF IF: Such an occurance is rare, but it is not unheard of. The explanation is that some women do not experience the usual symptoms of pregnancy. In the case of the parking-lot mother, she may well have been completely unaware of her condition until the birth.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a widow going with a gentleman who is not wealthy but he is comfortable. I have a birthday coming next month. He asked me what I wanted. Before I could reply he announced matter-of-factly, "I plan to spend $25." I was never so shocked in my life. I told him I couldn't think of anything I wanted. Now I'm not sure any gift would be acceptable to me. Wasn't this crass on his part? — Please comment. — VASSAR '40.

DEAR '40: Your friend is obviously a practical fellow. He is also a cautious type. Some people believe in laying it on the line. He might be crass, but he's honest. Don't knock it.

Stewardess Changes Job

VANCOUVER (CP) — Adrianne Damgaard, 27-year-old CP Air stewardess from Salmon Arm, B.C., will give up the glamor of airline flying for three months this summer to work as a volunteer on a medical team in Laos.

Miss Damgaard will assist on a hospital boat at Thadeau, 12 miles south of Vientiane, and along the Mekong River where the team will treat the sick in refugee crowded villages.

A 1966 nursing graduate from St. Paul's Hospital in Vancouver, she will also give public health lectures to villagers during her tour of duty under the auspices of the Thomas A. Dooley Foundation of San Francisco, which has an extensive medical aid program in Southeast Asia.

Group Aids Black Student

MONTREAL (CP) — To Dorothy Green Wills, executive secretary of the National Black Coalition, the main duty of the black immigrant is to establish his place in Canadian society, not to dwell on the conditions in his former country.

In this way blacks can "share on our frustrations and fears" and our new country and strengthen ing in Toronto in October, 1969, communication so that black and has 56 chapters across Can-people would no longer live in isolated pockets," Mrs. Wills, a West Indian immigrant, said in an interview.

One way this was being accomplished was through a $10,000 grant given the coalition last year by the Canadian Council of Churches. The coalition

Mrs. Wills said the coalition responded to the grant by distributing funds to black students and such organizations as Kinew Services in Toronto and the New Brunswick Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

"Many of our people were dropping out of high schools because of financial problems. I couldn't keep them there," said Mrs. Wills, a mother of two and wife of Prof. Ronald Wills of Sir George Williams University. "This was something we had to do something about."

It was found that many black students in Quebec were being denied academic training and receiving vocational training foisted on them instead."

A member group, the Board of Black Students, set up a summer training program to prepare 76 youths for university entrance. McGill University provided several teachers and the coalition donated $2,500 for textbooks.

Mrs. Wills said that 46 of the original 76 now are in university.

In spite of these accomplishments, she said many other black causes in Canada will go unaided because money is always a problem.

Because of the size of the country, it cost on average $900 to bring the coalition's executive together for its quarterly meetings.

Mrs. Wills, herself a business teacher at a Roman Catholic school in suburban Ville d'Anjou, said that sometimes she still wonders if the black cause "fits into the mosaic here."

"Does he?" she asked. "I still asking myself that question."

Kitchen-Tested Recipes

Baking Your Own Bread Is A Rewarding Habit

By MARY MOORE

"I smell bread" said Wyn as she came through the door on Sunday evening. "I smell homemade bread", said Wilf as he followed her in.

Those two exclamations made making bread worthwhile even if we never tasted it — but we did of course. But add the satisfaction of making the bread to the pleasure of your guests and you have one happy cook.

Folks, this recipe makes two economical loaves of bread. I think the 4-oz. can of granular yeast at 65 cents is a more economical way of buying yeast than in the foil envelopes. In addition skim milk powder and water are used instead of liquid milk.

HOMEMADE WHITE BREAD
(2 loaves)

2-3 cup skim milk powder
2 cups warm (warmer than lukewarm) water
2 tbsps. sugar
1½ tbsps. shortening
2 tsps. salt
1 tbsp. (1 envelope) granular yeast
About 5½ cups sifted all-purpose (hard wheat) flour

NOTE: You may use 2 cups warm liquid milk instead of skim milk powder and water if you wish.

Into a very large bowl measure the skim milk powder, warm water, sugar, salt and shortening. Stir well to dissolve skim milk powder, sugar and salt and to melt shortening. Sprinkle yeast over top and let stand 5 min. Meanwhile sift and measure flour. Add 2 cups sifted flour and beat 2 min. Add 2 more cups and mix it in as well as you can with heavy spoon. Cover and let rise at room temperature for 2 hrs. Sprinkle bread board with about ¼ cup flour and punch down dough, turn out on board and knead 200 times. Divide into 2 loaves and place in buttered standard loaf pans. Push tops with fists. Let rise (under light if practical) for 2 to 2½ hrs. or until risen about 1" above rims of pans. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. at centre of oven for 40-45 min. or until crust is deep gold and loaves have shrunk from sides of pans. After 5 min. rest turn out on rack to cool. If possible serve one loaf fresh from the oven.

You rate — who belong to the biggest, best wheat-growing country in the world — get into the happy habit of baking your own bread.

Points for Parents

Mother: "Little Teddy really is into the 'terrible two's.' He fights me every inch of the way no matter what I want him to do. I usually have to give him a good spanking before he will take a bath, go to bed or settle down and eat dinner."

Teddy is at the age where he but he can be quietly controlled without arousing constant antagonism if you use imagination and ingenuity. Give him some choices and hopefully every reaction won't be negative.

Mother: "Come on, Teddy, let's put the little boats in the water and you can play with them. Would you like to sit in your high chair or at your little table for dinner? Help your little feet get into the pajamas and we'll have a horseback ride to bed."

Oysters Used In Cosmetic Industry

PARIS (Reuter) — Parisiennes, always on the lookout for exotic health and beauty products, have discovered that you can do more with an oyster than just eat it.

Ingrid Millet, a pioneer dermatologist of German origin, is making face cream out of extracts from live oysters. Her customers are reported to include the wife of France's president, Mme. Georges Pompidou, and actresses Jeanne Moreau and Catherine Deneuve.

Mme. Millet's institute is situated in a quiet residential section of Paris.

The success of the oyster cream, which also includes mineral salts and seaweed concentrates, ties in with a current French craze for organic and natural foods.

Beauty aids invented by other biologists are based on such unlikely components as mink oil or orchid pollen.

Minks and orchids have no seasonal limitation, but when the supply of fresh oysters is less plentiful in the summer months and refrigerated stocks of the cream run low, Mme. Millet flies her molluscs in from Australia.

Mollusc magic appears to work for Mme. Millet, who looks 10 to 15 years younger than her actual age of 50.

She has studied dermatology and biology for 30 years, and worked in close collaboration with Prof. Paul Niehans, whose "Fountain of Youth" clinic in Switzerland pioneered a method of intra-muscular injections with animal cells in the early 1930s.

Lose 10 lbs. in 10 Days on Grapefruit Diet

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF (Special)—This is the revolutionary grapefruit diet that everyone is suddenly talking about. It has made people slim, attractive and feel young again. Literally thousands upon thousands of copies have been passed from hand to hand in factories and offices throughout the U.S.

Word of its success has spread like wildfire. This is the diet that really works. No pills or drugs. Its basic ingredients in our first picture are to contain. If you follow it exactly you should lose 5 inches in 10 days. There will be overnight loss in the first 4 days, but you will suddenly drop 5 pounds on the 5th day. Thereafter you will lose one pound a day until the 10th day. Then you will lose 1½ pounds every two days until you get down to your proper weight. Best of all, there will be no hunger pangs. Now revised and enlarged, this new diet plan lets you partake of foods formerly "forbidden" such as big juicy steaks, roast or fried chicken, rich gravies, mayonnaise, butter, lobster swimming in butter, bacon, sausages and scrambled eggs. You can eat until you are full and still lose 10 pounds in the first 10 days and 1½ pounds every two days thereafter. The secret behind this new "quick weight loss" diet is simple. Fat does not burn fat. The grapefruit acts as a catalyst that "melts" fat, start the fat burning process. You eat as much as you want of the permitted foods listed in the diet plan, and still lose weight by fat and starch - free body foods. When the 1st and 2nd week diet plan is completed, it may be repeated. A copy of this very successful diet plan booklet, containing the secret can be obtained by sending $2 to Grapefruit Diet, MONEY BACK GUARANTEE. If after diligently trying the diet plan you have not lost 7 pounds in the first 7 days and 15½ pounds every two days thereafter, simply return the diet plan and your $2 will be refunded promptly and without argument. Fill out the coupon, mail it today, and you will receive your diet plan the first class mail. Decide now to regain the true, attractive figure of your youth, while enjoying hearty breakfasts, lunches and dinners!

In this diet plan, $2.00 is enclosed, please send Diet Plan to:

Tyrone Guthrie Lauded at Stratford

STRATFORD (CP) — No one but Sir Tyrone Guthrie could have made the Stratford Festival work, Tom Patterson said Saturday paying tribute to the man who served as the festival's artistic director for its first three years.

Sir Tyrone, who died in Dublin Saturday at the age of 70, was brought to Stratford by Mr. Patterson who founded the Shakespearean festival in 1953.

"He had a combination of theatrical genius and a deep understanding of the average person and seemed almost to have a sense of destiny about the festival project," Mr. Patterson said.

Dr. Ian Lindsay, chairman of the Stratford Shakespearean Festival Foundation, said Sir Tyrone was "the man in the street, always talking to everybody."

"The people in Stratford didn't think of him as Sir Tyrone, the great man of the theatre, but as Tony, the warmhearted human being."

Jean Gascon, the festival's current artistic director," said there had been plans for Sir Tyrone to return to the festival, where he last appeared in 1961 to direct the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta The Pirates of Penzance.

"We had been talking for three years about a possible association as a guest director," he said.

Victor Polly, the festival's former administrative director and now theatre manager for the St. Lawrence Centre in Toronto, said Sir Tyrone's death is "a devastating loss to theatres throughout the world."

Trainmen and Yardmen Sign Wage Agreement

MONTREAL (CP) — A settlement providing for substantial wage increases and improved fringe benefits for 14,100 trainmen, yardmen and yardmasters on Canada's two major railways, CP Rail and Canadian National, was signed Sunday by union and management negotiators.

The settlement is still subject to ratification by members of the United Transportation Union.

It calls for a two-year contract with a wage increase of eight per cent retroactive to Jan. 1, 1971, and another seven per cent raise Ja. 1, 1972.

The settlement was reached with the assistance of A.R. Gibbons, railway industry specialist for the federal department of labor.

The settlement also calls for major improvements in health, welfare, vacation and holiday benefits, some of which are:

—Increased company-paid life insurance amounting to $4,500 for each employee.

—A $500 life insurance policy on retirement.

—Weekly indemnity benefits of about $80 per week, compared with the existing $60 a week allowance.

—Medical and surgical payments by the railways of $11.50 a month for married employees and $5.50 a month for single employees, except in Quebec where a flat payment of $10 a month will be made for each employee.

—Ten statutory holidays annually starting in 1972, one more a year than the last contract called for.

—Three weeks paid vacation after eight years instead of after 10 years.

For Nine Years Nature Has Smiled on Chinese

TOKYO (AP) — Why do the Communist Chinese smile on the outside world? One reason may be that nature has smiled on them.

China is primarily an agricultural country—nearly 600 million of its 750 million people till it.

For nine years, Premier Chou En-lai told visiting reporters last month, China has had excellent harvests. The grain output in 1970, he earlier told a Japanese delegation, broke all records at 244 million tons. Though no official figures have been published since 1960, this compares withe previous estimated high of 215 million tons in 1967.

The harvests have given boosts to light and heavy industry and helped the nation recover from disruptions of the 1966-69 cultural revolution.

Bumper crops have meant more money to buy abroad, more money to improve Chinese defences, more money to confront nature's scourges.

Japanese analysts and the U.S. Agriculture Service agree that 1970 was a record year, though they place grain production at a slightly lower level—230 million tons.

The agriculture people say that caloric intake by China's millions should improve slightly as a consequence; but it still remains low.

The Chinese say bumper harvests were the result of greater use of fertilizer, more irrigation, newer seeds, and greater mechanization.

Since 1958, the peasants have worked state-owned plots in a vast system of rural communes.

In the beginning they numbered some 27,000. When poor management and three successive years of bad harvests brought them to the brink of failure, they were decentralized and cut up into 70,000 smaller, more easily manageable ones.

Production brigades, which oversee smaller production teams, established small factories to turn out agricultural implements. As an added incentive, individual peasants were permitted to cultivate privately-owned pieces of land to supplement their income and produce from the larger state farms.

In two communes this correspondent saw outside Shanghai and Canton, the factories were humming and the tractor repair stations were busy. But farm mechanization, as one revolutionary committee member admitted, was meagre.

The fields are peopled with workers and every square inch appears to be yielding some productive crop.

Bus Strike Starts

HAMILTON (CP) — Bus service was halted today by a strike of drivers and mechanics employed by Hamilton's Street Railway who walked out at 3 a.m. EDT after it became obvious that negotiations would not produce an early settlement.

John Feranzini, Ontario labor department mediator, met with the company and Amalgamated Transit Union representatives for 13 hours Sunday without success.

Talks broke off early today. Mr. Feranzini said it depends on the union whether or not any further talks will be held today.

When the talks broke off, there was little to indicate either side had moved from its original stand. The company offered a pay increase of 52 cents an hour. The union demanded a 96-cent-an-hour increase.

About 400 drivers are involved.

A similar strike over wages stopped city buses last in 1967.

Oil Kings Get Better Quebec Reception Than St. Catharines

QUEBEC (CP) — St. Catharines Black Hawks, who pulled out of the eastern junior hockey playoffs because they objected to their treatment by Quebec City fans, wouldn't have known the place Saturday night.

Edmonton Oil Kings arrived to meet Quebec Remparts in an east-west junior playoff, and the western champions were greeted at the airport by about 2,000 cheering spectators.

The Oil Kings and Remparts open their best-of-three Memorial Cup series tonight.

The Hawks, Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series titlists, thought so little of a reception they got here last weekend they decided to forfeit their Eastern Canada final series to the Remparts, Quebec Junior A Hockey League champions, rather than play here again.

St. Catharines charged that fans threw missiles at their bench last Saturday night during the fourth game of the Richardson Cup series and that the Remparts supporters also pelted their bus with bottles after the game, won by Quebec 6-1.

The Hawks pulled out of the series, setting up the national junior final between the Oil Kings and Remparts.

The Western Canada Hockey League champions were impressed by the warm reception given them.

"Not only was there a large crowd, but many of them had placards which read 'Welcome Oil Kings'," said Bill Hunter, Edmonton coach and general manager.

"They had about a 250-car motorcade. People were honking their horns and flicking us with their lights on. It was really something."

The Remparts are one of the better skating teams in junior hockey and Hunter says he plans to offset this with some close checking and positional hockey.

Both teams feature high-scoring forwards with Guy Lafleur, a 130-goal scorer during the regular season, the top Remparts' offensive threat.

Other top Remparts' sharpshooters are Jacques Richard, a 53-goal man during the regular season and Michel Briere, who scored 51 times in regular QJHL play.

Dan Kosak was the top Oil Kings offensive threat during the season with 66 goals and Edmonton had 43-goal men in Dan Spring and Danny Read.

Hunter saw Lafleur in the series against St. Catharines and says "he's Canada's best Junior."

The Oil Kings coach did not say whether he had special coverage planned for Lafleur.

"We have a plan, but we don't want to tip our hat."

The second game of the series is scheduled here Wednesday night, with a third, if necessary, Friday night.

All games in the series are being played in Quebec City.

Habs Force Seventh Game As Brother Act Beats Hawks

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens got protection behind the bench and on the ice Sunday afternoon in a 4-3 win over Chicago Black Hawks that sent the Stanley Cup final to a deciding seventh game.

The two teams, with three wins each, meet in the finale Tuesday night in Chicago at 8.30 p.m. EDT. The game will be carried nationally by the CBC-TV network.

While plainclothesmen kept an eye out for possible assailants of coach Al MacNeil, rookie goaltender Ken Dryden was shoring the defences, stopping 27 of 30 Chicago shots.

And the Mahovlich brothers, Frank and Peter, shared the glory in the National Hockey League final cliffhanger. Frank set one record with his 14th playoff goal and tied another with 27 points while Pete collected two goals, including the winner.

MacNeil, his life threatened by crank callers since veteran Henri Richard levelled a tirade at the rookie coach after Thursday's 2-0 loss at Chicago, remained aloof to be police protection.

Dryden, meanwhile, was besieged by Hawk shooters in the first 40 minutes as Chicago held 11-5 and 14-6 edges in shots in the first and second periods respectively.

The teams were deadlocked at 1-1 after 20 minutes on goals by Chicago's Jim Pappin, his first of two, and Yvan Cournoyer. Peter Mahovlich put Montreal ahead early in the second before Chico Maki and Pappin gave the Hawks a 3-2 lead.

The Mahovlich brothers wound up the scoring with Frank tying it at 5:10 and Peter scoring the winner at 8:56 while Montreal's Rejean Houle was sitting out a minor penalty.

Asked repeatedly about the Richard incident in which the fiery centre-winger alleged his coach was "incompetent," and "the worst I have ever played under," MacNeil replied only that "it did not bother me."

He was obviously more concerned with a dislodged net in the second period. Montreal centre Jacques Lemaire found it wide open but had his goal disallowed by referee Art Skov because the net had been knocked from its moorings.

FRANK MAHOVLICH

"The net didn't move that much," said MacNeil. "The referee should take into consideration the speed of play and the crowding around the net. . . .

"It would have been a 2-1 hockey game in our favor . . . and it would have given us a lift."

Dryden, who has appeared in a record 19 playoff games this year for a record 1,171 minutes, injured his knee in the first period stopping a shot but ruled out the possibility of a serious injury by referring to his net for the puck near the Montreal blueline with Pappin later.

"If I had twisted it I couldn't have raced out to the blueline shortly after to check the puck away from Jim Pappin," he said. But he took the blame for Pappin's second goal because he "stayed back" and failed to cut the shooting angle.

The records broken and tied by Frank Mahovlich were established last year by Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins while the previous goaltending ironman job for playoffs was turned in by Glenn Hall of St. Louis Blues during the 1967-8 post-season games.

Montreal's Jean Beliveau also established an individual playoff mark with his 10th assist, increasing by one the previous record set by Chicago's Stan Mikita in 1962.

Canadiens' rugged John Ferguson, who has been playing sporadically but reasonably well with an injured hip shot full of medication, expressed disappointment that Montreal managed only 16 shots at Hawks Tony Esposito.

"Sixteen shots in this building is ridiculous," said Ferguson. "It means we weren't playing our game."

One of the 16 shots was a first-period penalty shot awarded when Esposito appeared to throw his stick at the puck near the Hawk blueline after losing a race with Frank Mahovlich.

It was the first time a penalty shot had been awarded in NHL playoffs and Skov had no compunctions about making the call. Chicago coach Billy Reay agreed with the official, saying the goalie "threw his stick and you can't do that."

The Big M, leading scorer in the playoffs, was selected to make the shot but was apparently too nervous to look up after picking the puck up at centre ice and finding Esposito bearing down on him.

The Chicago goalie made a sudden change in direction, but Mahovlich, off balance, fired the puck right at him.

The muffed chance didn't upset Mahovlich.

"I want to say that I didn't miss my shot. I was happy with what I did because I got off a good shot, but Esposito made a good save."

Mahovlich said: "I was thinking of what to do."

"I didn't figure he'd come out so soon and once he started back, I shot. Maybe I let go too soon, but he surprised me by coming out so quickly."

Mahovlich said he had one

PETER MAHOVLICH

previous penalty shot. "I made it and as I recall it was against Glenn Hall."

General manager Sam Pollock offered praise to young Rejean Houle, the Canadiens winger assigned to follow Hawks' Bobby Hull. The Golden Jet picked up two assists Sunday but was held off the goal scoring column again by the pesky Montrealer.

Houle "has covered himself with glory for the job he has done checking Bobby Hull during the series," said Pollock, adding "Canadiens won Sunday's key game despite formidable odds, which included disallowed goals, a missed penalty shot and taking a majority of the penalties."

Canadiens took seven of the 11 minor penalties assessed by Skov.

Springfield Won Without All-Stars!

WEST SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Springfield's Calder Cup champion Kings and the runnerup Providence Reds failed to gain a berth as Baltimore Clippers and Cleveland Barons dominated the 1970-71 American Hockey League All-Star team announced today.

Baltimore, regular-season Western Division champions, placed three players and Cleveland two on the first team balloting by sports writers and sportscasters in the league cities.

Picked from Baltimore were goalie Andy Brown, right wing Marc Dufour and Fred Speck, who tied with Joe Johnston of Cleveland for the centre berth.

Others named to the first team were Cleveland defenceman Marshall Johnston, left wing Don Blackburn of Rochester Red Wings and defenceman Ralph MacSweyn of Quebec City Aces.

Springfield and Providence were the only clubs blanked in the voting.

EDMONTON (CP) — Russell Barney Stanley, a member of the Hockey Hall of Fame whose 20-year career in hockey included 15 as a professional, died Sunday. He was 78. Born at Paisley, Ont., June 1, 1893, Stanley played with Vancouver Millionaires when they won the Stanley Cup in 1915, his first year as a professional. He played with the Millionaires until the end of the 1918-19 season. Stanley served as coach and manager of Chicago Black Hawks in 1928-29. During his professional career he scored 144 goals in 216 games and scored five goals in one game on two occasions. He was elected to the Hockey Hall of Fame in 1962.

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Art Jackson, 55, a member of Stanley Cup and Memorial Cup winning teams, died of a heart attack while playing golf Saturday. Jackson was a member of the National Hockey League's Boston Bruins when they won the Stanley Cup in 1940-41. He also played with the Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Americans. He was on the Toronto St. Michael's College junior team when it won the Memorial Cup in 1933-34. Jackson came to St. Catharines in 1947 to become the first coach of St. Catharines Teepees in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league. He left that position in 1950 and had been active in industry until the time of his death. Jackson was predeceased by his brother, Harvey (Busher) Jackson, a perennial all-star with Toronto Maple Leafs in the 1930s.

DAVE RAIMEY

Raimey Shifted Off Offence

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League will shift Dave Raimey, one of the top offensive players in the country, to a defensive position this season.

Raimey, second in rushing in the Eastern Conference last season despite a series of leg injuries, was named to the CFL all-star team in five of his six years in Canadian football.

Of his transfer to the defensive squad, Raimey said: "My pride is hurt because I feel certain I have a lot of offence left in me.

"But if the coach thinks it's on defence that I can do the team the most good, then that's where I want to be.

Raimey said he was slated for a cornerback position, which means he will be competing with Jim Tomlin, Dick Thornton and Jimmy Dye for one of the two starting spots.

JOHN BATEMAN

Bateman Belts in 4 As Expos Trim Reds

CINCINNATI (AP) — John Bateman drove in four runs with a homer and sacrifice fly as Montreal Expos drubbed Cincinnati Reds 9-3 Sunday.

Ron Hunt opened the game with a single, took third on a single by Clyde Mashore and scored on a ground out, sending Montreal ahead to stay. Bateman delivered another first inning run with his sacrifice fly.

Hunt and Mashore knocked in second-inning runs with singles.

Run-producing doubles by Coco Laboy and pitcher Steve Renko made it 6-0 in the third and Bateman crashed a three-run homer in the eighth.

Renko boosted his pitching record to 4-2 with relief help from Mike Marshall. Tony Perez drove in two Cincinnati runs with a double and his fifth homer.

Amazing Canonero II Wins Second Jewel of Triple Crown

BALTIMORE (AP) — Canonero II, virtually unwanted as a yearling and unknown as the Kentucky Derby winner, now has the opposition unhinged as he shoots for the first Triple Crown in 23 years.

"I don't intend to hook Canonero again if I can help it," Reggie Cornell, the trainer of Eastern Fleet, said after the Cinderella horse of 1971 scored a spectacular triumph Saturday in the Preakness.

It was Eastern Fleet who stayed with Canonero II throughout the 1 3-16 mile classic. But at the end, Venezuelan jockey Gustavo Avila and his mount were pulling away.

The victory margin was 1¼ lengths and the time of 1:54 broke the Pimlico track record, set in the 1955 Preakness by Nashua, by three-fifths of a second.

"My horse didn't stop," said Eddie Maple, the jockey aboard Eastern Fleet, his other son just ran faster."

If the race had been longer, added trainer Juan Arias said, "he would have won by a bigger margin."

The Belmont Stakes in New York, last of the Triple Crown series on June 5, is at 1½ miles, Arias said the distance would not bother Canonero II, and the owners and trainers of other horses seem to agree.

So far, only Jim French, the third-place finisher from the 11-horse Preakness field, seemed likely to compete in the Belmont. Five of the field were in the Derby, too, with Jim French the runner-up that time.

Sound Off was fourth in the Preakness, followed by Bold Reason, Executioner, Royal Dan, Vegas Vic, Impetuosity, Spoiling Horna and Limit At Reason.

Despite the recent startling successes, the Belmont doesn't figure to be a walkover. Among the Belmont possibilities who missed the first two Triple Crown races are Good Behaving, Run the Gantlet and On Your Toes.

Citation, in 1948, was the last Triple Crown winner.

Two years ago, Majestic Prince, owned by industrialist Frank McMahon of Calgary and Vancouver, won the Derby and the Preakness but faltered in the Belmont.

In the last 10 years, the Belmont was also the stumbling block for three other Derby and Preakness winners—Carry Back in 1961, Northern Dancer, owned by industrialist E. P. Taylor of Toronto, in 1964, and Kauai King in 1966.

Canonero II, whose $137,400 winner's share upped his lifetime earnings to $315,089, was sold for a mere $1,200 as a Kentucky-bred yearling at Keeneland.

The sire, Pretendre, finished second in England's 1966 Epsom Derby but was not well known in the United States. In addition, Canonero II had a slight leg deformity that turned away potential buyers.

Breeder Edward B. Benjamin said in Greensboro, N.C., Sunday that the colt "would not have stood training here, or in England or Europe.

"With his leg that turned in," Benjamin said, "it was a real miracle that the horse was brought from Venezuela, where he was trained on a soft sand track that cushioned the leg."

Benjamin suggested that owners in the United States may have to develop a soft sand track for horses with bad legs.

Canonero II was named one of six "field" horses in the 20-horse Derby, reducing what would have been a whopping payoff had his odds been figured singly.

The come-from-behind victory in the Derby, at a slow 2:02 1-5 for the 1¼ miles, was followed by some unusual training methods at Pimlico. Reporters rounded and shocked veteran observers.

The final tuneup for the Preakness was a five-furlong work at the incredibly slow time of 1:06. Arias told countless questioners that everything was fine, but no one believed him.

Finally, at a Preakness party on Friday night, the amiable Arias said:

"They laughed at us in Kentucky, and they laughed at us here. But we will win again."

Canonero II did just that, but this time with a front-running effort, which included 1:18 2-5 for three-quarters of a mile and 1:35 for the mile.

Arias, who admitted being rattled by the week of numerous interviews, said it took "a superhuman effort" not to pass on his nervousness to the horse.

Canonero II, a sort of family pet, continued to receive the silk glove treatment from his handlers.

"He responds to kindness," Arias said.

This Redhead Far from Dead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Just when it appeared the Redhead was dead, Houston Astros manager Harry Walker breathed life into slump-buried Doug Rader.

"I might not be out of my slump yet, except for Harry—he took me to his room in New York last week and talked about my problems," said Houston's third baseman, dubbed the Rooster for his flaming hair and gregarious ways.

Rader responded to the ego-building chat with his second straight two-hit game Sunday, including a run-batted-in on a grand-slam home run and double, to lead Houston over St. Louis Cardinals 12-4.

In other National League action Sunday, Pittsburgh Pirates beat New York Mets 4-2; Philadelphia Phillies axed Atlanta Braves 4-3; Montreal Expos clobbered Cincinnati Reds 9-3; Los Angeles Dodgers tripped San Francisco Giants 9-6; and Chicago Cubs topped San Diego Padres 9-8 in 10 innings. The second game of a Chicago-San Diego doubleheader was suspended after six innings because of darkness with the Cubs leading 6-3. It will be completed Aug. 4.

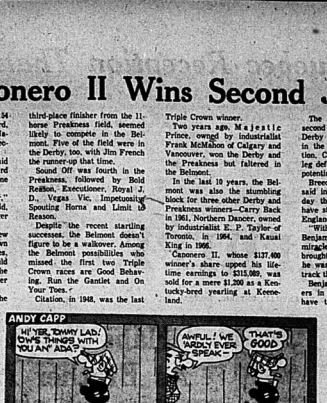
Chicago beat San Diego 6-4 Saturday, San Francisco blanked Los Angeles 1-0, Cincinnati downed Montreal 6-1, New York blasted Pittsburgh 9-2, Atlanta walloped Philadelphia 6-2 and St. Louis edged Houston 6-5.

Rader, had been a problems before the talk. He was hitting .154 and had no homers and only five runs batted in above for more than 30 games—a dramatic back-flip from last year's 26 homers and 97 RBI.

"I've been hitting the ball better the last week," said Rader, who connected for a three-run homer against the Mets after seeing Walker. "Since that second game in New York, before which Harry talked to me, I'm swinging better. I'm making better contact, I'm hitting the ball harder."

Rader ripped the third slam of his five-year career in the first inning off Jerry Reuss, touching off Houston's biggest splurge of the young '71 bats.

The Astros scored three more in the third, two on Rader's double, and four in the fourth. Rader's six RBI tied a club record.



Houston ace Larry Kierker, notching his sixth victory in seven decisions, wasn't around at the end. He yielded only six six innings, coughed up 13 Cardinal hits, and needed relief help from Ron Ray.

Richie Hebner, Manny Sanguillen and Bob Robertson stroked three-run blasts and Dave Giusti choked off a ninth-inning rally as Pittsburgh beat the New York and climbed to within two games of the Mets in the East Division.

Giusti came in to get the last out after Pittsburgh starter Dock Ellis was touched for a run and left men on first and third.

Wes Parker's two-run homer highlighted a three-run eight and Los Angeles struck for three more in the ninth for a come-back victory over San Francisco.

Jim Hickman's two-run homer in the bottom of the 10th carried Chicago over San Diego for the Cubs' sixth straight victory.

Senators' Coleman Matches McLain's Avenger Trick

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Denny McLain and Joe Coleman have taken turns pulling one over on their old friends with a lot of help from their new friends.

Coleman, traded to Detroit Tigers from Washington last fall in the celebrated McLain deal, pitched eight-hit Senators over the first time Sunday and beat them 5-4 on Mickey Stanley's second home run of the game in the 10th.

Last Friday night, McLain made his first start against the Tigers and blew a 7-0 advantage in the ninth inning before winning 3-2 on Paul Casanova's sacrifice fly.

In other American League games, Minnesota Twins defeated Chicago White Sox 6-2, Milwaukee Brewers topped California Angels 6-2 and Oakland Athletics divided a doubleheader with Kansas City Royals, bowing 10-4 after a 4-2 first-game victory. Rain washed out the Baltimore Orioles-Boston Red Sox game and the Cleveland Indians-New York Yankees doubleheader.

In Saturday's action, Cleveland beat New York 4-2, Chicago dumped Minnesota 8-2, Kansas City zapped Oakland 5-4, Baltimore pounded Boston 7-4, Washington Senators edged Detroit 4-3 in 15 innings and California defeated Milwaukee 4-1.

"It means a lot to me," Coleman said Sunday after nailing his fourth victory without a loss on the rebound from a serious spring-training injury. "A lot of guys on the Senators weren't here last year when I was here, but it's something to beat your former team-mates the first time you face them."

Second baseman Homers by Stanley and Norm Cash helped stake Coleman to a 4-0 lead, but big Frank Howard belted a homer and run-scoring single as the Senators bounced back to tie.

Coleman, who suffered a fractured skull when he was hit by a line drive in a March 27 exhibition game, was on the ropes after Howard's fifth inning single knotted it.

But Tigers manager Billy Martin stuck with the 24-year-old right-hander and he responded by issuing one walk the rest of the way while Stanley broke the deadlock with a leadoff homer at 4:05 over Denny Riddleberger in the eighth.

Cesar Tovar scored the decid-ing run on a sixth-inning balk by Chicago reliever Vicente Romo as the Twins came from behind to trim the White Sox.

Minnesota tied the game 2-2 in the fifth on doubles by George Mitterwald and pinch-hitter Charlie Manuel, an error by pitcher Tom Bradley on Tovar's sacrifice bunt and a single by Rich Reese.

Romo then came out of the Chicago bullpen, walked Harmon Killebrew on four pitches and was charged with a balk when he attempted to pick the mound on a 2-0 pitch to Jim Holt, enabling Tovar to score.

The Twins threw away on Leo Cardenas' seventh-inning homer after a two-out double by Mitterwald in the eighth.

In the first game at Kansas City, the Athletics capitalized on an error by shortstop Fred Patek, who failed to touch second base on a second force play, to snap a seventh-inning tie on run-scoring singles by Bert Campaneris and Reggie Jackson.

John (Blue Moon) Odom, making his first start of the season after recovering from winter elbow surgery, pitched six strong innings for Oakland in the nightcap before going out for a pinch-hitter.

Homenuik Birdies Way To First Win

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Dave Homenuik banked four birdies on the front nine Sunday and survived a double bogey No. 13 for a two-stroke victory in the $25,000 East Ridge Golf Classic.

It was the first pro victory for Homenuik in the United States. The 5-foot-7 Winnipegger picked up $5,000 for first place in the PGA satellite event.

Homenuik shot a one-under 70 Sunday to go with rounds of 73, 67 and 72. His four-round total of 282 was two under for the tournament.

Bob Menne made it interesting the final two rounds, but settled for second and $3,000 two strokes back of Homenuik. Menne closed Sunday with a 71.

Sports on All Fronts

HOUSTON (AP) — Rookie Hubert Green said he felt no particular pressure when he went to the first extra hole in a sudden-death playoff with veteran Don' January for the $25,000 first prize in the Houston Champions Invitational golf tournament.

Said the laconic, unflappable young man: "I'm walking down No. 1 fairway and I sure can't finish worse than second. Everyone else has finished."

He nailed down the top prize on that first extra hole Sunday, lashing a nine iron shot 13 feet front the flag and running in the putt from his unorthodox stance —deeply crouched, feet wide-spread, and elbows out.

The birdie won it over the 41-year-old January, a 16-year tour veteran and former Professional Golfers Association champion. January missed the green and chipped to about three feet before the 24-year-old rookie settled it.

Green, who failed to make it when he first tried the PGA players school, joined the tour only late last year. The victory pushed his earnings for the year to $20,300, $44,100 in the last four weeks.

George Knudson of Toronto closed with a 73 for 297 and $217.

NEW YORK (CP) — Donato Paduano will really have an uphill battle tonight when he makes his middleweight debut against Bobby O'Brien in Madison Square Garden.

O'Brien, a 25-year-old New York fighter who stands six-foot-one, will tower over the five-foot-five Montreal fighter.

Despite his small stature, Paduano, former Canadian welterweight champion, had trou-ble making the 147-pound welterweight limit and decided to nlive up to the middleweight division.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (CP) — Peter Revson won the pole position Saturday for the 55th 500-mile auto race May 29 in a record-pace-setting qualification session at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Revson set a standard of 178.696 miles an hour for the 10-mile trials.

He and Mark Donohue, in twin Mark 16 McLaren-Offenhauers, will start in the first two positions in the 33-car, 11 million classic, flanked by 1968 Indy winner Bobby Unser.

TOKYO (AP) — India defeated Japan 3-2 for the Davis Cup Eastern Zone tennis championship with relentless pres-sure tactics by Premjit all clinching the deciding singles victory today.

Jury Gets Second Junior MVP Verdict

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

Ron Jury was back at the same old stand; John Mulvihill had a change of address, while Peter Ackerman and Dave Smith took a joint lease on some team silverware at the Belleville Fairway's banquet Saturday night.

Jury, who captured the 1970 Bobby Hull Trophy as the Most Valuable Player for the Eastern Ontario Junior B hockey entry, was a runaway choice as the repeat winner.

The sophomore goaltender picked up 11 of the 15 votes cast by members of the Fairways in make a shambles of the MVP voting as defenceman Peter Ackerman was the only other player to pick up more than one vote. The rookie rearguard was named on two ballots for MVP. Jury, who posted a 4.50 goals-against average for the fourth-place finishers will be over the junior hockey age limit next season.

Mulvihill, chosen last season as Rookie-of-the-year, was the top pick this season for the Bill Cook Memorial Trophy as the player best combining sportsmanship and ability.

The Belleville team captain notched eight goals and 25 assists during the course of the season to place 19th in the league scoring statistics. His 34 points were only one less than Peterborough's Dave Cooper who tear the highest scoring defenceman in the loop.

Other players receiving multiple votes for the Cook trophy were Rick Homes, Dave Ferguson, Rod Palmer and Ackerman.

The Gerald "Bucky" Ehler Memorial Trophy voting for rookie - of - the - year finished in a deadlock between Ackerman, the only player to receive votes in all three trophy categories, and hustling forward Dave Smith.

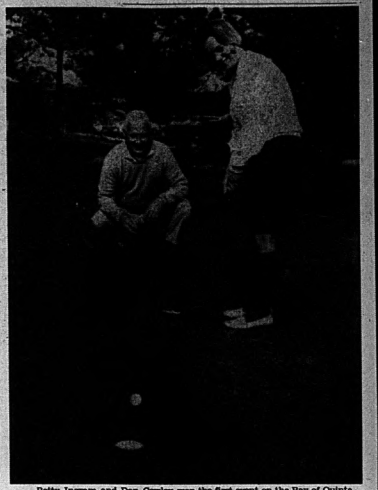
Smith, who still had a year of midget eligibility remaining last season, tallied 14 goals and 11 assists in his initial Junior B campaign in addition to supplying excellent backchecking services.

Ackerman's one goal and eight assists failed to indicate his value to the team as the rookie rearguard turned in the steadiest defensive performance on the team.

Left winger Joe Clarke was the only player besides Smith and Ackerman to receive more than one vote as the top first-year performer.

A total of 11 players were present at the banquet, held at Tops Motor Hotel, along with the executive, team associates and guest speaker Larry Mavety a former Belleville Junior B performer who was with Denver of the Western Hockey League this past season.

The only discordant note of the evening was the announcement of the retirement of veteran trainer Fred "Scoop" Smith. Fairway team members hope to persuade the Junior B fixture to return to his post when the season opens next November.



With only Jury, defenceman Rick Holmes and winger Joe Clarke over the junior age limit next season manager Jim "Snipe" Matthews and coach Floyd Crawford are optimistic about the Belleville chances for the 1971-72 campaign.

Plans were discussed for an exhibition junket to Halifax next fall, but the issue appears to hinge on whether or not the team is able to raise the $2,000 travel fee that would be required.

Silver Four

Dave Smith and Peter Ackerman joined Belleville Fairways teammates Ron Jury and John Mulvihill (back) as trophy winners for the local Eastern Ontario Junior B hockey entry. The awards were handed out at the team banquet held at Tops Motel Saturday night. Smith and Ackerman tied in the voting for rookie-of-the-year, while Judy captured the most valuable player award and Mulvihill was picked by his teammates as the player best combining sportsmanship and ability.

Betty Ingram and Dan Cowley won the first event on the Bay of Quinte Country Club's 1971 calendar Sunday by posting a combined 80 in the Opening Mixed Two-ball. Mrs. Ingram, club women's champion for the past decade, was deadly on the greens, sinking both her team's birdie putts.

Rollins Pass Initial Softball Test

Rollins Construction, of the Belleville Commercial Softball League, met their first Intermediate class exhibition challenge on Saturday night — and passed it with flying colors.

The Constructionmen rode Scott Reid's mid - season pitching performance and some timely hitting to a 4-2 decision over the Cobourg Orphans, in Cobourg.

The Orphans, members of the Trent Valley Fastball loop, will play a return tilt against Rollins at the Alemite Park here Wednesday of this week, at 8 p.m.

Reid handcuffed Cobourg on five hits and blew third strikes past 16, pitching out of a bases - loaded jam in the ninth.

Steve Ling, Gerry Hill, Ralph Plane and Carl Boomhower carried the key Rollins' bats, contributing two hits apiece.

Paul Hasson and Jim Chase split Cobourg's pitching, striking out 11.

"Your club looked strong tonight but our guys were a bit unhappy with their lack of hitting. I think it will be different on Wednesday", commented Orphan coach Roly Campbell.

Winners Putt for Show

They weren't putting "for dough", but Betty Ingram and Dan Cowley proved the golfing adage about the importance of steady greensmanship in winning the Bay of Quinte Country Club's Opening Mixed Two - ball event Sunday.

"I've never putted like that before," exclaimed Mrs. Ingram, who hadn't entered the first tournament on the 1971 club calendar but teamed up with Dan Cowley when his original partner cancelled out.

The perennial club women's champion sank both her team's birdie putts, a 12-footer on the 373 - yard par - four third hole, and another when her partner put his tee shot 20 feet from the pin on the tough 226 - yard par - three eighteenth.

Their combined 80 gave the winning twosome a comfortable ten-shot edge over the rest of the field, and it could have been greater if it hadn't been for, ironically, some putting problems.

"We three - putted three greens," said Cowley. "And that's the only place we ran into any trouble all day. We were straight down the fairways on every hole."

First low net honors went to Mary McAdams and Doug Bannon for their combined 74. Anne Acton and Bill Gregory carded a handicapped 75½. Ena Corke and Ron Moorman were at 76. Judy Hull and Fred Fisher coupled a 77, and Hettie Dybie and John Hull and Doreen Gill and Mickey Piperni turned in 79s.

Hockey Depletes Golfing Ranks

Saturday was golfing day at Marysville, but Sunday was Hockey Day in Canada.

Owner Earl Johnson reported a good turnout of 100 players for Saturday's public opening of the new Belleville Golf and Country Club near Marysville.

"They were coming pretty regularly Sunday morning, too," Johnson noted, "but around 2 o'clock everyone headed home to watch the hockey game."

Manager Brian Roach estimated that about half Saturday's crowd were green-fee players, the other members.

Highlight of the weekend at the Quinte area's newest golf course was a par 71 turned in by Scott Knapp, the young Napanee golfer who will serve as assistant club pro this summer.

An official opening is tentatively planned for Wednesday, June 2

Softball Needs Striking Types

The Belleville Minor Softball Association is still looking for some "striking" individuals to handle the umpiring duties for the group.

Coaches and players of the 26 teams in the association are ready for the opening games Monday, May 24 but a number of officials are still required.

Anyone interested in being an umpire is asked to contact Bert Trice at 968-7820.

The economy Corolla.
What you don't get you don't really need.

No fish tails, no racing stripes, no wind spoilers. There are lots of things you don't get with the Corolla 1200. Like parking problems and speeding tickets and great big monthly payments. What you do get is where you're going. And for some people that's enough.

Instead of the windswept speed machine that always gets the girl, some people like the classic, superbly built Corolla that gets up to 38 miles per gallon. They don't mind not being able to keep up with the big guys. They just want to keep up with the traffic. And the payments.

So instead of the usual long list of options, they prefer our unusually long list of standard equipment.

It includes 73 hp, front disc brakes, a 4-speed synchromesh transmission, (the automatic is optional) an electric rear window defroster, fully reclining front bucket seats, and so on.

Some people feel it's all you need to get around. And we're glad of that. Because it's all we could get into one car for under $2,000.*

Soviet Welcome Mat Out for Trudeau

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union put out the welcome mat today for Prime Minister Trudeau and his wife Margaret.

Trudeau and his wife arrive in Moscow today for a 11-day visit to the Soviet Union, the first ever by a Canadian prime minister.

Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, published a picture of Trudeau on its front page this morning and said his visit will give "impetus to mutually beneficial trade, cultural and scientific exchanges between the two countries."

"Canada and the Soviet Union have no reputed or unsolved problems between them," Pravda said. "At the same time, there is a range of questions on which it is possible to establish mutually advantageous co-operation. . . ."

Trudeau is expected to begin talks Tuesday with Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin and other top Soviet leaders. Thursday, he and his wife will set out on a six-city tour that will take them from sunny Central Asia-to far northern Siberia.

Trudeau's talks with Kosygin are likely to include the European security conference, a pet project of the Soviet Union and its Warsaw pact allies, and also the war in Indochina.

Moscow has made it clear that Canada, a NATO member, would be welcome at a conference on European security.

Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev took a step toward such a conference Friday by urging negotiations on reducing forces and armaments in central Europe. Trudeau will be the first Western leader to confer with top Soviet officials since Brezhnev's appeal.

On Indochina, Canada has a special interest as a member of the three-nation International Control Commission set up by the 1954 Geneva conference. The Soviet Union and Britain were co-chairmen of the conference.

During his provincial tour, Trudeau is expected to place heavy emphasis on possibilities for co-operation in the far north, where both the Soviet Union and Canada have vast undeveloped territories.

Canadian officials have in the past expressed the view that their country has much to learn from Russia in Arctic development.

Trudeau will be the first foreign leader ever to visit Norilsk, the most northerly city in Siberia and a big centre for mining platinum and uranium. From Norilsk, he will fly to another arctic city, Murmansk on the northern part of the Kola Peninsula.

He also is expected to meet scientists specializing in the Arctic when he goes to Leningrad, the last of the provincial cities he will visit.

The first stop on the tour will be Kiev, capital of the Ukraine. This second most populous of the 15 Soviet Republics has close ties with Canada through the many Ukrainian emigres living there.

May 22, he and his wife will fly on to Tashkent, the main city of Soviet Central Asia. From there they will make a brief trip to Samarkand, capital of the conqueror Tamerlane in the 14th century.

From Tashkent, they go to Norilsk May 24 and then on to Murmansk the following day. They fly southward again May 27 to Leningrad and leave for home from there the next day.

Algonquin Park Forest Fire Covers 800 Acres in North

TORONTO (CP) — Firefighters are battling an 800-acre blaze on the northwestern boundary of Algonquin Park, one of more than 60 that broke out in Ontario during a 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. Sunday.

With little rain expected and most of the province's central portion facing high fire-hazard ratings, the danger continues.

Quetico Provincial Park was threatened for a while by a 3,000-acre fire burning in Superior National Forest in Minnesota but a wind change late Sunday pushed the fire northward.

The fire burning about 35 miles southwest of North Bay in the Algonquin Park area was accessible by road and rail, allowing the department of lands and forests to move in firefighters and equipment.

A department spokesman blamed human carelessness for a majority of the fires but said some had been started by lightning.

He said no cottages were in danger and there was no threat to vacationers in the district.

More than 80 men were fighting the fire which was described as being in check but not under control.

A spokesman for the forest service in Ely, Minn. said Sunday that 25 men were working with hand tools and heavy equipment to complete a line around the fire south of Quetico park and a firebreak several miles to the west.

Two helicopters and two airplanes also were participating in the battle along with 17 bulldozers and more than 30 pumping units.

The official said he hopes the fire can be contained by tonight or Tuesday. Earlier the outbreak was said to be "man caused."

The fire, which broke out Friday night, has caused an estimated $844,000 damage, but posed no immediate threat to populated areas.

No injuries were reported.

The fire has left a 20-square-mile burned-over area about 70 miles north of Duluth and nine miles from the Ontario border.

In Ontario's North Bay district there were 17 fires. Kenora reported 12.

Late Sunday a 100-acre fire 10 miles south of Kirkland Lake was still out of control while a 50-acre blaze was still unchecked about 40 miles northwest of Thunder Bay.

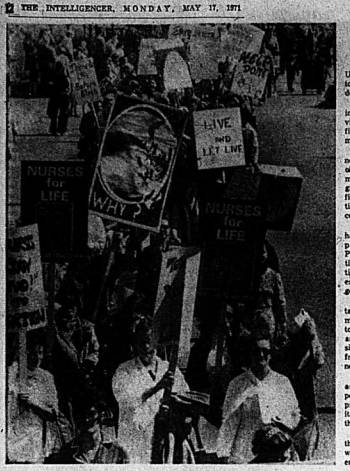
Family Priority Said Low

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian government, like most of the world, gives a low priority to the child and family, the national director of the Canadian Save the Children Fund said Saturday.

Kenric Marshall, speaking at the closing session of the 50th anniversary meeting of Canada Save, said the word child is not even mentioned in the Canadian government's white paper on foreign policy and redevelopment assistance.

The "gravity of such a sin of omission" could only be appreciated when the white paper was viewed in the context of the United Nations 1970 report on children.

The report said there were more sick, undernourished and uneducated children in the world at the end of the 1960s than in the preceding decade and called for a greater international efforts to reverse this situation.



CanSave supports community improvement programs in Canada and 25 foreign countries.

Man's Blows Kill Him

TORONTO (CP) — An inquest will be held early in June into the death of a man who, police said, drove his handcuffed fists into his own stomach after being taken into custody Friday.

Pathologist Frederick Jaffe reported William Mazda, 43, died of a ruptured stomach artery. Mazda owned a city rooming house.

Police said Mazda "punched himself to death" while being held for transfer to the Lakeshore Psychiatric Hospital. He was arrested after a woman worker at a textile factory complained that a man was following her.

Yo-yo Millionaire Dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Donald Frankfin Duncan, 78, a self-educated businessman who made the yo-yo a million-dollar seller and established the parking meter in cities, died Saturday from the effects of a stroke two weeks ago.

A former candy salesman who never went past the eighth grade, Duncan bought the rights to the parking meter in 1935 and promoted it in cities as a simple way of raising revenue.

Before the parking meter, Duncan founded Duncan Yo-Yo in 1928 and made the toy into a commercial success by advertising the tricks, such as "loop the loop," that a boy could do with it.

In the 1930s and 1950s the firm sold 20 million to 30 million yo-yos annually. Duncan sold his interest in the firm in the late 1950s to his family, who later sold it to another company.

Tradeau Defends Government in CBC Show

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau defended government policy Sunday night from the War Measures Act to unemployment in a television interview on the CBC program Weekend.

The transcript of the program, answering questions from a four-member panel, had been made public last week. Part had been broadcast by Jack Webster, a panel member and a Vancouver broadcaster.

Thereupon the Prime Minister's office issued the whole transcript and authorized a radio broadcast of the interview.

Intervening between the taping of the program and the television showing Sunday night were the latest unemployment figures showing an unexpectedly high actual total of 639,000 persons unemployed, 7.8 per cent of the labor force.

The seasonally-adjusted total was 6.7 per cent. This rate, which is regarded as the best economic indicator, takes account of seasonal jobless fluctuations such as summer student employment and high winter unemployment.

The original Trudeau interview ran about 80 minutes but was edited down to an hour for TV broadcast.

Mr. Trudeau defended proposed pay increases for MPs, to $27,000 from $18,000, including salary and expenses.

He said the monarchy, "will last as long as this government lasts," but that he couldn't forecast what would happen after that.

He said the government had acted in good faith in trying to combat inflation and that he regretted that unemployment had risen but that Canada had done better than any other Western country.

Debate from the program was a lengthy exchange about the forthcoming federal-provincial constitution conference in Victoria in June and some back-biting among panel members, chiefly by CBC interviewer Larry Zolf about who was going to ask the next question.

MacDonald Sees Drift To Wreck

WELLAND (CP) — The national president of the New Democratic Party said Saturday he is an incurable optimist but "there is a disturbing accumulation of evidence that Canada is drifting relentlessly toward dissolution."

Donald MacDonald, former leader of the Ontario NDP, told a testimonial dinner in his honor that he was especially concerned with the possible separation of Quebec from Canada.

"If Quebec goes, Canada as we know it goes," he said. "All of the provinces would be in danger of dismemberment, due to the increasing pull from the magnet to the south."

He said present apparent support for the Trudeau government exists only "as there is no viable alternative."

"We are not established and the Tories are in complete disarray."

Lobster Traps Damaged

U.S. Delegation Will Confer With Red Fishing Fleet Chief

GLOUCESTER, Mass. (AP) — A U.S. delegation will meet at sea Wednesday with the commander of a Soviet fishing fleet in hopes of ending a conflict between Russian trawlers and American lobster fishermen.

For the last few weeks, local lobstermen have complained to the U.S. Coast Guard the Russian trawlers have been operating in areas where lobster traps have been set, causing heavy damage to American gear.

John Skerry, chief of the division of enforcement and surveillance of the national marine fisheries service, said the meeting will be held "most likely on the Russian command ship" near the Nantucket lightship, stationed 40 miles southeast of Nantucket Island.

Skerry will head the American delegation, which also will include representatives of the coast guard, state department and the American fishing industry.

The coast guard said it has received seven complaints from Massachusetts lobstermen in the last two weeks that Russian trawlers have passed over American gear.

Lobster fishermen use wooden traps to catch lobster on the ocean floor. The traps were attached to floating buoys. The general area is usually marked off with another set of buoys to caution other fishermen.

Russian trawlers drag their nets through the water, and if they pass over an area where lobster traps are set, the traps, buoys and lines get swept up in the trawl.

Joseph C. E. Mallet, captain of the Wily Fox out of Westport, said he has lost about $50,000 worth of gear from Russian trawlers passing over his traps.

Mallet said at one point last week the crew of one Russian ship bade him "good fishing" moments before about a dozen Russian ships steamed through his gear.

Mallet believes the Russians went through his gear deliberately.

County Hits Paydirt

Gold Is Found in Basement

YREKA, Calif. (AP) — If Siskiyou County officials ever dig a basement under the courthouse, they probably won't give the dirt away. They've found it's paydirt.

County Supervisor George Wacker and Ernest Hayden recently dug out a sample of the dirt and gravel under the building to see if it could be easily removed to open up a new storage area.

Wacker, a miner in his youth, panned the sample and found "quite a string of gold," in it. He estimated there is about $1,000 worth beneath the building.

Nixon Expects to Stop Cut in Troop Strength

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration went into the opposition ranks for support, and got it from some former high government officials, in its bid to quash Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield's attempt to legislate a 50-per-cent cut in U.S. troop strength in Europe.

Clark McGregor, President Nixon's chief congressional lobbyist, said Sunday "We have no doubt we'll win" when the Senate votes Wednesday.

State Secretary William Rogers also predicted failure for the Mansfield amendment, which seeks to reduce the U.S. garrison in NATO countries to 150,000. Rogers denounced the proposal as potentially "disastrous to our foreign policy."

Meanwhile, Nixon announced in Florida that former president Truman had joined the array of past Democratic government officials, including Lyndon B. Johnson, who have rallied to his position.

Truman was quoted in a statement relayed by his former secretary of state, Dean Acheson, that he "agrees entirely" with Nixon's assertion Saturday that such a cut "would be an error of historic dimension."

Acheson, a prime mover in the early years of the NATO alliance, has headed a drive launched at the White House only last Thursday which so far has enlisted the public support of at least two dozen high officials of the Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson administrations.

Mansfield has refused to yield, although he acknowledged over the weekend "I am beginning to feel like the fellow who only has a sling shot."

Rogers also characterized the Mansfield plan as dangerous, adding that NATO forces now are about in balance with those of the Warsaw pact.

The secretary noted that Soviet leader Leonid Brezhev offered last Friday to begin talks with NATO countries over mutual reductions of armed forces. But, Rogers said, the proposal is "a little vague" and the United States is seeking clarification.

Mansfield has urged that Nixon quickly accept Brezhnev's proposal and set a definite date for the talks, preferably in June.

Mansfield, long dissatisfied with U.S. initiatives for negotiated reductions, says the effect of his amendment, if it is lost . . . will be to make the NATO nations including ourselves face up to the realities of today."

For six years he has unsuccessfully sponsored resolutions, without the force of law, urging substantial U.S. cuts. With the weakening of the U.S. dollar in Europe, he decided this year to switch tactics. "Now," he says, "You've got a changed situation with these countries better off economically than we are."

Thirteen Drowned As Hall Collapses

BAYEUX, France (Reuter) — A grief-stricken bride and groom spent the first day of their honeymoon Sunday identifying bodies of 13 friends and relatives who died when the floor of their reception hall collapsed Saturday night, plunging wedding guests into a deep underground well.

Only hours after exchanging vows, Eugene and Francoise Fabien fought back tears as they helped police identify those who were drowned.

One victim was Francoise's grandmother. Another was a close friend, herself a bride of only three weeks.

The tragedy occurred at the nearby Normandy town of Sallen when the floor of a dance hall hired for the reception suddenly collapsed, dropping about 30 guests into a 20-foot subterranean well.

Most were able to scramble to safety when a ladder was lowered.

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — Frank T. Restance, founder of the Little Theatre Group here and winner of the best actor award in the Dominion Drama Festival for two consecutive years, died in hospital here Sunday.

Mr. Restance, 70, was a longtime member of Hart House Theatre and Toronto's Dickens Fellowship Players.

IRA Admits Leader Slain

BELFAST (AP) — The outlawed Irish Republican Army acknowledged today a man killed by British troops in a gunfight Saturday night was one of their lieutenants.

The IRA also said its three-man squad engaged in the shooting had ambushed the jeep patrol of the Royal Highland Fusiliers. One soldier was wounded seriously in the abdomen and another shot in the arm.

The open declaration amounted to a departure from usual IRA tactics which depend on hit-run attacks and anonymity.

The latest outbreak of violence cast some gloom over the Ulster '71 festival organized to attract tourists. The London festival ballet cancelled a week-long performance of Sleeping Beauty because of the precarious situation and also the receipt of threatening letters.

Scotland Yard opened up an inquiry into letters sent to Beryl Grey, the artistic director. A spokesman for the ballet said: "The situation in Belfast is a little precarious and the board have been watching it very carefully. The anonymous letters were the last straw."

The IRA brush with the British Army cost the life of William Reid, 22-year-old father of four.

The IRA issued a statement saying: "Lieut. William Reid of C Company, 3rd Battalion, Belfast Brigade, IRA, was killed in action when one of four active service units ambushed a patrol of British occupation forces."

Lt.-Col. David Anderson, commander of the Royal Highlanders Battalion, said the jeep patrol stopped an automobile that was listed as being stolen. One of the three civilians in it opened fire with a machine-gun, hitting two of the soldiers. The sergeant, in command of the patrol, killed Reid and wounded another man. The IRA denied the wounding and called it "British propaganda."

Nevertheless, police and army investigators spread a wide search for Reid's two companions.

The contents of the letters threatening Miss Grey, 44-year-old former prima ballerina with the Royal Ballet and wife of Swedish Dr. Sven Svensson, were not disclosed.

The company spokesman said "one could say these letters are just the work of a crank, and they probably are, but on the other hand we have to guarantee the safety of 100 people."

One motivating factor in the decision to cancel the visit concerned the location of the Grand Opera House itself, it is less than a half mile from the spot where terrorist bombs exploded recently.

The Ulster Council is spending $1 million ($2.4 million) on the festival and organizers are displeased with the decision of the London ballet.

Kenneth Jamison, director of the Arts Council, said: "I find this very, very annoying. I think the company has over-reacted to press reports and a couple of anonymous letters."

Independent Lobster Won't Adjust to Apartment Living

OTTAWA (CP) — Despite experiments in apartment living, the delectable lobster seems unwilling to change its wild ways.

The experiments were among many attempts in recent decades to improve on nature. People in lobster-fishing countries, including Canada, reasoned that if one lobster could reduce a commission to part with his money, then 10 artificially-reared lobsters means 10 times more money.

But the lobster itself and its natural environment weren't fully taken into account.

In the current edition of Fisheries of Canada, publication of the federal fisheries department, Dr. D. G. Wilder of the fisheries research board station at St. Andrews, N.B., discusses what has gone wrong.

It was decided five years ago at St. Andrews to try to nurture half-pound lobsters to more-valuable sizes.

Lobsters were provided with food, individual compartments and a supply of water held at constant temperatures.

But after the six-month growing period, 38 per cent of all the lobsters had died. Of the survivors, about 25 per cent lost one or both meat-filled claws.

In the most successful experiment, growth among all the lobsters just balanced the loss of weight from death and loss of claws.

"We have concluded," writes Dr. Wilder, "that with present knowledge this type of rearing is not economically feasible."

Attempts by Massachusetts to release lobster larvae into the sea in an effort to increase the lobster harvest there have not been economically wise, Dr. Wilder says.

Cost per successfully-reared larvae might be as much as 27.5 cents, and once released, there was little likelihood that more than 10 per cent would reach legal size.

Experiments at St. Andrews have shown almost 100-per-cent mortality among newly-planted larvae from flounders and other fish.

Also unsuccessful to date are efforts to transplant adult lobsters to the West Coast. The lobsters have vanished without trace and apparently without breeding.

Dr. Wilder and the fisheries research board aren't giving up, however.

Studies of the growth of lobsters in nature and in captivity are continuing at St. Andrews and elsewhere.

Biologists are examining the effects of growth hormones and nutrition on lobsters, and their response to varying amounts of daylight.

Another possible approach, Dr. Wilder says, is to hold egg-carrying females at higher-than-normal temperatures.

The higher temperatures would induce early hatching of eggs. Then selected young lobsters could be kept in heated pools where within 10 months they might reach "useful" sizes.

Dr. Wilder cautions that "one-fall" signs would not mean current legal sizes but something similar to the smaller Norwegian lobster or fresh-water crayfish popular in Europe.

"If lobsters could be reared to a total length of five or six inches in one growing season, and if a strong demand could be developed, a profitable operation is conceivable."

Fixed Income Said Answer For Students

SASKATOON (CP) — The ultimate solution to student unemployment is to give all students in post-secondary institutions a guaranteed income, says Dave Erickson, retiring president of University of Saskatchewan students' union.

Mr. Erickson says that despite government programs, student unemployment in Western Canada this summer could be as severe as last year, perhaps even worse.

"Without the provincial government program, the federal government program would still have left 90 per cent of students unemployed."

The Saskatchewan government has plans to employ 2,800 students this summer, he says, but there are no indications how many students will find work through earlier-announced federal youth opportunity programs.

Mr. Erickson says hundreds of students at the Saskatoon campus have applied for work under the federal plan but have not received replies. Classes are over now, and since 60 per cent of the students live outside the city, most have given up hope and have returned home.

"If they can't find work within the first two weeks, they're gone and we can't find them to help them."

The students' union employment office, established last year, estimated that at the end of April about 9,000 of the 11,000 students on campus were looking for work.

"The number of kids on the road this year is going to be incredible," says Barb Taylor, director of the union employment office. "There are estimates of 10 times as many as last year."

The employment office refers students to the Canada Manpower office, but keeps a record of them also in case work is found. It has established an odd-job registry and is concentrating on finding part-time work, no matter how insignificant, for unemployed students.

Last year the office placed between 60 and 100 students. Miss Taylor says 15 had been placed by late April this year and this could go over 100 depending upon the number of job projects approved by the federal government.

"We're not putting down what the government has done, it'll help."

But the problem, she says, is that hundreds of students are waiting for word from Ottawa when they could be out chasing other jobs. The program was announced too late, without student government consultation, and now was being implemented late.

Students Plan Quebec Trip

Batawa - Glen Miller public schools are doing their part to promote Canadian unity. A group of elementary pupils from the two schools are going to Quebec City for four days to "give them a first - handed insight into the French - Canadian way of life and an opportunity to increase their vocabulary and fluency in French."

The 43 pupils, enrolled in grades 5 through 8 will be accompanied by seven chaperones. They will visit the main points of interest in the city and be billeted with French - Canadian families.

Funds for the excursion have been raised through student projects, donations from local industries and the students themselves.

Last Call of the Bell

Belleville firefighters gathered Friday in the Odd Fellows hall to pay tribue to the retiring Archie Hill and his wife, Ethel. Archie's cheeks were as red as roses as former fire chief 'J. E. Poste reminisced on how Archie had climbed a tree and come back down three time while trying to catch a circus monkey in the early days. "In the last 24 years I have done every job in the department," said Archie, "and whenever there was a time to be hit on the head with something, I was there."

University of the North Now Seems More Likely

TORONTO (CP) — Last summer the idea of a university in the Canadian Arctic was only a suggestion in a book.

Today the University of Canada North has progressed to a piece of paper, incorporating the name, plus an interim board of directors.

But within a few years the board expects there will be a university with four campuses, three in the Northwest Territories and one in the Yukon.

However, it would be wrong to get the impression that plans are under way to erect ivy-covered lecture halls and student dormitories all over the tundra.

In fact it has not been decided what structure the university is going to take, but it may be totally different in concept and design from those in the south.

Richard Rohmer, originator of the plan to incorporate the university, says no great monuments are going to be built.

The 47-year-old Toronto lawyer is the only non-northerner among the 31 chartered members of the University of Canada North. Fifteen were selected from both the Northwest Territories and the Yukon, including Indians and Eskimos.

Mr. Rohmer first became interested in the idea of a university in the North last summer when he read the arguments for it put forward by James Lotz in his book Northern Realities.

Mr. Rohmer steered the university through letters patent and its incorporation in March to its first executive meeting in April at Inuvik, N.W.T., more than 100 miles north of the Arctic Circle.

But he emphasizes that he is just an organizer, and it is northerners themselves who are putting together the plans for their university.

"There is always someone from the south prepared to tell northerners what to do," he says, but the university is their own project.

Although Mr. Rohmer plays down his role, he has demonstrated that he is a man who acts quickly on ideas. In 1967 he initiated the Mid-Canada Development Foundation to study the potential development of Canada's mid-North. The foundation is not involved in the university project.

Why build a university in the Arctic?

Mr. Rohmer says it will help preserve the cultures of Canada's original peoples and provide a focal co-ordinating point for the large amount of research that is currently being carried out in the North.

As well, he says, northern residents who want to attend university now must go south or to Alaska, and adds that many of the native people are reluctant to leave the Arctic. However, the board has no intention of endangering the present system of grants to northerners who attend university elsewhere.

The "challenging part" in the planning, says Mr. Rohmer, is deciding what form the university should take. The directors will get some ideas at a conference scheduled for this summer to which officials of universities around the world have been invited.

The four initial campuses proposed would be at Whitehorse in the Yukon and at Inuvik, Yellowknife and Fort Smith in the Northwest Territories. Inuvik has been selected as the initial administrative headquarters.

Councils of the four municipalities have already allocated lands as "university reserve."

Consideration will be given in the future to the possibility of a campus in the eastern Arctic and a group in Churchill, Man., has expressed interest in obtaining a campus there.

It had been hoped that courses would be offered for the first time in the fall of 1972 but Mr. Rohmer now doubts plans will be completed that soon.

The board has launched a campaign to raise funds from large corporations in southern Canada, particularly those with projects in the North.

Other universities in Canada receive provincial charters and funds from the provinces. The University of Canada North was incorporated under federal law but will not approach the federal government for funds until it is fully established with private money.

Memberships in the university will be sold for $1 to northerners over 18 years entitling them to vote for the board of governors at the first annual meeting of the university at Inuvik in September. Regional meetings will be held in Yellowknife in June and Whitehorse in August.

The hiring of the first president will be discussed at the annual meeting and Mr. Rohmer says it is expected a northerner will be hired for the position. He says, if the university had a president now he could keep busy 24 hours a day planning the university and conducting fund raising.

Whoever the president is, he had better like cold weather. It was 35 degrees below zero on that spring day when the board's executive meeting was held.

Contracts Awarded by City

Weldon McEachen Construction Ltd. of Scarborough and Tatham Construction Company of Belleville will share the 1971 sidewalk construction program for Belleville.

The first-named company has won the "new" sidewalk construction contract in the amount of $49,068, the firm's bid being the lowest of four tenders submitted. The contract amount is well within the estimate of the cost prepared by the city engineering department.

But tenders for the year's program of sidewalk reconstruction came in higher than was estimated.

Tatham Construction was the low bidder for the walk reconstruction but their tender for $70,012 exceeded the estimate for the work and the schedule of streets will be reduced by $7,300 to conform with 1971 budget estimates. The amount of the Tatham contract therefore will be $62,812.

Council will review the list of streets for which sidewalk reconstruction was proposed and will make a decision at the next meeting which walks are to be deleted from the year's program.

Other tender accepted by council included one from Trudeau Motors Ltd. for the supply of a one-ton truck with dump body at a cost of $6,615 and one from King Seagrave Ltd., for the supply of a hydraulic sander at a cost of $2,772.

Also the city will buy a new street sweeper from Sicard Equipment at a cost of $14,761.

Theo Sicard tender was the third lowest of four bids received, but the two lowest tenders were for a smaller type of sweeper which had not meet the city specifications.

Sports Roundup

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — The Jockey Club Ltd. threatened Sunday to boycott the Fort Erie Raceway this summer if repairs to the Peace Bridge between Fort Erie and Buffalo are not completed by July 31.

"Right now we are seriously considering not returning this summer if repairs to the bridge . . . are not finished by then," said John J. Mooney, executive vice-president and managing director of the Jockey Club.

The Jockey Club, which operates the racing at Fort Erie, is scheduled to open a 33-day meet here July 21-Sept. 4.

Mooney blames much of the club's decline in attendance at Fort Erie to traffic tie-ups at the bridge which has been under construction since March.

The average attendance for the 21-day spring meet - this year was 5,132, down 1,346 from 1970.

AURORA, Ont. (CP) — A 37-year-old farmer from Belle Plaine, Sask., riding an 8-year-old palomino named Trymine captured top honors Sunday in the eastern Canadian equestrian trials for the three-day event.

Robin Hahn, who brought Trymine from a Blood Indian reserve, also finished second on a horse called Roodoo. Contestants are allowed to make different entries with different horses.

Barry Sonshine, 23, of Toronto was third on Questionnaire and Jim Henry, 24, also of Toronto, fourth with Harper. Fifth place went to Ian Angus, 30, of Toronto on board Tanbark.

The competition was the first of three trials to select members of the three-day event team which will represent Canada in the Pan American Games in Cali, Colombia, July 31 to Aug. 13.

The western trials are slated for Red Deer, Alta., June 12-13 and the Canadian championships in Millarville, Alta., June 25-27.

Record Day for Big M

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The brothers Mahovlich led Montreal Canadiens to a 4-3 win over Chicago Black Hawks Sunday to tie the National Hockey League final at three games apiece.

Frank Mahovlich picked up his 14th goal of the playoffs, breaking the record of 13 set last year by Boston Bruins' Phil Esposito. Mahovlich also managed two assists to bring his playoff total to 23 points.

Mahovlich, league-leader in the Stanley Cup scoring race, also equalled the record set by Esposito last year for most points in a playoff season. In the Bruin's Stanley Cup victory last year, Esposito had 13 goals and 14 assists for 27 points.

Pete Mahovlich scored two goals Sunday, the second of which brought his playoff goals to 10 and moved him into solo spot in the scoring race with 16 points.

Ralph Backstrom, veteran of nine Stanley Cup victories, picked up two assists Sunday, the first of which gave him the record for assists by a centre in Stanley Cup competition.

Beliveau's 16 assists tops the mark of 15 set by Stan Mikita of the Black Hawks in 1962 and moves him into a third-place tie with Stan-mate Yvan Cournoyer in the scoring race with 22 points.

Refused Protest Irritates Jockey

THE CURRAH, Ireland (Reuter) — British champion jockey Lester Piggot said Saturday he would never ride in Ireland again after his objection to the riding of the Irish Two Thousand Guineas horse race was turned down by The Curragh stewards.

Piggot, riding Sparkler, finished second in a photo-finish to French champion jockey Freddie Head on Kingd Company in the $42,456 race over one mile.

After the stewards announced an inquiry into the photo-finish Piggot lodged an objection to the winner on the grounds that Head had impeded him.

Before the stewards announced their decision, Piggot said: "If I do not get this race there will be no justice and I'll never again come to Ireland."

After the stewards had confirmed Kings Company's victory, Piggott repeated his threat to boycott Irish meetings and added:

"I was murdered. For more than a furlong and a half the Frenchman hampered me."

Head denied Piggott's charges. "Lester is no fool. He knew he was not going to win the race and so he started to play-act."

Kings Company started at 9 to 2 in the 14-horse field, in which Sparkler ran at 5 to 2. Outsider Kings View was third, a head away, at 100 to 1.

Rare Recordings Treat For Older Radio Fans

NEW YORK (AP) — In those pre-television, post-Depression days, they held a nation in delighted thrall: The Shadow, The Lone Ranger, Gangbusters, The Green Hornet, Lights Out, and, of course, Sherlock Holmes.

Along came the big box in the living room, and gradually radio, once the glamorous darling of the public and advertisers, became a dependable old friend who brought the news and sent us off to work on time. One by one, the radio dramas, the serials, the soap operas disappeared as the newscasters, disc jockeys, call-in hosts and top-40 tunes proliferated.

Radio was not dead; it had just moved from the parlor to the kitchen, bedroom and dashboard. And there, generally, it remains, although from time to time it shows some of its old sparkle.

The Shadow, based on short stories by the popular and prolific mystery writer, Walter Gibson, was one of the first series of the genre, launched in 1930 and continuing on for 17 years.

Eight years ago, Charles Michelson, who had distributed the series earlier, decided there might be a new audience for those old shows on acetate, and sometimes glass, records—it was made before the days of tape—had been handled casually and many were lost or destroyed. He managed to locate a batch, however, in the files of the copyright holders, Conde Nast Publishing Co.

Michelson asked about a dozen major radio stations around the U.S. if they were interested. Half of them, including major outlets in Chicago, San Francisco and St. Louis, were. Their executives have received an unexpected bonanza: residual payments, amounting to $25 and, later, $30 for each replay. .

Launching the old series started something. The Shadow has been heard in some 300 markets, both AM and FM outlets.

Second to The Shadow, Michelson's revival of The Lone Ranger has been the most popular, and is playing to fat letter-writing youngsters — nostalgic adults in some of the country's larger and many smaller markets.

It has started a whole new fad. The Green Hornet is back and other distributors have been hunting up other old series.

Lure of Tall Ship Said Rewarding

NEW YORK (AP) — The Lure of the Tall Ship on CBS Sunday night was an hour that held surprising rewards even for the viewer with little interest in sailing ships or the methods used to train Danish sailors for the merchant marine.

The Danmark, a 36-year-old, 200-foot sailing ship was the star of the program. But the 200-man crew of 80 boys—ages 15 18—provided both drama and humor during the long voyage from Copenhagen to the West Indies.

Three boys who spoke fairly fluent English were featured. They described their emotions —there was a homesick period at Christmas in the mid-Atlantic. One 15-year-old, learning to be a ship's cook, was the comedian of the show, partly because of his small size and his determination to keep up with the rest of the crew.

The photography was excellent—particularly the shots of the boys working on masts 'and yards more than 100 feet above the decks.

Benjamin Britten's Opera Winter Words was the basis for the television and based on a Henry James story, had its world premiere on the Public Broadcasting stations Sunday night, too.

The story was about a conscientious objector who suffers for his convictions. Ultimately he got mixed up with some family guests who did him in. It was a bit melodramatic.

SALVAGES TIE

TORONTO (CP) — Walter Muir, scoring with only 30 seconds left to play, salvaged a 3-2 draw for the Toronto Metros against New York Cosmos in North American Soccer League play.

John and Yoko Puzzle Critics

CANNES, France (Reuter) — John Lennon and his Japanese wife Yoko Ono descended on the Cannes Film Festival this weekend and left the locals scratching their heads in puzzlement.

The unpredictable couple both have short movies being screened on the festival fringe. Festival Europe's biggest movie jamboree.

Lennon's movie, called Apotheosis, is being shown in a local movie house late at night. Admission is free.

"It's my first film," he told reporters. "I did everything. The scenario and the camera. It lasts 20 minutes, the time to leave the earth to climb to the sky. . . .

Yoko's offering lasts three minutes longer and is called Fly. It shows a nude woman with a fly buzzing around her. She explained she wanted to find out how many audiences would look at the fly.

The Lennons plan to make more pictures.

"We would like to make about 20, all very short," the former Beatle said.

Good Looking Fresh Produce Disappearing

BURNABY, B.C. (CP) — The day of "perfect" fresh produce is almost at an end, says a Simon Fraser University biologist working as an insect taxonomist in the university's pesticides centre.

She said the work she and scientists are doing—coupled with current opposition to DDT and other general pesticides—heralds the end of unmarked fresh produce.

"We are going to have to change our way of thinking completely in order to stop the terrible pollution we now are engaged in," Thelma Finlayson said in an interview.

"We must cut down vastly on the use of chemicals, although we don't advocate eliminating them entirely.

"But before any chemicals are used against pests we believe they should be bio-degradable, and they should be specific so they hit at only one pest.

"Right now, our environment is building up vast amounts of chemicals used in pest control that will not break down."

Since the end of the Second World War farmers and consumers have accepted the fact that fruit and vegetables can be grown without any insect or other pest infestation.

But biologists claim the price of keeping pests away from farmers' fields has been too high.

The only way to ensure an almost perfect crop is to dose heavily the agricultural ecosystem with pesticides such as DDT.

And these sprayings, Mrs. Finlayson noted, must be carried out about a dozen times during the growing season in order to keep the destructive bugs at bay.

General pesticides such as DDT wipe out not only the destructive insects but those beneficial to man, she said, and spraying must be done every year once the program is started or the farmer will find his fields over-run with the insects he wants to control.

The discovery of DDT approximately 30 years ago miracle crops for farmers were searching for, said Mrs. Finlayson. It seemed the answer to the destruction of insect pests that laid waste to their crops.

But as a harmful side effect, DDT also wiped out the parasites, such as wasps, that lived on the insect pests. Because of that, farmers discovered that once they began using DDT they could not stop, since there were no parasites left to control the pests.

Although she has spent her scientific career categorizing various insects at the larval stage and her specialty is the study of parasites that live on insect pests, she believes the key to better agriculture is knowing all the pests that attack plants.

"As scientists we have to consider the plant and try to discover all the things that are going to endanger that plant—not just insects, but birds and animals."

For too long various branches of science had tackled pest control and later found they were working at cross purposes.

There are millions of different types of insects, most of which have not been classified, and it is here that Mrs. Finlayson and other biologists working in insect taxonomy are being pressed into service. Other scientists working in the field of controlling insects pests are desperate for information about the wide variety of beneficial insects that live on the pests, said Mrs. Finlayson.

She spends much of her time visiting the sites the insect pests are believed to frequent.

With tenacious field study she can usually locate cocoons left by the insect pest and occasionally find the ones which have been attacked by parasites.

"The parasite leaves its fingerprints at the scene of the crime—in this case the imprint of its mandibles, or jaws, on the cocoon shell."

With microscopic examination and from that determine what type of insect it is.

Knowing this beneficial parasite, scientists can draw up control programs that support the parasite in its attacks against the pest.

Before coming to Simon Fraser Mrs. Finlayson was with the federal agriculture department research institute at Belleville, Ont., where she spent a number of years working on the problems of controlling the sawfly.

This small insect was accidentally imported from central Europe and has played havoc in eastern Canadian forests.

She discovered the variety of sawfly in the Canadian forests was actually a minor species in Europe.

More than 20 years ago she recommended the importation of a parasite that was found to be active against the sawfly. However, it was not until five years ago that the parasite became effective.

"All of a sudden the strain that was imported that long ago adapted to our environment and became a successful control over the sawfly."

Indians Organize

TEMUCO, Chile (AP) — Chile's Araucanian Indians, who have remained this part of South America but now live in poverty and degradation, are joining forces to demand land reforms, farm credits, better education and an end to racial discrimination. It is perhaps the first organized Indian Power movement in modern Latin America.

More than 300 Araucanian representatives gathered here in December for a national congress and formally presented their grievances to the government. President Salvador Allende attended the final session.

Chile has about 700,000 Araucanian Indians in a total population of 9¼ million. Of them, more than 500,000 are peasant farmers and small. Two-thirds of these live on government-assigned slices of land called "reducciones."

Daniel Colompil, Chile's director of Indian affairs and an Araucanian himself, described their plight:

"They have no roads, no schools, no bank credit, no place to effectively market what they produce, no technical help, in a word—nothing."

"Almost 50 per cent of them are illiterate. Sanitary conditions are appalling. The soil is not fertile. These are people whose ancestors were free and had lands without limit, but who today are imprisoned on small plots of ground, unable to advance or better their lives."

The Araucanians want a government-backed agrarian reform commission and revisions of certain paragraphs in the Indian land law. More than that, they want to be respected as first-class citizens.

"If an Araucanian wears a coat and tie and can read and address him as 'senor'," said Colompil, "but if he wears his native poncho they call him 'pido'—Indian."

In some countries Indians fell before the Spanish conquistadores, but Chile's Araucanians kept up the fight to protect their lands until the end of the 19th century.

In 1641 the Spanish colonial government in Chile officially recognized Araucanian sovereignty over lands beyond the Bio-Bio River, which is some 400 miles south of the present Chilean capital of Santiago.

When Chile won independence from Spain it also recognized Araucanian rights to the land. But around 1860 settlers began crossing the Bio-Bio and claimed land near where Temuco is today.

The Indians resisted, sometimes violently, but by the mid-1880s the Indian territory had become incorporated into Chile. The government then set about rounding up the Araucanians and putting them on "reducciones."

Each family head received 15 acres, while some white settlers got government concession for hundreds of thousands of acres on the former Indian territory. The Indian families multiplied, but few new "reducciones" were created.

A few Araucanians have resolved the land problem in recent years by taking over sections of nearby estates owned by rich non-Indians.

Volatile Week of Argument Is Facing House of Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons today enters what may prove to be a volatile week of debate on subjects ranging from proposed changes in the Canadian Wheat Board Act through unemployment to possible public order legislation.

Debate today was expected to be devoted to government proposals for changing the Wheat Board Act to permit inclusion of rapeseed, flax and rye under the wheat board, which now controls wheat, oats and barley.

The proposed amendments, basically, would make the act conform to changes already made in Canada's grain-marketing system. The measure, now at second-reading stage, would adjust the act to take into account new, protective grading standards set out in the Canada Grains Act which took effect April 1.

Several bills dealing with the grains industry have come under sustained opposition fire in the Commons recently. Opposition parties, particularly the Conservatives, have branded the government's entire grains program as inadequate and shortsighted.

Tuesday and Friday are days allotted to opposition parties for discussions of whatever issues they choose.

The subject for those debates had not been finally settled. But they almost are certain to provide vehicles for a continuing opposition onslaught against the government's economic policies.

Conservative and New Democrat MPs tried to force an emergency debate last week following the announcement Thursday that the seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate climbed to 6.7 per cent of the labor force in April from six per cent in March.

Commons Speaker Lucien Lamoureux turned down the opposition requests suggesting that unemployment should be discussed on opposition days.

Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin said it would be decided later today which parties would use the opposition days and what specific motions would be put forward for debate.

There appeared to be general agreement, however, that unemployment and economic problems would dominate both days.

Wednesday, the House will resume debate on the government's motion to refer the issue of possible public order legislation to a committee.

The motion would have a Commons-Senate committee consider replacement legislation for the Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act 1970, which expired April 30. The act was passed last December to give police emergency powers to deal with terrorism in Quebec.

In debate on the motion last week, New Democratic Leader David Lewis declared outright opposition to the move. He said special legislation was not necessary but that the motion assumed it was.

Justice Minister John Turner said the federal government believes legislation is needed but that no special investigation of government action during last fall's Quebec crisis was necessary.

The Conservatives insist that the committee examine the government's actions in the crisis.

Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

'Keep Off Grass' Is Sound Advice

Part I — The first of a series of four columns on marijuana.

Keep off the grass! Am I being facetious? Cute? Hardly, when one considers the potential dangers of the marijuana habit — and its widespread use.

Health authorities estimate that between eight and 12 million Americans have used the drug at least once. Others say that 20 million is "more like it". But researchers agree that there are at least one million "potheads" in the United States who make it their way of life — as do an equivalent number of chronic alcoholics who use liquor to help smooth their stormy existence.

One reason for writing this series is the apparent unconcern of youngsters who use pot. As one reads their letters the spirit of negativism prevails. This is what makes the problem so difficult to deal with. For example, consider this letter from a youngster.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 15 years old and writing this in reply to Miss E. whom you mentioned in your column in One-Time User Drops Marijuana.

Being 18, I would think she'd at least know that a person can't get stoned on marijuana the first time. Like she says, there was very little reaction with the first, but with the second I got stoned".

It's physically impossible. She goes on to say that she had a "flashback". also "as I write this letter I still feel the aftereffects; it is like feeling yourself going insane".

It is very obvious that this girl is totally unreal and a phony. The body has to become accustomed to the pot in your bloodstream before anyone can have any sort of effect. And reefers aren't going to blow your mind and memory.

Unless this grass was treated with some heavy acid. Miss E., you don't know what you are talking about. And until you do, I suggest you do some listening. You sound like a straight person trying so hard to be cool.

Actually you're giving all wrong advice and getting the adults uptight and the wrong impression. So far doctors can see nothing wrong with smoking pot and here you're trying to deny the world by saying all that stuff. There's nothing lower than a cheat or liar! — Miss F.

Comment: Easy, Miss F. No name-calling. Although I will admit that Miss E. sounded like a "straight person trying so hard to be cool". In presenting this series of columns on marijuana, I'll try to be fair and not one-sided. For example, I hereby reprint another letter from someone on your side. (Later on in the series I'll tell how you that your statement that "so far doctors can see nothing wrong with smoking pot" is not true.)

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: We are a group of students who feel that the truth about marijuana should be let out. We have been smoking for almost two years, and have yet to see half the things this girl, Miss E., has experienced in aftereffects known as "flashbacks".

It seems more likely that someone slipped something into her drink. If this is true, then we feel she should find new friends. A person smoking marijuana for the first time shouldn't be "stoned" as this girl claims she was. It takes a while before a person "gets off" because the body is not used to pot.

We all have a future ahead of us. Some plan on college and others plan to work after high school. We are not a group of teenagers roaming the street trying to remember our names and where we live.

How is it that a person of 19 years can admit to something as childish as this girl has stated? Her accusations are wrong. We feel that marijuana is harmless! (Signed: the group)

Sydney J. Harris Says

Clergy Ahead of Flocks

I got back in my hotel room rather late, but I wasn't sleepy, so I turned on the TV to catch the midnight news. Instead, William Buckley's interview show, (Firing Line), came on the screen and I watched it.

Last night Buckley's guest was Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen. As a severely devout Catholic, Sheen was trying to elicit from the Archbishop some standard of "orthodoxy" for his faith. He wondered why the Pope doesn't excommunicate more Catholics who seem to deviate from the orthodox line.

Buckley mentioned, with obvious distaste, that "gang" who runs the National Catholic Reporter, an extremely liberal religious publication. But the Archbishop wouldn't bite. Then finally Buckley threw his clincher: "What about someone who says he doesn't believe in the divinity of Christ — shouldn't he be excommunicated from the church?"

Archbishop Sheen shook his head gently. "No," he said, "I don't think necessarily so." Buckley looked shocked and appalled at this. To him, apparently, such heresy and apostasy as denying the divinity of Christ should be met with the force of the Spanish Inquisition. He wouldn't come out expressly for burning at the stake, but one got the impression that a slight toasting around the edges would be great.

Yet, despite Buckley's intolerant and theological pretensions, Sheen was far closer to the spirit of Christianity than his zealous host. He knows that it is not what a man says he believes — or even thinks he believes — that separates the sheep from the goats in the final judgment; it is what a man really is, in his attitudes and his actions.

Indeed, if the Bible has one lesson to teach us it is that the first shall be last, that the publicans and sinners are often more worthy than those who occupy the front pews, that the respectable and orthodox who cry "Lord, Lord," may be whited sepulcres, that a desire of religion may be closer to the spirit than a rabid affirmer.

On that program, at least, Buckley's lack of charity, his intellectual arrogance, his judgmental manner, was a damning light years away from the creed he professes to hold. While the Archbishop's accepting faith, his openness, his reluctance to judge or condemn on superficial evidence, was a magnificent reproach to his host's assumptions of theological superiority.

Almost all church leaders, these days, have moved further and faster in this direction than their communicants; have grieved toward the spirit and away from the letter. The gap today is not so much between the pious and the irreverent as between the leaders of the congregations and their stubbornly immoving flocks.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For May 18

Your birthday today: Maternal welfare, vocational or professional success thrive normally, according to diligence and selection of faculty. You are called upon for volunteer-or honorary service to your community. Family matters are generally more honest than is convenient in our current civilization, thus with the best intentions in the world occasionally purpose ideas and goals bedood reach.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Be sure associates know fully of your ideas on spending, thrift and related subjects. Your economy drive is appropriate to prevailing influences.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Where you can experiment without burning bridges behind you, this is a favorable day for action. Allow extra time before judging the results.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): There are more details than you can manage conveniently, so set a priority list; first do the larger chores that clear space for further work.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Nothing is going to be exact or perfect today, so there is less than usual excuse for complaint and disagreements over discrepancies. Use a philosophic approach.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Expect to be very busy the rest of this week. Avoid promises which take up extra time. Routines extend beyond normal duration — if they don't, make a mini-holiday of the time available.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Don't play games with the feelings of people or experiment to see what you can get away with. Do your regular work as nearly as the situation permits.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Today holds the first inkling of some intriguing possibilities. Investigate thoroughly before you plunge into action.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Opportunity opens, most likely where you really are best prepared by effort at self-improvement and serious study. Once you have gone over as much ground as you can cover in a reasonable day, celebrate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): There are more important things to consider than critical comment, either praise or complaint. Get your work done well, then add an extra touch or two.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): What you have to work with is the here and now. If you can put today's needs and resources together well enough, the past is alleviated and the future better provided for.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Expect others to do what you would not usually do. Give them plenty of spice and time in which to take themselves out of your path.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Friends explain features of your projects that have escaped your thinking. Even routine decisions have widening results in the future, so play strict attention to the sense of what you're doing.

Foreign Domination of Canadian Universities Called Reality and Objectors Not Popular

MONTREAL (CP) — Foreign domination of Canadian universities is a reality and those who try to change the situation become unpopular, about 100 professors and students agreed at a weekend meeting.

Delegates from across the country who attended the national symposium on the Canadian university approved a campaign to limit the number of foreign academics in a university to 15 per-cent. Canadian citizenship would be a requirement for department heads.

They also approved resolutions calling for study of the Canadianization of libraries and for immigration quotas on foreign academics in fields where Canadians are employed or likely to be unemployed.

Prof. Henry Beissel of Sir George Williams University in Montreal, the retiring chairman of the National Committee for the Canadianization of the Canadian University, said only eight of 123 presidents of Canadian universities and colleges replied to invitations to the symposium.

But despite small attendance, the symposium organized by the committee had "moved the cause of Canadianization several steps forward."

Novelist Hugh MacLennan and historian Michel Brunet told the delegates that Canadian nationalists are called narrow-minded and chauvinistic no matter how moderate their stance.

And Prof. Alec Lucas of McGill University said during round-table discussion, "Anti-Americanism and even anti-intellectualism are charges laid against academic nationalists."

While delegates met Friday, someone pasted Canadian flags on Loyola College walls. The maple leaf in the flags was replaced by a swastika.

Max Von Zur Muehlen of the Economic Council of Canada told the symposium that Canada is self sufficient in PhDs and will be until at least 1975.

Referring to his recent study on university education in the field of business administration, he said Canada produced about 2,000 PhDs this year.

There will be approximately 1,200 to 1,500 openings for them in universities, he said.

Prof. Beissel said federal manpower department statistics for 1969 showed that 71 per cent of 3,087 faculty members hired in Canadian universities were non-Canadians.

Many Canadian academics cannot work in this country's universities because of the influx of foreign academics, he added.

He cited the case of Mrs. K. J. Cottum, highest-ranking graduate in arts from Sir George Williams University in 1964, who received a PhD from the university of Toronto. She now is an insurance adjustor because she can't find a job in a Canadian university.

An American was hired for a recent position in her field at the University of Toronto, Prof. Beissel said.

Delegates had complaints about departments favoring Germans and Scots as well as Americans over Canadians.

George Reggar, political scientist at the University of Waterloo said that one crucial fight is to remove the stranglehold that non-Canadian department heads have in hiring.

Quite often scholarship, experience and nationality don't enter into an appointment," he said. "Too many appointments are made strictly on a personal basis for personal reasons."

Delegates and speakers also agreed that students at Canadian universities had a hard time finding courses about Canada.

Prof. Alec Lucas of McGill university said a study of 27 Canadian universities for the current year revealed that of 1,119 courses in literature, only 59 centred on Canadian literature while 94 were on American.

Prof. Lynn Trainor of the University of Toronto said Canadian universities are not meeting a responsibility to develop technology to cope with specific Canadian problems. Canadians had far too little knowledge of such important national fields as arctic development and oceanography.

Prof. Michel Brunet of the University of Montreal said foreign domination of Canadian universities had contributed to the communications break-down between Quebec and Canada.

Judgements that Quebec would be absorbed into a Canadian "melting pot" and the labelling of Quebec as a "folk society" had been formulated in English-Canadian universities by academics schooled in American models, he said.

Windsor Police Hunt Murderer

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Police continued a massive manhunt Sunday for the murderer of six-year-old Ljubica Topic whose sexually-assaulted body was found about 200 yards from her home early Saturday.

Three teams of detectives were called in Saturday night to relieve investigators who had worked since about 9 p.m. Friday in an effort to find the man who led Ljubica away after giving her brother a dime to go play with his bicycle.

A post mortem Saturday listed cause of death as asphyxiation.

Officials said the girl had been sexually assaulted, her right leg was broken and she had several lacerations as the result of a beating.

Ontario Showcase Will Open Saturday

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Place, that $23 million playground tribute to itself from Canada's wealthiest province, will open Saturday on schedule with some officials wondering whether too many people will show up.

The showcase development on the Toronto waterfront is designed to handle crowds of up to 40,000 a day with a peak of 19,000 at a given moment.

But the superlatives and the publicity heaped on the project are such that 70,000 might show up for the opener.

Crowds of that size would provide a severe test for the hundreds of girl and boy hostesses and hosts, the refined security system and the facilities of the 96-acre water-and-land exhibition project.

The people will come by water as well as land. All 100 boat berths available for rent on a seasonal basis were snapped up a month ago. There's another 200 boat parking spaces for daily visitors. But officials will not be surprised if an influx from Lake Ontario creates an early jam.

If a pedestrian crush develops along the lines of the Montreal world fair in 1967, the message is that it's all worth it, just like Expo was. There's that much to see and do.

For the opener, thousands of entertainers will be on hand to keep the visitor's mind off sore feet. All kinds of bands, from rock to dixieland to drum corps, jugglers, comedians, clowns, some on roofs and others strolling through the crowds. There will be an 800-voice choir, Catherine McKinnon and Don Harron.

As you make your way around the man-made islands, through the exhibition pods rising on stilts, the $100-a-week hosts and hostesses will be everywhere telling you how to get to the cinesphere, say.

That's the eight-storey dome that houses a movie screen six storeys high. There are also boutiques for shopping, restaurants for eating, bars for drinking and plenty of grass for sitting.

Up in a glass-enclosed bonth the security people will be watching you through a complex closed-circuit television and radio network. The chap who runs security once ran the United Nations operation room in Cyprus for the peacekeeping military expedition.

So you ought to be in good hands. If you fall into the water, there will be a patrol boat to pick you up. If a fire breaks out, a red light will flash in the control room.

The huge host-hostess corps—many of them students—has an elite group of 20 specially-trained to handle emergency situations. This group has been nicknamed the flying squad.

With opening day combined with a long holiday weekend—May 24 is Victoria Day—they may be doing a lot of flying.

Davis Opens Sainte-Marie Museum at Midland

MIDLAND, Ont. (CP) — A $1 million museum, final stage in the re-creation of the first European settlement in the Canadian interior, was officially opened near here Saturday by Premier William Davis.

Mr. Davis told about 800 people assembled for the colorful outdoor ceremony that Sainte-Marie among the Hurons now is a place where "we can meet to consider the Canada of today."

Reconstruction of the Jesuit settlement, begun in 1957, cost $2 million.

Mr. Davis and his party, including Quebec tourism minister Claire Kirkland-Casgrain, were escorted in a raised platform by a fife-and-drum unit of the Compagnie Franche de la Marine of Montreal.

To the thunder of cannon fire, the 17th-century flag of France was unfurled by Marcella Comtois, French consul-general. It was the first time the flag has flown here since the community was built in 1649 by Jesuits fleeing in Iroquois invasion.

A message, pre-recorded at the Vatican by Pope Paul, was played to the crowd. Speaking in both French and English, the pope said the site will mean that the memory of those who built and lived at Sainte-Marie "will indeed live on in the proud annals of the Canadian people."

Mr. Davis also engaged in a pre-arranged telephone conversation from Lima, Peru, with Very Rev. Pedro Arrupe, superior-general of the Jesuits.

While the audience listened to a special hookup, Father Arrupe told Mr. Davis the shrine was an important historical event and "an extraordinary work."

Mme. Kirkland-Casgrain told the audience Quebec appreciates Ontario's recognition of its French founders. She said Sainte-Marie is an example of a renaissance emerging today in the recognition of French culture.

The ceremonies touched off two days of celebration in this community 20 miles north of Barrie.

English for Immigrants Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Briefs calling for expanded medical schools, a government-subsidised English course for immigrants and an extension of teacher training were presented Friday to the commission on post-secondary education in Ontario.

Harold Stafford, Liberal member of Parliament for Elgin, told the commission Ontario will face a critical shortage of doctors in the next 10 years unless medical schools are expanded and operated more efficiently.

He said Ontario relies heavily on foreign-born doctors who come to Canada to complete their medical training and that half of the 1,200 doctors added to the Ontario registers in 1970 were foreign-born.

A brief submitted by the Inter-Agency Council for Services to Immigrants and Migrants in Metro called for more government-subsidized English-language training for professional and highly-skilled immigrants.

A brief prepared by four Toronto school trustees said teacher training should be extended to three years from the current one year, and consist of one year at college, one year on the job and a final year at college.

Rail Strike Effect Grows

WASHINGTON (AP) — A United States railway strike sent mounting ripples of paralysis through much of the economy for the second day today as Congress considered an emergency bill to halt the walkout.

Major steel and automobile firms slashed production, tons of perishable foods piled up on rail sidings, 300,000 commuters had to find other transportation and the New York stock market suffered its sharpest loss in a year.

President Nixon, telling Congress "it is essential that our railroads continue to operate," asked the strike be halted until July 1 to allow more time for the industry to bargain with the 13,000 members of the striking Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen.

The Senate labor committee, after hearing from the railways, the union and Nixon administration spokesmen, indicated sentiment for extending the strike to Oct. 1 and granting the signalmen an immediate pay increase.

Both sides in the dispute promised to abide by such a plan which would raise top pay for signalmen from the present $3.78 an hour to $4.46.

Striker-ending legislation likely will reach the president's desk tonight unless the House of Representatives and Senate approve widely different plans requiring more time for compromise.

Some Evidence May Be Public

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The federal inquiry commission into the April 15 riot at Kingston penitentiary will get down to business June 7 and some of the evidence may be made public.

But it was made clear at a 25-minute, preliminary session Monday that no evidence which might endanger reputations, prejudice fair trials or open the door to illegal reprisals against prisoners or guards would be revealed unless charges are laid.

Tradeau Seeks Help From Soviet in North

MOSCOW (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau expressed hope today that relations between Canada and the Soviet Union are about to enter a new, more co-operative period.

Responding to a toast offered him by Premier Alexei Kosygin at a luncheon in the Great Kremlin Palace, Trudeau also expressed a desire for expanded scientific and other exchanges between Canada and the U.S.S.R. in the area of northern development.

Russia leads the world in its knowledge and use of the far north, the prime minister told Kosygin. "Canada hopes not only to co-operate with you in this area, but also to benefit from your long experience."

Earlier, Trudeau and Kosygin met in the Kremlin for the first of a series of talks on Canadian-Soviet relations and international problems.

The meetings took place in the conference room of the Soviet Council of Ministers, which Kosygin heads, and was attended by about a dozen officials on either side.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and Trade Minister Nikolai Patolichev were aming the Soviet officials who assisted Kosygin at today's start of official talks.

Their opposite numbers on the Canadian side of the green cloth-covered conference table were External Affairs Undersecretary A. E. Ritchie and Deputy Trade Minister J. K. Warren.

Kosygin, in a jovial mood, said when Trudeau introduced Warren:

"He's the one who pulls off all the one-sided trade deals."

"No, he's the one who works for the one who does all the one-sided trade deals," Trudeau shot back.

Kosygin's reference was to the Soviet Union's occasional, massive wheat purchases from Canada in the last eight years, which have created a big trade imbalance in Canada's favor.

Trudeau's independent foreign policy line has caused interest in the Kremlin. First Deputy Premier Dmitri Polyansky, one of Monday's welcoming party, was quoted as saying last year the Soviet Union would welcome a positive independent role by Canada in world affairs.

City Budget Items Added

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

The Belleville YMCA is $7,500 richer today thanks to a close last-minute decision by city council to include the amount in its 1971 budget estimates. The debate featured a budget meeting at which the residential tax rate for public school supporters was set at 51.7 mills, up 2.2 mills from last year.

Payment of the grant to the "Y" was not recommended by City Manager J. R. Reynolds in his budget presentation but following a spirited debate a motion to include the amount in the budget was carried by a 6-5 recorded vote.

Voting for payment of the grant were Aldermen Ben Corke, Enos David, Jack Freland, Robin Jeffrey, E. A. Orr and Jean Smith.

Casting opposing votes were Mayor J. Russell Scott, and Aldermen Gerald Joyce, Arthur Keegan, Paul Russell and Donald Souter.

The grant to the YMCA was part of a total amount of nearly $38,000 not recommended by the city manager but later approved by city council.

For Story On Breakdown Of Budget See Page 3

Council also voted to waive the general rate taxes of $10,400 but took no action on an original "Y" request that the city also pay education taxes.

Alderman Jean Smith as city council representative on the "Y" board brought in the motion for the city to pay the $7,500 grant.

She outlined the work of the "Y" listing the annual attendance of adults and children, and noting that many children enjoyed its facilities free of charge as the result of a reduced rate.

She termed the "Y" a family training centre and a mould-er of good citizens.

The requested grant, she claimed, amounted only to the cost of keeping a prisoner in custody.

Alderman Smith compared the work of the "Y" to the recreation committee but, unlike the arenas and recreational programs, it was not supported by public funds.

Illegal Chase Charge

Canadian Vessel Pursued By U.S. Cutter Off B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A United States Coast Guard cutter intimidated a Canadian fishing vessel and pursued it down the northern British Columbia coast for 12 hours Sunday, Canadian fisheries official Maurice P. Houghton charged Monday.

Mr. Houghton, chief of conservation at the federal fisheries branch here, said the Canadian halibut vessel Anthony J. was fishing in Canadian waters—below the British Columbia-Alaska boundary in the northern part of Dixon Entrance —Sunday "when the U.S. Coast Guard moved in and tried to superimpose their authority in an area that was out of their jurisdiction."

The fisheries officer also said the cutter radioed the Anthony J and Canadian fisheries officials that they were considering firing across the bow of the fishboat.

"This is quite a serious international incident," said Houghton.

"The American vessel was illegally in Canadian waters and was not authorized to perform as it did," he said.

"We are concerned that a U.S. warship would come into Canadian waters like this."

Coast guard authorities at Ketchikan and Juneau, Alaska's capital, refused to enlarge on official reports of the incident and said the U.S. state department is looking into the matter.

A U.S. Coast Guard spokesman reported Monday that the Canadian vessel was spotted in waters near Cape Chacon at Prince of Wales Island within 2½ miles of U.S. territory, off the Alaska Panhandle.

The skipper of the Cape Romain ordered the Anthony J. to follow it into Ketchikan, Alaska. The Anthony J.'s captain, Jack Secord, indicated he would comply but suddenly cut his fishing gear and steamed toward Prince Rupert, B.C.

The coast guard's attempt to capture Anthony J. was hampered by another Canadian fishing vessel, the Masset Maid, which made several passes within 50 yards of the cutter.

Mr. Houghton said his department had "directed our Canadian vessel not to voluntarily proceed to Alaska but to land at a Canadian port."

The coast guard said after the Anthony J. steamed into Canadian waters at Prince Rupert, the Massey Maid put into Nichols Bay near Ketchikan and the coast guard escorted it back to Canadian waters.

The coast guard spokesman said the Cape Romain broke off the chase after being told by the state department to avoid any overt action.

But Mr. Houghton said "the cutter not only tried to intimidate our vessel but proceeded to pursue it for 12 hours to Triple Islands just outside of Prince Rupert."

Mr. Houghton said the international boundary was established "several years ago and all waters south of that boundary are Canadian waters.

"But the Americans haven't accepted that," he said. "They say the line only divides the land, not water."

Decisive Battle Looms in Egg War

Manitoba Fights Court Case Which It Hopes to Lose--Again

WINNIPEG (CP) — Legal counsel for the Manitoba government will appear before the Supreme Court of Canada May 31 to support poultry marketing regulations the province hopes will be ruled unconstitutional.

The Supreme Court appearance will be the latest in a series of legal manoeuvres by Manitoba, an early battleground in the year-old chicken-and-egg war.

The interprovincial trade squabble started last spring when Quebec passed regulations enabling its egg marketing agency to bar out-of-province eggs. Since then most other provinces have retaliated with similar restrictions.

Manitoba, which exports about 60 per cent of its annual egg production, has led the attempts to have such regulations declared unconstitutional.

The province asked the Supreme Court to hear an application on the constitutional validity of the Quebec regulations, the first time in Canadian history one province has applied directly to the court for a ruling on the constitutional validity of another province's legislation.

Although the application was argued by the province's attorney-general, A. H. Mackling, the court refused Oct. 19 to accept it because there was no prior decision in a lower court.

Following the rebuff by the Supreme Court, Manitoba drew up two sets of regulations. One set restricted imports of chicken broilers and the other was a carbon copy of the Quebec regulations controlling egg imports.

Because Manitoba has a surplus of eggs, the egg-import regulations never were proclaimed. Instead, in December they were referred for a decision on their constitutional validity to the Manitoba Court of Appeal, with the government acting as defendant and a number of independent egg producers appearing as plaintiff.

In March, the appeal court ruled that the regulations were unconstitutional, setting the stage for an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

In its unanimous ruling, the appeal court said the Manitoba regulations infringe on Section 91 (2) of the British North America Act, which puts regulation of trade and commerce exclusively within federal jurisdiction.

If the Supreme Court upholds have help from a number of the appeal court decision, Mr. Mackling predicts an end to interprovincial restrictions.

"Quebec has to back down," he says. "If not, we will have a series of states with customs agreements and trade barriers."

In the Supreme Court appearance, Manitoba will once again be playing the part of devil's advocate—arguing that its regulations are within its jurisdiction to enact.

Defendants will be the egg producers, who are expected to

ARC Industries Has Open House

ARC Industries on Station St. will be open all this week from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. for visits from the public.

The Association for Retarded Children's Industries will not hold a special evening open house this year, but instead will open its doors to the public during regular hours.

ARC Industries employs 20 trainees to work on contracts from local firms — packaging, sorting, repairing wood- en shipping crates and the like. Bill Cook is director and he has one assistant.

The trainees are paid a nominal fee for their work, but ARC Industry's main benefit lies in the identity it gives each trainee in the community and the opportunity it affords for a social life and group experience.

Some trainees "graduate" to full - time jobs in regular industry.

"We try to find the type of jobs they like to do and give them experience, so that eventually they will be prepared to go into the community," said Mr. Cook.

Glenora Ferry Out of Service

PICTON — The Glenora ferry, Quinte Loyalist is out of service this week for minor spring repairs. Half-hour service from the Glenora to Adolphustown shores will be provided by her sister ship the Quinte. The Quinte carries a ten ton gross limit.

Ferries Capt. Keith Daubney said he hopes to have both boats in service for the upcoming holiday weekend when motorists will be provided with 15-minute service.

ing to a bylaw authorizing a contract with the firm.

Final approval will be delayed for a week, while both council and mangement of Commercial Refuse iron out fine points of the agreement.

By the contract, Trenton will pay $35,000 annually for five years for the service that covers both residential and industrial garbage disposal privileges at the company's Aitken's Road property.

It is expected the service will begin May 31, the day before the town's sanitary landfill in Centennial Park must shut down by order of the department of energy and resources management.

Clerk - comptroller O. W. Larry told council that the provision requested by Commercial Refuse that only of disposal service would increase during the five year contract period with the town's population had not been included in the draft contract.

Initially, there had been a clause for this but it is not specified now, he said.

Councillor Aziz indicated he had been disturbed that automobiles and private trucks would have to pay a fee to use the dump at Bayside. There was a general feeling among councillors that citizens would leave their garbage along back roads rather than taking it to the disposal site where they would pay.

Councillor Aziz indicated that Commercial Refuse is now willing to allow the cars and a number of trucks to enter the site free of charge — an accommodation which overcomes one of the principle shortcomings of the originally proposed arrangement.

He mentioned that the company will provide stickers to the town for distribution to truck operators here, allowing them to use the property without charge.

Town Council Approves Parking Site Purchase

TRENTON (Staff) — Council here Monday gave the green light to a parking authority request to purchase additional property for downtown parking.

Approved was a request to

Planning Board Resolution OK'd

TRENTON (Staff) — Council here Monday endorsed a resolution from the Quinte Area Planning Board which recommends member municipalities of the Board be exempted from paying the county levy for planning because they are now participating in the cost of operating the area board.

Seven of nine municipalities in the new planning area are assessed for planning by the County of Hastings, a situation which the Quinte board will move to end, with the support of its member communities and townships.

purchase the beauty salon premises, owned by Mrs. Helen Jones, on Quinte Street for $32,000.

The new lot is west of the present one behind the old post office. However, when the land is cleared, it will form a separate lot — not an extension of the post office parking area, because a driver of land separating them is owned by another party.

In other business, council gave its sanction to increasing the town's fire department by the hiring of an additional man and decided to hold a special budget meeting later this week.

All financial projections from municipal departments have been received at the town offices now.

During last night's session, council also decided to place responsibility for issuing taxi licences in the hands of the administrative board. Until now, council itself has determined who should get taxi licenses.

By the new ruling applications for licenses must be accompanied by a recommendation from the chief of police.

Plan Waits Until June

TRENTON (Staff) — After a series of special meetings to rush the town's new official plan through to its final stages, the Trenton and Suburban Planning Board is now taking its time as it deals with criticism.

Councillor Paul Tripp, a member of the planning board made it clear to council here Monday that the rush is off.

The board had presented the completed plan to council May 3 but council decided to delay giving its approval because the Quinte Homebuilders Association had asked to have an opportunity to examine it.

Representatives of the homebuilders appeared before council at last week's council- ee of the whole session to present a brief containing a number of criticisms of the plan. Homebuilders felt plot densities (housing units per acre) were too stringent and some of the land use projections unsatisfactory.

The homebuilders' brief was referred to the planning board for consideration. Mayor Duncan McDonald asked for a report from the board in council last night but one had not been prepared.

"We just let it go and we will talk to our consultants," said Councillor Tripp.

He added the board will be in contact with Project Planners of Toronto and will deal with the homebuilders' case at its next regular meeting June 1 — 22 days after the QHA made its submission to council.

Resolution Reinforced

TRENTON (Staff) — If CFB Trenton ever closes down in the future, the Town of Trenton will assume maintenance ground of the planned RCAF Memorial and Hall of Canadian Aviation History.

Council here had passed a resolution to this effect in 1968 and the resolve was strengthened with a bylaw of council here Monday.

The decision to give the commitment the force of a bylaw followed a request from the Department of National Defence asking if the town is still prepared to honor its resolution.

A resolution only has binding effect on a council in power and does not have to be accepted by subsequent councils. However, a bylaw has a degree of permanence.

Madoc Township Bylaw Freezes All Land Use

Madoc township council has frozen all land use within the township.

The action was taken May 15 and will prevent use of th James Quinlan farm for anything but agricultural purposes. It rules out his use as the site of a rock festival.

Township clerk Beryl Carman said today the bylaw must go to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval before becoming law in the township. It will remain in force until the Hastings county official plan, now in the preliminary stages of preparation, goes into effect.

The bylaw freezing all land at its present use can be amended to allow exceptions, said the clerk, for instance in the case of someone wanting to build a house on a small lot split from a farm.

Anyone who breaks the bylaw can be taken to court by the township. The penalty is a "fairly stiff fine, about $500 maximum," said Mr. Carman.

Yesterday, Reeve Cecil Wood of Madoc township took exception to press reports labelling an earlier regulatory bylaw an "anti-festival" bylaw.

"It is not designed to ban festivals," he said. "It's to regulate everything."

The reeve said the bylaw would not apply to country fairs, because it controls only those events that last for 24 hours or more.

"We can amend any part of the bylaw at any time to permit Sunday School picnics and country fairs," he said.

The so - called festival bylaw, drafted by the county and sent out to townships for their adoption if they wish, is now being passed in many of Hastings county's 27 municipalities.

County clerk Carl Bateman said he has no official count as yet of the number of municipalities that have passed the bylaw, but it is believed to be in effect in many townships.

It calls for a licensing fee of $500, posting with municipal clerks of an insurance bond for $200,000 property damage, and advance payment of the estimated cost of police protection.

'Y' Grant Approved

Taking a strong opposition stand was Alderman Arthur Keegan who said "Y" directors should get off their seats and raise their own funds.

Also, he said the "Y" should pay full school taxes.

Alderman Ben Corke took the opposite view, noting that unlike the Canadian Legion and certain other organizations, the "Y" didn't sell beer or conduct lotteries.

He also compared the work of the "Y" with the recreation committee but said it's a pity the new Dick Ellis Rink.

Council was told that the additional $10,000 for the 1971 Ellis Rink was required to pay the cost of heating required during extended ice continued in the winter months.

The United Community Services had requested a grant of $15,000 but City Manager Reynolds recommended the amount be reduced to $10,000.

The additional $2,000 was voted on condition that the organization make preparations for conducting a survey to determine if there was any duplication of services by any of the member agencies.

Also included in the last minute approvals was an item for $17,400, this being this year's cost of garbage disposal privileges at the new dump in Sidney township.

Trenton Council Balks on Census

TRENTON (Staff) — Council will not proclaim the 1971 census here unless it can co - operate with the Dominion Bureau of Statistics to help it to compile the census here, unless the form of the nation - wide statistical survey meets its approval.

Copies of the census forms to be mailed directly to the public will be secured by council this week and reviewed. Decision on whether Trenton will support the census is expected at next week's committee of the whole session.

Decision to hold off on proclaiming the dominion census was prompted by remarks of Councillor Ted Parker at last night's regular meeting of town council.

He said the new census is not merely a headcount but asks more questions than ever, some of a highly personal nature.

The councillor said the 1971 DBS survey has received a good deal of unfavorable publicity and may constitute an invasion of privacy.

"Not having seen it, I am not prepared to vote for a proclamation," he asserted.

Town Fined

The Corporation of the Town of Trenton was fined a total of $180 plus $7 court costs when found guilty in absentia in provincial court yesterday of having overloaded vehicles.

On April 14, both trucks were stopped on Highway 2 and found to be a total of 18,000 pounds in excess of the limit.

Mohawks' Arrival To Be Recreated

The landing of the Mohawks on the shores of the Bay of Quinte after the American Revolution will be recreated May 23 — the annual commemorative Mohawk Day celebrated at Tyendinaga Reserve.

This is the day when the historic communion plate given on the band by Queen Anne and brought with them from their American home to the Mohawk Valley to Canada, is used again at the 11 a.m. service in the reserve's Anglican Church.

The festivities will begin on the bayshore at Deseronto near the cairn marking the Mohawk landing almost 200 years ago. The recreation of the landing takes place at 9 a.m., followed by the service at the cairn and the church service at 11 a.m. All three events are open to the public.

Following the church service, a dinner will be served by the council house, followed by an innovative entertainment supplied by children and young people from the reserve.

They will present Mohawk dances, for the audience—part, of the revival of the Mohawk cultural heritage at Tyendinaga.

Funeral

PERCY G. TOUNSLEY

Funeral service for Percy G. Tounsley was held in the chapel of the Thompson Funeral Home, Monday, May 17 at 2 p.m.

Rev. Laurie Sutherland conducted the service and interment was in the Elmwood cemetery.

Bearers were Charles Gerow, Cornelius Lynch, Raymond Hal, Gerald Ethier, Fred Jones and Frank Culhane.

Council to Act On OWRC Scheme

TRENTON (Staff) — Council here tonight will be acting on a report from the Ontario Water Resources Commission that recommends a staff shuffle in sewage treatment plants at three Trent River communities.

According to the report, plant employees at Trenton, Frankford and Batawa should be amalgamated. The OWRC suggests this will provide more efficient and economical operation of the three treatment facilities.

Trenton's administrative board dealt with the OWRC report last week in private session and will recommend to council acceptance of the amalgamation scheme for a one-year trial period. However, they request further study of the arrangements be made in 1972 to determine if the method has proved successful.

City's Tax Rate Increases by 2.2 Mills This Year

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Belleville homeowners with properties assessed at $18,500 will pay an additional $40 in municipal taxes this year.

At a marathon six-hour budget session yesterday, city council approved a total tax rate of 36.4 mills commercial and 51.7 mills residential, or 2.2 mills over last year's rate.

Keeler Passmore Ltd. auditor J. Russell Scott had predicted a rate increase of less than two mills but the last-minute approval of nearly $38,000 not included in the budget recommendation of City Manager J. E. Reynolds added another .3 mills to the levy.

The budget (exclusive of education) provides for a total expenditure of $6,700,000 or an increase of approximately $900,000 over 1970 budget estimates.

The over-all tax rate is up and 51.7 mills residential, or 2.3

Interview With P.M.

Prime Minister Trudeau was at his coolest and most assured best answering a team of four CBC representatives in Sunday night's taped interview. At one point he said he would not get ulcers worrying about things and while he seemed sympathetic toward the plight of the country's vast army of unemployed he would not concede that the Government's measures to tackle it were wrong. In other words he was saying, in effect, that unemployment was an adjunct, however unfortunate, to the fight against inflation.

But Inflation, according to the Prime Minister is cured and yet we have some 750,000 unemployed. No Government can find jobs for that many people overnight. For this one thing there are not that many jobs available. Mr. Trudeau says moreover that if Canadians are dissatisfied with the measures being taken to combat unemployment they can indicate their displeasure at the ballot box.

Then what? Would another government fare any better? Whoever is in power is faced with the same circumstances. As the Bible says, all things come alike to all men. We do not profess to know what the answer to unemployment is. The Government itself obviously does not know, and Opposition suggestions (lowering taxes for one) are either impractical or too costly. The economists meanwhile talk with many and varied tongues, and the unemployed remain unemployed.

For the present Mr. Trudeau is away from it all, in the Soviet Union. Perhaps he will pick up some tips there. We suppose Russia has its unemployed too, although if they do we hear nothing about them.

More Vandalism

Vandalism is not new to Belleville. Indeed lately it seems to have been on the rise, the YMCA being the latest target. But for sheer destruction, the fate of Brockville Collegiate, 100 miles east of here, Friday night is appalling.

Damage estimated at several thousand dollars was caused at the school. Fire hoses had been turned on and left running. Desks were smashed, files strewn all around, windows broken and fire extinguishers tossed through them. The cafeteria was wrecked and display cases smashed. Water poured through the school all night and it was not until Saturday morning that a passerby gave the alarm when he saw water pouring under a door in the street.

Such behavior is reaching intolerable proportions. With so many people unemployed we wonder if this would not be a good opportunity to strengthen the caretaking staffs at schools, from among the ranks of those who are out of work.

What has happened at the Brockville school is a warning. We have experienced the same sort of thing in Belleville, and while it has been nothing like this, there is no guarantee something of the kind might not happen here. Weekends in particular are prime times for the vandals. Steps must be taken to curb them and, if caught, to deal with them severely.

Egyptian Purge

President Sadat of Egypt is proving himself a man of substance. Faced with a plot to overthrow him, relatively new government he has purged many of his leading ministers.

The move will strengthen Sadat's image in a country which for so long was dominated by the late President Nasser. Already it seems to have had the effect of rallying support around him.

The Egyptian crisis, which incidentally has drawn attention away from the eternal Arab-Israeli confrontation, recalls the time in 1952 when Maj.-Gen. Neguib forced the abdication of King Farouk and held power briefly. Nasser, one of the officers behind this coup, removed Neguib and succeeded him as premier in 1954. Two years later he was elected president.

It is clear there is to be no repetition of such a coup, not at this time anyway. Egypt seems to have another strong man at the helm in President Sadat.

Churchill Said It

CBC announcer Lloyd Robertson was talking recently about two MPs who accused each other of telling a lie and for the sake of Parliamentary good manners changed the term, for the record, to a "terminological inexactitude." He did not add, however, that the term was first coined by Sir Winston Churchill.

Eric Kierans

Ex Cabinet Minister En Route to Political Oblivion

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The Eric Kierans fans — and there is no shortage of them, especially in the business and financial community — who are looking for the former communications minister to light fires of economic enlightenment on Parliament Hill, are not likely to sight so much as a wisp of smoke.

Although business economist and financial operator Kierans may have his ideological hangups on foreign investment, this idiosyncrasy has not completely turned off the commercial community.

For Eric Kierans, self-made millionaire and former president of the Canadian and Montreal Stock Exchange, was, always, at heart, more of the pragmatic businessman than the political theorist.

That is what did him in finally.

His hard-line no compromise way of wanting things done, even in Government where that is not exactly the way to do it.

Eric Kierans, the businessman who turned politician — but never really made the true transformation — insisted to the very end on bringing his clear-cut, no-nonsense ideas on executive decision-making into the Government and Cabinet.

His thought: the Government ought to try paying its way operationally, and if a federal public service such as the Post Office cost some $420 million annually to run — as it currently does — then it should charge directly for the service and not sneak part of the price into the over-all tax rate.

If users of the service had to carry the full cost load, he argued, the Post Office, under instant and heavy public pressure, would have to sharpen up, operate on a businesslike basis, and like any self-respecting Corporation — crown or public — turn a profit.

Or at least not show a loss and write it off, like the CBC, to the general taxpayer.

So in a huff, or in pique, the impetuous Eric Kierans, impatient with the slow, plodding, extravagantly wasteful ways the Government conducts the nation's business, threw in the towel and says he is hitting what has to be the evangelical economic reform trail.

country," the Prime Minister

He will preach, he promises, wherever he finds a pulpit and a congregation willing to listen to the gospel of economic truth.

But who is he now?

Eric Kierans, MP, one in a band of 235 non-Cabinet Members of Parliament.

He will not be like all the others, because he belongs to that little faceless club of other members of Cabinets who walked out in a sulk or were booted by Prime Ministers.

But he will be out of the real action.

He will have about the same influence as former Cabinet Ministers, Liberal and Conservative, still in the Commons, such as Paul Hellyer, George Mcilraith, Douglas Harkness and George Hees. All either resigned or were retired — difficult to determine which in all cases, because Prime Ministers, in making the announcements of the Cabinet amputations, do not always tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

Of that little band, only George Hees continues making any kind of an impact in Parliament and only because he is a rather special and unusual type of parliamentarian with a flair all his own.

Douglas Harkness?

Remember, once Defence Minister? Ordered the fleet to sea during the Cuban missile crisis? Not many do.

And those other former Cabinet Ministers who were neither booted, nor resigned, but merely lost ministerial status in a losing election — Angus MacLean, Walter Dinsdale, Marcel Lambert — remember, or care about them?

So Eric Kierans, impulsive, compelled or perhaps condemned by his very character to instant decision-making, now joins the "faceless ones," the political "walking heads," who, lacking power, lack an audience.

Prime Minister Trudeau, before accepting with "regret and reluctance" his resignation, told Eric Kierans he'd be more useful would prove to be.

"... there are two ways of influencing the destiny of our country the Prime Minister counselled Earnest Eric so determined on exerting influence. "One, if you are a Minister, is to act upon the Cabinet, which might not always be satisfying, but at least you have got a foot some distance in power anyhow ...

"... whereas now, if you choose to talk to the academics, they will teach their students, who in 20 years will be officialists, who will write articles that will frighten the public, who will elect politicians, who will become ministers, who will adopt your policies, I think it is rather a lengthy procedure."

Eric Kierans, a vibrant, vital, talented and immensely industrious crusader after what he is convinced is the economic truth, is now embarking on this long, round-about, frustrating and — to this instant-kind-of-man — disappointing voyage of discovery.

He will sail into political sight yet a few times in the Budget and White Paper debates, and on platforms here or there — and then vanish over the perimeter of Parliament with the coming election.

Good-bye Eric Kierans, nice to have known you.

Keeping Up with the Times in Canada

Winnipeg Free Press

One of the problems confronting the editors of Quick Canadian Facts,' the pocket encyclopedia published annually in Canada, is that sometimes the facts change between the time they go to press and the time their publication is offered to the public. Even in the daily press it is not always easy to keep up with events. But there are certain facts about Canadian life that were identifiable at the beginning of this year — and which have not changed appreciably since — that are worth recording. They are:

(1) Canada, with a population of 21.5 million, is growing faster than any other industrial country.

(2) This growth rate, while encouraging, is uneven. It ranges from an increase of 2.9 per cent in British Columbia to a decrease of 2.5 per cent in Saskatchewan. (More significantly, it amounts to only 0.3 per cent in Quebec (an increase of 17,000, suggesting that that province is no longer winning the battle of the cradle).

(3) The increase in employed persons as of January 1 (compared with the year preceding) was 169,000. (Unfortunately, however, because of the post - war baby boom, 352,000 new jobs were required. Compared with the first quarter of 1970, unemployment at the start of 1971 was up by a startling 37.7 per cent.)

(4) The economy was, and continues to be, stagnant. The production index in January stood at 169.8 as against 172 a year earlier; and manufacturing shipments were fractionally down.

(5) Prices and wages have continued to rise, wages at twice the rate of prices over the past eight years — 56 per cent as against 28 per cent. But here again there are disparities. Organized workers have gained; those who have not had this power have become impoverished.

These are facts (not changed appreciably since the beginning of the year) with which the people and governments of Canada have to deal. How well they deal with them will be the measure of the nation's success or failure — in terms of costs, wages, production and employment — in the months ahead.

Search For Job

Ottawa Journal

It is almost an academic argument whether $15 or $25 million is "enough" for Government's Opportunities for Youth summer program. Government cannot — and should not — provide the money to ensure that every young person in the country is employed this summer. Ottawa could find all 13,000 projects submitted for the program. At the "average" cost of $1,925 that's $25 million just 600 projects, grants to all of those proposed could cost as much as $25 million! The mass of projects that do not get Federal Government funds will fall the initiative and concern of other governments, of private business and of voluntary organizations. If some are worth doing they should not be allowed to die simply because federal coffers have run dry.

PM's Northern Vision

Imagine—Canada's Youth in A New Pioneer Trek!

The Globe and Mail

Several hundred years ago, the poet tells us, the Town of Hamelin in Brunswick was overrun by rats. Finally the Mayor and the Corporation were at their wits' end when a Pied Piper named Hamelin appeared on the scene, promising to use his secret charms to get rid of the pests for only one thousand guilders. He lived up to his end of the deal but, of course, the good burghers of Hamelin weren't above a double - cross, whereupon Piper Hamelin led all of the town's brats off into the bowels of a hill called the Koppenberg.

Perhaps we should be looking for evidence of a double-cross in Ottawa where Piper Pierre is now threatening to use his particular set of charms to whisk some 10,000 Canadian youth off into some northland version of the Koppenberg. With one rather significant difference. Instead of the intention of leading this Children's Crusade. He's just going to pick up the tab for the whatever it costs to plunk 10,000 Canadian young people down on their own tiny plot of tundra.

"You've got some engineers, you've got some doctors, you've got some grocery people — people who want to live in communes — go and stake out a new city up there," he told the country's youth the other day, assuring them the Government would gladly help them on their way.

Carting truckloads of young people off to the Yukon would certainly be a novel way of solving the generation gap. If they had to cope with the white-outs, black flies, muskeg and isolation, perhaps they wouldn't persist in asking so many damn disconcerting questions.

But is the Prime Minister really serious? Our doubts are aroused by the Government's failure to do much of anything to assist those Canadians who already live in the North, that have a look at its record in dealing with 15,000 Canadian Eskimos and almost equal numbers of Indians scattered across the northland. How much has it done to make grocery places of the few villages and towns that have been carved out of the hostile Territories?

Victoria Colonist

Prime Minister Trudeau's suggestion that his government would be willing to assist 10,000 Canadian youths to create a new city in Canada's northland is an imaginative and exciting one.

However, . . . some of the more practical aspects of a plan of this nature seems to have escaped him.

Does he envisage such a city to be a massive commune made up of young people all doing their non - productive thing at the cost of the Canadian taxpayers?

Certainly this might be one way of ridding the more overpopulated metropolitan areas of unemployed and unemployable young people who might be potential trouble - makers, though if this is what he has in mind it smacks more of the old Siberia - type concentration camp than a beautiful new city.

On the other hand, though, he might visualize thousands of young people heading north armed with picks, shovels and the impediments, until and guts required to begin growth and self - supporting communities.

And this we could all applaud for it is certain that our young people could and would rise to the occasion. Unfortunately such an experiment would be very costly — perhaps so costly that the government would have difficulty in finding enough taxpayers' dollars to underwrite it.

Davis Issues Call for New Blood at Picton PC Meeting

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Ontario premier William Davis last night reminded members of the Prince Edward - Lennox Progressive Conservative Association that their party partially owes its success to recognition by its leadership of a need for new blood.

Mr. Davis, who addressed approximately 250 persons attending the association's annual meeting at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, stressed that party leaders through the years have realized that the importance of the party supercedes the importance of its leader. "Our leadership, in the past, has been prepared to step down to recharge the batteries, to rejuvenate the thinking in the people within the party and to maintain this in terms of leadership. That is what our party has done and that is one of the reasons it will continue to administer the affairs of this province of Ontario," he predicted.

Mr. Davis also credited a large part of the Conservative party's success in On-

Unfinished Houses Complaint

Homebuilders Will Present Recommendation to Sidney

A recommendation, in the form of a letter, will be made to Sidney Township Council to provide time limits on building permits for residential development.

Quinte Home Builders Association member Mike Demark said at last night's meeting of the QHBA "there are people living in finished homes, basements, along side roads in Sidney Township . . . you can see houses covered in tar paper."

He proposed that a letter be sent to Sidney Township Council, asking that time limits for construction after the issuance of building permits be implemented. "We are looking for guidance in what is best for the community as a whole," said Mr. Demark.

Randy Loewen, president of the home builders association agreed with the suggestion and explained to several dissenting members that it was not their intention to dictate or judge, but to suggest certain guidelines to help eliminate unfinished homes in townships.

Mr. Demark pointed out that a "lot of people do this to save taxes" as they are not taxed as much on unfinished homes."

Another association member, Albert Hoelock, said "we build a good home and some jerk comes in beside you and puts up a tarpaper shack."

A spokesman for the regional assessment office in Trenton this morning explained that unfinished homes are taxed on a lower assessment that complete homes. For example, a basement with a basic shell showing open studding, would be classified half a complete home's assessment. The scale generally used, is 50, 75 and 100 per cent assessment for stages of construction.

Although assessment is based on present market value, Leighton Thompson of the regional assessment office said a major concern is with "the aesthetic affect it has on neighboring properties."

George Caves, building inspector for Sidney Township, when informed of the homebuilders' forthcoming letter, said "I do concur with this thought, other municipalities have these guidelines and it will be up to our council to act on the suggestion."

However, he added, "we're really not having that much of a problem now; there's not that many incomplete homes."

Honeymoon Over Says PC Speaker

PICTON (Staff) — The Trudeau honeymoon is over— the political honeymoon observed Douglas Alkenbrack, MP Frontenac-Lennox.

Mr. Alkenbrack, who addressed members of the Prince Edward - Lennox Progressive Conservative Association during their annual meeting last night, said the aura of freshness that Trudeau's image is "not as bright" as it was earlier.

"The credibility of the prime minister and his finance minister and his government is at a new low. Now is our opportunity to contribute to do the good job Mr. Stanfield and the loyal opposition is doing on the left-hand side of the speaker—and the prime minister admitted on television that Stanfield was doing a good job."

Mr. Alkenbrack declared that this admission points up the "sterling work of Robert Stanfield".

Norris Whitney to Step Aside — If

PICTON (Staff) — "There's a time to get in and a time to get out," said Norris Whitney, MPP, Prince Edward-Lennox, discussing his political future.

The Amelisburg township resident who has represented this riding for almost 23 years, last night announced he would not seek the Conservative association's nomination for the next election unless certain others who have expressed interest should reverse their decisions. "Only one thing could change my mind," said the veteran politician, as he mentioned this possibility. He promptly added, "I don't say I would, but I might" when he refered to stepping in should other "able candidates" drop out.

Mr. Whitney said that in presenting the riding is a full time job which often forces him to forego other activities. "There have been very many good names mentioned and I am sure we will select a candidate who will be successful in the next election," commented Mr. Whitney, "I have no axes to grind, it's been great." he said reviewing his career.

Mr. Whitney, who defeated sitting Liberal member Donald Baxter almost two decades ago, warned that legislation must be pleasing to a certain percentage of urban residents as well as to farmers. He mentioned past achievements such as construction of the Quinte Skyway Bridge, location of the Lake Ontario Cement Co. Ltd. in Prince Edward, development of Sandbanks Provincial Park and of highways in the county. "We don't want anything to change our way of life here but we can stand something to boost our economy," he ventured.

He noted he had deliberately waited to announce his plans concerning the nomination because a premature statement could have put him in "a laying duck" position, hampering his accomplishments.

Among other Conservative party members rumored as interested in the nomination are Prince Edward County sheriff Herbert J. Colliver former chairman of the Prince Edward County board of education Edward Rutter, immediate past county warden Gordon Lloyd, Picton merchant Jessie Mason and Wellington warden of Lennox County businessman Robert Boyce. Warden of Lennox County, Cecil Kidd, has announced that he plans to seek the nomination.

Second Motorcycle Fatality in County

PICTON (Staff) — A 5 year-old Demorestville boy died in Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital last night after being struck by a motorcycle while playing near his home on Sophiasburg road about two miles east of Doxsee's Corners.

Edward Barry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Barry, RR 3, Demorestville, died shortly after he apparently ran into the path of a motorcycle driven by John Doxsee, 17, RR 9, Picton.

The child was taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital where he later was pronounced dead by county coroner Dr. C. R. Richmond.

Motorcyclist John Doxsee also was taken to hospital with leg fractures sustained in the collision. The accident occurred shortly before 8 p.m. last evening. A spokesman for the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said no inquest will be held.

Police also said today there will be no inquest into the death of Ronald Glenn Hyatt, 36, Picton who was killed Sunday when his motorcycle collided with a go - cart driven by Terry Forbes, 16, of Picton on Scoharie road.

Fantasy Visit For Winners

TORONTO (CP) — A world the city commuter takes for granted as he trudges into concrete canyons was one of fantasy when two Ojibway Indian girls arrived in Toronto for a visit this spring.

Charlotte Papah and Ida Yesno, both 13, of the Fort Hope reserve in Northern Ontario, were on a 10-day first look at a big city—the prize for a service-club-sponsored essay contest.

Home for the girls is a long way from white man's civilization. The Fort Hope reserve is 250 miles north of Thunder Bay and 125 miles from the nearest railway line.

Host Jerry Marshall first took the girls to the new city hall and Casa Loma.

The old castle fascinated the young visitors. They stared at it from every angle and snapped pictures with cameras given by the essay sponsors.

Charlotte was not sure she would want to live in Casa Loma. "I'd get lost all the time," she said.

At city hall, the Henry Moore sculpture, The Archer, seemed more entrancing than the curves of the strange high building.

Bewildered by their first look at cars, subway trains and big buildings, the girls were both too shy when asked to describe their reactions to city life. They babbled with excited words, but like many young teen-agers, quickly evaporated into shy giggles.

"I'm the only one they'll talk to," confided Janice Marshall, 11, daughter of the host.

"They say they just can't believe everything. And they love riding in the car. They've been in one before yesterday."

In contrast, Charlott and Ida both expressed their ideas articulately in prize-winning essays.

Ida revealed her ideas for the future and Charlotte described the wilderness life of her people.

Charlotte told of working the trap lines in winter and the summer activity of fishing and gwemili work.

"The educated ones work at stores, school, powerhouse and nursing station," Charlotte wrote. "The old people are supported by the welfare, although a few people that can't get a job are supported by general welfare."

Ida took a look ahead with hopes for development of her village.

"By 1991," she wrote, "houses will have running water which will be easier than hauling it up by pails. Houses will also have hydro power instead of diesel power. These houses will at least have a basement by then.

"They will have stoves, heaters and stoves. They will have appliances, such things as electric irons, toasters, kettles, pans, blankets and others."

She reflected the chronic unemployment burden carried by her people.

Roads will be built from Pickle Lake and Nakina, she wrote, as:1 "men will be needed to look after the highways, and a gas station will be built which will also need looking after."

"Because of these roads, a mine will be opened up and miners will be needed. In jobs, men and women will work, such as being clerks, secretaries, bakers, bankers, mechanics, and others which will be available."

In 20 years the reserve village would be a real town, with "at least more than three stores."

"Some other things will be found different, such as bars, theatres and police rations."

Crimplene Is Popular in Men's Suits

By SUSAN KORAH
CP Women's Reporter

In this age of unisex fashions, pant - suited women and long - haired men, women's fashion designers have borrowed many ideas from male styles. Now it seems as if the traffic is on a two - way street.

A variety of fabrics, till recently used mostly for women's fashions are now making their way into men's wardrobes. Crimplene, fortrel and double knits might sound feminine (since most of us associate them with women's styles) but there's really nothing effeminate about a man's crimplene suit.

Not only can crimplene look as rugged and masculine as some of the more conventional fabrics, it's also light - weight (and so ideal for spring and summer), requires virtually no ironing and is available in plain, checked and houndstooth patterns.

Men are also enthusiastic about its stretchability which makes for maximum comfort and freedom of movement. It's easy to care for too, being machine washable and dryable.

Fortrel and double knits have almost the same features as crimplene, so no wonder then that all these are now becoming unisex fabrics!

Crimplene Is Fashion for Male Chauvinists

Men's suits made of crimplene? Why not? say Brendan McNeill who models a cream colored one and Blaine Statham who wears a dark brown one. Comfortable to wear and easy to take care of, crimplene can also look rugged and masculine, which is why it's 'in' for men's fashions.

Wife May Use Her Own Name

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

In spite of what most people think, a woman does not have to take her husband's name when they marry. She can go right on being Susie Jones while living in legal bliss with Bill Smith.

The report of the royal commission on the status of women in Canada says: "There is no law which requires a woman to adopt her husband's name upon marriage. The change of name is a custom."

Two women who decided to keep their maiden names say they did so because they consider them an important part of their own personalities.

One of them, Elsie MacGill, has been married to E. J. Soulsby since 1943. He is a business executive with an aircraft firm; she is a highly successful aeronautical engineer and was one of the status commissioners.

She says: "A name is a part of an individual. It's also very important for everybody and anybody."

Felicia Folk is a second-year law student married to Alan Farber, who is articling.

She says of her choice: "I suppose it's a statement that I consider my personality as important as his, and so does he. The name is a facet of a person."

Miss MacGill says she has never had any difficulty over her name either in business or socially.

"It's amazing how quickly people accept it. They even say, 'Well, Miss MacGill, how's your husband?'"

Miss Folk, who has only been married since October, says she and her husband have both had to put up with questions and "a certain amount of razzing."

"The worst thing is the questions. When I started law school people asked, 'Why are you in law school?' Now they ask about the name, and I suppose they're entitled to the question because it is an unusual thing to do. I haven't developed a pat answer yet.

"The students at law school, especially the boys, say, 'Hi, Mrs. Farber'—as if to say, 'you may think you're using your own name, but it's not that kind of a world.'

My friends said it's useful to men to know if a girl is Miss or Mrs."

The only other problem she has encountered has been with computers.

"When you're filling out forms they ask if you're married and what is your maiden name, and it bothers computers if you don't fit the form.

"We'll see if it matters this year when my husband deducts me on the income tax, but this will be the only year he can because I'll be working."

Both women remarked that the custom of taking a husband's name after marriage is anything but universal. In some cultures girls carry their mothers' names.

And Miss MacGill pointed out that though it is not often done, it is an old idea. Champions of women's rights in the United States in the late 19th century followed the example of Lucy Stone, a Massachusetts wife who retained her maiden name.

The commission's assertion that is is only a custom to change names is based on the fact that there is no law that states that a woman must change her name.

The report does add that "While the law does not precisely state that a married woman may choose to retain her husband's name without her husband's consent—but that is in the case of women who have adopted their husbands' names.

She says she believes that retaining a maiden name can actually save a lot of confusion because of the continuity. Suzie Jones doesn't suddenly disappear for people who don't know whom she married. And if the bliss ceases and a divorce takes place, she doesn't have to carry a name she may no longer want.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Dan: "All the fellows are going camping. I don't want to stay home just for a cold. I'll never get another chance to go with the gang if I do."

Mother: "You are running a temperature but I hate to have you miss the fun. Be sure you don't go swimming."

Parents should not permit a teen-ager to put pleasures and social life ahead of health. If you wonder if you're being overly protective, ask the doctor what is wise, and be firm about having your child abide by his opinions.

WEDDING

RYAN — MRAKAVA

A spring wedding was solemnized by Rev. Father Brisson in St. Mary's Catholic Church, Tillsonburg on Saturday May 15 at 4 p.m. when Olga Catherine, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mrakava, Tillsonburg was united in marriage with William Ryan of St. Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ryan of Belleville.

The bride was in a white ligoda gown featuring guipure lace around the neckline. Her long sleeves were puffed with deep set-in cuffs trimmed with guipure lace. The bodice was lavishly trimmed with fleurettes extending to the set-in wristband. The skirt was full with the hem edged in lace and fleurettes. Her frelin was fastened at the shoulders. A floral head piece with a three-tired veil completed the ensemble. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and deep pink roses.

The attendants were gowned in period costumes designed and made by the bride. Mrs. Frank Mrakava, sister - in - law of the bride, who was matron of honor was gowned in mint green embroidered batiste with frilled skirt, white bodice, short puffed sleeves and long white velvet sash bow at the wrist. She wore white gloves and shoes and carried a summer parasol to match her gown.

Miss Ann Marie Ryan, sister of the bridegroom in blue and Miss Debbie Jaremcik, niece of the bride in pink were dressed like the matron of honor and carried similar parasols.

The bridegroom was attended by Barry Mrakava of St. Thomas and the ushers were Joseph P. Ryan of Whitby and Michael E. Ryan of Belleville, brothers of the bridegroom.

Guests of honor at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barchok of Burford, godparents of the bride.

The reception following the wedding was held at the Tillsonburg legion hall. The bride's mother wore a royal blue polyester crepe gown with mink stole, beige accessories and a corsage of pink and white 'mums.

The bridegroom's mother was in an azure blue crepe gown with mink cape, black accessories and a corsage of blue and white 'mums.

The newly married couple left on a trip to the Southern States and visited Washington and Arlington cemetery. On their return they will live in St. Thomas.

Dean of Women Addresses Guild

During the devotional service at the June meeting of Albert College Guild, Miss Helen Sulman based her study on the fact "The face mirrors character and we become what we wish to be."

Mr. Shewfelt, principal of the college in referring to the recent fire, paid tribute to the students for their prompt action and co - operation in all problems that have been faced since. He hoped that by September 1 the college would be back to normality.

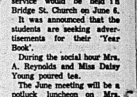
He announced that the enrolment had increased for the coming year. In referring to former students, he mentioned that William Boyd was in the ordination class at Emmanuel College this spring.

Three Albert College students provided three musical numbers during the program.

Mr. Shewfelt introduced the speaker Mrs. P. H. Christensen, Dean of Women at the college. She recalled many of the unforeseen experiences with which she had to cope, when as a young bride, she and her husband were sent to a charge under the United Church in a small village in Saskatchewan at a salary of $450. per year.

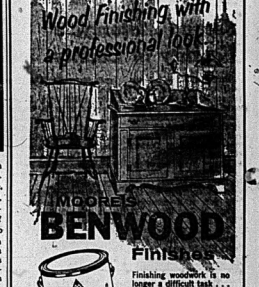
While there, they organized a Ladies' Aid Group, Cubs and Scouts, Red Cross and a choir and some of those young people are making a real contribution to the world today.

Mrs. A. Reynolds thanked those taking part in the program.



During the business meeting conducted by the president Mrs. E. Fleming plans were made for convocation on June 7 and it was announced that the baccalaureate service would be held in Bridge St. Church on June 6.

It was announced that the students are seeking advertisements for their 'Year Book'.



During the social hour Mrs. A. Reynolds and Miss Daisy Young poured tea.

The June meeting will be a potluck luncheon on Mrs. Shewfelt's lawn.

Ann Landers
Various Information Gleaned in Survey

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been in telephone survey work for several months. It is fascinating and it is also frightening. I say frightening because, without even trying, I have been the recipient of information that could make certain individuals ideal victims of robbery, rape and worse.

Yesterday, for example, I learned such things as: Mrs. J. L. K. lives alone. She is hard of hearing and her sight is failing. Mrs. T. R.'s husband works nights. He doesn't get home until 6 a.m. Mr. Sandwich wants added two children under 13 years of age are alone until 6:00 p.m. when their mother returns from work. At such-and-such a place there is never anyone home between 9:00 and 3:00 p.m. At another address there is no one home between 4:00 p.m. and midnight — but they always leave a light on "in case people."

Please, Ann, tell your readers not to give out information to a stranger on the telephone. It might make them sitting ducks. Thanks. Folks that a little caution can go a long way.— HEARD IT ALL.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ALL: We'd make a peach of a pair. You've heard it all and I've read it all. Thanks for writing.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You are so biased in favor of the men I could wring your neck.
